DEAR SIR,—A few weeks since the writer was in the city of Kingston helping the Young Men's Christian Association to raise $20,000 for a new building. In that city there was no liberal bequest to begin with, but simply to ask citizens directly for the money. The circumstances in Kingston are these. Two new Presbyterian churches had just been built and one of these was getting a new organ in whilst we were canvassing. Queen-st. Methodist church, a new building, had within a short time been burned down and rebuilt, the first building not paid for and next to no insurance upon it. Sydenham-st. Methodist church virtually rebuilt and new organ put in. Kingston had also given $70,000 to Queen's College within this little while.

The conditions were not hopeful to begin with and yet the first person called, upon a lady having heard of the intention of the Association to build, had without solicitation obtained five hundred dollars in gold which she handed to the gentleman who called upon her. Two business men gave $1,250, each cash subscriptions, one of those had within three years built a church at his own cost and the other had just given a large sum to his own church. Several persons gave $500, $300, $250 and thirty three men had given $100 a piece when the writer left. About $17,000 was readily obtained and the $20,000 needed will be on hand by the time set for building. Now, in Peterborough, with $15,000 to commence, it seems impossible to obtain a starting subscription. The building needed here will cost $22,000. Only $7,000 of this is asked from the citizens and although we have during these some days past called upon wealthy men we have had no encouragement. Two sums of $150 each and one sum of $50 is all we have so far been promised.

It is a pity that Mrs. Nicholls munificent bequest for the young men should have so paralized the citizens that $7,000 is too much for them to raise for what is a first need in the town and for what will virtually be a public building. The writer has had years of experience in work of this kind, but has never before met with such utter want of public spirit and his surprise is unbounded when he sees the growth and general air of prosperity reigning in this aggressive soon to be a city. Will not some of the readers of this paper wake up to redeem their town from what will certainly be a reproach to it should this building have to be erected with the amount available under Mrs. Nicholls' will? Here is an opportunity for a public spirited man to start the subscription. This must be done within a few days or the effort to meet the need and erect a suitable building will be abandoned and the Association will perforce take just what it can get, to the everlasting disgrace of Peterborough.

Yours truly,
T. S. COLE.

C. McGill, Esq., Agent Phœnix Fire Insurance Co.:

DEAR SIR,—I was very agreeably surprised this morning when you advised me that you had received a cheque for $2,000.00 the amount in full of insurance which we held against the implements destroyed at the fire on the morning of the 8th, which we had stored in what was known as the old mill, and would avail myself of this opportunity to thank the inspector for the fair and business like manner that he adjusted the valuation, and I certainly think that your company has been extra prompt, in so soon paying over the amount of loss.

LONDON, May 14.—In spite of repeated warning sent out from time to time concerning the fraudulent character of so-called English estate agents in America, recent developments show the number of dupes is increasing. During the past few weeks more letters than ever before have been received from America enquiring after imaginary estates of fabulous sums awaiting the writers in the Bank of England. In the case of many estates such as the Jennings, Lawrence-Townley or Chase-Townley, Hyde, Herne, Bradford, Hedges and others special circulars had to be printed to answer the numerous applicants. The fraudulent agents insert advertisements in newspapers regarding alleged estates and collect fees for pretended searches, etc., from the parties who are persuaded that they are heirs. The dupes often pay money to these agents for several successive years.

A Budget of Horrors.

BERLIN, May 14.—Albert Ebner, until recently Mayor of St. Blasien, in Baden, has been sentenced to death at Constance for the murder of his wife and her sister, Maria Dens, and setting fire to the house occupied by his mother-in-law, aged 80 years, thus causing her death by burning. There was also proof that Ebner had committed nine outrageous assaults upon women.

Herr Wilmes, manager of a savings bank at Olpe, Prussia, died recently, deeply lamented by his fellow-townsmen, who regarded him as a model of integrity. So great was the confidence reposed in the banker that a majority of the depositors in his institution allowed him to keep their books and adjust their accounts without supervision on their part. It has just been discovered, in settling up the affairs of the deceased, that nearly a million marks belonging to the confiding depositors is missing.

Herr Kraal, a well-known banker, has been robbed and murdered in broad daylight on the highway near Eisenach, Saxe-Weimar.

While a regatta of the Segler Club was in progress on the Mueggel Lake, near this city, to-day the yachts Eintracht and Roland collided and the latter was sunk. Herr Meuk, owner of the ill-fated craft, was drowned.

A Bit of Philosophy.

Live within your income. How to do this is the vital question. Two courses are open, increase income or curtail expenditure. It's about as hard to cut down expenses as to increase income. However, amidst the general perplexity which the situation calls up there is the re-assuring thought that no matter how things go, one way to save is to buy your teas at hawleys', where prices are at the bottom notch and qualities on top of the heap. If you need to save buy your teas at hawleys', george-st., the famous tea men. d113

A Strong Company.

The Brockville Recorder says:—"A fair sized audience greeted the 'Runaway Wife' at the Opera House last night. The play is of a highly emotional character, and is interpreted by a company strong in all its parts and the interest of the audience is maintained from the time the curtain rises on the first act until it closes on the final tableau. Incidental to the fourth act Little Lottie, a toddler of about five summers, appeared in a couple of songs and captured the audience by her cute ways." FRIDAY, MAY 15, 1891.

THE RUSSET APPLES.

A late March twilight, with a bitter rest in the air; the new moon just dipping its golden horn behind the maple swamp in the west, and the ground sounding crispy under foot. We had just come in from foddering the cattle—"we" sounds rather singularly when you reflect that it meant Kitty and I, two girls of seventeen and nineteen; but you see there wasn't any one else to do it. Father had been bedridden ever since that last attack of paralysis, and we could afford to hire no one to take his place about the farm.

"I don't pity them gals," Neighbor Dyson said. "They might sell the horse and cow."

Neighbor Dyson had generously offered us something less than half price for them, thinking, no doubt, that we would be thankful to jump at the chance. But Kitty and I, after taking the matter into consideration, thanked him, and declined politely.

"We couldn't keep house without old Mooley, could we, Addy?" said my sister. "There are so many nice dishes we can make for poor father, if we have plenty of good, rich milk and cream. And the butter that we should have to buy at Neighbor Dyson's city prices would go far to counterbalance the money we should get for Mooley."

"And as for the horse," said I, "he eats but a little; and how on earth could we get around the country, even to the post-office, such weather as this, if it wasn't for old Dobbin, that we have had ever since I can remember."

So it happened that on this special March evening we had just come in from attending to the wants of our live stock.

I was in great spirits, playing with pussy, who came to meet us with her plumy tail erect; but Kitty leaned sadly against the wooden mantel and looked into the fire with mournful eyes.

"Kitty," cried I, at last, "what does make you so dull?"

"To-morrow is the 3d of March," said she, gravely.

"What of that?" I demanded.

"Don't you remember? The interest on the mortgage comes due to-morrow."

"So it does," said I, my radiant face falling faster than the thermometer on a freezing day. "Thirty-five dollars! And we have nothing to pay it with except the fifteen dollars Laura Osgood paid for the old melodeon."

"Perhaps Willis Avery would wait,"

I drew myself up, slightly.

"I don't choose to ask him to wait," said I.

Now, it happened that Willis Avery, who held the mortgage on our homestead, was the son of a neighbor and an old playfellow and boy-beau of my own, who had gone to the prosperous young city a few miles north of us and commenced business on his own account, and I had a peculiar aversion to asking aid or help of him in any way. I might be poor, but I was also proud, and Kitty was quite sympathetic enough to understand me.

"But, then, what are we to do?" said Kitty.

I sat down on the hearth rug, with my chin in my hands, and stared earnestly at the big crackling black log. Pussy crept away and nestled down in the corner, as if she knew by instinct that there was a change of temperature.

"Look here, Kitty," said I, suddenly. "Those russet apples!"

"Well?"

"We can sell them. There are eight barrels at the least. Eight barrels at two dollars and fifty cents a barrel—"

"My dear Addy, no one will buy them at one-fifth the price. Apples are a drug in the market."

"Here, I grant you, but not in the city. I will take them to Mapleton and sell them."

"You will, Addy?"

"And why not? Squire Dyson would charge at least twenty per cent. commission, and make a favor of it at that. I can't afford either the price or the patronage. Don't say any thing about it to father. He would only fret and raise objections. What must be done, must be, and I am the girl to do it."

"But, Addy, how? All this seems so perfectly wild and visionary to me."

"Well, it needn't; for, believe me, it's the most practical thing in the world. All we have to do is to sort the apples out in barrels, nice and sound—I can easily do it by lantern light to-night—and to-morrow morning we'll rise early, harness old Dobbin to the lumber-wagon—"

"But how are we to get the heavy barrels up into the wagon?"

"Goosie!" cried I, laughing. "Can't I put the barrels up into the wagon while they're empty, and fill them at my leisure? And I'll have them sold at Mapleton before you've got the pork and cabbage boiling for dinner."

"But where will you go?" asked Kitty.

"Oh! I know lots of places. I went once to town with Obediah Fairweather, when he sold a lot of cheeses. I've pretty good idea of the locality of the commission stores, I can tell you."

"After all, Addy," hesitated my conservative little sister, "it isn't a woman's work."

"Why isn't it, I should like to know, so long as a woman can do it. At all events, a woman must pay her debts; so if you'll hurry up the tea I'll be off to the barn.'

"And what shall we tell papa?"

"Oh! he'll think I've gone to singing-school with the Dyson girls, and I don't think it's a Christian duty to undeceive him," answered I.

But notwithstanding the brave face I put upon affairs, my heart quivered a little the next day as I drove off toward Mapleton, with the scarlet stain of sunrise dyeing all the east, and my own the side scenes, received a card, which seemed to have upon him an effect as of a strong charge of electricity. He ran precipitately to the private door, communicating between the house and the stage, where a lady was standing much muffled up. She wore a black dress and cloak, and her head and shoulders were enveloped in a white lace shawl. She let this fall open as Inigo approached, and disclosed the features of Vera Marana. She laughed good naturedly, and gave him her hand, which he covered with [illegible] his eyes devoured her with [illegible] and interrogation.

"Well, M. Mona," said she, "what are you so affectionate for? Have you pardoned me?"

"Pardoned! Ah! diva! By Jupiter! Did you just come?"

"I was here from the first, but not in the box—no; one cannot hear there. I was away among the common ones. It was necessary I should know what she could do—this young lady—this other self! Well, mon ami, you may compose yourself. I have heard her, now I wish to see her—speak to her. Conduct me where she is and then leave us. Anyone with her?"

"Only her brother. Shall I"——

"Bien, bien! Lead on, mon vieux, I am in a hurry."

When he had brought her to the door of Beatrix's room she made him depart, and then knocked at the door. It was opened by Ed. She made him a gesture at once of greeting and of silence, and advanced into the room, which was filled with flowers. Beatrix was reclining on her sofa with a sad and abstracted expression; but as she raised her eyes and met those of her visitor she sat erect, and the next moment rose to her feet. "You are—Marana!" she said in an inward tone. The two women gazed intently at each other, and there was silence for several seconds. At last the visitor said: "I had thought I was Marana until now. But now, mademoiselle, the name is yours by the right that you have made it more honorable."

"Oh, no—no!" the other murmured.

"Yes, yes, yes!" said Marana, with a smile, which, however, was quickly lost in the gravity of her reigning expression. "You have surprised me," she continued, after a pause; "I did not mean to forgive you! I was angry. But your voice has called my heart out of my bosom. There is no one who can sing like you—no one—not even I!"

The tone in which these words were uttered—dignified, but profoundly pathetic, as of a great queen discrowning herself—touched Beatrix to the soul and her eyes filled with tears. She shook her head, but she could not speak. After all there was a ravishing sweetness in this praise, coming from the one source in the world which there could be no gainsaying.

"You two ought to pull in a team," put in Ed. "No theatre standing would hold the audiences that would come to hear you sing together!"

Marana made a gesture of negation with her head. "There shall never be but one Marana," she said proudly, "and she shall be the greatest singer in the world! Behold her!" she added, with a movement of her eyes toward Beatrix. "As for me, I sing no more! I have been your audience, mademoiselle; I will never again have an audience of my own!"

"Do not say it—you break my heart!" cried Beatrix; and she glided forward, and took the Russian impetuously in her arms. "Tell her Ed," she said, half turning to appeal to him, but not letting Marana go. "It is I who shall sing no more; I did it only to help my father and him. This is the last night. If you care for him do not punish his sister. Be yourself again, and be my sister, too!"

Marana drew her head back, and gazed for a moment into the other's eyes. Then she kissed her gravely on both cheeks, and disengaged herself. "You believe, then, that I really love your brother?" she said.

"Yes, indeed! How could you help it!" exclaimed Beatrix warmly.

BUY NOW IF AT ALL.

EVERY day makes more apparent the fact that the town is going ahead rapidly. Numerous changes have taken place in the way of the ownership of property. Many workingmen are buying houses and lots or lots on which to build. One of the most suitable locations is that known as the Brie property, at the west end, owned largely by Mr. Wm. Fitzgerald. This week he has closed the sale of a very desirable new house and lot, and has several eligible lots on this property to dispose of. Property in this neighborhood is rapidly being built up, and it will be well to have a look at the situation if one is at all disposed to buy. The terms are very favorable and especially low for cash, though payment on time may be arranged.

It affords me unbounded pleasure to know that those who have bought properties from me in the past have reason to rejoice. I positively do not know one instance out of the hundreds of properties which I have sold, where the purchasers have had to sell at a loss, while on the contrary I can name dozens of purchasers who have pocketed their tens, hundreds and thousands. These are facts which I can prove true.

I have a few Real Bargains in Comfortable Homes on easy terms for those who are wise enough to buy quickly. Be advised and do not delay. Building Lots at all prices.

A HAMILTON FAILURE.

Collapse of Stove Manufacturing Firm of J. M. Williams & Co.

TORONTO, May 15.—Williams & Co., stove manufacturers of Hamilton, have assigned to E. R. C. Clarkson. It was the sensation of yesterday in business circles. To a select few the firm's shaky condition has been known for some time, but even to these the final collapse was a surprise. The last straw which brought about the failure was a judgment obtained on behalf of the Bank of Hamilton against the firm which was returnable in the Chancery Court yesterday, and as the amount involved was $20,000, they decided to place their estate in the hands of Mr. Clarkson. The Spectator Company of Hamilton secured an order of judgment yesterday morning for an account amounting to $154.50 and costs. The legal complications which have arisen since the death of Mr. J. M. Williams, who formerly represented Hamilton in the Provincial Assembly, have also been a factor in bringing about the downfall.

The liabilities and assets are unknown, and it is held by the Bank of Hamilton's solicitors that if the estate is properly managed it will yield a good dividend. Apart from the bank the creditors will include Crathern & Caverhill of Montreal, James Robertson & Co. and Samuels, Benjamin & Co. of Toronto.

A motion for judgment against the firm asked for by the Bank of Hamilton for some $20,000 was refused at Osgoode Hall yesterday, because it was a chancery case and Chief Justice Galt would not hear it.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

THE M'GREEVY SCANDAL BEFORE THE COMMITTEE.

The Modus Vivendi Will Be the First Bill To Become Law—Sir John Is Seriously Ill, But Refuses To Go On a Holiday—Capital Chat.

OTTAWA, May 15.—The Tarte-McGreevy ball opened this morning in the Committee of Privileges and Elections, which met for organization, and immediately buckled down to business.

There was a very full attendance of the committee, amongst the prominent members present being Sir John Thompson, Hon. J. A. Chapleau, Hon. C. H. Tupper, Hon. John Costigan, Hon. David Mills, Messrs. Davies, Edgar, Langelier and Mulock.

Sir Hector Langevin was present but took no part in the proceedings. Mr. McGreevy was not present.

The reference from the House having been read the chairman asked if any of the [illegible] interested desired to be represented by counsel, whereupon Mr. Tarte named Mr. C. A. Geoffrion to act on his behalf. Mr. Tarte then moved for an order on the public works and other departments to be instructed to produce the papers connected with the several contracts to be made the subject of the inquiry.

Sir John Thompson asked if in order to avoid delay Mr. Tarte would be prepared to go on with any part of the inquiry before the production of the papers.

Mr. Tarte replied that he feared it would be imprudent to summon any witnesses until an examination of the papers showed whether or not their attendance was necessary.

Sir John Thompson urged that some witnesses might be named in advance, but this Mr. Tarte declined to do until the papers were examined.

Sir John Thompson said it was evident the inquiry was going to be a lengthy one and in order that it might be completed before the end of the session he suggested that such witnesses as were summoned should be made to attend from day to day until their examination was finished. The suggestion was approved of. It was decided that the evidence and proceedings should be printed from day to day.

On motion of Mr. Langelier it was decided to order the chairman and secretary of the Quebec Harbor Commission to produce to the committee the papers in their possession relative to the graving dock at Quebec and Levis. Mr. Kirkpatrick suggested that Mr. Tarte should, after seeing the papers, give the chairman the names of some of the witnesses he proposed to call and that the committee should sit again as soon as the witnesses were present. This was agreed to.

Though Sir Hector named no counsel, it is altogether likely that Mr. Kirkpatrick, with whom he sat this morning, will watch the evidence on his behalf.

[illegible]

The other committees met and organized by electing chairmen as follows: Expiring Laws, Dr. Cameron of Cape Breton; private bills, Mr. W. B. Ives; agriculture and colonization, Dr. Sproule; banking and commerce, Mr. Josiah Wood of Westmoreland; railways, canals and telegraph lines, Sir Hector Langevin; public accounts, Mr. N. Clarke Wallace; privileges and elections, Mr. Girouard.

The Standing Orders Committee some days ago re-elected Mr. J. G. H. Bergeron chairman. Several changes were necessary in the chairmanships, Dr. Sproule taking the place of Mr. Peter White, now Speaker, Mr. Wood that of Mr. L. N. Hall, not now in the House, and Mr. Wallace that of Mr. J. C. Rykert, also not a member.

An hour and a half sufficed to clear off the greater portion of the order paper to-day and the House adjourned at 4.45 p.m. until Monday.

Mr. Kirkpatrick moved for an order of the House for copies of all letters, communications and reports in the possession of the Government relating to the fixing of a standard time and the legalization thereof. He spoke of the importance of having time legally established. At present railways were run by standard time and a great many other things, such as the opening and closing of the polls on election day. The opening and closing of banks which involved the protesting of notes, were regulated by standard instead of solar time. He had read some very interesting articles on engineering on the subject and he would like to know whether any representation had been made to the Government. He would also suggest that the Government might state whether any legislation was proposed to make standard time legal time.

Mr. Tupper said there were some very interesting reports in Department of Marine, including one from the director of the Meteorological Survey and a circular from the Imperial Government. The papers would be brought down. The question of legislation was being considered by the Government.

Mr. Burdett introduced his bill to prevent frauds on farmers in the sale of seed, grain and other articles. This is the same bill introduced last year.

Sir Hector Langevin informed Hargraft in answer to a question that a survey had been made in February this year at Lakeport on Lake Ontario, with a view to the construction of a harbor of refuge, but the Engineer's report had not yet been received and he declined to say whether or not the Government proposed to go on with the work.

Mr. Foster stated definitely that the estimates would be down on Monday and that the budget speech would be delivered as soon as possible, but not next week.

Accelerating the Modus.

The bill for reviving the modus vivendi for the year was read a second time, passed through committee without amendment, was reported and ordered for third reading on Monday, thus bidding fair to be the first bill of the session passed. It is most probable that it will be rushed through the Senate as soon as that venerable body resumes its arduous duties on the 26th after a two weeks rest and assented to by His Excellency so that it may come into operation at once.

The Minister of Marine said that there was no truth in the statement that the Government would not recognize licenses issued by the Government of Newfoundland. The bill is the same as the old bill and provides for the recognition of licenses issued by Newfoundland.

Mr. Kirkpatrick stated to-day that in view of the fact that reciprocal towing, coasting and wrecking would be one of the subjects discussed in Washington in October he would not press his bill on that question this session.

A deputation from Toronto, consisting of James L. Hughes, Public School inspector, and School Trustees H. A. E. Kent, W. D. McPherson, H. J. Hill and Whitesides, waited on the Finance Minister this morning and requested a grant of $2500 to assist in defraying the expenses connected with the meeting of the National Educational Association of the United States, to be held in that city in July next. They were promised that the request would be recommended to the favorable consideration of council. They also saw the Minister of Customs with reference to admission of exhibits, baggage, etc., and received his assurance that every facility would be afforded the visitors.

Sir John Macdonald spent a couple of hours in the Department of Railways and Canals this morning and afterwards attended council, but was not in the House. Some of his friends are getting a little anxious about his health and urging him to take a trip to salt water and rest a while, but he will not entertain the idea of leaving Ottawa while the House is in session.

THE FAIR TRADE MOVEMENT.

Sir Charles Tupper Delivers an Address at the London Club.

LONDON, May 14.—The Fair Trade Club held a dinner last night to promote the discussion of Imperial commercial union. The company included in addition to many distinguished English politicians Sir Charles Tupper, Canadian High Commissioner, also the four Newfoundland delegates, Sir William Whiteway and Messrs. Morine, Harvey and Bond, who are the latest members to give their adherence to the Imperial Federation League.

Sir Charles Tupper made a lengthy speech, in the course of which he expressed the opinion that there was no subject of greater importance to the Empire than that of commercial union between Great Britain and her colonies. The empire covers such an enormous portion of the world that none of the component parts could possibly suffer for want of supplies, even if cut off from the rest of the world, while all sections would be materially benefited by such a policy as that suggested. Sir Charles said "he could see no reason why this most effective movement towards Imperial Federation should not be carried out through the united bond of self-interest and the already powerful tie of sentiment."

Beheaded By the Executioner.

SIMLA, May 15.—Despatches from Manipur show that Chief Commissioner James W. Quinton and the officers who lost their lives at the same time as he did were not the victims of a massacre brought about by popular fury. Evidence given at the trials, which have recently been taking place, of several prominent Manipur insurgents who were captured by the British troops proves that the Chief Commissioner and his colleagues were beheaded by the public executioner under the orders of a Manipur major and an ex-Sepoy who had deserted from the British ranks and joined the Manipuris. Both of these men were found guilty by the military tribunal.

A Child Hanged in Play.

LONDON, May 15.—A sad occurrence is reported from Darwen, near Blackburn. A number of boys were playing in Potter's paper-staining factory when some of them placed a rope around the neck of little Fred [illegible] shafting. At this moment the machinery was unexpectedly started up, and the children were horrified to see their companion quickly hoisted to the roof, where he was crushed in a frightful manner. The little victim died after a brief period of suffering.

Nineteen Were Drowned.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 15.—An accident by which 19 workingmen lost their lives occurred in the Dnieper River to-day. A flat boat containing a number of workingmen proceeding down the river came into collision with a steamer bound up the stream. The flat boat sank almost immediately, drowning 19 of its occupants.

The Flow of Gold.

LONDON, May 15.—The Times believes the Russian Government will withdraw £8,000,000 from London within the next month or two, and that it is doubtful whether the Bank of England will be able to withdraw that amount from America. "Besides which," adds The Times, "there is strong probability of a partial failure of European crops, which would cause a drain of gold to America in the autumn."

Bradstreet's Reports Quiet Business with Slow Collections in Ontario.

NEW YORK, May 15.—The volume of general trade, as previously reported, has been fairly well maintained. Noteworthy exceptions are at New Orleans, where the dull season is almost at its height, and at New York, where drygoods, groceries and hardware have not been distributed with customary freedom, and labor troubles have interfered with building operations and metal industries. Lumber generally is not in as active demand as a year ago, and hides are dull. There has been a slight advance in tobacco. Sales of wool have increased, principally of foreign. Refined sugar is off ⅛c on slack demand and increasing stocks. Drygoods are in better demand, but low prices have aided the distribution. The tone of cotton goods prices is, as a rule, better than last week at first hands, and some bleached goods have been advanced. Print cloths are very much depressed and stocks are increasing. Grain crop reports continue of a promising nature and in some instances credits have been extended by western jobbers owing to the favorable outlook for the farmer and country storekeeper. Large wheat yields are reported on the Pacific Coast. Wheat crop reports are excellent throughout the country, but for years past have uniformly lost in condition between April and July from 3 to 8 per cent. The prospect, therefore, is for a harvest of not more than 360,000,000 bushels, although some have estimated the probable output at from 400,000,000 to 450,000,000 bushels.

General trade in the Dominion of Canada is quiet. There is only a fair demand for drygoods from Ontario. In the Province of Quebec trade is said to be dull, without immediate prospects of marked improvement. Collections are slow. The Dominion reports 39 business failures this week, against 31 last week and 16 this week last year. The total number Jan. 1 to date is 807, against 749 last year.

HIS LIFE IMPERILLED.

The Man Who Rules Germany Narrowly Escapes Death

BERLIN, May 15.—While Emperor William was out driving to-day in Potsdam his horses bolted and his carriage was hurled against a tree. An adjutant in attendance caught the falling Emperor in his arms. The Emperor was unhurt, but he had a very narrow escape from serious injury, or even death.

The Quills Upon the Fretful Porcupine.

GALT, May 15.—One of the dogs belonging to Mr. Samuel McCormick discovered a porcupine in the woods and had a tussle with it, but was no doubt sorry for it afterwards, as he got stuck so full of quills that you could hardly tell the dog from the porcupine. The animal was at last treed and finally killed. It weighed over 35 pounds.

A Plague of Locusts.

PARIS, May 15.—Algeria is again devastated by locusts. A caravan from Morocco traversed through swarms of locusts for 33 days.

ROBBED HIS GRAVE.

THE REMAINS OF P. PURCELL, EX-M.P. STOLEN.

It is Supposed the Robbers Intend Holding the Body of the Millionaire Contractor for a Heavy Ransom—The First Night it was Left Unguarded.

CORNWALL, May 15.—Intense excitement has been created throughout the united counties by the discovery that the body of the late P. Purcell, ex-M.P. for Glengarry and millionaire contractor, has been stolen from the burial ground at Flannigan's Point, a beautiful but lonely spot jutting out into the St. Lawrence near Summerstown.

As a man named Loney was passing the burying ground in a rowboat about noon to-day he noticed that the grave had been disturbed. He rowed to the shore and found the lid of the coffin on the ground beside the grave and the body gone. He immediately gave the alarm.

Word reached here about 2 o'clock, and Mr. John Purcell, brother of deceased, and your correspondent drove down to the Point and found that the ghouls had removed all the earth from the grave, tore the top off the round box and removed the lid from the coffin, which they threw to one side, and dragged the body from the grave to the river, where their boat was evidently anchored.

A narrow foot-print, about a No. 8, is the only clue left.

Carried Away in a Boat.

A boat was found floating down the river near the Point this morning, in which was printed the name "Ellen."

Detectives in Montreal were immediately wired for and will arrive to-night to work upon the case.

The body was interred May 5 and it is the general impression the snatchers expect a large reward for its return.

A strict watch had been kept on the grave until last night, when all fears of removing the corpse were dispelled.

Wednesday night two men entered the graveyard and were in the act of approaching the grave when the guard called a halt, saying: "Leave or I will shoot." They at once withdrew.

Mr. Purcell left an estate valued at over $1,000,000.

Betrayed by His Dog.

CHICAGO, Ill., May 14.—George R. Perry, the City Treasurer of Grand Rapids, who three weeks ago disappeared, leaving a shortage of nearly $150,000, was taken back to Grand Rapids yesterday. Perry's discovery and arrest were due to his handsome St. Bernard dog. One of many who kept an eye open for Perry was Clerk Mort Rathburn of the Wellington Hotel. While driving south on Michigan-avenue Rathburn's attention was drawn to a splendid St. Bernard dog, which he was convinced was Perry's, and he at once shadowed the dog and the woman who had the animal in charge. She entered No. 2457 Michigan-avenue, and when a few moments later Rathburn called he learned that a Mr. and Mrs. Russell had recently secured furnished apartments there. Perry's companion was a stylish brunet named Jeannette Lemar.

Count Von Rosen Elopes.

STOCKHOLM, May 15.—Society here is agog over the sensational elopement of Count von Rosen, an officer of hussars, with an actress named Hartmann, wife of an old and invalid husband, of whom she is the sole support. The eloping couple travelled via Copenhagen to London. Count von Rosen's brother has started in pursuit, and is urging the authorities to punish his brother for desertion.

Death Was the Call Boy.

BROCKVILLE, May 15.—Michael Corrigan, a brakeman on the Northern Pacific Railway, was found dead in the rear of the C.P.R. telegraph office at Winnipeg. An hour before he was chatting with the telegraph operators. Deceased was a son of Mr. F. Corrigan of this town. Three of his brothers are well-known trainmen on the Grand Trunk.

An Anthropophaginian Fined.

WINDSOR, May 15.—In the case of Egan v. Wells, wherein the complainant asked $1000 damages because the defendant's dog chewed his leg, the Court of Assizes yesterday returned a verdict of $365 for complainant.

"Gally Dick's" Case.

DETROIT, May 15.—Neville, alias "Gally Dick" Richardson, was tried to-day on a charge of being connected with the Stimson counterfeit gang convicted at Sandwich yesterday. It was proved that Richardson shoved some of the queer at a Sandwich cock-fight, and one witness swore that Dick told him he had brought over from Sandwich a handkerchief filled with the bogus coin.

$200 a Toe.

ORANGEVILLE, May 15.—Mrs. Hollinger was struck by a yard engine on the C.P.R. here on July 7 last and a doctor found it necessary to amputate four toes. Yesterday at the assizes she recovered a verdict of $800 against the company.

A Toronto Crook's Break for Liberty.

BUFFALO, May 15.—William Patton, alias Joslyn, recently discharged from a Canadian prison, was arrested in a resort in Pooseh-street about 9 o'clock last evening by Special Jordan. The Toronto police had notified Superintendent Morganstein to look out for him. Patton accompanied the officer as far as the stationhouse quietly, but on reaching the door made a sudden dash and sprinted down the Terrace at a rapid rate. A revolver shot failed to stop him, but he was finally overhauled.

His Train Killed Jumbo.

WINDSOR, May 15.—Conductor McAuliffe of the Grand Trunk was thrown from his train in Windsor yard last night. He had one rib broken and received a long gash on his skull. McAuliffe is 60 years old and the accident may result seriously. He was conductor of the train that killed Jumbo, the elephant, at St. Thomas.

A Farmer Blows a Hole in His Breast the Size of a Dollar.

ROONEY, Ont., May 15.—Robert Graham, near Clachan, shouldered his gun and went to the barn to shoot rats. Not returning to breakfast his sister-in-law went to the barn and on opening the door a shocking sight met her gaze. Graham was lying about 12 feet from the door with his coat and vest open and one boot off. The gun had been discharged and had entered his breast, which was discolored and burnt by the powder, while the shot took an upward course, leaving a hole about the size of a silver dollar. It would appear that he was sitting down and had let the gun lean against his breast, to take off his boot to shake out some lumps of clay, when it came in contact with the trigger of the gun, causing it to go off. On the other hand, some incline to the belief that it was a case of suicide.

Purify Your Blood

The importance of keeping the blood in a pure condition is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is heredited and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing more conclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

LOOK AFTER THE LISTS.

THE following advice from the Empire should be acted upon by the Conservatives of this county:—In Parliament on Monday, in reply to a question, the Secretary of State declared that there was to be a revision of the Dominion electoral lists by law this year, and that it was not the intention of the Government to pass a bill preventing that revision. We take this to be a plain and distinct intimation that the voters' lists of 1891 will soon be in active preparation by the officers of the law.

Let Conservatives, therefore, take this intimation to heart; look thoroughly after the lists in every quarter; leave no stone unturned to see that every name goes upon the register, and assist by all legitimate means in making the list a complete representation of public opinion. It is notorious that the last revision was not thoroughly attended to in many constituencies by the Conservatives, while the Opposition labored hard at the lists, boasting that they had secured a great advantage. [illegible] is seen by the fact that the General Election found the Conservatives in too many counties quite unprepared for the contest, owing to the imperfect voters' list, and that the Opposition made gains where Conservatives are largely in the majority.

[illegible] again, and in the event of bye-elections occurring we urge the members of the Conservative party to be ready for the fray by looking after the new voters' lists and making victory doubly sure through systematic, thorough, complete registration.

SIR JOHN MACDONALD is indisposed, but was able to attend the regular meeting of the Council. The Globe has again published his obituary.

ONE of the pet Liberal theories is that the true measure of a country's prosperity is the volume of its foreign trade. On this hypothesis, the Ottawa Citizen points out, Canada is twice as prosperous as the United States, for Canada's trade with other countries, imports and exports, last year, was over forty-two dollars per head of her population, while that of the United States was barely twenty-six dollars per head of its population. This looks as if the United States were more in want of enlarged trade with us than we are of enlarged trade with them.

A Pleasant Herb Drink—A Spring Medicine.

The druggists tell us that the people call daily for the new cure for constipation and sick-headache discovered by Dr. Silas Lane. It is said to be Oregon grape root (a great remedy in the far west for those complaints) combined with simple herbs, and is made for use by pouring on boiling water to draw out the strength. It sell at 50c and $1 a package and is called Lane's Family Medicine.

Hard To Be [illegible]

Health is the only riches a man or woman ought to set value on, for without it all men and women are poor, let their estates be what they will. What avail the riches of the Vanderbilts, a Gould or an Astor, if we continually suffer the tortures of nervousness, insomnia, headaches, brain worry and dyspepsia? In such a condition, the uneasy head and disease-racked body will fare as well in the humble cot, as in the gilded palace. The rich and poor are obliged to resort to the same life-giving fountain for relief and restoration. In Canada and the United States the favorite remedy for the wealthy and affluent is Paine's Celery Compound. Private letters received this year from several New York, Boston, Montreal and Toronto wealthy gentlemen, fully prove the value of this scientific compound in extremely complicated and dangerous cases. The middle classes, and working people, have in Paine's Celery Compound a friend for every ailment. The medical world is filled with surprise at its wonderful results, and use it daily, as a great nerve and brain food, and life-giver for the sick everywhere.

CONSTRUCTING CANOES.

The Busy Hands that are Working at the Ontario Canoe Factory—Orders from all Over the World.

Over in Peterborough's Brooklyn there is an industry the extent of which few of our citizens are aware, a factory where the hum of machinery is silent only one day in the week and where almost thirty men are kept busy. It is the Ontario Canoe Company's factory and a visit will considerably widen the average man's idea of the canoe building industry. Notwithstanding that the work is pushed with all available speed, machinery and perfect systematic management being brought to bear to give facility in rapid work, the staff cannot keep up with the orders, which are now entered on the company's books away ahead of the busy hands of the workmen.

The past year has been an active one in the canoe trade of the Ontario Company. No stock crafts have been manufactured for the simple reason that all the available men could not overtake the ordered work. Since January the company have shipped canoes to all parts of the world, to England, France, various parts of the United States, to South America and to Australia. The local trade is a small drop in the bucket. At the present time there are canoes in a state of completion, in a stage of manufacture or on the order book which are going to England, Southern California, Venezuela, British Columbia, United States and different parts of Canada. An order is expected in a few days for a number of canoes from India, to which far off land the Ontario canoes have already been sent and are now being used on the waters of the land of the coral island.

To-day the company is shipping a fine vertical ribbed cedar canoe which has been manufactured for the American Government and goes to the Assistant State Geologist in Wisconsin to be used in the Government Geological Survey. It is a beautiful craft, 18½ feet long, with a 41 inch beam and a depth of 17 inches. It is called the Silver Bell. It is the largest cedar ribbed canoe that the company has ever turned out and will carry a burden of one and a half tons.

Then just receiving its finishing touches is another handsome basswood canoe, built for Governor [illegible], of Manitoba. This craft is 19 feet long and will be fitted with row locks. This canoe will be the outside of a nest of seven canoes which are each half a foot smaller and will fit inside one another in shipping. They all go to Winnipeg.

Then lying in the warerooms completed is an elegant canoe 16 feet in length made for shipment to Yorkshire, Eng. Near this also ready for shipment is a craft made on a special order for the Government to be used in the Canadian Geological Survey at Lake St. John. This craft is of cedar, is 18 feet in length, and yet weighs only 85 pounds. It can be carried by one man with ease, thus permitting portaging.

In the course of construction is a pretty longitudinal ribbed canoe of cedar and butternut alternate, which is to be shipped to Dubuque, Iowa. The manufacture of the cedar ribbed craft is warranted to give a canoe which will stand any climate, no matter how hot. After being formed and clamped, the canoe is placed in the drying room where it is left in an intense heat and well seasoned and soaked in oil before being finished. This class of canoe is well adapted to such a country as India. Besides these canoes mentioned there are many others awaiting shipment to England and other points. In fact there will be found canoes of "all shapes and sizes, great and small," bound for various waters in many different lands.

But there is the giant of them all. The mammoth war canoe which is being turned out for the Ottawa Canoe club. This craft is 30 feet in length, with a 50 inch beam and a depth of 20 inches. It is a big boat, has eight thwarts and will take a crew of sixteen paddles. The Ontario Canoe Company made the first of these giant crafts that was turned out and since that time they [illegible] satisfaction. The present one was manufactured in short order, a large number of men being put on the canoe to rush the big boat out of the way so that it would not occupy much needed room. It will be shipped early next week.

The manufacture of skiffs was also a part of the company's industry and orders for several of these boats been received from Victoria. To visit the factory and go through the show rooms both at the factory and in the old drill shed, which is also utilized as a ware room, a person will see about every description of canoe that is manufactured from the narrow, slim racing canoe down to the wide tub canoe, which are made for orders from down near the sea. With the machinery and experience the Ontario Canoe company is in a position to turn out the best of work and their crafts are known the world over, having established a reputation which ensures a trade from year to year.

WOMAN—A PROBLEM.

To the Editor:

It is difficult to understand why so many women suffer in silence from those diseases peculiar to their sex, when they have at their command a remedy guaranteed to put an end to their suffering and restore them to perfect health. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills never fail in cases of functional derangement, irregularities, suppressions, bearing-down pains, weakness, and the many other complaints with which womankind is afflicted. They restore the system, enrich the blood and bring the red and rosy glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. They are equally efficacious from girlhood to old age, and are a boon and a blessing to suffering woman:

Mrs. S. Devine, Petawawa, Ont., writes:—My daughter has been ill for the last two years. She is pale, weak, short of breath with ringing noises in the head, cold hands and feet, and not RIGHT. Doctoring all the time and of no benefit. The doctor says her blood has turned to water, and that she is run down very low. After taking four boxes Pink Pills she again writes:—I enclose balance due on Pills. I am well satisfied with them, and I must say that I have got every satisfaction that any person could ask. I can recommend your Pink Pills to anyone that is out of health. The change in my daughter's health and appearance is so wonderful that a great many persons are continually asking me for some of the medicine that cured her, so I wish to take an agency for the sale of your pills in this place.

Mrs. M—— M.——, Brockville, Ont., says:—Gentlemen,—My daughter, S——, was sick for about a year, crying all the time with the pains of her head and eyes. In the morning her eyes and face were all swelled. She was pale and short of breath, with great jumpings of her heart whenever she tried to do anything or walk. Appetite bad or else entirely gone, with a dirty tongue and a bad stomach. She was never properly regular. She took two boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and they cured her. She became regular within a month, and she remained so since, and is in the best of health. I can heartily recommend these Pills to all suffers who are in the miserable condition my daughter was.

These pills are for sale by all dealers, or will be sent post paid, in sealed package, on receipt of price (50 cents a box), by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medical Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Spring Medicine.

The popularity which Hood's Sarsaparilla has gained as a spring medicine is wonderful. It possesses just those elements of health-giving, blood-purifying and appetite-restoring which everybody seems to need at this season. Do not continue in a dull, tired, unsatisfactory condition when you may be so much benefited by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It purifies the blood and makes the weak strong.

A Bit of Philosophy.

Live within your income. How to do this is the vital question. Two courses are open, increase income or curtail expenditure. It's about as hard to cut down expenses as to increase income. However, amidst the general perplexity which the situation calls up there is the re-assuring thought that no matter how things go, one way to save is to buy your teas at hawleys', where prices are at the bottom notch and qualities on top of the heap. If you need to save buy your teas at hawleys', george-st., the famous tea men. d113

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by millions of mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Prompt Settlement.

PETERBOROUGH, Ont., May 13th, 1891.

C. McGill, Esq., Agent Phoenix Fire Insurance Co.:

DEAR SIR,—I was very agreeably surprised this morning when you advised me that you had received a cheque for $2,000.00 the amount in full of insurance which we held against the implements destroyed at the fire on the morning of the 8th, which we had stored in what was known as the old mill, and would avail myself of this opportunity to thank the inspector for the fair and business like manner that he adjusted the valuation, and I certainly think that your company has been extra prompt, in so soon paying over the amount of loss.

I remain,
Yours truly,
PETER HAMILTON.

Will Never Die.

The Parkersburg, W. Va., State Journal of October 4th, 1890, said:—"Uncle Tom will never die, not while such crowds greet him wherever he goes. The Academy was well filled last night to see the Haverley Uncle Tom Company present this old familiar drama. No comment need be made on the play. It is a story familiar in every household. But of the performance—it was a clean, honest presentation, strictly legitimate and free of the vulgar variety that generally characterizes these companies. The simple story of Uncle Tom needs no comique embellishments. Several in the cast were really good and deserve mention. Little Eva is a precocious little midget and does her part excellently. Judging from the enthusiastic applause the play was well received, and will be well attended this evening." Opera House, Peterborough, on Friday, May 22nd. CASH HARDWARE STORE.

On and after 1st April we shall do business on a Cash Basis.

To cover the inevitable losses attendant upon a credit business, (which accrue from amount of time spent in keeping accounts, collecting, bad debts, interest account, and in numerous other ways, larger margins of profit must be asked.

In these times cash buyers ask, expect and are entitled to closer prices. A careful consideration of the subject convinces us that the time has come for a cash business done on smaller profits.

The only customers who may be put to inconvenience are those who have had long credit. In more ways than one it will be to their advantage to pay cash.

For convenience of our old customers who consider their accounts due when presented, we will call 30 days cash and render all accounts the first of each month, and we wish to say that we will be happy to do business with them on these terms.

As the new departure is something of an experiment, what would be considered a close cash price will be made all through the stock. Not a few leaders only, but a general reduction in everything from the fourth flat to the cellar.

Our idea is to perform more than promised rather than promise more than can be fulfilled.

Our stock is large and varied, consisting of Builders', Contractors', Household, Mechanics', Painters', Shoemakers', Farm, Mill, Factory, Lumbermen's, Sporting, Threshers', Cabinetmakers', and other lines of Hardware.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS.

A Business Directory.

A DIRECTORY of the town bringing the necessary facts up to the latest date is one of the requisites for every business house and is a great convenience to all. In view of this the REVIEW has arranged to issue a business directory within a short time. It will include the town and the village of Ashburnham, and will thus be more comprehensive and consequently more useful than any directory previously published. The work will be pushed forward rapidly, and the directory will be published as soon as is possible without impairing its accuracy. Special care will be taken to have the work as complete and as accurate as it can be made. A limited number of advertisements will be inserted, and as the directory will be sold at a small figure it will have a large circulation, which will make it very advantageous as an advertising medium.

CHEMONG PARK CHEER.

PETERBOROUGH'S HOT WEATHER REFUGE NEARLY READY.

Sprucing up the Park for Summer Visitors—Who are Located There—The New and Handsome Park Hotel Nearly Completed.

It is queer how nine months of cold weather will dull one's recollection of last summer's heat. The citizen who perspired through the July days and simmered through the August nights and vowed that he'd get him a refrigerator or sort of arctic house that he might live cool in our torrid climate, has probably forgotten the details and only speaks of that boiling time as an "awful hot spell." Presently will come up the question where to spend a day or two off in cool comfort—or if our friend be fairly well off—where to live in a decent state of personal absence of heat. The answer will come easy enough—get out to Chemong Park.

What one desires in summer is a thorough change. The man who lives at say Apsley wants to go to the biggest city he can reach. That is his change. The city man wants to go right back to Apsley and there finds all the change he may naturally expect. The Peterborough man and his wife, if he has fortunately induced some lady to acknowledge his right to such a claim, can get just the happiest kind of change and relief on the shortest notice and most reasonable terms by arranging for a stay at Chemong Park. The way is plain and the road straight. The building of the magnificent new hotel has provided an every-man's house, fit for the best, while the opportunity is afforded him to buy a lot, erect a dwelling and live, as it were, under his own vine and fig tree.

A run up to the park will well repay the trouble, though a drive there and back is depending more or less on the horse one drives, principally more. The back road has the call. It is shady, smooth and not dusty. That artery of commerce, the communication road, has so much traffic that the wheels grind its surface to powder. At the park the visitor will find a score of men at work beautifying the grounds and making improvements. The entrance has been moved north about one hundred yards and a neat pair of gates erected. From the gates to the centre of the park a fine avenue sixty feet wide has been laid out and graded. Branching off to the south the avenue curves in a graceful bend past the cottages and swings around to the north in a big loop where it is joined by a similar avenue, branching off from the main and carried along to meet one laid out from the vicinity of the hotel. Along some considerable distance on both sides of the main street rows of fine sturdy young maples have been planted that promise a grateful shade during future summers. The plan of streets was laid out by Mr. Hewson, under direction of Mr. A. Elliott, proprietor of the park. Careful attention has been given to and advantage taken of the natural features of the ground to place the streets advantageously. The cutting away of a hillside leaves a fine terraced plot of capital building lots, while the surplus material has been used to level up other parts of the grounds. A portion of the property has been divided off into lots, largely of 75x150 ft., leaving ample room along the lake for the park proper and grounds. An evidence of the care and attention bestowed on the premises is seen in the fact that the entire surface of the park has been raked over by hand, [illegible] underbrush and making the whole like a well-kept lawn.

FOR THE COMFORT OF VISITORS.

While the park was largely patronized last summer an evident want was a shelter of some sort during unfavorable weather. There were the cottages, 'tis true, and people living in them were ever kind and hospitable, but when a shower came up there was no refuge that would accommodate a crowd. This difficulty will be overcome, as Mr. Elliott has had plans prepared and the work will commence at once to erect on the high ground overlooking the lake a large pavilion 60x30 ft., of handsome design. Room will be taken at one end sufficient to accommodate a small store where visitors can procure anything needed. The pavilion will be for general use of visitors to the park, at the hotel, residents in cottages and excursionists. The site will command a view of the waters of the lake across to the Ennismore shore and to the north and south for some miles. Another bit of enterprise, and a welcome one too, is the erection of a wharf at the park. Mr. Elliott has about completed arrangements for a between the park and G.T.R. terminus on the lake, about three miles to the north. The boat, a powerful and fast craft, will meet all trains to and from the lake, a very convenient and comfortable arrangement.

Under this season's auspices the park promises to be not only a pleasant place to spend a holiday, but of considerable attraction to excursionists out for a day's fun and mouthful of fresh air. Take the average Sunday school or society excursion, comprising a large number of people to be moved rapidly and as comfortably as possible. A few minutes ride by train will place them at the lake. There they can reach the park on a handsome and safe barge that will carry from three to four hundred in tow of the steamer. The return can be as easily effected and the short time in transit will allow of a lengthened stay at the park and increased pleasure during the day. Several applications for rates for excursions have already been received.

It is understood that train arrangements will be made by the G.T.R., who are ever obliging and anxious to facilitate to the fullest extent the summer travel over its lines and branches, to run trains during the day to allow of visitors reaching the park at an early hour and to return in good time in the evening.

The steamer service by the Lakefield route will be an additional attraction. Capt. Eden will run his new steamer Sunbeam so as to leave Lakefield on arrival of the morning train from Peterborough, and reach the park in time for the evening train to town, the route passing through Clear, Stony, Lovesick, Sturgeon and Chemong lakes. The Sunbeam will stay at Bridgenorth all night and make the return trip on arrival at Bridgenorth of the morning train from Peterborough.

THE PARK'S POPULATION.

If the park directory were published it would show on its list the names of many of our citizens who have secured lots, and many who have built cottages where they propose, with their families, to reside during the summer. Among these may be mentioned as having cottages Messrs. R. Pearce, R. B. Rogers, T. E. Bell, Thos. A. Hay, Thos. Rush, F. J. Lewis, Geo. Hutchinson, T. Rutherford and John Moloney. Lots have been sold to Messrs. H. Calcutt (2), John McKee, Geo. Harris, Rochester, (formerly superintendent of the Little Lake cemetery), Wm. Smith, John Fraser, T. H. G. Dunne and Mrs. Geo. Claxton. In addition to the cottages erected by their respective owners, Mr. Elliott has six handsome cottages all of which have been rented for the season at good figures. Two Toronto men were at the Park on Friday looking for cottages and the prospect is that several more will be built at once.

FOBERT'S NEW PARK HOTEL.

The glory of the Park just now, outside of its natural beauty, is the handsome new hotel built by Mr. L. Fobert. The building is rapidly approaching completion and will receive the finishing touches by end of the month. It will be formally opened about the middle of June and those who visit it will be agreeably surprised. Its large size and fine appearance make it the prominent feature in the view on approaching the park. It stands on the eastern edge of the grounds on a street which begins at the head of Reid-st. in Peterborough and finishes at the lake shore beyond the hotel. Mr. Fobert bought for his hotel and grounds two acres of the choicest part of the park, affording ample ground for the present and for future expansion. Last fall full plans were prepared and the contract was placed with Contractor Thos. Rutherford who has, with a corps of workmen, pushed the work. The building is of red brick, three storeys high, west and north sides covered with a roomy verandah and balcony two storeys high. The roof is a mansard covered with iron, painted. The outside wood work is neatly painted of pleasing colors. A striking feature is the number of windows, every room in the house—of which there are many—has one or more windows. The building would be a credit to any city and in point of size and appearance, in the substantial way in which it is built and fitted up is a long way in advance of what is known as the summer hotel. Mine host Fobert intends to keep his house open in January as well as August and has built with a full knowledge of what the climate requires. The hotel contains a handsome office, dining room, bar, several parlors and sitting rooms and bed-room accommodation for a large number of guests. The kitchens, laundry, furnace room, cellars, &c., are large and ample. A complete system of water supply has been put in, and a well executed job of plumbing neatly accomplished. Two large tanks in the attic are supplied by means of pipes connected with two pumps, operated by a powerful wind mill. One pump supplies water from the lake for culinary and other uses. The second pump sends up its supply from a spring affording a copious flow of pure spring water. The finish of the rooms on the ground floor is all hardwood, oak floors throughout. Ash has been largely used in wainscotting with a pleasing effect. It is proposed by Mr. Fobert to build a wing to the south of the hotel, the first floor of which will be added to the hotel and the second floor reserved for a ball room. Work is now going on in the building of large stables and driving sheds.

Mr. Fobert will not essay the task of fixing up the hotel grounds until the building is completed. Then walks will be laid out, terraces cut and graded, trees and shrubs planted and flowers set out. The township council has made a grant to grade the road past the hotel which will afford a new route directly to the village.

Want of space prevents more extended reference to the hotel. On its opening due attention will be paid that a full description will be given. Applications have already been received for rooms from people at a distance and, several as far away as New York. Taken altogether the summer at Chemong promises to be a lively one and a time of enjoyment to many.

[illegible] loss of taste and smell, oppressive headache, etc., are the results of catarrh. Nasal Balm offers a certain and speedy relief and permanent cure from these miseries. Thousands of testimonials speak of its wonderful merit. Try it; sold by all dealers.

Mr. Wood's Father is Dead.

Chief Roszel received a rather peculiar missive with his mail this morning. A note which is appended was in the envelope with a request for him to give it to Mr. Wood to whom it was addressed. The Chief does not know the Mr. Wood, unfortunately, and the letter is therefore published, so that if there is anything in it the man wanted may see it or be told of it by friends. Here is the note:—

May 15th, 1891.

Mr. Wood:

DEAR SIR,—I am sorry to inform you of your father's death. He was found dead in his bed this morning. You must be here immediately.

Yours truly,

The Wise Savants

Tell us that Rheumatism is a blood disease that it can be cured only by a remedy which works through the blood. And yet, if you have the darting pains of Rheumatism in muscles or joints, try a little of Clark's Lightning Liniment. It will go direct to the seat of pain and relieve it at once. There is no waiting weeks and months until the disease can be attacked through the blood. This seems to be contrary to scientific claims, but it is true that Clark's Lightning Liniment will cure Rheumatism. Sold by all druggists; price fifty cents. Clark Chemical Co., Toronto.

PETERBOROUGH'S GAIN

AND BROCKVILLE'S LOSS IS THE PUBLIC VERDICT.

Presentation to Mr. John R. Reid, P. G. M., by the Brockville Oddfellows—A New Resident of Peterborough Given a Farewell Tribute at his Former Home.

On Thursday night last one of Peterborough's new residents was honored at his former home by his friends in Oddfellowship who wished to pay a parting tribute to a worthy brother. Mr. John R. Reid, of the firm of Reid, Gilmour & Co., recently come to Peterborough, was the honored gentleman. The Brockville Times gives the following report of the event:—

"Apart from the regular business transacted at the meeting of St. Lawrence Lodge I.O.O.F. last night, a very pleasing occurrence took place, being the presentation of a handsome gold watch and an address to Mr. John R. Reid, Past Grand Master, who is about to leave Brockville to reside in Peterborough. The address was as follows:

John R. Reid, Esq., P. G. St. Lawrence Lodge, No. 127, I. O. F., P. G. M. Grand Lodge of Ontario.

DEAR SIR AND BRO.—It is with feelings of profound regret that the members of St. Lawrence Lodge have learned that you are about to remove from Brockville, to enter business in another part of our fair province.

During your long connection with St. Lawrence Lodge we have found you an Oddfellow indeed, ever ready, even at personal sacrifice, to promote the true interests of our beloved order and to spread abroad its tenets of friendship, love and truth.

Always a wise counsellor, the active part you have taken in the cause of Oddfellowship has not only done much to promote the prosperity of our mother lodge, but has aided materially in building up new branches of the order in the jurisdiction, and we can assure you that your genial presence and kindly counsel will be greatly missed by the members of St. Lawrence Lodge.

We feel that we cannot permit you to depart from our midst without giving you some tangible token, however small, of the high esteem in which we all personally hold you, and while conveying to you our earnest wishes for the fullest measure of success in your new home and in the undertaking you have embarked in, we would ask you to accept this watch as a remembrance of the warm friends you leave behind.

Signed on behalf of St. Lawrence Lodge,
W. J. MOORE, N. G.
THOS. MCFARLANE, P. G., Secy.

The address was read by Chas. H. Frost, P.G., and the presentation made by W. W. Wood, P.D.D.G.M. The inscription on the watch read, "Presented to John R. Reid, P.G.M., by St. Lawrence Lodge I.O.O.F., Brockville."

Mr. Reid, although entirely taken by surprise, made a very effective reply. He stated that it was not an easy thing to sever associations that, so far as the good old town of Brockville was concerned, extended back over nearly a quarter of a century, and so far as St. Lawrence Lodge was concerned, went back nearly a decade and a half. He fully appreciated all the kind sentiments contained in the address, because he knew enough of his good brethren to accept the expressions as heartfelt, and while he valued highly and would ever prize dearly the beautiful tangible evidence of esteem that had been handed him still he fancied that he would always regard the address as possibly the most important souvenir that he had ever received during his connection with the order, representing as it did something that every man ought to value highly, viz: the appreciation of good and true men. He reviewed briefly his career in Oddfellowship, dealing especially with his labors in the eastern portion of the jurisdiction. He had, to the best of his ability endeavored to further the interests of the order and in leaving the scene of his fraternal labors for so many years he felt that he might fairly take a pardonable pride in what a retrospective glance revealed, viz: that he had been helpful in some degree in extending the borders of the organization [illegible] members to faithful and harmonious work, and above all to live consistent lives. It was only by so living and acting that they would be working out the true mission and destiny of Oddfellowship. He would now say an affectionate farewell. This is a world of parting and ties are continually being severed, but what a grand consolation it is to know that after the partings of this life are over we may all meet in a brighter and better meeting place above and spend an endless eternity in a holier, happier service. The knowledge that he was followed by their best wishes and prayers for success in mind, body and estate would prove a source of inspiration and strength to him and his parting benediction was that they may be the recipients of Heaven's choicest blessings not only as a body but individuals.

Bro. B. F. Stebes, manager Brockville Water Company, stepped forward just as Mr. Reid was about to reply and presented him with a handsomely framed certificate of membership. Mr. Stebes spoke in very complimentary terms of Mr. Reid. He always found him a gentleman and although sorry to lose him as a brother member of St. Lawrence Lodge, he hoped the best of prosperity would attend his efforts in his new home.

Bro. W. W. Wood, P.D.D., P.G., expressed regret at Mr. Reid's departure. He thought St. Lawrence Lodge should be proud that Mr. Reid, one of its members, had attained to the highest honor that the order could bestow. During Mr. Reid's 15 years' connection with Oddfellowship he had, as it were, been a teacher to the other members of the lodge. Brockville will not only lose a good Oddfellow, but also a prominent citizen.

Remarks were made by Bros. W. J. Moore, N. G., D. Clark, P. G., and Bros. Eastman, P. G., H. Rath, N. G., and W. J. Reynolds, P. G., of Brock Lodge, and Bro. Walsh of Pembroke and others.

Citizens generally will be sorry to learn that Mr. Reid is going from Brockville. He has always taken a deep interest in everything pertaining to the welfare of the the town, and Brockville's loss is Peterborough's gain. He has filled a position on the public school trustee board with credit. Expressions of regret are expressed on all hands at his departure.

An Organ Company Moving.

The Lindsay Post says:—"Monday morning last Mr. A. Marcey, representing the Doherty Organ Co., of Clinton, had an interview with a joint committee of members of the town Council and board of trade with a view to the possible removal of the company's large business to Lindsay. The terms asked by Mr. Marcey were looked upon by some as asking too much from the town, but no doubt they will be considerably modified in the course of future negotiations. The factory would employ over 150 hands, and if any reasonable proposition can secure it the council may do well to submit the scheme to the ratepayers. The matter will likely come up at the council board Monday evening."

FIRE WITH ECZEMA

[illegible] Sufferings of Little Baby. Seven Months and Two Hospitals Fail. Cured by Cuticura.

My little boy, 8 months old, broke out with eczema. The itching and burning was intense; the eczema spread to his limbs, breast, face and head, until he was nearly covered; his sufferings were pitiable to behold; he had no peace and but little rest night or day. He was under treatment at different times at two hospitals and by seven doctors in this city without the least benefit; every prescription of the doctors was faithfully tried, but he grew worse all the time. For months I expended about $[illegible] per week for medicines, and was entirely discouraged. I purchased CUTICURA, CUTICURA SOAP and CUTICURA RESOLVENT and followed the directions to the letter. Relief was immediate, his sufferings were eased, and rest permitted. He steadily improved and in nine weeks time was entirely cured, and has now as clear a skin and is as fair a boy as any mother could wish to see. I recommend every mother to use it for every Baby Humor.

THE RUSSET APPLES.

cheeks flushed with the keen morning air.

But it wasn't so bad, after all. With pardonable egotism, I supposed that every one would be staring at me; but on the contrary, a young woman selling apples might be the commonest sight in the world, so little comment or surprise did it apparently excite. Mr. Holloway of the firm of Holloway Brothers, produce and commission merchants, didn't want any apples I speedily learned.

"Just bought a shipload from Albany," said he, as carelessly as if shiploads of apples were as common a purchase as ten cents' worth of tags. And I drove on, beginning to feel infinitesimally small.

Mr. Lovejoy could give me one dollar a barrel. "Apples wasn't worth no more at this season of the year!" And I whipped old Dobbin up, determined to carry them home again, sooner than sell at that price.

At the next place where I stopped a pleasant-looking, middle-aged man came out and critically examined my apples.

"Do they hold out like this all the way down?" he asked.

"I'll warrant them," said I, carelessly.

"How much?" he asked.

"Two dollars and a half a barrel."

He reflected.

"It's a good price," said he, as if he were talking to his own vest buttons; "but then they look like good apples, and we've a tolerably large Western order to fill. I'll see what my partner thinks."

He went back into the gloomy depths of his store, and I, happening to glance up, saw the words painted in black letters over the door: "Hull & Avery."

My first impulse was to drive on and leave the chance of a bargain behind me; my next to sit still and await my fate as Providence dealt it out to me. And presently out came Willis Avery himself.

"I think we will take your load if—why!" breaking short off, "it's Addy Walters!"

I colored scarlet.

"Yes," said I, as composedly as possible. "Good morning, Mr. Avery. I shall be obliged to you if you will examine the fruit as speedily as possible, as I am in a hurry."

"Oh, certainly." He looked as if a nipping frost had chilled his enthusiasm in the bud, and I secretly exulted within myself.

Mr. Hull bought the load of apples, and said if I had any more at the same price—and the same quality, he cautiously added—he would be happy to take them. Willis Avery touched his hat, and I drove away as loftily as Queen Boadicea in her chariot of old.

* * * * * * *

"Just $85, counting in the melodeon money," cried Kittie, gleefully. "And now Mr. Avery may come as soon as he likes!"

She had scarcely spoken the words before there came a knock at the door, and in walked no less a personage than Mr. Willis Avery himself. I received him with the air of an empress.

"Your money is ready, Mr. Avery."

"I was not thinking of the money, Addy," said he, almost reproachfully. "Do you think one's mind runs always on money?"

"Mine does, a good deal," said I, laughing.

"But I had no idea you were reduced to this. I did not know—"

"Mr. Avery, this is scarcely businesslike," I interposed.

"Addy," said he, abruptly, "I admired your spirit and courage to-day. I always liked you as a girl, but now—"

"Well?" for he hesitated.

"I would do something more, if you would let me. I would love you!"

I did not answer. In truth and in fact, I could not.

"Dear Addy, will you let me sign back the old place to your father on our wedding day?" he asked earnestly.

And somehow he had got hold of my hand, and somehow, before I knew it, we were engaged.

"This is all very ridiculous of us," said I, "particularly as I have resolved never to marry since we had that quarrel about my dancing with Gerald Ferguson at the fourth of July picnic."

"I'll promise you never to be jealous again," said Willis Avery.

Kitty was jubilant when she heard it all.

"Our troubles are at an end," said she, "and all [illegible] you would take that load of russet apples to town yourself."

"That doesn't follow," said I, sagely.

But for all my philosophy I did believe a little in fate, and I've always liked russet apples since.—Chicago News.

TORONTO TRUTH'S

New Spring Bible Competition No. 22.

In these latter days there have arisen many false schemes and many scores of imitations of TRUTH's Competitions, but one after another have failed and utterly perished, yet TRUTH remains, and makes good all its promises. Its reputation is now too well established to risk damaging it, and as it has cost a very large amount of money and many years of care and labor to build up, the publisher could not afford to fail in carrying out all his agreements to the letter. There are twenty-one divisions of the largest list of bona fide prizes ever offered and ever actually given away by any publisher in the world. The total value of prizes in this Spring list is about $[illegible]. The lists are so large it would cost altogether too much to give them in detail here. There are pianos, gold and silver watches, china tea and dinner sets, ladies' and gentlemen's bicycles, silver tea sets, silk dresses, books, money, and hundreds of other valuable rewards. You pay nothing for these prizes, as everyone concedes that full value is received for the dollar in securing TRUTH every week for three months. Send one dollar and answers to the five following questions. Where in the Bible are these words first found: 1, GRAIN; 2, CORN; 3, WHEAT; 4, BARLEY; 5, RYE. If your answers are correct and your letters arrive in time you are almost sure to get a reward, as there are so many and everyone cannot always find correct answers to all these questions. All the five answers must be correct to get any prize but you will get full value for the dollar in TRUTH if you don't get anything else. If you want to see the list of rewards before sending in your dollar, mail TRUTH ten cents and a copy will be sent you containing the list of prizes. But there have been very few dissatisfied prize-winners in previous competitions, considering that he has given away during the past eight years scores of thousands of prizes. Some people expect a piano for every dollar sent, and are mad if they don't get it. He wishes it were possible to give every subscriber a gold watch or a piano or both, but says it can't be done. Some publishers intimate they will, but nobody can do it for any length of time. Send one dollar and correct answers and you wont repent it; and bear in mind that it is not guaranteed that everybody whose answers are correct will get a prize, but that all the prizes in the twenty-one different lists will be given away. The competition remains open only until the last day of June next, inclusive, after which the prizes will be immediately distributed to the successful ones. Ten days will be allowed for letters to reach TRUTH from distant points after the 30th June. All, however, must be postmarked where mailed not later than 30th June, or any time between now and that date. Address S. Frank Wilson, "Truth" Office, Toronto, Ont., Canada.

Constipation,

IF not remedied in season, is liable to become habitual and chronic. Drastic purgatives, by weakening the bowels, confirm, rather than cure, the evil. Ayer's Pills, being mild, effective, and strengthening in their action, are generally recommended by the faculty as the best of aperients.

"Having been subject, for years, to constipation, without being able to find much relief, I at last tried Ayer's Pills. I deem it both a duty and a pleasure to testify that I have derived great benefit from their use. For over two years past I have taken one of these pills every night before retiring. I would not willingly be without them."—G. W. Bowman, 26 East Main st., Carlisle, Pa.

"I have been taking Ayer's Pills and using them in my family since 1857, and cheerfully recommend them to all in need of a safe but effectual cathartic." —John M. Boggs, Louisville, Ky.

"For eight years I was afflicted with constipation, which at last became so bad that the doctors could do no more for me. Then I began to take Ayer's Pills, and soon the bowels recovered their natural and regular action, so that now I am in excellent health."—S. L. Loughbridge, Bryan, Texas.

"Having used Ayer's Pills, with good results, I fully indorse them for the purposes for which they are recommended." —T. Conners, M. D., Centre Bridge, Pa.

TENNY THE WINNER.

THE GREAT BROOKLYN HANDICAP RUN YESTERDAY.

Pulsifer's Speedy Horse, the Faithful Son of Rayon d'Or, Lands His Colors in Front—Prince Royal Second and Tea Tray Third.

BROOKLYN, May 15.—The Brooklyn Jockey Club to-day threw open its gates for a 14-day meeting. A fine program was offered. Fully 30,000 persons were present, including all the officials of New York city and Brooklyn, many ladies and a host of men interested in sporting matters.

When the bugler called the horses to the post for the first race it was one of the grandest sights ever witnessed on an American race course. The spacious lawn was an unbroken mass of hats, while every seat in the grand stand was occupied and some did double duty. The overflow filled the paddock, lined the infield fence 50 deep and made a respectable showing in the betting ring.

There were 118 bookmakers doing business, the largest number ever seen on a race track in this country. The weather was treacherous. It would rain for a few minutes and then stop. It finally settled into a steady drizzle.

The betting ring was all pandemonium; men stumbled and trod over each other in their desperate endeavors to get the good odds before the bookmaker changed them. Great bundles of money were fairly hurled at the bookmakers and money floated about in a way that would drive a miser crazy.

Of course the great attraction was the Brooklyn Handicap with its 21 starters. Three of the eligibles failed to answer to bugle's sound. Of these Leighton ran in the second race and Reporter and Chatham were not considered sufficiently fit to greet the starters. But the people who came to see a great race did not care for these little things. Their appetite for the big event was hardly more than moderately sharpened by the three contests which preceded the big one of the day.

The Brooklyn Jockey Club Handicap for 3-year-olds and upwards, the club to add an amount necessary to make the gross value of the stake $20,000, of which the second shall receive $2500 and the third $1500, 1¼ miles.

D.T. Pulsifer's b h Tenny, 5, by Rayon D'Or—Belle of Maywood, 128 (Barnes), 1.

P. J. Dwyer and Sons' ch h Prince Royal, 5, by King Fisher—Princess, 117 (Garrison), 2.

Time 2.10.

Riley 128, Burlington 120, Judge Morrow, 118, Dewuth 116, Castaway II. 115, Senorita 114, Loantaka 112, Banquet 108, Eon 108 Santiago 108, Cousin Jeems 106, Russell 105, Uncle Bob 100, Saunterer 100, Once Again 100, Carroll 97, King Thomas 95, Nellie Bly 95, also started.

Post Betting: 3 to 1 Tenny, 6 to 1 Judge Morrow, 7 to 1 Tea Tray, 8 to 1 Senorita, 12 to 1 Prince Royal, 10 to 1 Banquet and from 20 to 1 to 100 to 1 the others.

THE RACE: It had been the all-absorbing topic in turf circles for the past few weeks. Everyone was full of excitement and the crush in the betting ring was tremendous. The bookmakers could not begin to supply the speculative wants of the crowd. Men who had never bet $10 in their lives offered hundred dollar bills to the bookmakers, and for a time everyone seemed to have lost control of himself. After a half hour, however, the money of the heavy bettors commenced to tell, and it could be seen in what estimation the different horses were held.

The field that went to the post was the best that ever faced a starter in this country and consisted of 21 horses.

As they went to the post each was loudly cheered and they all looked in the best of shape. Mr. Caldwell cautioned the boys about being on their good behavior and there were a few moments of intense anxiety and a silence that was almost painful. All of a sudden the whole lot moved up on a line, the red flag was dropped and 30,000 voices roared, "They're off!"

As far as the start was concerned every horse received a fair chance. As they swept towards the stand the 2-year-old Russell took the lead, running under a strong pull and with Nelly Bly, Once Again, and Santiago lapped on him and Riley and King Thomas bringing up the rear. They ran in this order around the lower turn and those who bet on Tenny commenced to get anxious, for the little swayback was running in the ruck. As they started up the back stretch Santiago went up to Russell's head and the two ran locked for a quarter, while the white and red of Burlington commenced to occupy a prominent position and Tenny also moved up. As they struck the upper turn the pace commenced to quicken and Russell fell back beaten, leaving Santiago in front. He in turn gave way to Loantaka, who piloted the field into the stretch, and then the real struggle commenced. Loantaka soon gave up and Tenny showed in front, closely pressed by Judge Morrow, who had been in the ruck for a mile, Burlington, Prince Royal and Tea Tray. Horses and jockeys all seemed to think the crisis had arrived and gathered themselves together for a final effort.

Three-sixteenths from the finish Barnes went to the whip and for the fraction of a second the favorite faltered. A despairing cry went up, "Tenny is beaten!"

It did look like it, but the game little swayback responded nobly, and with heaving sides and distended nostrils, he came on like a piece of perfect mechanism, rapidly devouring ground at every stride. The race was not his yet, however, for Garrison was working like a demon on Prince Royal, fairly lifting him over the ground and Tea Tray was rapidly moving up from the rear.

The excitement was intense, hats, bonnets, handkerchiefs, umbrellas and parasols were thrown into the air and cries of:

"Tenny, Tenny!" "Prince Royal wins!" "Come on, Tea Tray!" were heard on all sides.

It was a grand struggle, but Tenny held his antagonists safe and bounding like an India rubber ball passed the finish two good lengths in front of Prince Royal, who beat Tea Tray a short head for second money. The time, 2.10, was nothing out of the common, but it was a grand race, and men, women and children perfect strangers to each other shook hands with great enthusiasm. Barnes, who rode Tenny, was placed on a floral horseshoe after he had weighed out and carried to the dressing-room. He has won the Futurity, Junior Champion and Brooklyn and says his ambition now is to ride the winner of the Suburban.

On order was made by the master in chambers allowing the city of Toronto to pay into court the sum of $1,442,778, the amount of the street railway award. The time for payment ends to-day and the city, in case of any hitch and to be on the safe side, paid the money into court. A check will be given to Mr. Smith, or if he refuses to accept it the money will be left there to his credit.

By the collision of the British steamer Buccaneer with the Italian steamer Stura near the spot where the Utopia sank in Gibraltar Bay on March 19, the 800 Italian emigrants on board the Stura experienced a narrow escape from death. A scene of wild confusion followed the collision, men and women rushing hither and thither wildly crying for help. Neither vessel sank, but the only thing that prevented the Stura from sinking was the fact that her collision bulkheads were closed, [illegible] the water that entered her in the forward hold.

BUY NOW IF AT ALL.

EVERY day makes more apparent the fact that the town is going ahead rapidly. Numerous changes have taken place in the way of the ownership of property. Many workingmen are buying houses and lots or lots on which to build. One of the most suitable locations is that known as the Erin property, at the west end, owned largely by Mr. Wm. Fitzgerald. This week he has closed the sale of a very desirable new house and lot, and has several eligible lots on this property to dispose of. Property in this neighbourhood is rapidly being built up, and it will be well to have a look at the situation if one is at all disposed to buy. The terms are very favorable and especially low for cash, though payment on time may be arranged.

KEPT HIS BOOTS ON.

OFFICIAL ACCOUNT OF THE ASSAULT ON THE CZAREWITCH.

He Insulted the National Religion by Failing to Remove His Shoes and as a Result He Was Whacked Over the Head by a Policeman.

PARIS, May 18.—The French embassy at Tokio has telegraphed the official details of the attack upon the Czarewitch. From these it appears that the Czarewitch's assailant was a policeman named Thunda who had been eight years in the service. The Czarewitch and his suite were leaving Otsu in a jinrikshaw having just visited a buddhist temple. Both the Czarewitch and Prince George went to the shrines with their boots on and the chief bonzes on their retiring complained to the Japanese guards about this offence against the national religion. The princes were entering the jinrikshaws, when Thunda, who was standing guard, dealt the Czarewitch a blow with his sword. Prince George returned the blow with his sword and threw Thunda several feet. The policeman rose to make another rush at the Czarewitch; a Japanese closed the front of the carriage and another Japanese wrested the sword from Thunda and cut him down, inflicting a severe wound. The chief bonze, with several guards, arrested the man. The Czarewich's injury has already healed.

A NEW YORK MYSTERY.

SUPPOSED MURDER OF A WEALTHY WOMAN.

Her Body Found in the River Freighted Down With Heavy Stones—She Suddenly Disappeared a Few Weeks Ago.

NEW YORK, May 18.—The city has another murder mystery. Yesterday the body of a woman washed ashore at Newdorp, S.I. At 5 o'clock this evening two well-known young women visited police headquarters at Stapleton. They said they were daughters of Mrs. Mahler of 1056 Broadway, Brooklyn, who disappeared on Jan. 22 last. As soon as they were shown shoes worn by deceased they recognized them as having belonged to their mother. They also recognized a black cashmere waist found on the body of one of them having made the waist for her mother. They were surprised to learn there were suspicions that their mother had met with foul play. They said it was the opinion of the family that Mrs. Mahler, who had been in failing health had either fallen or jumped overboard while in a demented condition. They were informed by the chief of police that a Belgian pavement stone, weighing 19½ lbs., was found fastened to the body, the stone resting on her breast. It was secured by by a manilla rope of thickness of a clothes line tied about the body and fastened at the back in three or four knots. The right jawbone had been broken and also the bridge of the nose. Mrs. Mahler who was 55 years old was a dressmaker in Brooklyn where her four daughters and one son lived with her. In the latter part of November Mrs. Mahler, who was broken down in health, went to visit at the house of her son Joseph, in Jersey City. She was behaving strangely and it was feared she would become insane. She remained at her son's house till Jan. 22, when she disappeared. It is said her life was insured for $10,000. Mrs. Mahler, besides owning the dress making establishment had considerable means. She was a member of the ladies Knights of Honor and several other benevolent organizations. A searching investigation will be made. Its the general belief that the woman did not commit suicide.

Foreign Money Markets.

LONDON, May 17.—Discount was a shade easier yesterday, being quoted at 4¼ for three months and 4¼ for short. High rates are certain to prevail for several weeks. Gold to the amount of £1,500,000, it is expected, will be drawn by the Russian Government during the present week, partly from here and partly from Paris, with a further drain of £2,500,000 during June. Remittances from the United States provide only a temporary supply of gold, as part of it will flow back to the United States in the autumn in payment of grain imports. The Reichs Bank raising its rate on Friday and the probability that the Bank of France will raise its rate are also among the factors for keeping money dear. The Stock Exchange has experienced an exciting week, recurrent rumors of failing firms threatening a bourse crisis and rapidly fluctuating values, keeping affairs lively.

[illegible] reported by his physicians to have experienced a slight relapse to-day. Though his illness is reported to be not serious, his failure to rally under the careful treatment he is receiving causes increasing anxiety to his innumerable admirers and friends. Bulletins of the venerable statesman's condition are eagerly looked for in all the cities the kingdom.

A Timid Bridegroom.

NIAGARA FALLS, May 17.—An anxious couple from Thorold, who put up at the Keating House on Tuesday, experienced considerable difficulty in getting married. The young man, who is said to be a blood relation of the great Van Horne of Canadian Pacific fame, shortly after arrival here, was taken sick and fainted in the hallway, and the blushing and expectant bride was almost frantic in anticipation of a postponement to such an extent that she threatened to throw herself over the river bank. Two physicians were called in who relieved the sufferings of the young swain. Finally, supported by the doctors, backed up by friends, encouraged by the minister, the ceremony was concluded and the presiding physician claimed the first kiss of congratulation.

Mr. Purcell Left Another Will.

CORNWALL, May 17.—It seems that Mr. Purcell left more than one will and the one read before the members of the family may be set aside. In this second will Mr. John Bergin is named as joint executor with Messrs. Leclair and McDonald. The will was drawn up by Mr. O'Gara, Q.C., of Ottawa, and was made prior to the will drawn by Mr. McLennan, but a codicil was attached to it in March last, and it is claimed that this is sufficient to give it precedence over the other. A caveat has been filed, and the question as to which of the wills the estate will be distributed under will probably have to be decided by the courts. It is understood that the will drawn by Mr. O'Gara makes much larger bequests to religious and charitable institutions than the other one and would leave a comparatively small amount to be divided among the legal heirs.

A Misstep Cost a Life.

BRAMPTON, May 17.—Aaron Laidlaw of lot 14, 2nd line west, Toronto township, was getting into his wagon Thursday, when his foot slipped on the hub and he fell heavily on the wheel. The young horses, startled, began to run with Mr. Laidlaw hanging to the lines. He was dragged a long distance on the road before he let go and sustained such injuries that he died in a few hours.

A Child Drops from a Train.

EGANSVILLE, Ont., May 17.—As the emigrant train for the west was passing between Cobden and Graham's Bridge a child about eight years old dropped off unnoticed by any one. It remained beside the track till the Atlantic Express No. 2, which was late that morning, came to the place where the child was noticed and taken back to Cobden. The child had sustained a severe scalp wound.

Fell Dead in the Witness Box.

PROVIDENCE, R.I., May 17.—A sensation was caused in the Court House by a witness dropping dead in the witness box. During his testimony he warned the lawyers that he had heart disease and to not press him too closely upon his cross-examination.

Slight Injury Causes Death.

WINGHAM, Ont., May 17.—Thomas Gray aged 16, a couple of weeks ago got his knee hurt in some way, and blood poisoning set in from which he died.

Six Deaths in One House.

GUELPH, May 17.—Mr. William H. Lee, Egremont, has undergone sore affliction, losing six of his children from diphtheria, and at one time four of them were lying corpses in the house. Two died a few days previous.

THE MANIPUR MASSACRE.

Quinton's Party Mutilated and Then Executed—Comments of the London Press.

LONDON, May 17.—The Manipur despatches were presented to Parliament late yesterday the Government having held them back in order to prevent a discussion before the Whitsuntide recess. The despatches fail to establish clearly why such a small force was sent to Manipur. The Viceroy's orders were to take a force sufficient to remove the Senaputty. It appears that Chief Commissioner Quinton had no orders as to how he was to remove the Senaputty, but was cognizant of the difficulty of the enterprise, and consulted the commander of Assam in regard to the course he should take. Quinton intended to summon the Senaputty as a rebel and to arrest him.

A native eye-witness deposes that after a half-hour's conference the hands and feet of each person of Quinton's party were cut off and then all were executed in the presence of 1000 Manipuris, including the Senaputty and the Jubraj, who stood only six paces distant.

The Times, in a carefully written article, blames Commissioner Quinton for the smallness of the force employed and the Indian Government for approving the plan to summon the Senaputty without first warning him that he would be held as a criminal.

All the papers call for the severe punishment of the Senaputty. It is certain that the Opposition will take the Government strongly to task for the disaster when the session of Parliament is resumed.

The National League of Great Britain Repudiates Him.

NEWCASTLE, May 17.—The annual convention of the National League of Great Britain opened here to-day. Delegates from 400 branches of the league were present. Mr. T. P. O'Connor was unable to be present, owing to the fact that he is suffering from an attack of influenza. Mr. O'Connor, however, sent a letter, which was read at the convention. In it he said that the leadership of Mr. Parnell was impossible alike in Ireland and England. Mr. O'Connor added that he hoped that no language would be used at the convention which would be likely to retard the reconciliation between the two sections of the Irish party and their reunion. A resolution was passed stating that Mr. Parnell was morally and politically unfit for a position of trust.

Snow At Whitsuntide.

LONDON, May 17.—Sharp frosts and storms of sleet and snow were experienced throughout the kingdom last night and much injury was done to fruit crops. The snow rapidly melts in the valleys but remains on hill tops in curious contrast with the bright vegetation. In London to-night the weather is warmer and rain is falling.

Will Settle in London.

LONDON, May 17.—Another large contingent of destitute Russian Hebrews has arrived here from Hamburg. The arrivals of Russian Hebrews are increasing in number. Each of the steamers of one line plying regularly three times a week between here and Hamburg is bringing a full complement of Russian Hebrew passengers. The Hebrews are also arriving here in large numbers by other lines, with the exception of a few who are going to the United States. All these new arrivals expect to settle in London or Manchester.

Chat From Over the Sea.

It is stated that the Russian Government has ordered that immediate steps be taken in all provinces for the removal of Jews to the quarters in which they are permitted to reside.

Official details of the attack upon the Czarewitch show that the assault by the policeman was due to the fact that the Czarewitch insulted the national religion by entering a Buddhist temple with his boots on. The wound, which was trifling, has already healed.

The Paris Republique Francaise has a warlike article on England in Egypt. It contends that the French Government ought to resent the English preparations to destroy what is left of French influence, and says that the Chamber of Deputies and the country are willing to grant whatever may be necessary to vindicate the rights of France.

Commercial advices have been received at Marseilles from Trebizond to the effect that a new volcano has appeared in Armenia at the summit of Mount Nimrod in the district of Van, vomiting forth flames and lava. The villages at the base of the mountain have been destroyed and many persons are said to have been killed or injured.

Kanturk, in County Cork, was the scene of much disorder Sunday. While the McCarthyites were holding a meeting, the proceedings were interrupted by a band of Parnellites who invaded the place of meeting. A free fight followed in which many persons were seriously wounded. Numerous arrests have been made.

A duel growing out of a dispute originating in the stormy debate in the Chamber of Deputies on May-day was fought to-day. The principals were Signor Barzilai, a member of the Chamber of Deputies, who was wounded in the riots, and Capt. Bezzi. The former received wounds in the arm and head as the result of the duel

A Buffalo Clairvoyant Directs the Job.

ST. CATHARINES, May 17.—The gold hunters are again at work digging out the Captain Kidd treasure some miles east of Port Colborne. The Raeb brothers and Messrs. Beck and Baith are engaged in the search, and dynamite is used to loosen the rocks. A Buffalo clairvoyant is constantly consulted as to the success of the enterprise, and she is confident the gold will be found this time.

Sir Edward Kenny, father of Thomas E. Kenny, M.P., died at Halifax Saturday night, aged 91. Sir Edward had taken a prominent part in public affairs up to 16 years ago. He was appointed to the Legislative Council 50 years ago and continued up to Confederation, being president of that body for many years. In 1867 he was appointed senator and became a member of the Dominion Government, holding the portfolio of Receiver-General. In 1874 he retired from the Senate through failing health and has lived since outside of politics and business. Lady Kenny survives him. They had a large family, three sons are Roman Catholic priests and one daughter a nun, another the wife of Lieut.-Gen. Daly. THE OCEAN CATTLE TRADE

REPORT OF THE ENGLISH COMMITTEE INVESTIGATING IT.

Plimsoll's Charges of Systematic Cruelty Not Substantiated—The Character of Vessels Which Should be Utilized in the Transatlantic Cattle Trade.

LONDON, May 18.—The Transatlantic Cattle Trade Committee to-day completed a voluminous report upon the subject which it has been investigating. According to the report, ocean steamships which are only occasionally chartered for the ocean cattle trade have in some instances an unsatisfactory class of officers, who are, generally speaking, without experience in this particular trade. The fittings and ventilation of such ships are also frequently unadapted to the uses to which they are put. In regard to the management of cattle in transit across the ocean, the report admits that the foremen engaged for the voyage are usually experienced and skillful men. On the other hand, it is added, the men who are employed under these foremen to feed, water and otherwise attend to the cattle while traveling across the Atlantic, are generally unskilled and, in many instances, totally unable physically to endure the exertion, privations and natural hardships of a rough voyage from America to England. The report also says that the men performing the difficult and dangerous duties of attending cattle in shipment to Europe are badly paid and fed, the "cattlemen," as they are termed, frequently being compelled to work for nothing. As a result of this state of affairs, the cattle are often left without food or water for considerable periods, especially in rough or cold weather when the cattlemen are suffering from seasickness or other troubles.

The accommodations and food provided for the cattlemen, the report continues, are often inadequate, and in numerous instances it is shown that the cattle on shipboard have been treated with great cruelty. But, the report adds, the allegations of Samuel Plimsoll (formerly a Member of Parliament, and well known as the originator of the "Plimsoll Line" on ships), to the effect that great and systematic cruelty is practised upon cattle on board the cattle ships, is not supported in the evidence taken by the committee. Among the witnesses examined by the committee was one who said that he had seen men spitting tobacco juice into the eyes of exhausted cattle, and that he had also seen men pouring water into the ears and nostrils of cattle to make them rise to their feet.

The committee's report admits that is difficult to arrive at the exact truth as to the cruelties to which it is alleged cattle on board ship are subjected, owing to the fact that it is in the interest of all concerned to conceal the real facts. The committee, however, is inclined to believe that cruelty to cattle is rarely practised except by the inferior class of cattlemen already referred to.

Continuing, the report says that indirectly the conditions of the insurance of cattle shipped to Europe are such as to entail a certain amount of suffering. The certificates of insurance, it appears, generally state that no claim can be made for any animal landed alive, however much they have been injured during the voyage. It is the belief of cattle foremen that no insurance will be paid unless the animal dies a natural death. In contradiction of this, the representatives of the insurance companies say that do not make it a condition of payment of insurance that no beasts shall be slaughtered on the voyage. The evidence of cattlemen, however, proves that either the cattlemen do not know this or that they consider it more to their interest to land the cattle alive though injured. The insurance companies in order to encourage the cattlemen to handle their charges as carefully as possible give gratuities to these men. The committee, with the above and other facts, expresses the opinion that it is not surprising that cattlemen have mistaken views in slaughtering injured animals and that they have often kept cattle alive though the latter were suffering from broken legs.

In conclusion, the report says that cattle should not be carried on poop decks or under temporary shelters or upper decks. The report also says that the committee regards the comfort and safety of cattle on board ship as largely dependent upon the strength and efficiency of the pens and their fittings, which are often insecure, especially in the case of Canadian vessels.

The report recommends that, where ample ventilation for cattle is impossible, such vessels should be considered to be unfit for the transatlantic cattle trade. The committee is of the opinion that a foreman requires not less than four competent assistants for each 100 head of cattle. The foreman and his assistants should be required to sign the ship's articles, and the men should be thus placed under the authority of the captain.

She Swallowed a "Jack."

NEW YORK, May 17.—Elsie Schroeder, who lives at No. 169 South Fourth-street, Brooklyn, was playing "Jacks" in the kitchen of her home yesterday, and as she caught up the iron toys while the ball was bounding she stuffed them into her mouth. She accidently swallowed one of the "jacks" and lay down on a lounge. Her heaving breathing attracted her eldest sister's attention and she ran across to Dr. Ruppel's surgery. The doctor ordered the child stood on her head and he began to cough violently. In a few minutes she threw out the "jack" and was then carried home.

O'Brien's Bondsmen Must Pay.

LONDON, May 14.—Mr. Balfour, Chief Secretary for Ireland, in answer to a question put by Thomas Sexton, member for West Belfast, said that the government had no choice but levy on the bail, $8,730, forfeited by Messrs. Dillon and O'Brien when they escaped from Ireland in order to avoid standing trial for the share they took in inciting the tenants on the Smith-Barry estates not to pay rent. Mr. Balfour added that the defendants had entered into obligations to surrender themselves to the police when required to do so, and that they failed to carry out their obligations. If ever bail ought to be enforced it should be in their case.

Caught in Detroit.

DETROIT, May 17.—Detective Connolly yesterday arrested Richard Hutchinson, a brakeman, 25 years old, who has been stopping at 273 Jefferson-avenue, and locked him up at the central station. The arrest was made on the request of the Hamilton, Ont., police authorities. Hutchinson acknowledges having cut a man there, and the charge pending against him is assault with intent to murder. Hutchinson claims that his sister had been grievously wronged and he himself had been slandered by his victim, and it proved more than his temper could stand.

Makes the Weak Strong

The marked benefit which people in run down or weakened state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but in the most natural way Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes creates an appetite, purifies the blood, and, in short, gives great bodily, nerve, mental and digestive strength.

That Tired Feeling

"I derived very much benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I took for general debility. It built me right up, and gave me an excellent appetite." Ed. Jenkins, Mt. Savage, Md.

Fagged Out

"Last spring I was completely fagged out. My strength left me and I felt sick and miserable all the time, so that I could hardly attend to my business. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it cured me. There is nothing like it." R. C. Bugole, Editor Enterprise, Belleville, Mich.

Worn Out

"Hood's Sarsaparilla restored me to good health. Indeed, I might say truthfully it saved my life. To one feeling tired and worn out I would earnestly recommend a trial of Hood's Sarsaparilla." Mrs. Phebe Mosher, 70 Brooks Street, East Boston, Mass.

THE SEASON OPENING.

Annual Meeting of the Cheese Board—The Election of Officers and Other Business.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board was held in the market building on Saturday afternoon. There was a large attendance of salesmen. Mr. J. M. Drummond, President, presided.

OPENING PROCEEDINGS.

Mr. Drummond in opening expressed his pleasure at seeing so many old salesmen present and also new ones representing new factories. He referred to the statements of the old country buyers to the effect that Canadian cheese had deteriorated and said if this was the case it was for them to improve the quality of their cheese. This was the object towards which they should aim.

The Treasurer, Mr. S. Edwards, of Dummer, read the financial statement for the year which showed a balance on hand of $61.22.

The Secretary, Mr. W. Taylor, read the minutes of the last meeting, which were approved.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The election of officers was the next business proceeded with and resulted in the following being chosen:—

PRESIDENT.—J. M. Drummond, of Keene factory (re-elected).

FIRST VICE-PRESIDENT.—J. M. Cruess, of Mariposa, Victoria.

SECRETARY.—M. R. Sanderson, of North Smith factory.

TREASURER.—S. Edwards, of Warminster factory.

INSPECTOR.—W. H. Wrighton.

AN UNUSUAL DANGER.

A little out of the ordinary was the discussion which followed. The fear was prevalent that the Board might accumulate too much money in the coffers with no object to expend it on, and it was considered whether any fees should be charged members this year. Mr. Johnston suggested giving the President $20 for his valuable services, Mr. Galvin suggested a grant be given to Mr. Wrighton the inspector. Mr. Wrighton did not wish any such grant and suggested that some of the surplus might be employed in paying an inspector for a few months or so. Finally it was decided to charge the usual fee of one dollar per year.

The question of giving the President some tangible token of appreciation of services rendered was again taken up and on a vote Messrs. Moloney, Johnston, Stewart and Sanderson were appointed a committee to select some suitable present for the President, this being deemed more desirable than a money grant.

RULES FOR SELLING.

The rules for the government of the Board and the selling of the Board were read for adoption or amendment for the coming season.

A letter was read from Mr. W. Claxton making several suggestions as to the rules of selling on the Board.

Rule No. 2 which last year made a buyer making first selections take not less than 250 boxes was amended so that buyers taking first or second selections shall take not less than about 500 boxes.

Another suggestion of Mr. Claxton's was proposed to be added to the rules to the effect that if a buyer breaks in while another's bid is being called off and makes a higher offer the factory be struck off the Board if it accepts the higher offer. On further discussion it was decided that such bye bids would not affect fair salesmen and the rule was not added.

The rules of last year were adopted with only one amendment.

Mr. Cruess said the Victoria Board wanted to be part of the Peterborough Board and did not want to be set off as the Victora Board.

Tuesday, May 26th, was decided upon as the first sale day for the Peterborough Board.

MEETING FOR INSTRUCTIONS.

Mr. Moore, of Lakefield, gave the meeting some information in regard to the arrangements that had been made by the Association for meetings at which Prof Roberts was to give instruction to cheesemakers. In this section the meeting was to be held at the Peterborough factory on June 2 and in the afternoon a men's meeting of farmers was to be addressed by Prof. Robertson. All were invited.

The Board then adjourned.

OBITUARY.

The Late Patrick Heffernan.

Mr. Patrick Heffernan, one of the early settlers in the county, died at his residence in Douro on Friday evening. He had been unwell for several months with a kidney trouble and ten days ago was taken down and expired on Friday. Mr. Heffernan was a native of County Cork, Ireland, where he was born in [illegible]. Forty-six years ago he came to Canada with the family of his father, the late John Heffernan, who settled in Otonabee, and thirteen years later Mr. Heffernan settled in the 7th concession of Douro, where he resided until the time of his death, a period of thirty-three years. He was married in 1859 to Miss Elizabeth Slattery, daughter of the late Patrick Slattery, of Otonabee, who, with seven children, survives him, one son having passed away one year in advance of his father. Mr. Heffernan was a man of excellent qualities, honest, straightforward, of a kind disposition, and an excellent neighbor. In politics he adhered to the Conservative party. His death will be greatly regretted by a wide circle of friends by whom he was highly esteemed and his family will have the sincere sympathy of the community. The funeral took place yesterday from his late residence to St. Peter's Cathedral and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery and was largely attended.

"Ayer's Hair Vigor is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from experience. Its growth promotes the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The Vigor is a sure cure for dandruff."—J. W. Bowen, Editor Enquirer, McArthur, Ohio.

ASSOCIATION DOINGS.

Meetings Held and to be Held by the Local Y.M.C.A.

The praise, prayer and promise meeting on Saturday evening was a time of refreshing. The attendance was good. Testimonies were bright and helpful. The after meeting was encouraging.

Mr. T. Dodd's led the consecration service Sabbath morning. In was a heart searching time, the power of the Holy Spirit was manifested in our midst.

Mr. T. S. Cox addressed the personal purity meeting yesterday afternoon. Our only regret was that every young man in our town did not hear Mr. Cole's helpful words on this important subject. The orchestra led the singing.

Rev. Mr. Wilson, Ashburnham, gave a thoughtful Bible reading on the work of the Holy Spirit which will bear fruit in a more earnest study of God's word. We want more of this Bible searching and Mr. Wilson showed wisdom in giving us just what we need, more of God's word in our hearts and lives. The attendance and interest was good. We are believing for results.

Special meeting of the Reception Committee on Wednesday evening at 9 p.m., after prayer meeting.

Young Men's Bible class on Friday evening at 8 p.m., topic, "Work plenty, Workers few." All young men welcome.

We thank Mr. Herbert Gopsetine 4 potted plants for our rooms.

At the Saturday night meeting a hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Frank Peck for his work since coming among us, especially for work on the black board. Much regret was expressed at his departure from among us. Our loss will be Rochester's gain.

A Bit of Philosophy.

Live within your income. How to do this is the vital question. Two courses are open, increase income or curtail expenditure. It's about as hard to cut down expenses as to increase income. However, amidst the general perplexity which the situation calls up there is the re-assuring thought that no matter how things go, one way to save is to buy your teas at hawleys', where prices are at the bottom notch and qualities on top of the heap. The Wise Savants

Tell us that Rheumatism is a blood disease that it can be cured only by a remedy which works through the blood. And yet, if you have the darting pains of Rheumatism in muscles or joints, try a little of Clark's Lightning Liniment. It will go direct to the seat of pain and relieve it at once. There is no waiting weeks and months until the disease can be attacked through the blood. This seems to be contrary to scientific claims, but it is true that Clark's Lightning Liniment will cure Rheumatism. Sold by all druggists; price fifty cents. Clark Chemical Co., Toronto.

His Last Sunday.

BELLEVILLE, May 17.—James Kane has only three days in which to prepare to meet his God. He is perfectly unconcerned as to his fate and seems ever happy. He never offers a word of complaint and will go without anything rather than ask for it. He is on what is known as "sick diet." He is visited daily by one of the priests and is satisfied that he should be hanged for the crime. He sleeps soundly and talks but little. He says he is a thoroughly converted man and only wishes the day of execution was at hand. J. R. Radclive, the "P.E.," will have his second job within a year in Belleville. The process will be the same as that used in the execution of Davis. The same gallows will also be utilized. It will be erected on Wednesday. The hour for the execution has been fixed at 8 o'clock Thursday morning.

Poor Fanny Biggs' Fate.

BOBCAYGEON, May 17.—The dead body of a poor old woman named Fanny Biggs was found lying beside the river bank, with one foot in the water and with a pail beside her. The floor of her house near by was found still damp from scrubbing, and it is supposed that she had been cleaning up and went for a pail of water, when in stooping she was taken with apoplexy or convulsions. The medical examiner stated that convulsions were the cause of death.

ALMONTE, Ont., May 17.—A child between one and two years old, son of Alexander McLean of Ramsay, went and laid his head on his grandmother's knee. Mrs. McLean, thinking he was ill or tired, took him up in her arms, when he instantly breathed his last.

CASH HARDWARE STORE.

On and after 1st April we shall do business on a Cash Basis.

To cover the inevitable losses attendant upon a credit business, (which accrue from amount of time spent in keeping accounts, collecting, bad debts, interest account, and in numerous other ways, larger margins of profit must be asked.

In these times cash buyers ask, expect and are entitled to close prices. A careful consideration of the subject convinces us that the time has come for a cash business done on smaller profits.

The only customers who may be put to inconvenience are those who have had long credit. In more ways than one it will be to their advantage to pay cash.

For convenience of our old customers who consider their accounts due when presented, we will call 30 days cash and render all accounts the first of each month, and we wish to say that we will be happy to do business with them on these terms.

As the new departure is something of an experiment, what would be considered a close cash price will be made all through the stock. Not a few leaders only, but a general reduction in everything from the fourth flat to the cellar.

Our idea is to perform more than promised rather than promise more than can be fulfilled.

Our stock is large and varied, consisting of Builders', Contractors', Household, Mechanics', Painters', Shoemakers', Farm, Mill, Foundry, Lumbermen's, Sporting, Threshers', Cabinetmakers', and other lines of Hardware.

There was no service in St. Andrew's church yesterday either morning or evening. It was not deemed necessary to secure a supply for one service, as the custom of holding no service in the evening on the day of the St. Paul's anniversary was to be adhered to. The defendant to be allowed a sale upon the usual terms. Question of costs of injunction motion referred to Falconbridge J.

It will go Hard with the Guilty.

Two men were charged at the Police Court this morning with dumping night soil into the Otonabee River, the alleged depositing having been done, so it was supposed, from the Smith-st. bridge. Evidence was heard in both cases, when an enlargement took place until Wednesday. One resident near the bridge swore that he saw a man dump three barrels into the river early one morning last week. It was an occurrence of three or four nights a week, he said. The Magistrate in enlarging the cases said he would let them stand for a month if necessary to get evidence to prove who did such an act, for a man who would do that would commit any crime. Any person found guilty of depositing such filth in the river may expect the full penalty of the law if he comes into the Police Court, and he deserves it.

THE NEW COMMANDMENT.

REV. PRINCIPAL GRANT PREACHES ON THIS COMMANDMENT.

Anniversary Services at St. Paul's Church—A Liberal Collection for the Church Debt—Immense Congregations Listen to Both Discourses which were very Able and Effective.

Immense congregations which filled the commodious edifice attended the morning and evening services at St. Paul's church yesterday, when the anniversary of the opening of the church was commemorated by special services. The services were marked by an effort to reduce the church debt and a most liberal response was made to the appeal, about $1,600 being the total collections for the day.

The music for the services was of a special character. At the morning service the choir rendered the Te Deum in excellent voice and time and Master Arlidge sang "Angels Ever Bright and Fair." In the evening the choir rendered another anthem and Master Arlidge sang "Abide With Me." The boy singer's solos were very sweet and pleasing and the large congregation listened with wrapt attention.

Rev. Principal Grant, of Queen's University, preached the sermons at both services, and, as stated, had magnificent congregations to address. Both his discourses were delivered in his calm, deliberate but most effective style, and were logical, eloquent and clear in argument.

THE NEW COMMANDMENT.

The rev. gentleman chose for the basis of his morning discourse.

"A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another; as I have loved you that ye also love one another."—John ii, xxxiv.

In opening the preacher said "A new commandment" Christ said to his disciples, who had always thought that the ten commandments summed up the whole duty of man and that as God had given these commandments there was no need of another. The new commandment, sometimes known as the eleventh commandment, especially by those who had read that charming little incident in the life of two of the best known and most reverended men of God, Samuel Rutherford and Archbishop Usher, two representatives of two great forms of Protestant Christianity, which in that century contended, Presbyterianism and Episcopalianism. One evening a stranger came to Rutherford's home in Anwoth and sought shelter for the night. Before retiring a portion of Scripture was read and as was the custom of the times catechising was also part of the family worship. Each were asked a question and one was put to the stranger which it was assumed he would be able to answer. How many commandments are there, was the question. He answered eleven, and no more questions were put to him it being presumed that he was ignorant. The next morning Rutherford overheard the stranger praying in his room or loft, was impressed with the beauty of his supplication and was convinced that he had misjudged his guest. He inquired his name and discovered it was Archbishop Usher. Rutherford pressed his friend to preach for him that Sunday and the latter took for his text the eleventh commandment, "A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one anotner." It was a commandment, the minister said, which was needed at that time of acute contention and one just as MUCH NEEDED TO-DAY.

It was worthy of being called new though it was old, so old that John said it was old from the beginning. The question might be asked if it was old at the beginning why did Christ call it new? They knew it was as old as the Mosaic law for they read in Leviticus "Love thy neighbor as thyself," and they knew that the Jews understood that it expressed the substance of the second table of the law. They knew that when the lawyer, a man skilled in the law, had came to Christ to question him, He had answered him by asking how he read the law and the man answered Love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and thy neighbor as thyself. The rest of the conversation would lead them to understand why Christ had called this a new commandment. He told the man he had answered discretely and said "This do;" and the man asked "who is my neighbor?" Christ did not answer directly because that might lead to a controversy, but replied in the beautiful story of the Good Samaritan and asked the man which of the three, the priest, Levite or the Samaritan, was the neighbor and he answered the Samaritan. Then Christ said "Go Thou and do likewise." In these words, said the preacher, they knew that their neighbor was anyone, not necessarily of their own nation, race and religion. Neighbor was wider, it included the hated Samaritan, and thus the Lord taught in His matchless way who their neighbor was. This was the first reason why the text could be called a new commandment, because of the extension given to its meaning by Jesus. At that time the feeling of divine unity was predominate in all nations and in the case of the Jews it was intensified because of the religious teaching separating them rigidly from other nations. The Jews had been accustomed to look upon other nations as inferior and therefore there was no nation so hated by others as were the Jews and no nation in which the feeling against others was so strong and bitter as among the Jews. Christ changed all this and made include all mankind. He taught it in his life, death and resurrection but it took the Christian world a long time to learn the needed lesson, that neighbor includes all men, all nations, all creeds. Christendom had not learned it yet but was learning. This extension of meaning dated from Christ and was the foundation and vindication of every effort which the church makes for foreign mission work. Another reason why this was called a new commandment was because of the greater prominence it had in the Christian religion than it had in Judaism. The great truth kernel of Judaism was the unity of God, and this truth the Jews felt bound to teach to this day. It was the great lesson the ancient Jews had to teach and was the great lesson the ancient world required. This truth had now become the common truth of humanity. All men said now "If there is a God there is only One." There was no need of teaching that truth now because the extension of thought had led to a knowledge of unity which had convinced men that there could only be one God. Because it had become part of the intellectual furniture of men this commandment, "Love thy neighbor as thyself," had rose into prominence. This commandment had become the characteristic of Christiandom ever since Christ spoke it. Prove thyself Christ's by actual love to fellow beings. Christ said "By this will all men know," and so put this second commandment in the fore front as a sign by which God's children would be known. That church is MOST TRULY THE CHURCH OF CHRIST which is most fruitful in this respect. The Church beneficence was the true Church of Christ. The church which did the most for humanity at home and abroad, which had the most enlightened conception of what the good and earnest needs of humanity were and was the most practical in carrying out its conception, that was the true church. The third reason why the text was a new commandment was because of the profounder meaning given by Christ to the word love. The ordinary conception of love, the preacher said, was limited to alms giving. The Lord Jesus taught that that was a very superficial meaning to attatch to the word love, and yet, in spite of this, very many limited it to the material side of nature. Of course the material side was not to be overlooked, for it was impossible for a man to be a Christian and see another starving and not divide even his last loaf. But it confined to that side of nature it might do as much harm as good. The truest way of helping the poor was not by making it easy to get bread, but by giving higher ideas of what self respect demanded and so lead to independence and a position where they could help themselves instead of being a burden on society. Alms giving and hospitals would always be needed, but Christ taught man much more than this only. While He healed the body and cured the sick only for those purposes, it was not necessary for Him to suffer and die if this is all that was needed. He knew they needed something more, something deeper. Therefore they showed their love for man only when they enabled him to slack his thirst for God, only when they enabled him to develop his intellect and possibilities for science, art and religion. Christianity had done this as no other religion ever had. Universities were the product of Christianity. In the fourth place he said this was called a new commandment because Christ had given himself as a type by which to interpret it in a new way. Before Christ came it was interpreted, love thy neighbor not better than thyself, and therefore self always took the precedence and you should help others when it was convenient. Christ exemplified the individual sacrifice which was to be made for others and gave them the accurate, infallible interpretation in Himself. The fifth reason why they might call this a new commandment was because of the new motives and forces supplied. He taught that they were bound to others not only by nature but by ties of grace, all with the same Spirit, the same Lord dwelling within them making them one family, one state, one commonwealth, one body. In the sixth place he pointed out that the commandment was new to everyone to whom Christ came. Before He came self would be the principle of life, but when He came self was slain, the old man was crucified and the new man renewed. It would be felt to be a new commandment and they would go forward to execute it. In conclusion he said this was appropriate thought for an anniversary Sunday, for if this new commandment applied to the individual how much more did it apply to every congregation of Christendom, not only to look to self but to minister to the best interests of the Brotherhood.

THE SAME NEIGHBOR

IN THE EVENING.

At the evening service every available seat had its occupant. Rev. Principal Grant chose for the text of his discourse Christ's command to his disciples found in Matthew xxiii, 19 20. The rev. gentleman in a practical and very effective discourse pointed out that God furnished all power and man was merely the instrumentality or agency by which this power was exerted. He closed with an eloquent appeal to individual and congregational exertion in carrying out the commission of the text.

Rev. Principal Grant lectures in St. Paul's this evening on National Unity.

THE SOCIAL WING.

Visit of Salvationists to the Local Corps—Some Good Music.

There was a big time in the ranks of the local Salvation Army on Saturday and Sunday. The unusual stir was caused by the visit of "No. 2 Company of Musketeers" under command of Staff Capt. Bolton of the Prison Gate staff.

The organization with the military name has a brass band, and they rendered some good music on the marchouts and in the barracks. On Saturday evening a special "big go" was held at the Simcoe-st. barracks, and again yesterday afternoon and evening enthusiastic services were held.

Staff Capt. Bolton gave some practical pointers and interesting experiences which had come under his notice in connection with the Prison Gate homes and the social work of the Army.

Music galore was furnished at all the services, there being some talented musicians with the musketeers. The violin, trombone, euphonium, cornet, piano and guitar were all manipulated to Army airs. The meetings were of a lively, interesting character.

ANOTHER NEW INDUSTRY

THE MANUFACTURE OF PORCELAIN GOODS TO BE STARTED.

Extensive Additions Commenced at the Carbon Works—The Brooks Manufacturing Company Introducing a New Industry into Canada.

Workmen are now engaged making extensive additions to the works of the Brooks Manufacturing Company or the carbon factory. These additions are being erected to furnish accommodation for an entirely new manufacture which the company intends to introduce. It is the manufacture of porcelain electrical appliances and hardware trimmings, a line of goods which are not made in Canada to-day but are imported in large quantities from the States. In fact the Lock Manufacturing Company here imports the hardware trimmings such as door knobs, fancy knobs, etc., to the extent of some ten thousands dollars worth each year. With the new manufactory at the Carbon works the company will be supplied at home, while all the Canadian trade can purchase an equally good article for less money than they can at present by importing from the United States and make up the hardware goods on this side of the line.

The additions which have been commenced will be two storeys in height. On the east side of the works the excavations for the foundations are now being taken out, while two large kilns have also been dug and are now being filled in with stone mason work to give a good fire-proof bottom. The eastern addition will comprise a kiln room 60x44 feet, and another manufacturing room 58x48 feet. The walls of the kiln room will enclose the two kilns which have already been excavated. These kilns are 16 feet in diameter, 18 feet in length and will furnish capacity for turning out over 90,000 pieces a week, taking door knobs as the basis of calculation.

On the western side of the works will be two additions, one 30x30 feet and the other 23x16 feet. The first of these will be the pug mill and the other the sagger mill where the porcelain will be prepared for baking in the kilns.

Mr. C. H. Kimble, of New Jersey, a gentleman who has had years of experience in the manufacture of the ware, is here superintending the building operations and will have charge of the new addition when it is in operation.

The manufacture of porcelain goods such as are used in hardware trimmings has been successfully carried on by Mr. Kimble and his brother in New Jersey and there is no doubt that with the additional demand for the electrical appliances and with the Dominion as a market the venture here will also prove a success. The electrical appliances which will be made are porcelain switches and cut-offs. These are now required by the Underwriters' Association to be placed in buildings or stores lighted by electricity and the demand for them has therefore greatly multiplied.

Mr. Taylor has already a large order for goods, while he will, as already stated, have the local trade of the lock works.

The clay for the manufacture of the porcelain goods will have to be brought from the other side. The principal clay is procured in Maryland, while some English clay is also used. The plant for the manufacture comprises considerable machinery which will all be purchased and brought from Trenton, N.J.

It will probably take about three months to complete the buildings and get the plant in position ready for beginning operations, as the works will be pushed ahead with all possible speed.

Mr. Kimble, who, by his experience in the States, knows the demands of the Canadian market, is confident that the company will have plenty of work in supplying the trade in the Dominion, as they will be able to compete with their American competitors by reason of the protective tariff.

The new industry at the start will probably employ some thirty or thirty-five hands, but this will be increased as the trade is secured.

Incidentally it might be remarked here that a further addition will have to be made before the end of the year to the carbon works. The company are now manufacturing a good carbon and are supplying about two-thirds of the Canadian trade.

Dr. Davies' Concert.

The announcement will be received with pleasure that Dr. Davies, organist and choirmaster of St. John's, will give an evening concert in the Opera House on Thursday, May 28th, on which occasion he will be assisted by a choir of forty voices and by a number of lady pupils of the past season, including Miss Edith Hall, Miss Nellie Wrighton, Miss Ethel Rogers, Miss Davidson, Mrs. J. E. McIntyre and Mrs. W. J. Morrow. Mr. Thos. Dunn will also sing and Mr. J. Churchill Arlidge, the popular flautist, will contribute solos. The accompanists will be Mr. Fred Clarke and Dr. Davies. It may be mentioned that the large chorus have been in training for some time and that the part songs and choruses will be rendered with a very high degree of precision and exceptionable ability. Full particulars will be given by posters and programmes. Rehearsal at St. John's school house this evening at 8 o'clock.

Brevities

—The Town Council meets to-night.

—The Finance Committee of the Town Council will meet at 7 o'clock this evening prior to the Council meeting.

-The Patrons of Industry held a meeting in the Council Chamber on Saturday afternoon. The proceedings of course were secret.

Prompt Settlement.

PETERBOROUGH, Ont., May 18th, 1891.

C. McGill, Esq., Agent Phœnix Fire Insurance Co.:

DEAR SIR,—I was very agreeably surprised this morning when you advised me that you had received a cheque for $2 000 00 the amount in full of insurance which we held against the implements destroyed at the fire on the morning of the 8th, which we had stored in what was known as the old mill, and would avail myself of this opportunity to thank the inspector for the fair and business like manner that he adjusted the valuation, and I certainly think that your company has been extra prompt, in so soon paying over the amount of loss.

Don't You Think So?

It's all very well to be jolly
  When everything's going just right;
When, in summer skies, showing no hint of
  A shadow, the sun's shining bright;
When around you your merry friends cluster
  With many a laugh-bringing jest,
And wherever you turn you discover
  The world in its gala robes dressed.
But ah! 'tis sublime to be jolly
  When mirth-loving spirits have fled,
When your path is in gloominess shrouded,
  And the tempest bursts over your head;
When fainter hearts beg you to cheer them,
  Though your own heart be lonely and drear;
And you scarce can help doubting if ever
  The darkness will quite disappear.
The bird that sings sweetly when golden
  The earth is, and gentle the wind,
When the bees hum content o'er the honey
  That, hid in the flowers they find,
When, vying in beauty and fragrance,
  Red roses and white lilies grow,
And butterflies, splendid in raiment,
  Through their airy realm flit to and fro,
Is a dear little songster; but dearer
  Is the bird that its joy giving strain
Undaunted trills loudly and gayly
  In spite of the chill and the rain.
For that to be jolly 'tis easy
  In sunshine there isn't a doubt,
But ah! 'tis sublime to be jolly
  When there's naught to be jolly about.

—Margaret Eytinge.

SHALL HE WED HER?

When I met Taylor at the Club the other night, he looked so cheerful I scarcely knew him.

"What is it?" cried I, advancing with outstretched hand.

"I am going to be married," was his gay reply. "This is my last night at the Club."

I was glad, and showed it. Taylor is a man for whom domestic life is a necessity. He has never been at home with us, though we all liked him, and he in his way liked us.

"And who is the fortunate lady?" I inquired; for I had been out of town for some time, and had not as yet been made acquainted with the latest society news.

"My intended bride is Mrs. Walworth, the young widow"——

He must have seen a change take place in my expression, for he stopped.

"You know her, of course," he added, after a careful study of my face.

I had by this time regained my self-possession.

"Of course," I repeated, "and I have always thought her one of the most attractive women in the city. Another shake upon it, old man?"

But my heart was heavy and my mind perplexed notwithstanding the forced cordiality of my tones, and I took an early opportunity to withdraw by myself and think over the situation.

Mrs. Walworth! She was a pretty woman, and what was more, she was to all appearances a woman whose winning manners bespoke a kindly heart. "Just the person," I contemplated, "whom I would pick out for a helpmate of my somewhat exacting friend, if—" I paused on that if. It was a formidable one and grew none the smaller or less important under my broodings. Indeed, it seemed to dilate until it assumed gigantic proportions, worrying me and weighing so heavily upon my conscience that I at last rose from the newspaper at which I had been hopelessly staring, and looking up Taylor again asked him how soon he expected to become a benedict.

His answer startled me. "In a week," he replied, and if I have not asked you to the ceremony it is because Helen is not in a position to"—

I supposed he finished the sentence, but I did not hear him. If the marriage was so near, of course it would be folly on my part to attempt to hinder it. I drew off for the second time.

But I could not remain easy. Taylor is a good fellow and it would be a shame to allow him to marry a woman with whom he could never be happy. He would feel any such disappointment so keenly, so much more keenly than most men. A lack of principle or even of sensibility on her part would make him miserable. Anticipating heaven, it would not take a hell to make him wretched, a purgatory would do it. Was I right then in letting him proceed in his intentions regarding Mrs. Walworth, when she possibly was the woman who——. I paused and tried to call up her countenance before me. It was a sweet one and possibly a true one. I might have trusted her for myself, but I do not look for perfection, and Taylor does, and will certainly go to the bad if he is deceived in his expectations. But in a week! It is too late for interference—only it is never too late till the knot is tied. As I thought of this, I decided impulsively, and perhaps you may say unwisely, to give him a hint of his danger; and I did it in this wise.

"Taylor," said I, when I had him safely in my own room, "I am going to tell you a bit of personal history, curious enough, I think, to interest you even upon the eve of your marriage. I do not know when I shall see you again, and I should like you to know how a lawyer and man of the world can sometimes be taken in."

He nodded, accepting the situation good-humoredly, though I saw by the abstraction with which he gazed into the fire that I should have to be very interesting to lure him from the thoughts that engrossed him. As I meant to be very interesting, this did not greatly concern me.

"One morning last Spring," I began, "I received in my morning mail a letter, the delicate penmanship of which at once attracted my attention and awakened my curiosity. Turning to the signature, I read the name of a young lady friend of mine, and somewhat startled at the thought that this was the first time I had ever seen the handwriting of one I knew so well, I perused the letter with an interest that presently became painful as I realized the tenor of its contents. I will not quote the letter, though I could, but confine myself to saying that after a modest recognition of my friendship for her, quite a fatherly friendship, I assure you, as she was only eighteen, and I, as you know, am well on towards fifty—she proceeded to ask in an humble and confiding spirit for the loan—do not start—of $50. Such a request coming from a young girl well connected and with every visible sign of being generously provided for by her father, was certainly startling to an old bachelor of settled ways and strict notions, but remembering her youth and the childish innocence of her manner, I turned over the page and read as her reason for proffering such a request, that her heart was set upon aiding a certain poor family that stood in immediate need of food, clothes and medicines, but that she could not do what she wished, because she had already spent all the money allowed her by her father for such purposes, and dared not go to him for more, as she had once before offended him by doing this, and feared if she repeated her fault he would carry out the threat he had then made of stopping her allowance altogether. But the family was a deserving one and she could not see any member of it starve, so she came to me, of whose goodness she was assured, convinced I would understand her perplexity and excuse her, and so forth and so forth, in language quite childlike and entreating, which, if it did not satisfy my ideas of propriety, at least touched my heart and made any action which I could take in the matter extremely difficult.

"To refuse her request would be at once to mortify and aggrieve her; to accede to it and give her the $50 she asked—a sum by the way I could not well spare—would be to encourage an action easily pardoned once, but which if repeated would lead to unpleasant complications to say the least. The third course of informing her father of what she needed I did not even consider, for I knew him well enough to be sure that nothing but pain to her would be the result. I therefore compromised the affair by inclosing the money in a letter, in which I told her that I comprehended her difficulty and sent with pleasure the amount she needed, but that as a friend I must add that while in the present instance she had run no risk of being misunderstood or unkindly censured, that such a request made to another man and under other circumstances might provoke a surprise capable of leading to the most unpleasant consequences, and advised her if she ever again found herself in such a strait to appeal directly to her father, or else to deny herself a charity which she was in no position to bestow.

"This letter I undertook to deliver myself, for one of the curious points of her communication had been the entreaty that I would not delay the help she needed by trusting the money to any hand but my own, but would bring it to a certain hotel down town and place it at the beginning of the book of Isaiah in the large Bible I would find lying on a side table in the small parlor off the main one. She would seek it there before the morning was over, and so, without the intervention of a third party, acquire the means she desired for helping a poor and deserving family.

"I knew the hotel she mentioned and I remembered the room, but I did not remember the Bible. However, it was sure to be in the place she indicated, and though I was not in much sympathy with my errand I respected her whim and carried the letter down town. I had reached [illegible] and was in sight of the hotel designated when suddenly on the opposite corner of the street I saw the young girl herself. She looked as fresh as the morning and smiled so gayly I felt somewhat repaid for the annoyance she had caused me, and gratified that I could cut matters short by putting the letter directly in her hand, I crossed the street to her side. As soon as we were face to face, I said:

"How fortunate I am to meet you. Here is the amount you need sealed up in this letter. You see I had it all ready."

"The face she lifted to mine wore so blank a look that I paused, astonished.

"What do you mean?" she asked, her eyes looking straight into mine with such innocence in their clear blue depths, I was at once convinced she knew nothing of the matter with which my thoughts were busy. "I am very glad to see you, but I do not in the least understand what you mean by the amount I need." And she glanced at the letter I held out with an air of distrust mingled with curiosity.

AUSTRALIAN FEDERATION.

Outline of the Constitution to Be Submitted to the People for Ratification.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 18.—The steamship Alameda brought advices regarding the Australian federation convention, which concluded its sittings April 9, having prepared the draft of a constitution for the proposed federation, which will be submitted to the people of the colonies for their approval. As soon as three colonies have accepted the constitution as it stands, for they cannot amend it, the bill will be sent to England for the assent of the Imperial Parliament, and if ratified the Queen will by proclamation appoint a day when the commonwealth of Australia is to be established and will also appoint a Governor-General. On his arrival in the colonies the usual constitutional process of forming a ministry will be gone through and a Parliament will be elected. The salient points of the constitution are as follows: The federation shall be known as the Commonwealth of Australia, and the colonies are to be called states. The legislature is to consist of a Senate and House of Representatives to be called Parliament. The Governor-General is to be appointed by the Queen, and shall receive a salary of not less than £10,000. Members of Parliament, before taking their seats, are to take oath or affirmation of allegiance to the Queen. Parliaments are to be held as appointed by the Governor, but there is to be a session of Parliament at least once every year, so that 12 months shall not intervene between two sittings of Parliament.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

THE ESTIMATES FOR THE PRESENT YEAR.

Some Increases and a Few Decreases—Both the Leaders Resume Their Places in the House and Their Appearance is the Signal for Cheers.

OTTAWA, May 18.—Another short and uneventful session of two hours and a half, the most marked feature of which was the reappearance in the House of the two leaders, both of whom were greeted with applause by both sides of the House. Mr. Laurier only stayed a short time, and in the absence of Sir Richard Cartwright Mr. Mills acted as leader. Sir John remained until the adjournment at 5.30. He looked better than he has for some time past. The Opposition greeted his appearance very warmly, amongst the most hearty applause being that of Hon. Alexander Mackenzie.

Before the orders of the day were called Mr. Davies asked if Mr. Tupper intended to introduce the bill which stands on the order paper in his name with reference to the safety of ships, and which relates to the load line adopted by the Imperial Act.

Mr. Tupper said that although the Imperial Act came into force on June 6 intimation had been given by Imperial authorities that it would not be put into operation against Canada until October.

In reply to Mr. Somerville Mr. Tupper stated that the Government had contracted with the Polson Iron Company for a new steel steamer for $40,000 for fishery protection on Georgian Bay. The company is to be paid $31,000 in cash and take the "Cruiser" at $9000, which is about what she cost the Government.

Sir Adolphe Caron stated in reply to Col. Denison that the Government was considering the question of establishing a cavalry school at Toronto.

A small discussion sprung up on Mr. Tupper's motion for the third reading of bill reviving the modus vivendi, and for a moment it looked as if there might be a discussion, but the bill was passed after a few remarks by Messrs. Davies, Tupper, Mills and Sir John Thompson.

His Excellency provided the House with two messages to-day. One transmitting copy of the despatch from the home Government acknowledging the receipt of the loyal address passed by Parliament last year, and the other submitting the estimates. Amongst the items in the latter interesting to Toronto are $40,000 for the Toronto Drill Hall and $75,000 for work at the eastern entrance to the harbor.

A London Military Question.

The new member for London, Mr. Hyman, made his first effort in the House to-day in the form of a practical speech on a matter of considerable importance to the Forest City. He spoke fluently and confidently upon the subject of the camp of militia for the district, and was listened to with attention and respect as he discussed the Government's policy of rewards and punishments. He moved for an order for a copy of all correspondence papers and reports in possession of the Government relating to the locality for holding the camp of Militia District No. 1 for the years 1890 and 1891. He contended that the fact of a camp being held in any other place than London was an injustice to that city. He told how in 1884 or 1885 he was a member of a deputation that came from the city of London and endeavored to make an arrangement by which a military school should be established in London. The result was an arrangement that the city should purchase certain property known as the Carling Farm, and that the Government should give in return certain ordnance lands which they had in the city, presumably of the same value as the Carling Farm. During the negotiations a question came up in regard to the number of acres which should be acquired for military-school purposes, and also for camping purposes, and it was agreed that the ground should be used for the two kinds of work for District No. 1. The officers in that district had had many conversations on the subject, and they had always felt that London was the proper place for the camp, and in addition to this there was a question of stores, which were all in the city of London, for the stores had to be transferred to whatever part of the district the camp might be held in. In 1890 the camp was taken to the city of Stratford as a political bribe, but unfortunately for the Government it was not successful. The House was tickled by this reference to Mr. Grieves' election for North Bruce and cheered Mr. Hyman heartily as he continued: "We have in the House at the present moment a gentleman who is not entirely in accord with the policy of the Government. I understand that the Government are changing their intentions somewhat this year, and instead of a political bribe it is going to be a sort of punishment and a sort of reward." The camp, he went on, was going to be taken to St. Thomas, and this as a punishment to the City of London for returning a member who was not in accord with the Government. [Cheers.] His sole object in bringing this matter forward was that the Government might find that the representations that had been made by officers in high command were so strong that they would hesitate in doing that which while it might bring a certain small amount of political influence would be decidedly against the interests of district No. 1.

Sir Adolph Caron said he feared the hon. gentleman misapprehended the question completely. There was no doubt that the exchange referred was made. The Department of Militia required a certain quantity of land for drilling purposes, and he thought the history of the past sufficiently indicated that London was considered to be an important place and one where camps should be held. London, during the years at least since he had been head of the department, had had the camp off and on more frequently than any other locality in Ontario. There was no objection whatever to the papers being brought down, but when he looked the papers over the hon. gentleman would find that he was completely mistaken as to the condition upon which the exchange of property took place in the City of London.

The Tarte-McGreevy Papers.

Mr. Edgar asked Sir Hector Langevin when the papers orders by the Committee on Elections and Privileges might be expected. The order had been made that the documents required might be immediately brought in charge of an officer of the department to the committee room that they might there be examined by members of the committee. They had not yet been produced, and enquiry at the Public Works Department had been answered that it could not be anticipated when they would be ready. He hoped the committee would not be delayed because the documents were not promptly brought down.

Sir Hector replied that the papers called for extended over a long number of years, and the classification of them took considerable time. He had also given orders that a statement of the papers be made to prevent the loss or misplacement of any of them. The matter was being attended to as expeditiously as it was possible to proceed.

Mr. Edgar asked if the papers as they were ready could not be furnished, and the Minister repeated that they would be furnished as rapidly as possible.

The High Commissioner.

This question was asked by Mr. Brodeur to-day: Whether it is the intention of the Government to dismiss those public employed who took an active part in politics during the last Dominion elections and who were guilty of insulting their political opponents?

The Premier's reply was that when complaint is made a strict investigation will be made.

OTTAWA, May 18.—A deputation from the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress, consisting of Messrs. Lafontaine and Jobin of Montreal, Armstrong and Dower of Toronto, and others had an interview with Sir John and the Ministers of Customs and Agriculture this afternoon. The deputation was introduced by Messrs. Ingram and Lepine and accompanied by Messrs. McKay, Ryckman, Sproule and other members. Mr. Lafontaine acted as spokesman and asked for legislation on several questions, including Chinese immigration and the prevention of other undesirable immigration, and the abolition of all assistance to immigrants. He urged an examination of persons running stationary engines and wanted the license for cigar manufacture reduced from $7.50 to $6 as a prevention of monopoly. He touched on the combines bill, and asked that care be taken that it did not interfere with trades unions.

Sir John received the deputation very kindly and made a pleasant little speech, in which he pointed out that most of the things asked for had been already granted or were incorporated in bills now before the House, and assured the deputation of the desire of the Government to meet the wishes of the workingmen as far as possible.

Hail the Size of Hens' Eggs.

THE GHOULS CAPTURED.

THE MEN WHO ROBBED MR. PURCELL'S GRAVE CAUGHT.

They Prove to be Two Penitentiary Birds Who Recently Were Released—Strong Case Against the Accused—Where is the Body Secreted?

CORNWALL, May 18.—The excitement in connection with the stealing of the body of the late P. Purcell, M.P., from his grave in Flannigan's Point graveyard is in no way abated, and the developments of the last couple of days lead to the belief that the perpetrators of this ghoulish outrage will speedily be brought to justice. Detective Grose of the Montreal service has the case in hand and this morning had two warrants issued for the arrest of Norman Deroche and John James Craig, two well-known characters recently released from the penitentiary.

On Saturday evening the watchers discovered a body and attempted to raise it, but failed. They went for assistance, but on their return found the body had disappeared. On Sunday morning Messrs. Milden and McDonald visited the Channel Island, where they found a shovel, which was covered with clay of the same nature of that of the graveyard. A quantity of lime and a lot of egg shells were also found, and it is supposed the body snatchers had breakfasted there. The lime was no doubt used to kill the stench of the decomposed body.

Deroche was taken into custody to-day, but Craig is missing. The officers claim to have strong evidence against the accused.

GREAT STRIKE PROMISED.

British Labor Leaders Preparing for a Gigantic Conflict.

LIVERPOOL, May 18.—It is said that movements have been concerted privately with labor leaders in different parts of the Kingdom for a gigantic labor conflict. The strikes are not to be confined to any particular locality, but all the great seaports and labor centres are to be the scenes of the uprising. The specific statement is made that the dock laborers' unions are secretly making great efforts to bring about the proposed struggle, and that the men are acting in concert with their brethren in London, Hull and Glasgow.

The time fixed for the demonstration is the period when the full tide of summer migration is at its height, the shipping trade most active, and the call for labor most imperative. At the present time the shipping trade is fairly busy and labor is in good demand at the docks. While the strike has not yet taken place, meetings were held during the past week to consider the grievances under which the men still labor.

THE CAT-O'-NINE-TAILS.

Christening a New Post and Pillory at Newcastle.

NEWCASTLE, Del., May 18.—Four hundred people crowded into the Newcastle jail yard to-day and saw Sheriff Simmons apply the lash with unusual severity. So eager was the crowd to get a good view of the ten victims that a rope had to be stretched around the whipping-post and pillory. The post and pillory are entirely new, and to-day were used for the first time. The vagrant stonebreakers had a holiday.

An incident of the proceedings was the apparent misery of Andrew Jackson, an aged colored burglar of Delaware City, as the sheriff was applying twenty lashes. When the thirteenth lash had descended Andrew fell exhausted, and he was given a few moments to recover. He was all right after the punishment had been inflicted, but swore he would never return to the post. Samuel Sewell, a mulatto burglar, was painfully cut by the lash. He stood away from the post as the sheriff delivered the twenty lashes, and the long cat-o'-nine-tails wrapped around his body. His stomach as well as his back bore evidence of the whipping. The other victims stood the punishment heroically.

William H. Bradshaw, Alexander Wortenbury, Samuel Sewell and Andrew Jackson, all colored burglars, were given 20 lashes each and one hour in the pillory. For petty thefts Benjamin Caple and James Williams were given 10 lashes each; George Cummings, Frank Grooms and Andrew Reed five lashes each, and George Harman four lashes. The latter will be given three lashes on June 13 and three on July 10. Reed was the only white man on the list.

TOUCHED HIS HEART.

Wonderful Surgery That Saved a Life in Chicago.

CHICAGO, May 18.—Surgeons West and Boeffler have performed a difficult operation on Luke Branick at the County Hospital. It consisted in sewing up a knife-wound that penetrated the outer covering of the heart. Branick was brought to the hospital in almost a dying condition. Dr. Boeffler made an incision five inches long extending in the median line through the peritoneum. A gush of dark blood from the previous internal hemorrhage flowed from the incision. Silken sponges were placed between the intestines and the liver was pulled down and tied.

The surgeon followed the course of the knife. His finger was passed upwards and found an opening in the diaphragm. This settled the question of life and death with the nurses and attendants. The man may be dead. But Dr. West's finger passed on through the opening when he looked up in surprise and hastily withdrew his hand.

"This man is living. I touched his heart. I felt its pulsations," said he.

The opening into the diaphragm led into the pericardial cavity. The heart was fluttering and the patient was sinking rapidly. Hastily a suture was passed through the edges of the wound and the opening in the diaphragm was closed. An "M" shaped stick was put into the liver and the upper part of the abdominal cavity was sponged out. The abdominal incision was then closed with iodoform gauze and occlusive dressing. The man was still living and is still alive. The operation was performed a fortnight ago, and yesterday Branick was preparing to be removed to his home. He is 24 years old, unmarried, and an engineer by trade.

Ciphering on Daniel.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 18.—Rev. E. R. Carswell, a noted Baptist evangelist, after a careful revision of the calculations of Cummins concerning the prophecies of Daniel relative to the world's coming to an end, has placed the final overthrow of all things in the year 1891. He makes an ingenious and interesting calculation, and there is a ring of certainty in his predictions that has taken hold of a number of persons.

King of Medicines

A Cure "Almost Miraculous."

"When I was 14 years of age I had a severe attack of rheumatism, and after I recovered had to go on crutches. A year later, scrofula, in the form of white swellings, appeared on various parts of my body, and for 11 years I was an invalid, being confined to my bed 6 years. In that time ten or eleven sores appeared and broke, causing me great pain and suffering. I feared I never should get well.

"Early in 1886 I went to Chicago to visit a sister, but was confined to my bed most of the time I was there. In July I read a book, 'A Day with a Circus,' in which were statements of cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was so impressed with the success of this medicine that I decided to try it. To my great gratification the sores soon decreased, and I began to feel better and in a short time I was up and out of doors. I continued to take Hood's Sarsaparilla for about a year, when, having used six bottles, I had become so fully released from the disease that I went to work for the Flint & Walling Mfg. Co., and since then on account of sickness. I believe the disease is expelled from my system, I always feel well, am in good spirits and have a good appetite. I am now 27 years of age and can walk as well as any one, except that one limb is a little shorter than the other, owing to the loss of bone, and the sores formerly on my right leg. To my friends my recovery seems almost miraculous, and I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the king of medicines." WILLIAM A. LEHR, 9 N. Railroad St., Kendallville, Ind.

BRITONS, HOLD YOUR OWN

A PATRIOTIC LECTURE BY REV. PRINCIPAL GRANT.

The Importance of National Unity—Independence a Necessity for Freedom—Confederation Must be Preserved.

There was a large attendance at St. Paul's church last evening when Rev. Principal Grant delivered a lecture on "National Unity," under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the church. The lecture was a political (in the higher sense) or patriotic one, and the facts which he laid before his audience and the high objects he set before them to aim at were calculated to inspire a Canadian with more and warmer patriotic feeling. Rev. E. F. Torrance presided, and after a hymn had been sung and a solo given by the wonderful boy singer, Master Arlidge, he opened the meeting with Scripture reading and prayer.

NATIONAL UNITY.

Rev. Dr. GRANT began, after being introduced by the chairman, by saying that he purposed giving a talk and not a formal lecture. He had on a former occasion spoken of other self governing colonies and he thought he should now speak of a country dearer to them and of a feature of it which made it different from and a step in advance of the others, namely, political unification. Previous to 1867 Canada consisted of two provinces unequally yoked together. They escaped out of that condition by enlarging their horizon and the Dominion of Canada was born. That was the feature in which they were ahead of the other self governing colonies, although Australia was now engaged in taking that step. It was upon the importance of preserving this national unity that he wished to talk to them. Canada was so large that they did not know much about it and many knew little even of their own province. On this account they were apt to underrate the importance of the preservation of confederation. He had been told that some thought he would speak on imperial federation, and in view of this he would say that there was no inconsistency between the two subjects, but there was a close and cordial relation between being a Canadian and being a citizen of the British Empire. He used illustrations showing that there was no inconsistency in their being and in cherishing the fact that they were citizens of the Empire. He was a Canada First man and an Empire First man, and he believed the only way of having a Canadian nation for all time was by preserving British connection. No nation was independent if it existed on the sufferance of a greater nation, and that was a reason why he was an Imperial Federationist, by which he meant the present connection or any improvement on it. National independence was of such great importance that no price was too great to pay for it, for it was with a nation as it was with a man, it must be independent or nothing, and that which was the supreme dignity of manhood was of more importance in a nation. San Domingo was supposed to be independent, but when it did something the United States did not like it had to undo it to save itself from destruction. Mexico could hardly be called independent, for the United States took from it what territory it pleased. He did not desire to excite prejudice against the United States, for he desired that they should live in the warmest relations of friendship with that country. But the same fact was true of Portugal now, for that country felt that whether it was right or not it had to submit before the power of Britain. The point was that no country was independent that was not strong enough to assert its independence or occupied some international position that enabled it to maintain its independence. Other illustrations of this point were given by the lecturer, who pointed out that, while the United States was a Christian nation, Poland was plundered by Christian nations, and Mr. Seward proposed in writing to President Lincoln after his inauguration that they should cement their country by getting up a foreign war. It was a good thing that their neighbors should not be under too great a temptation, and any man who could see straight must see that Canada could not

REMAIN INDEPENDENT

if separated from Great Britain. In illustration of the strength derived from Britain the speaker referred to the Atlantic fisheries. The United States terminated the Washington treaty, and yet its fishermen expected to take for nothing something the value of which they had acknowledged by paying for it. And just for doing police duty on waters that were as much Canada's as the suburbs of Peterborough were theirs the United States was so much excited that, they were told on highest authority, they were within measurable distance of war. He did not like to mention war, he hated the thing, but there was something he hated more, and that was the intolerance of the strong, the weakness of money besotted and party besotted men, and national unrighteousness of all kinds. When he received a blow on one cheek he should turn the other, but he should not stand and see a woman or a child struck or be indifferent when the national life of his country was attacked. When he spoke of independence he meant something indispensable for free men. There were men—no, there were things that looked like men—who said that so long as they put money in their pockets nothing else counted. How such men would have laughed at William Wallace, and when they heard that he had been betrayed and executed they would serenely say "We told you so," and their only disappointment would be because they had not received the money that false Menteith got. Yet what Scotchman would exchange the name of Wallace for all the gold of Australia? It might be said that in the end Scotland united with England. So it did, and they were ready for union with the United States

ON THE SAME TERMS.

Let the United States accept their Queen, allow them to keep their own civil and criminal laws and parliamentary freedom, and take in the whole Empire as all Scotland was taken in, and they would agree. That would be something worth contending for and dying for. But the work incumbent on them was not to devise new schemes of Imperial Federation, but to strengthen Canadian unity and be on their guard against anything that would threaten it. He believed that Canada would grow more and more united and that the Empire would be strengthened. Their first work was to preserve and consolidate Canada, and that was a platform broad enough for all, even for those who believed that Canada should be independent of Britain. A man absorbed much from the nation and it was impossible for him to know how much he obtained from the nation. A man without a nation was as imperfect as a man without a conscience or some other essential part of him. The lecturer referred in eloquent terms to the patriotism of different peoples, ancient and modern; to the patriotism of the Psalmist, of Paul, and of Christ who wept over Jerusalem. They did not know how the unity of a country was valued until it was threatened. That was the case in the United States, and the tremendous difference was shown by the difference in the papers two or three years before the civil war and a year or two after. They laughed before the war when people talked of the flag, but afterwards it floated on every house and men were ready to die for it. Would Canadians be the only people in the world without patriotism? No, they had it, but they were not given to gush, and in that he agreed with them, for he did not like to talk about his deepest feelings. In their short history there had been occasions on which their patriotism had been proved. When the Northwest rebellion broke out, from Ontario, from Quebec, and from Nova Scotia, which was at first opposed to confederation, men went to suppress it. The Nova Scotians felt that and they were willing for their sons to go from there to the Saskatchewan. Their was more of this feeling than they acknowledged, but if there was need of showing it they would be ready to do so. Just in proportion to its importance were the difficulties that must be overcome by every nation in realizing its unity. There was no difficulty in collecting mud, but there was great difficulty in gathering gold. Nothing in this world was so precious as a great nation [illegible] cation and the [illegible] Germany, Italy and other countries illustrated this point, and on this continent the colonies that now formed the United States were independent of each other, and even the revolutionary war did not weld them together and Washington despaired. It was years before they accepted the constitution, and difficulty after difficulty arose and in 1860 culminated in the frightful war. Yet Canadians admired their spirit because notwithstanding the difficulties they determined to be united. And they had the solid south still. The difficulties were not so great here, because they were all British, and in that he included the French-Canadians, for they were politically British although they had a sentimental attachment to France, and they would not think much of them if they had not. There would be no difficulty in working with a people who had produced such statesmen as the French-Canadians had. They had a northern climate which would keep away southern people, such as negroes, who were not trained to self-government, and there would therefore be less difficulty. They would not grow so rapidly, but value was not ascertained by numbers. There were more living creatures in an anthill than in a family, but the anthill was not more valuable. If they had the right kind of people they need not be anxious about numbers. Their northern position would secure for them people from northern countries, who were people frugal, temperate and accustomed to self-government, and who would produce a fine stock that would bless themselves, their neighbors and the world. The best thing they could do for their neighbors was to remain independent and show them the difference in their marriage laws, Sabbath observance laws, Parliamentary constitution, judicial system and criminal procedure. On all these points they could benefit their neighbors more by maintaining them than by in a cowardly manner throwing them aside. Nations learned from each other and in time would come "the Parliament of man, the empire of the world." The nearest approach to that was the great Empire of which they formed a part. He knew Canada as few knew it. He had travelled over it all, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and so rich, so vast and of such great possibilities that he thought "Where's the coward who would not dare to fight for such a land?" People who would not make a country of such provinces were not worthy of the stock from which they had sprung. He had seen other countries, but had seen no people so industrious, economical and God-fearing as in their own land and in their mother country. He included the French of Quebec, and if they knew these people better they would admire them more. It was their duty to strengthen everything that made for the unity, peace, progress, culture and dignity of Canada. He said to everyone, and especially to the young men and women, Stand fast for your country always; let country be more than place or purse. Stand fast!

The rev. lecturer, who received the earnest attention of his audience throughout, was warmly applauded upon concluding.

A vote of thanks was moved by Mr. Peter Hamilton, seconded by Mr. R. Mulholland and supported by Rev. S. J. Shorey, each of whom endorsed the sentiments that had been expressed. The chairman added an acknowledgment of Principal Grant's services on Sunday and the motion was carried and briefly acknowledged. After another beautiful solo by Master Arlidge the National Anthem was sung and the audience dismissed with the benediction.

Let the Aged Read and Rejoice.

A medical writer of note says: "When we advance in years, the bones harden, the muscles become stiff, the cartilages are converted into bones, the membranes into cartilages, the stomach and bowels lose their tone, and the whole fabric, instead of being soft, flexible, and obedient to the inclinations, or even the commands of the mind, becomes rigid, inactive and feeble."

Paine's Celery Compound has done much for the old. It has given them renewed feelings of activity, and taken away the rigidness and stiffness of old age, and lent great elasticity and flexibility to every muscle. It strengthens the nervous system, and is a reorganizer of the digestive organism, keeping it in perfect and harmonious working. We know of hundreds of aged men and women in Canada, who have renewed life, and have added years to it from the use of Paine's Celery Compound.

BUY NOW IF AT ALL.

EVERY day makes more apparent the fact that the town is going ahead rapidly. Numerous changes have taken place in the way of the ownership of property. Many workingmen are buying houses and lots or lots on which to build. One of the most suitable locations is that known as the Erie property, at the west end, owned largely by Mr. Wm. Fitzgerald. This week he has closed the sale of a very desirable new house and lot, and has several eligible lots on this property to dispose of. Property in this neighbourhood is rapidly being built up, and it will be well to have a look at the situation if one is at all disposed to buy. The terms are very favorable and especially low for cash, though payment on time may be arranged.

CASH HARDWARE STORE.

On and after 1st April we shall do business on a Cash Basis.

To cover the inevitable losses attendant upon a credit business, which accrue from amount of time spent in keeping accounts, collecting, bad debts, interest account, and in numerous other ways, larger margins of profit must be asked.

In these times cash buyers ask, expect and are entitled to close prices. A careful consideration of the subject convinces us that the time has come for a cash business done on smaller profits.

The only customers who may be put to inconvenience are those who have had long credit. In more ways than one it will be to their advantage to pay cash.

For convenience of our old customers who consider their accounts due when presented, we will call 10 days each and render all accounts the first of each month, and we wish to say that we will be happy to do business with them on these terms.

As the new departure is something of an experiment, what would be considered a close cash price will be made all through the stock. Not a few leaders only, but a general reduction in everything from the fourth flat to the cellar.

Our idea is to perform more than promised rather than promise more than can be fulfilled.

Our stock is large and varied, consisting of Builders', Contractors', Household, Machinists', Painters', Shoemakers', Farm, Mill, Factory, Lumbermen's, Sporting, Threshers', Cabinetmakers', and other lines of Hardware.

A Warning to the Boys.

A young lad spent several hours in the police cells last night for setting off fire-crackers on the public street. Three Months for Reflection.

Frank Stevens, an able-bodied man of about thirty years, made wild threats at a residence in the south end of the town yesterday evening when demanding admittance. Later he was arrested very drunk and at the police court this morning he was charged with vagrancy and was given three months in gaol. He said he came from Connecticut.

Set a Man Trap.

A peculiar assault case came up in the Police Court this morning. Joe Butler, a young lad, was charged with assaulting "Bony" Green, son of Mr. John Green. It appears that the boys were playing in Mr. Terrence Smith's barn and in the barn was a trap door. Butler and a companion covered this trap door with hay and planned to catch young Green. The latter was caught and fell through the trap and nearly broke his neck. The Magistrate enlarged the case, with the understanding that Joe Butler is to be chastised in the meantime.

Opening Trade With Jamaica.

Readers of the REVIEW will remember seeing a reference to the handsome and extensive exhibit which the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company forwarded to the Jamaica Exhibition. That piece of enterprise is not to go unrewarded for present indications would point to the establishment of a good trade with the island of the West Indies. The Lock Company have already received quite an extensive order from the firm of Hailey & Greaville, of Kingston, Jamaica, and are shipping the goods to-day. In the letter accompanying the order the firm foreshadow that this order is but the commencement of a good trade with Jamaica. The goods manufactured by the Lock Company are sure to commend themselves and their entry is all that is required to establish the trade.

THE GRANT TO THE SOLDIERS.

Lieut.-Col. J. Z. Rogers, Capt. Miller and Lieut. Matthews were in the audience gallery as a deputation from the 57th Battalion to press their application for a grant to assist in defraying the expenses of entertaining the Governor-General's Foot Guards on their visit on the 24th of May.

Lieut.-Col. ROGERS briefly addressed the Council stating that the visitors would arrive here at night and leave at night and the 57th battalion would have to pitch the tents. The electric light would also have to be carried to the camp grounds and the expenses would be heavy. There would be no ball or supper, remarked the Colonel with a smile, as some of the Councillors were beginning to fire questions.

Capt. MILLER supported the remarks of Lt. Col. Rogers, speaking of the good results which followed these visits and of the hospitality which was always extended by the entertaining town. He thought they might make a grant to assist in paying expenses.

Councillor DENNISTOUN moved, seconded by Councillor WINCH,—That the sum of $150 be granted to Lt. Col. Rogers and the officers of the 57th Battalion for the purpose of preparing the camp ground and meeting their necessary expenses in connection with the visit of the Governor General's Foot Guards on May 24th. In speaking to his motion Councillor Dennistoun said from the experience last year the sum named would not pay actual necessary expenses. He was open to the charge of being interested and admitted that he was interested both as an officer of the Battalion and a Councillor of the town. The sum was really too small, but the demands on the town had been heavy recently and they would be satisfied with $150. Last year the officers, after their grant of $200, had to pay some of the expenses out of their own pockets.

Councillor CAHILL suggested that a proviso be put in that Ashburnham grant $50.

Councillor MOORE supported this suggestion and did not want it to go abroad that such grants would be made every year. He moved that the resolution be referred to the Finance Committee with power to act.

Councillor KENDRY thought the whole Council could deal with it better than the Finance Committee.

Councillor CAHILL wanted Ashburnham to pay a little too and seconded the resolution that the matter be referred to the Finance Committee.

Councillor LANGFORD said at the last meeting of the Council the Reeve of Ashburnham had himself asked for a grant for a railway and Councillor Moore had not suggested that Ashburnham make a grant then. He thought the people would favor the grant, and he wanted the matter dealt with by the whole Council and not by the Finance Committee.

Councillor DAWSON thought Ashburnham should assist.

Councillor DENNISTOUN desired to answer objections and stated that Peterborough would obtain every cent's worth of advantage. The camp was in the village, but the men were all billeted at the town hotels.

Councillor MELDRUM said he would support the resolution, as he believed the volunteers' visit was in the town's interest.

Councillor HALL thought $100 would be sufficient for the town and Ashburnham should give the other $50.

The amendment referring the matter to the Finance Committee was finally withdrawn and the motion making the grant was carried.

READY TO CONFER.

To the Mayor and Town Council:

1. That the Italian peanut vendor at the corner of George and Hunter-sts. be permitted to occupy the present stand until the first day of October, 1891, and no longer.

3. That three fountains similar to that in front of the police station, be purchased.
4. That 200 feet of sidewalk be laid on Cross-st. at a cost of about $40.
5. That a sidewalk be laid on the south side of Charlotte-st from Aylmer to Bethune-st.
6. That Murray-st be graded from Donegal to Park-st.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

WM. LANGFORD,
Chairman.

Amendments to strike out the first and fourth clauses were defeated and the original report carried.

EXEMPTION FOR TEN YEARS.

Councillor HALL introduced a by-law exempting the establishment of Messrs. Reid, Gilmour & Co., the new confectionery manufacturers, from taxation for ten years, according to the agreement that the firm employ twenty or more hands at the start. The by-law called for an annual statutory declaration of the number of hands employed.

The by-law was given its readings, passed and numbered.

THOSE ADDITIONAL LIGHTS AGAIN.

Councillor MELDRUM moved, seconded by Councillor DAWSON,—That the Fire, Water and Light Committee be instructed to carry out the resolution of this Council in regard to the additional electric lights.

Councillor MOORE reviewed the hard fight which marked the passage of the resolution ordering 27 additional electric lights and said he was told that the reason the Electric Company had not placed up their lights was because some member of the Town Council had gone to the company and told them not to take any notice of the resolution.

Councillor CAHILL said the resolution had no force, as the duty of carrying out of the resolution devolved wholly upon the Electric Light and Power Company.

Councillor KENDRY agreed with this, and said it now rested with the company to put in these lights.

THE COMPANY'S POSITION.

Mr. A. STEVENSON, Managing Director of the company, after some further discussion, was heard. He said resolutions had been passed by the Council and rescinded again. The company were anxious to go on with the work, but were told that some change would be made in the location of the lights and they expected some further instructions from the Council. Besides this the company had exhausted its dynamo power and would have to lease increased power, get new dynamos and a large amount of new wire. This would entail a large expenditure and the company desired to have an agreement for a lease for a term of years to prevent loss to the company.

Considerable discussion followed and some of the ground covered in the old discussion was traversed again.

Councillor CAHILL wanted arrangements made with the company to have the lights burn all night.

Councillor MELDRUM said the resolution had answered its purpose and he would withdraw it if the Chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee inquire and report as to the arrangements that could be made with the company.

OTHER MATTERS.

Councillor BRADBURN allowed this notice of motion re the G. T. R. to stand over until next meeting.

Councillor KENDRY moved that the Committee on Supervision of Public be authorized to purchase summer clothing for the police. This was allowed to stand as a notice of motion.

Councillor CAHILL moved, seconded by Councillor DAVIDSON,—That the Fire, Water and Light Committee be instructed to advertise for tenders for excavating for the water pipes to the Edison Works, the work to be proceeded with at once.—Carried.

NO MARKED DISCOURTESY.

Councillor MOORE made an enquiry in regard to a resolution passed at the last meeting asking the Nicholls Hospital Board to confer with the Committee of the Town Council. He understood that Chairman of that Committee had not been met with that courtesy which was due him, the Board refusing to meet.

Councillor BRADBURN as chairman of the committee explained that he had asked Mr. McGill to call a meeting and he said he would. No meeting had been called, he said, although he had presented his request several times. The secretary had told him that he could not get the Board together.

Councillor KENDRY said as a member of the Board he might state that he had never received a notice of the meeting.

The matter dropped here and the Council adjourned.

A GEORGE-ST. FIRE.

The Flames Make a Fierce Attack at a Block of Stores From the Rear—The Firemen Check Their Speed.

A few minutes after four o'clock yesterday evening the fire brigade was called out to a warm encounter with a fire which was discovered in the sheds in rear of the blocks on the east side of George-st. occupied by Mr. John Craig, confectioner, and Mrs. Ross, fancy goods.

When the fire was discovered the sheds in rear of Mrs. Ross' establishment and Mr. Craig's were completely enveloped in flames. The alarm was slow in being sent to the Central station and when it was sounded a delay of several minutes was caused by the absence from the fire station of the fire teams, which were out on the street watering carts. This delay gave the flames a fearful chance to spread and the long row of old wooden buildings in rear of the stores were ready food for them. The firemen were on hand promptly, but the delay in getting the hose to the scene of the conflagration handicapped them in the start. When the waggon and reel arrived it looked bad for the George-st. block. The sheds in the rear were a roaring mass and the flames had jumped skywards and found food in the back doors and windows of the block. Every rear window and door and the eaves of the block were burning. But the firemen were not slow. In a short time six streams were brought to bear upon the fire, two from the Water-st. hydrant in the rear and four from George-st. hydrants in front. Once this deluge of water was poured on the flames the struggle was a short one, and in less than five minutes

THE FIRE WAS UNDER CONTROL.

The men worked well. The fire was attacked from the right points and kept from gaining an entrance into any of the stores or rooms in the two storeys above.

The stores which were threatened were Messrs. Foot & McWhinnie's boots and shoes, Mr. Bates' confectionery, Mrs. Ross' fancy goods, Mr. John Craig's confectionery and Miss Jenkins' fancy goods. The sheds in rear of these premises were close to the buildings and the fire burned in some cases through the back doors but no further, being checked there. The smoke in the shops was dense and with water will do considerable damage. The sheds in rear of Miss Sanderson's fancy store and Mr. Newton's furniture shop were also destroyed, while the brick stable of the Commercial hotel which stood close to the burning buildings was also damaged.

The origin of the fire is unknown, but for a blaze to gain such headway in the heart of the business portion of the town in the day time was remarkable. It was first noticed by one of the employees in Mr. Craig's store who went to the back door to throw out some wash water and discovered that the neighboring sheds were in a blaze.

The delay which followed owing to the absence of the horses from the fire station was generally commented upon by citizens. The firemen were not to blame, for when they got their hose they made an effective fight and won a decisive victory. The team which draws the hose waggon was at the stand pipe on McDonnell-st. with the watering cart and "Terry" Smith could not hear the bell. The other team which drew the waggon was near the C. P. R. station with the other watering cart and arrived at the fire hall as soon as possible. There is no doubt that one team should be in the stables or close at hand, not above Brock or below Charlott-st. all the time, so that a quick turnout can be made at any time. This seems to have been the understanding and in future it will be strictly adhered to. It should be, for valuable property may be destroyed during another wait such as yesterday.

The blocks in which Mr. Bates and Mrs. Ross were is owned by Mr. Thos. Bradburn, while the block to the north is the property of Mrs. Birdsall. Both the blocks were insured and all loss will be covered.

The losses of the tenants of the two blocks cannot be closely estimated at present. Mrs. Ross will be the heaviest loser, her fine stock of fancy goods being badly damaged by the smoke. Her loss is estimated at $[illegible], which is covered by insurance. Messrs. Foot & McWhinnie suffered from smoke and in the rear workshop from water. They put their loss at about $[illegible], which is also covered by insurance. Mr. John Craig's stock and furniture was damaged by smoke and water to the extent, he thinks, of $[illegible]. He had considerable stock stored in his sheds. He is insured. Bates Bros. put their loss at about $100, while the "Y," whose rooms were above Mr. Craig's, will lose considerable, their piano being badly scorched. Miss Lumsden, who occupied rooms in this block, Miss Jenkins, Mr. Fanning, of the Commercial hotel, whose barn was damaged, Miss Sanderson and Mr. Newton will suffer small losses on what they had in their sheds.

A Bit of Philosophy.

Live within your income. How to do this is the vital question. Two courses are open, increase income or curtail expenditure. It's about as hard to cut down expenses as to increase income. However, amidst the general perplexity which the situation calls up there is the re-assuring thought that no matter how things go, one way to save is to buy your teas at hawleys', where prices are at the bottom notch and qualities on top of the heap. If you need to save buy your teas at hawleys', george-st., the famous tea men. d113

Constipation,

IF not remedied in season, is liable to become habitual and chronic. Drastic purgatives, by weakening the bowels, confirm, rather than cure, the evil. Ayer's Pills, being mild, effective, and strengthening in their action, are generally recommended by the faculty as the best of aperients.

"Having been subject, for years, to constipation, without being able to find much relief, I at last tried Ayer's Pills. I deem it both a duty and a pleasure to testify that I have derived great benefit from their use. For over two years past I have taken one of these pills every night before retiring. I would not willingly be without them."—G. W. Bowman, 26 East Main st., Carlisle, Pa.

"I have been taking Ayer's Pills and using them in my family since 1857, and cheerfully recommend them to all in need of a safe but effectual cathartic."—John M. Boggs, Louisville, Ky.

"For eight years I was afflicted with constipation, which at last became so bad that the doctors could do no more for me. Then I began to take Ayer's Pills, and soon the bowels recovered their natural and regular action, so that now I am in excellent health."—S. L. Loughbridge, Bryan, Texas.

"Having used Ayer's Pills, with good results, I fully indorse them for the purposes for which they are recommended."—T. Conners, M. D., Centre Bridge, Pa.

TUESDAY, MAY 19, 1891.

SHALL HE WED HER.

"You cut me short in my efforts to do a charitable action. I heard, no matter how, that you were interested just now in a destitute family and took this way of assisting you in their behalf."

Her blue eyes opened wider. "The poor are always with us," she replied, "but I know of no especial family just now that requires any such help as you intimate. If I did papa would give me what assistance I needed."

I was greatly pleased to hear her say this, for I am very fond of my young friend, but I was deeply indignant also against the unknown person who had taken advantage of my regard for this young girl to force money from me. I therefore did not linger at her side, but after due apologies hastened immediately here where there is a man employed who to my knowledge had once been a trusted member of the police.

Telling him no more of the story than was necessary to ensure his co-operation in the plan I had formed to discover the author of this fraud, I extracted the bank-notes from the letter I had written and put in their place stiff pieces of manilla paper. Taking the envelope so filled to the hotel already referred to, I placed it at the opening chapters of Isaiah in the Bible, as described. There was no one in any of the rooms when I went in, and I encountered only a bell-boy as I came out, but at the door I ran against a young man whom I strictly forbore to recognize, but whom I knew to be my improvised detective coming to take his stand in some place where he could watch the parlor and note who went into it.

At noon I returned to the hotel, passed immediately to the small parlor and looked into the Bible. The letter was gone. Coming out of the room, I was at once joined by my detective.

"Has the letter been taken?" he eagerly inquired.

I nodded.

His brows wrinkled and he looked both troubled and perplexed.

"I don't understand it," he remarked. "I've seen every one who has gone into that room since you left it, but I do not know any more than before who took the letter. You see," he continued, as I looked at him sharply, "I had to remain out here. If I had gone even into the large room, the Bible would not have been disturbed, nor the letter either. So, in the hope of knowing the rogue at sight, I strolled about this hall, and kept my eye constantly on that door, but"——

He looked embarrassed, and stopped. "You say the letter is gone," he suggested after a moment.

"Yes," I returned.

He shook his head. "Nobody went into that room or came out of it," he went on, "whom you would have wished me to follow. I should have thought myself losing time if I had taken one step after any one of them."

"But who did go into that room," I urged, impatient at his perplexity.

"Only three persons this morning," he returned. "You know them all." And he mentioned first, Mrs. Couldock.

Taylor, who was lending me the superficial attention of a preoccupied man, smiled frankly at the utterance of this name. "Of course, she had nothing to do with such a debasing piece of business," he observed.

"Of course not," I repeated. "Nor does it seem likely that Miss Daws could have been concerned in it. Yet my detective told me that she was the next person who went into the parlor."

"I do not know Miss Daws so well," remarked Taylor, carelessly.

"But I do," said I, "and I would as soon suspect my sister of a dishonorable act as this noble, self-sacrificing woman."

"The third person?" suggested Taylor.

I got up and crossed the floor. When my back was to him, I said quietly—"was Mrs. Walworth."

The silence that followed was very painful. I did not dare to break it, and he, doubtless, found himself unable to do so. It must have been five minutes before either of us spoke, then he suddenly cried:

"Where is that detective, as you call him? I want to see him."

"Let me see him for you," said I. "I should hardly wish Sudley, discreet as I consider him, to know you had any interest in the affair."

Taylor rose and came to where I stood.

"You believe," said he, "that she, the woman I am about to marry, is the one who wrote you that infamous letter?"

I faced him quite frankly. "I do not feel ready to acknowledge that," I replied. "One of those three women took my letter from out the Bible, where I placed it; which of them wrote the lines that provoked it, I do not dare conjecture. You say it was not Mrs. Couldock, I say it was not Miss Dawes, but"——

He broke in upon me impetuously.

"Have you the letter?" he asked.

I had, and showed it to him.

"It is not Helen's handwriting," he said. "Nor is it that of Mrs. Couldock or Miss Dawes."

He looked at me for a moment in a wild sort of way.

"You think she got someone to write it for her!" he cried. "Helen! my Helen! But it is not so; it cannot be so. Why Huntley, to have sent such a letter as that over the name of an innocent young girl who, but for the happy chance of meeting her as you did, might never have had the opportunity of righting herself in your estimation, argues a cold and calculating selfishness closely allied to depravity. And my Helen is an angel—or so I have always thought her."

The depth to which his voice sank in the last sentence showed that for all his seeming confidence he was not without his doubts.

I began to feel very uncomfortable, and not knowing what consolation to offer, I ventured upon the suggestion that he should [illegible] Walworth and frankly ask her whether she had been to the hotel on Main street on such a day, and if so, if she had seen a letter addressed to Miss N—— lying on the table of the small parlor. His answer showed how much his confidence in her had been shaken.

"A woman, who, for the sake of paying some unworthy debt or of gratifying some whim of feminine vanity, could make use of a young girl's signature to obtain money would not hesitate at any denial. She would not even blench at my questions."

He was right.

"I must be convinced in some other way," he went on. "Mrs. Couldock or Miss Dawes do not either of them possess any more truthful or ingenuous countenance than she does, and though it seems madness to suspect such women"——

"Wait," I broke in. "Let us be sure of all the facts before we go on. You lie down here and close your eyes; now pull the rug up so. I will have Sudley in and question him. If you do not turn towards the light he will not know who you are."

Taylor followed my suggestion, and in a few moments Sudley stood before me." I opened upon him quite carelessly.

"Sudley," said I, throwing down the newspaper I had been ostensibly reading. "You remember that little business you did for me in Main street last month? Something I've been reading made me think of it again."

"Yes, sir."

"Have you never had a conviction yourself as to which of the three ladies you saw go into the parlor, took the letter I left hid in the Bible?"

"No, sir. You see I could not. All of them are well known in society here and all of them belong to the most respectable families. I wouldn't dare to choose between them, sir."

First Drowning Accident of the Season—Sudden Deaths.

TORONTO, May 19.—William Wayte, one of the old-timers of the County of York, went to church at York Mills Sunday in apparently the best of health. He returned to his home on the 1896 Mills-road, ate a hearty dinner, and was about to do some chores about his premises when he fell to the floor dead. He leaves a family of nine children, five sons and four daughters. The deceased came to Canada in 1814.

The first bathing fatality of the season occurred in the Don River yesterday afternoon between 3 and 4 o'clock. The victim was Louis Howard, aged 12, pupil at the Wesley-street School, whose parents live at 153 St. Nicholas-street. With a couple of companions he went into bathe at the Winchester-street bridge. Getting out of his depth his companions raised an alarm, and the employes of the brickyard near by ran to the scene, arriving there just in time to see the boy disappear for the last time. A pikepole was obtained, but some time elapsed before the body was recovered.

Pending the issue of the present legal battle, street car affairs practically remain in the same position as they were on Saturday last. Senator Smith has given his men a 10-hour day and 15 cents an hour. An anti-fare paying organization has been formed, but it is not likely to amount to much.

Catharine Bell, 110 Victoria-street, had been drinking very hard lately and at 11.30 yesterday her husband found her dead in bed. Coroner Powell was notified, but concluded that an inquest was unnecessary and said the deceased had probably died from heart disease brought about by dissipation.

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

Suit For Rivalry—A Little Lord Fauntleroy —North Perth.

TORONTO, May 20.—At Osgoode Hall yesterday Mr. Justice Maclennan gave judgment in the North Perth election case, dismissing with costs the motion to commit Dr. Ahrens for refusing to answer questions on his examination for discovery,

On Tuesday a motion will be made to the presiding judge in chambers for an order for the delivery to its mother, Jane Burnard, of a child which has for some time been living with its grandfather, who refuses to give it up.

Revis v. Lewis is the title of a case in which a writ was issued yesterday. The action is for breach of promise and wages. On the former count the damages sought are $5000, and on the second $850.

The plaintiff is Mrs. Rebecca Revis, who for the past 10 years has been housekeeper of George Lewis, the defendant, an old gentleman of 76 years of age, who resides at 231 Davenport Road. Mrs. Revis is a black-haired buxom woman of 41. She alleges in her statement of claim that Mr. Lewis is worth $40,000, that in 1880 he retained her as his housekeeper under promise of marriage, preventing her return to England to her house there. The pledge there given has never been fulfilled, and getting tired of procrastination she has brought the present action.

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW

CORNWALL'S SENSATION.

IT WAS THE WATCHERS WHO STOLE MR. PURCELL'S BODY.

Full Particulars of the Circumstances Attending the Despoiling of the Cemetery on Flannigan's Point—The Right Parties Believed to be in Custody.

CORNWALL, May 19.—The half empty grave in the disordered country cemetery at Flannigan's Point, the scene of the Purcell grave robbery on Saturday, has been filled up and the coffin with its soiled white satin lining has been buried from the sight of the curious, but the trail made by the corpse as it was dragged along to the river is still plainly visible. The cemetery is about five miles below Cornwall, on the very edge of the river's bank, and the solemn effect of the simple tombstones that mark the graves is heightened by the ancient pine trees which are scattered over it in profusion and make the place noticeable for miles around. In this quiet resting place of the dead the late Mr. Purcell had secured a large piece of ground for his family lot, and it was here that eight of his family who preceded him to the grave have been buried. The Purcell burial plot is in the centre of the cemetery, on high ground overlooking the river, and is surrounded by a low iron railing. At the head, marking the grave of the millionaire contractor, stands a large monument cut into the form of a tall obelisk, the base of gray, and the needle part of red granite. On the one side, facing the graves, are the words: "Erected by P. Purcell in remembrance of the Purcell Family." On another are the names of those who were buried there at the time of its erection as follows: Michael Purcell, a native of Ireland, died 1873, aged 78 years, the father of the late member for Glengarry; his mother, Catherine Grant, died in 1853, aged 59 years; and his sister, Mary Purcell, wife of J. Jarvis, died in 1864, aged 37 years.

The Grave a Shallow One.

The grave from which the body was taken was a very shallow one, probably not more than four feet deep, and it could not have taken the robbers long to open it and reach the coffin. The clay and the broken pieces of the cover of the rough box which enclosed the coffin were scattered all over the other graves, when the mark of the body-snatchers was first discovered, and near the iron railing lay one of the instruments used in the work, a pick-ax, the handle of which was broken, and had been thrown some distance further on. The body must have been dragged out head foremost by main force, for only the small board over the head of the casket was torn off, leaving an opening barely large enough to allow the remains to pass through. Everything showed that the work was done by inexperienced men, as experienced body-snatchers would have made an attempt to try to fill up the grave, and thus for some time hide their crime. They dragged the corpse immediately by the shortest road to the water's edge, without lifting it over the pointed fence, near which a torn out piece of the grave clothing was found.

The Two Wills.

Mr. Michael Purcell, the youngest brother, lives in a large comfortable house about a quarter of a mile above the cemetery. His son Patrick was a great favorite of the deceased, and was by the first will left one of the largest shares of his uncle's money. There are, as stated the other day, two wills, and the last one, which bequeathes the greater part of the fortune left to charitable institutions, will be contested by the family. In connection with this it may be stated that another nephew was not equally fortunate with young Patrick, the old gentleman cutting him off with a shilling, which in this instance took the shape of a hundred dollars and the fastest horse in his stables; the latter intended, the deceased is said to have stated, to carry the young man out of the country as quickly as possible.

Mrs. Purcell, the wife of the deceased M.P., is still living in the Purcell homestead, named "Fairfield," a handsome structure erected on a high knoll in Summerstown about five miles from the cemetery and commanding a beautiful view over Stanley Island, the well-known summer resort, which has been the headquarters of the detectives and all those engaged in the search for the body. The death of her husband in itself and the news of the grave robbery have entirely unnerved Mrs. Purcell.

Where the Body was Taken.

From information gathered from various sources it is pretty certain that the body was not taken into a boat, but towed along behind it and taken over to a group of three small islands a little down the river known as the "Three Sisters," where it was probably anchored for the night, and some men who went on a searching party state that on Friday night they found a buoy in the river near the shore of one of these islands but could not lift it to the surface, whatever it might be that was attached to it. The next day it had disappeared. Mr. Joseph Dequette, who keeps the Lansdowne House on Stanley Island, claims that as he was going up the river early on Friday morning he noticed two men on one of these islands, but not knowing at the time that anything unusual had occurred he took no trouble to find out who they were. A visit to this island, which can only be reached by rowboat, revealed the fact that some one had evidently made a meal there a short time previous, and a shovel and a quantity of lime gave the impression that the ghouls had put the body into a bag of lime and afterwards sunk it in one of the channels. In all probability they thought of a safer place to keep it afterwards and towed it thither on Friday night. A good many people are of the opinion, however, that the body is sunk in the river near there, and in support quote the fact that the men who were on watch on the island on Saturday night saw a boat with two men coming up the river in their direction. The occupants of the boat seemed to smell danger, however, and when quite near turned back. The "Ellen," the boat which was found floating on Friday and is supposed to have been used by the ghouls, belonged to a man named Smith, far down the river. He affirms that it was left high and dry on land, and to come to the spot high up the river where it was found must necessarily have been taken away and rowed in that direction. The robbery of the grave took place on the night of the day when the watch was taken off it. The body was buried on May 5, on arriving from the Maritime Provinces. The first night two young men, named John J. Craig and Norman Derouchie, watched, and after that, up till Thursday night, a Mr. Adams, who lives near the cemetery.

The Men Arrested.

As telegraphed yesterday, warrants were issued for the arrest of the three watchers and Derouchie was taken into custody Monday morning at his house in Glenwalter, not quite half a mile from the graveyard. Craig succeeded in evading the officers. When the body was interred it was thought best to have a guard over the grave, and the only men that could be found were Craig and Derouchie. They were given a dollar in advance, but as they are known all over the district as hard characters and had only just returned from Kingston, where they had done a term for shooting a neighbor's horse, it was thought better to discharge them, and Adams was put in their place. The next day they met Mr. Angus McDonald, brother-in-law of the deceased, and Mr. Milien, the business manager, and asked for the balance of their money, each claiming $3 for their night's work. They were told that their demand was exorbitant and were given a dollar, which they angrily threw at the giver's face, saying that if they did not get their money they would get something else. In addition it may be stated that they bore the late Mr. Purcell a grudge for furnishing money to the man whose horse they shot to prosecute them and send them to prison. On the night the body was taken both were absent from home and Derouchie returned to work very late the next morning. They were also noticed by Adams prowling around the grave while he was watching.

There are no further developments in the Purcell grave robbery. Derouchie was remanded to-day for one week. Detectives are still after Craig, who has either skipped or is in hiding. Detective Grose left for Montreal to-night and on his return further developments are expected. Derouchie protests his innocence and says he will take an action for false arrest.

WRECK ON THE C.P.R.

Engineer and Fireman Killed—Two Brakemen Injured.

TORONTO, May 21.—A cow on the track caused the derailment of a freight train at eight o'clock last night at Churchville near Streetsville Junction on the C.P.R. Two fatalities resulted, a farmer named James Ferguson and the engineer of the train, Robert Johnson, being killed on the spot. Two men were also seriously injured and were brought on to Toronto and taken to the General Hospital. They are both young men, one, William Little, being 21 years of age and his companion, W. G. White, 23. The former, who lives at Chatsworth, county of Grey, was in a car laden with stone, a large block of which, falling on him, crushed his right foot to a pulp. The fingers of his right hand, too, were badly jammed. White, who resides in the west end of Toronto, was in a box car near the engine. He was thrown forward between the tender and the engine, but succeeded in extricating himself from the scalding steam which surrounded him. He received a severe wound on the left leg, besides numerous cuts and bruises on different parts of the body. White was in the Hospital six months ago with a fractured leg. It was the opinion of the doctors early this morning that Little's foot would have to be amputated.

Fireman Badly Crushed.

HAMILTON, May 19.—James Burns, a Grand Trunk fireman, was working about his engine in the roundhouse and got caught between the tender and a post. He was badly crushed, several ribs being broken. He was taken home in the ambulance.

A Brakeman Disemboweled.

WINDSOR, May 19.—Joseph Emerson, a Michigan Central employe, was run over in the cut near Michigan Central Depot, Windsor, to-day and literally disemboweled. He was taken to Emergency Hospital, Detroit, and will die.

QUEER BIGAMY CASE.

Not Proved That There Was a First "Wife" Or That the Second Wife's First Husband Was Dead.

BRANTFORD, May 19.—William H. Temple was tried before Judge Jones to-day on a charge of bigamy. Several witnesses swore that prisoner under the name of Temple went through a marriage ceremony with a Laura Slide at Goodwin, Mich., 10 years ago, and was the father of four children that called the Slide woman mother. The latter, however, is missing and there was no marriage certificate or any other evidence to show that a legal ceremony was performed.

Rev. Mr. Kelly of Onondaga testified that he married prisoner in November, 1889, under the name of William Sobell to a woman named Nancy Bradley. Then George Bradley, father of Nancy, took the stand and said he did not know whether his daughter's first husband was dead when she married Temple, alias Sobell. The case was laid over a month, meantime an effort will be made to disentangle the net.

FROM THE CONFESSIONAL.

A Diamond Ring Alleged to Have Been Given to a Policeman Returned Through a Priest.

MONTREAL, May 19.—Thursday afternoon a lady residing in the western part of the city took a handkerchief from her pocket to wipe her baby's face, who was sitting in a baby carriage opposite her residence. While doing so she pulled out a diamond ring and it rolled to the pavement unobserved. The ring was worth about $300. One of the little girls residing next door had picked up the ring and gave it to a policeman who was just then passing. The little girl picked out the constable, but he denied that he got the ring and the girls were just as confident he did. However, he was let go on along his beat but was impressed with the idea that the matter was not to be allowed to drop. Last evening the sergeant came to the lady's residence, opened a little parcel containing the missing ring and handed it to its owner. "Do you know how I got it?" he asked. "Well, then, I will tell you. Father Donnelly brought it to our station this evening!" The ring had evidently been handed to the priest in the confessional.

A BOY IN A BAG.

Mutilated Corpse Found Floating in Liverpool Harbor.

LONDON, May 19.—A sailor's bag painted black, decorated with the British and Norwegian ensigns, represented as flying from crossed staffs and bearing the initials "T.A.M." and the name "Girvan," was to-day found floating in the Haudon dock at Liverpool. Upon being taken out of the water and opened the bag was found to contain the terribly mutilated corpse of a boy apparently about 15 years of age. His throat had been cut and both legs had been removed below the knees in order to make possible the packing of the body in the bag. There were also found in the bag a knife and a saw, both being new and both having fragments of flesh adhering to their blades.

GROUND TO A PULP.

Tragic Death of an Employe of the Toronto Paper Mill Co.

CORNWALL, May 19.—Alfred Wood, an employe of the Toronto Paper Co.'s Mills, while cleaning the calendars used for finishing paper, had his hand caught between the rollers, which were making 400 revolutions per minute. His arm was drawn in to the shoulder and every particle of flesh torn from the bone. His arm remained fast between the rollers for 15 minutes until the calendars were taken apart. Wood died from his injuries this afternoon.

DEATH'S AWFUL HARVEST

APPALLING DISASTER ON A RAILWAY TRAIN.

Sparks Ignite 500 lbs. of Powder—16 or 18 Men Killed in the Explosion Which Followed—The Shock Was Like That of an Earthquake.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y., May 19.—At 11 o'clock this morning every building in Tarrytown was shaken to its foundations, windows were broken, fences prostrated and the ground trembled. The cause was an explosion of dynamite near Holmes Point, on the Hudson River Railroad a mile south of Tarrytown Station. Locomotive No. 348 was coming north on the up track near Holmes Point drawing a platform car with 24 cases (500 lbs.) of Ajax powder on it and the train was moving quite smartly. On the front part of the car was some rope in a coil. A spark from the engine struck the rope and it ignited. On the car with the powder were 20 or 30 Italian train hands and as soon as the rope began to blaze up two or three of the men on the car jumped, one of them striking headlong on the rail and was killed. Before the others could alight the fire reached the powder and there was an instantaneous and appalling explosion. By this time the train had nearly reached a large number of workmen on the third track improvements at Holmes Point. The result of the explosion was terrible. Every part of the car was wiped out of existence and the men on the car were hurled in every direction, ten being killed outright while several were blown into the river and their bodies are yet to be recovered. Both tracks were destroyed, telegraph lines were demolished and great holes were torn into the earth. Work cars on the side track were blown away and the head end of the engine was demolished.

Ten dead bodies were placed on a platform car with six of the injured and taken to Tarrytown. The dead were taken to Vanderbilt's undertaking establishment, and the wounded were laid on the floor in the passenger station and doctors from Tarrytown and Yonkers summoned. The leg of one of the victims was amputated, one had an arm taken off, others were fearfully cut about the head and the face. In two instances the clothes were nearly stripped from the victims.

In the middle of the afternoon two special trains were brought to the station and the six injured men were put in a car and taken to a New York hospital.

Some of the Victims.

John McCarty of Tarrytown, a timekeeper, was so badly injured that he died before he could be taken to the station. Frank Morrissey, a boy who was called the powder monkey, was instantly killed. John Smith, brakeman, was instantly killed. The others who were killed were all Italians and known only by their numbers.

The injured include George Herrick, the engineer, not fatally hurt. He said, when coming up with his engine and car near Holmes Point, he looked back and saw the men jump from the car and saw considerable smoke. He stopped the train as quickly as possible and ran back to pull the pin connecting his engine with the car, knowing the danger. While he was pulling the pin the explosion occurred and that was all he could tell. He thought the coil of rope took fire from a spark from his engine.

While the doctor was attending to Herrick another victim was brought into the hospital. He was Edward Finnegan, foreman in the rock cut near where the explosion occurred. He was not on the car, but he was terribly injured and will die.

Fireman Leo Pan was found lying on the footboard of the engine in a semi-conscious state. He was badly injured. Conductor Connors escaped with slight wounds about the head. Brakeman Fisher had a miraculous escape. He was blown into the river, but managed to get ashore and was able to walk up the track to the station. Blacksmith McCormick and helper Finnegan were cut about the face and head, but neither is injured fatally. These seven were properly cared for. The balance of the injured were Italians, and they were taken to New York.

The explosion was heard for a distance of 10 miles. Near by doors and windows were torn from houses. A great hole was torn into the earth and the debris thrown out into the river.

The railway authorities say gross carelessness was shown in placing the powder car next to the engine.

There is hardly any doubt that the killed will number 15 and three or four of those injured will die, making the total loss of life 18 or 19. In addition, there are 20 injured, more or less seriously.

TARRYTOWN, N.Y., May 20.—Early this morning Coroner Mitchell reported that 13 lives had been lost and five bodies were still missing. Further details may make the number of killed greater than this.

NEW YORK, May 19.—The six injured Italians injured at Tarrytown were brought to Bellevue Hospital to-day. Two of them will die.

POISONED BY TOADSTOOLS.

Eaten in Mistake for Mushrooms—One Death, the Other Victims Will Recover.

TILSONBURG, May 19.—The family of Mr John Cope of Tilsonburg were poisoned by eating toadstools. The poisonous fungi, which had been gathered as mushrooms, were cooked and served. Shortly after eating them every member of the family was taken ill with symptoms of poisoning. Physicians were summoned, but notwithstanding their efforts Maggie, the 6-year-old daughter, died. The other members of the family are now out of danger.

CHOKED TO DEATH.

He Ate Too Rapidly While Enjoying a Square Meal.

KINGSTON, May 19.—Louis Cleaver, an old landmark of the city, secured a little money yesterday and early this morning determined to have a good meal, and dropped into the dining room of the Stanley House. He had not been there long before the waitress noticed him making unintelligible noises suggestive of something clogged in his throat, and five minutes after he died. Dr. Henderson said death had resulted from choking caused by the old man eating too fast.

The Mayor Was Rash.

PARIS, May 19.—The Mayor of Montmartre, the northern suburb of Paris, to-day visited the offices of a small Paris newspaper, La Lutte, and quarrelled with the editor. The editor drew a pistol and fired two shots at his visitor. The mayor was only slightly wounded, but he fled so hastily that he fell headlong downstairs and was seriously injured.

Dyspepsia

Intense Suffering for 8 years—Restored to Perfect Health.

Few people have suffered more severely from dyspepsia than Mr. E. A. McMahon, a well known grocer of Staunton, Va. He says: "Before 1878 I was in excellent health, weighing over 200 pounds. In that year an ailment developed into acute dyspepsia, and soon I was reduced to 162 pounds, suffering burning sensations in the stomach, palpitation of the heart, nausea, and indigestion. I could not sleep, lost all heart in my work, had fits of melancholia, and for days at a time I would have welcomed death. I became morose, sullen and irritable, and for eight years life was a burden. I tried many physicians and many remedies. One day a workman employed by me suggested that I take Hood's Sarsaparilla, as it had cured his wife of dyspepsia. I did so, and before taking the whole of a bottle I began to feel like a new man. The terrible pains to which I had been subjected, ceased, the palpitation of the heart subsided, my stomach became easier, nausea disappeared, and my entire system began to tone up. With returning strength came activity of mind and body. Before the fifth bottle was taken I had regained my former weight and natural condition. I am today well and I ascribe it to taking Hood's Sarsaparilla."

NORWOOD NEWS.

The Village Industries Booming—A Visit From a Bear.

Correspondence of the Review.

QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY.—The R. C. picnic on the 25th promises to be an extensive affair. Ample preparations have been made for an enjoyable time.

I.O.O.F. DEMONSTRATION.—A large number of the Norwood Oddfellows purpose going to Campbellford to take part in the I.O.O.F. demonstration on the 25th.

PERSONAL.—Rev. Dr. Badgely, of Victoria College, preached two eloquent sermons in the Methodist church on Sunday.

SUCCESSFUL STUDENTS.—At the Victoria exams, the ex-pupils of the high school did well, two, E. B. Hutcherson and B. J. Hales, taking honors.

FOOTBALL.—The football association met in the school rooms on Thursday evening and arranged to take steps to secure, if possible, the co-operation of the neighboring clubs with a view to forming a district championship for the fall.

FACTORIES BUSY.—Business in the manufacturing line seems to be unusually brisk this year. Messrs. Finlay & Son have nearly sixty in their employ and the factory kept running night and day. Also W. F. Frank of the Norwood foundry has a gang working extra time.

BEARS.—The bears seem to be quite numerous this season in this vicinity. A farmer in Dummer had quite a number of sheep killed by them about two weeks ago. One fair sized animal leisurely took a stroll through the east end of the village and after furnishing a little diversion for our local sports took its departure eastward. It was, however, killed by a rural nimrod the next day.

Wanted.—A good appetite. You can have it easy enough by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. It tones the digestion and cures sick head ache.

HASTINGS.

A FIRE.—The east half of Mrs. Peters' barn and stable on Hope-st. in this village was destroyed by fire on Friday. One of Mrs. Peters' children built a fire of some rubbish close beside the barn, which communicated with the building, and in a few minutes the entire structure, which was of wood and consisted of carriage house, stable and shed, was in a blaze. The fire brigade was promptly on hand, and after an hour's hard struggle confined the fire to the carriage house, which was consumed, the rest of the structure being badly scorched. Loss about $300; covered by insurance. For a time it looked as if there was about to be a repetition of the disastrous fire of 1888, as the blazing shingles were carried by the high wind and set fire to the roof of a large stone building on Trent-st. This, however, was attended to by the hook and ladder detachment and a serious calamity was averted.

It was a Rosebud All the Same.

The following conversation was overheard in a King-st. horse car on St. George's day:—Harry, where is your rosebud today? In my pocket, my dear; two of them for a quarter. Why, how cheap! but won't they get crushed? Give me one. Here you are, then—want a match? Why, that's a cigar you're giving me. Certainly, a "Rosebud Reliance," one of Tasse, Wood & Co.'s best brands. That's a shame, Harry, but now you've deceived me; you might tell me why they are called rosebuds. Well, the reason is because the end to be lighted is closed like a rosebud, in consequence of which the cigar lights evenly like a cigarette, and therefore can never burn crooked. Now, in lighting ordinary cigars you will notice—What?—car stops.

Treatment for Hardwood Floors.

It is true, says the Journal of Chemistry, that the oak floors of the old-fashioned kitchens, which lasted and looked well for a hundred years or more, were scoured with soap and sand; but the labor was very great, and could hardly be had from the modern servant at any reasonable expense. A little more care in filling and finish suits the present condition of things better. Any soiling from mud can be removed with a damp woolen cloth, and dust with a dry one. Sweeping with a brush, followed by wiping over with a dry woollen cloth tied over the brush, answers ordinary needs. About once in six months it is well to give the work a very thin coat of shellac. No oil should be used on it before or after finishing. The great mistake made in the treatment of hard woods, and especially where used in floors, is the amount of oil, wax, varnish, filling and other gummy materials that are applied to and left on the surface. The beauty of all such finish is to have the wood show its natural color and grain. The thin coat of shellac specified above is meant simply to prevent any greasy dirt from striking into the wood and causing a stain that would require hard scrubbing or scraping to remove.

A Cure for Constipation and Headache.

Dr. Silas Lane, while in the Rocky Mountains, discovered a root that when combined with other herbs, makes an easy and certain cure for constipation. It is in the form of dry roots and leaves, and is known as Lane's Family Medicine. It will cure sick-headache and is the best Spring Medicine. For the blood, liver and kidneys, and for clearing up the complexion it does wonders. Druggists sell it at 50c. and $1 a package.

Green is the favorite color for fancy articles, and exquisite little purses for young ladies are of green leather in heart shape, ornamented with the silver monogram of the fair possessor.

The hair band or small coronet has been revived as the most approved hair ornament. It is set with gems, diamonds usually, exactly like the old-fashioned article, and is equally becoming with high or low coiffures.

Boots, shoes and slippers continue to take on shapes that are more unique. The Juliet is made in all shades of pretty colors to be worn with house dresses. Stockings of a contrasting hue peep out at each side of the low-cut scallops.

Yellow is the favorite tint of the season for all dressy toilets and for the decoration of plainer gowns. White, strewn with tiny sprays of pink roses and forget-me-nots enclosed in a lace-like brocade, is the most effective combination for waistcoats.

Light shades will prevail for woollen materials, and cheviot, diagonal, and serge will be used for useful travelling and street gowns. The cheviots will have a kind of plaid pattern in subdued shades or narrow stripes, large wafers, or small flowers.

Paste jewels and artificial stones will continue to be a feature of dressy decorations on jackets and bonnets as well as gowns. Cut stones of one color in three or four sizes will also be employed, accenting tones of the same color and used most effectively with black gowns.

Silk is more used than it has been for many seasons. Panels, waistcoats, and sleeves in most of the woolen stuffs are now in favor. The particular choice of the season in Bengaline, both plain and figured, because it is soft in drapery, lustrous, and rich looking, but not expensive.

Corn-yellow Bengaline makes an exquisite evening dress. Nile green is another delicately beautiful color requiring silver trimmings and silver kid gloves and slippers. Either can be made very Frenchy with a demi train, some embroidered net and a touch of black velvet ribbon.

It is difficult to distinguish new hats from bonnets, for they are like flat plates with a box-plaited brim of lace, having within a close set wreath of gay flowers. Indeed, the fashion of having flowers and puffs of chiffon like old style bonnet borders is now very marked in all new head coverings.

Tweed is in high favor this spring, for this sensible, dreadnaught material has developed a strange frivolity of purpose this year. The new women barbers are a great success in London. The members of their association have infinitely more dexterity than the average man chin shavers, an exquisite lightness and softness of touch, and their hands never seem to be troubled with the cold, wet clamminess from which men so frequently suffer.

Don't buy black. It is a color scorned by artists and detested by men and children. Look over the dull reds, the wood, metal and Harvard browns, the beautiful dahlia shade; the rich greens and blues, the turquoise, topaz, garnet, old rose and grays and find something in sprigged, striped or plain stuff to make a pretty house dress.

Why doesn't somebody found a very womanly society? Not one for ethical culture, though the knowledge of beauty is good; and not for decorative purposes, but for needle work, pure and simple. Such needle work as will make one feel at ease if the modiste can't finish a gown in time, for then one can arrange the dress already worn which only needs a little freshening up.

Parasols have sprung into prominence in the shop windows. They have wakened into life and activity like mushrooms. A few hours ago, they were almost unthought of as part of the season's necessary accompaniments. Now, the windows are filled with them and every one is buying or making one of these light, airy absurdities, which shall be, nevertheless, sufficient to act as a protection from the mildness of spring suns.

THE HANGMAN ARRIVES.

The Son and Daughter of Kane Also Arrive from Toronto.

BELLEVILLE, May 19.—J. R. Radclive, the hangman, arrived to-night and the scaffold for Kane's execution will be erected tomorrow. The huge weight was brought in on the express last night from Toronto and was the centre of a curious crowd at the depot to-day. It is the same weight that has launched a score of men into eternity. Great interest is now being centered around the doomed man as his time on this earth draws near a close. The son and daughter arrived from Toronto to-day and will remain in the city until after the execution.

CURES DYSPEPSIA.

DEAR SIRS,—About a year ago I had a very bad attack of dyspepsia. For nearly four months I never ate a meal without suffering pain after. I kept getting worse and worse until I was obliged to give up my duties as a teacher. I had got so weak I could scarcely walk, when one day I saw an advertisement for B.B.B., and thought I would try a bottle; I did so, and before I had finished it I was able to teach again. Four bottles cured me completely. MISS JANET STUART, Muskoka Falls, Ont.

BUY NOW IF AT ALL.

EVERY day makes more apparent the fact that the town is going ahead rapidly. Numerous changes have taken place in the way of the ownership of property. Many workingmen are buying houses and lots or lots on which to build. One of the most suitable locations is that known as the Erin property, at the west end, owned largely by Mr. Wm. Fitzgerald. This week he has closed the sale of a very desirable new house and lot, and has several eligible lots on this property to dispose of. Property in this neighbourhood is rapidly being built up, and it will be well to have a look at the situation if one is at all disposed to buy. The terms are very favorable and especially low for cash, though payment on time may be arranged.

CASH HARDWARE STORE.

On and after 1st April we shall do business on a Cash Basis.

To cover the inevitable losses attendant upon a credit business, (which accrue from amount of time spent in keeping accounts, collecting, bad debts, interest account, and in numerous other ways, larger margins of profit must be asked.

In these times cash buyers ask, expect and are entitled to close prices. A careful consideration of the subject convinces us that the time has come for a cash business done on smaller profits.

The only customers who may be put to inconvenience are those who have had long credit. In more ways than one it will be to their advantage to pay cash.

For convenience of our old customers who consider their accounts due when presented, we will call 30 days cash and render all accounts the first of each month, and we wish to say that we will be happy to do business with them on these terms.

As the new departure is something of an experiment, what would be considered a close cash price will be made all through the stock. Not a few leaders only, but a general reduction in everything from the fourth flat to the cellar.

Our idea is to perform more than promised rather than promise more than can be fulfilled.

Our stock is large and varied, consisting of Builders', Contractors', Household, Mechanics', Painters', Shoemakers', Farm, Mill, Factory, Lumbermen's, Sporting, Threshers', Cabinetmakers', and other lines of Hardware.

It Startled The Village.

Chief Roszel and Constable Adams floated down upon a nest of five tramps who were enjoying life in the sun at Burnham's Point yesterday afternoon. The gentlemen of leisure made a hasty retreat in all directions and the good people of Ashburnham were startled, thinking a murder or some worse crime had been committed.

Improving and Adding

Some improvements have been made in the jewellery establishment of Mr. W. A. Sanderson on George-st., or at least to the workshop and repairing rooms in the rear. These rooms have been thoroughly renovated and some new appliances added, among the introductions being a new apparatus for electro-plating. Electro-plating can now be done on the premises by skilled workmen on shortest notice.

Hawking and spitting, foul breath, loss of sense of taste and smell, oppressive headache, etc., are the results of catarrh. Nasal Balm offers a certain and speedy relief and permanent cure from these miseries. Thousands of testimonials speak of its wonderful merit. Try it; sold by all dealers.

Editor and Evangelist.

Of the Rev. A. B. Simpson, one of the Christian Alliance delegates who will attend the convention here in June, The Way of Faith, of Columbia, S. C., says:—

"Rev. A. B. Simpson is one of the most successful pastors and evangelists we know of. He is a man of strong faith; will not receive money for his personal support which has been solicited. He has no assessment for his support; will not allow pews to be sold or rented. All seats in his place of worship are free. He has in connection with his work in New York a training college for Christian workers for the home and foreign field; and orphanage, Berachah Home for Christians who wish to study the Word of God with reference to deepening their experience, or who wish to know of the doctrine of physical redemption, as its benefits relate to this life. He had services every night in the week except Saturday.

"Besides all this he has a publishing department. Issues a weekly paper, The Christian Alliance; also tracts and books. He has received in direct answer to prayer in a few years past about four hundred thousand dollars to carry forward this work for the Master. He is a second George Muller."

RIDERS OF THE STEEL STEED.

Local Wheelmen Organize for the Season—Largely Increased Number of Wheelmen.

This is to be a lively season for the riders of the steel steed in Peterborough. The bicyclists of last year have been augmented by a large number of wheels and a strong, vigorous club will keep things moving in wheeling circles.

The Peterborough Bicycle Club met last evening and organized for the season, a good number of wheelmen being present and all evincing enthusiasm in the sport. The meeting was held in the Olympic Club rooms, George-st. Mr. R. B. Rogers occupied the chair, and the following members were elected to office:—

The second weekly run will be to Nassau mills up one side of the river and down the other. The third run will have Bridgenorth for its objective point and after the P.A.A.A. gets the Ashburnham track in good repair races will be held regularly through the summer.

The 57th Battalion had the first march-out of the season last evening, and the turn out was very creditable. Under command of Lieut.-Col. J. Z. Rogers and headed by the battalion band the principal streets were paraded, the sidewalks along the line of march being crowded by spectators. There were 262 men in the ranks.

Upon returning to the drill shed the men were exercised on the road on George-st. The march past was practised, and performed very creditably.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR WORKERS.

Officers Elected and Papers on the Mission Work of the Respective Denominations.

The meeting of the local Christian Endeavor Union held last evening in St. Andrew's church was a most interesting gathering. Dr. Scott, president, was in the chair, while Miss Wrighton, organist, and the St. Andrew's choir conducted the musical portion of the meeting.

In opening, the president gave a short address, reviewing the work of the Union during the past year, stating that it had been organized a year ago with four societies as members and now seven local societies were included.

The election of officers for the ensuing year was then proceeded with, resulting as follows:—

Hon. President.—Dr. Scott.
President.—A. E. Scott.
Vice President.—A. J. Johnston and presidents of local societies.
Secretary.—Miss Nellie Wrighton.
Asst.-Secretary.—Miss Ella Stratton.
Treas.—Thos. Barrie.

The topic for the evening was missions and some very interesting information was brought out during the evening. Miss Aldridge, of the Baptist church Society, read a paper on Baptist Home Mission Work, Mr. G. S. Bean, of the George-st. church Society, read a paper on Methodist Home Missions, and Mr. A. McCallum, of the St. Paul's church Society, read another on Presbyterian Home Missions.

Miss Sophy Cameron rendered a charming vocal solo, after which Foreign Missions were considered. Mr. Dodds, of St. Andrew's church Society, set forth the Presbyterian work in foreign fields, Mrs. Price, of the Charlotte-st. church Society, read a paper on Methodist Foreign Missions, and Miss Barker, of the Baptist church Society, told of the work of the Baptist church in foreign missions.

A quartette was then rendered by Miss Hubeck, Messrs. Ketcham and Ross and Master King.

Miss Kennedy, of Coldsprings, followed with a paper on Missions. All these papers were of an exceptionally able and interesting character.

On motion of Dr. Scott, seconded by Mr. L. Croly, it was decided to send a delegate to the C.E.S. convention which is to be held in Minneapolis this year. Full arrangements were left in the hands of the Executive Committee.

Rev. Mr. Trotter opened the meeting with prayer and Rev. E. F. Torrance read the exercises and offered the closing prayer.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by millions of mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

SPYING OUT THE LAND.

THE NORTHERN DIVISION A. C. A. CAMP LOCATED.

Big Island, Pigeon Lake, Carried by a Majority of One—Who will Manage Affairs—Other Arrangements—The Date Changed to July 17th to 21st.

The devotees of canoeing are an enthusiastic lot of fellows. They love the sport for its healthy exercise and pleasure giving opportunities. They extract about as much of one and the other out of the pursuit as can be had, and possibly more than any other diversion affords. The annual camp is a genial, hearty affair, and has come to stay.

On Monday the Executive Committee of the Northern Division met on Pigeon Lake. They didn't exactly sit on its waters, but got together on its shores and did some prospecting. The party was made up of Messrs. Macgachan and Edwards, of Lindsay, Boyd, Reid and Minns, of Bobcaygeon, Rogers, Hatton, Fairweather, of Peterborough, and Jacques, of Toronto. A number of other gentlemen were present but not officially so. The Lindsay, Bobcaygeon and Toronto men reached the lake from Bobcaygeon, the others by way of Bridgenorth from Peterborough. The steamer Maple Leaf took them about the lake.

A run was made up to Big Island, the home of the Boyd stock farm, and a look had at the southern shore where a splendid site was found. This was favored by the Lindsay and Bobcaygeon men. All conditions for a good camp site could be met. Jacob's Island was visited and the committee were unanimous that a better spot could not be found, barring the question of its being big enough. This site was favored by the Peterborough and Toronto men. Much discussion ensued and eventually a formal meeting was held on the boat and the matter put to vote, the Big Island site being carried by a majority of one. The matter was, however, reconsidered and, although there was a general feeling to defer to the wishes of the Bobcaygeon men, Jacob's Island may yet be the site.

To have a successful camp calls for complete arrangement. Messrs. Boyd, Minns, Reid, Edwards, Hatton, and Capt. Bottum were appointed a committee on camp site with power to arrange matters, go ahead and get the ground in order, etc. That there should be a fair understanding as to the location of the camp Messrs. Rogers and Minns were appointed a committee to get up a map of the lake and waters in the vicinity of the camp, and have the same engraved and printed in the Year Book, which will be issued shortly. Mr. C. E. Stewart, of the Bobcaygeon Independent, who was prowling about, was harnessed and set to work and given an office, without portfolio. His duty will be to write up the advantages of the site and other particulars, which he can do in the best possible style.

The committee on transportation were named, Messrs. Frazer, Toronto, Rogers, H. C., Edwards, E. E., Fairweather and Boyd. A uniform fare for canoeists, canoes and dunnage was arranged with the proprietor of the steamer Maple Leaf from Bridgenorth and from Bobcaygeon to the camp and return. From Lindsay to Bobcaygeon a special rate will be made by the Trent Valley Navigation Co.'s steamers Esturion and Beaubocage. The reduced fares by rail accorded members of the A.C.A. will no doubt hold good this season as in former years.

An important committee, the commissariat, has for members Messrs. Rogers, J. Z., Elliott, A., Fairweather and Hatton. At former camps clubs provided their own provender and cook. For the last three years a general restaurant has been established with a uniform fee for meals. The committee will look the situation over and no doubt arrange for suitable accommodation in general while those who prefer to set up housekeeping on their own account may do so.

As noted above the date has been changed and the camp will open on 17th July and will close on the 21st. As it can be readily reached by rail and water this will allow of as long a stay as possible, instead of consuming two days or more in the way of getting to camp and again on the return. The Toronto canoeists are famous sailors and voyageurs and many will reach the camp by the water route as far as practicable. A party will go by rail to Coboconk and from there down the Gull river to Balsam Lake and through Cameron and Sturgeon lakes to the meet. Others preferring a more southerly route will take ship at Port Perry, on Scugog Lake, and through the lake and famous Scugog river reach Sturgeon Lake and Bobcaygeon. The Peterborough contingent with those from the east and along the front will travel to Bridgenorth or Lakefield and reach the camp by way of Chemong Lake or the Stony Lake route. A large number of Ottawa and Kingston men are expected, while Montreal will send up a strong contingent. West of Toronto promises well, the Galt club coming out strong at all meets, while that club the "Ubique," hailing from the west and having members all over the province, will be one of the strongest at the camp.

The year book of the Northern Division will be circulated about the first of next month. It will contain information about the camp, the lakes and waters adjoining and other particulars. It is rumored that pictures of the local officers will also appear. On the whole a very successful meet is anticipated and the result, aside from the pleasure and good fellowship enjoyed, should be to make the beautiful lakes and waters of our back country better known than ever.

Oh, What a Cough.

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease consumption. Ask yourself if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. d16w4-6m

Live within your income. How to do this is the vital question. Two courses are open, increase income or curtail expenditure. It's about as hard to cut down expenses as to increase income. However, amidst the general perplexity which the situation calls up there is the re-assuring thought that no matter how things go, one way to save is to buy your teas at hawleys', where prices are at the bottom notch and qualities on top of the heap. A Pleasant Herb Drink—A Spring Medicine.

The druggists tell us that the people call daily for the new cure for constipation and sick-headache discovered by Dr. Silas Lane. It is said to be Oregon grape root (a great remedy in the far west for those complaints) combined with simple herbs, and is made for use by pouring on boiling water to draw out the strength. It sell at 50c and $1 a package and is called Lane's Family Medicine.

Constipation,

IF not remedied in season, is liable to become habitual and chronic. Drastic purgatives, by weakening the bowels, confirm, rather than cure, the evil. Ayer's Pills, being mild, effective, and strengthening in their action, are generally recommended by the faculty as the best of aperients.

"Having been subject, for years, to constipation, without being able to find much relief, I at last tried Ayer's Pills. I deem it both a duty and a pleasure to testify that I have derived great benefit from their use. For over two years past I have taken one of these pills every night before retiring. I would not willingly be without them."—G. W. Bowman, 26 East Main st., Carlisle, Pa.

"I have been taking Ayer's Pills and using them in my family since 1857, and cheerfully recommend them to all in need of a safe but effectual cathartic." —John M. Boggs, Louisville, Ky.

"For eight years I was afflicted with constipation, which at last became so bad that the doctors could do no more for me. Then I began to take Ayer's Pills, and soon the bowels recovered their natural and regular action, so that now I am in excellent health."—S. L. Loughbridge, Bryan, Texas.

"Having used Ayer's Pills, with good results, I fully indorse them for the purposes for which they are recommended." —T. Conners, M. D., Centre Bridge, Pa.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

MR. TARTE AGAIN MAKES IT UNPLEASANT FOR MINISTERS.

In Connection With a Vote to Pay the Salary of Engineer Perley—Little Business Transacted by the House—Capital Chat.

OTTAWA, May 19.—In House to-day, Committee of Supply was reached with Mr. Clarke Wallace in the chair. When the item of the Department of Public Works was reached Mr. Tarte took the floor and laid out Chief Engineer Perley, the Minister and the whole department generally in great shape.

About Mr. Perley.

Mr. Tarte rose, and, speaking in French, addressed to Sir Hector Some questions. The Minister's reply was in French, but the occurrence of the proper names in their remarks told the English-speaking members that they were talking about Chief Engineer Perley and his connection with the McGreevy charges, and they listened, wishing they understood the emphatic utterances of the member for Montmorency and the stolid replies of Sir Hector.

Mr. Langelier, member for Quebec Centre, brought the discussion into English. The member for Montmorency, he said, had told the Minister of Public Works that very serious charges had been made against Mr. Perley, and most damaging statements published regarding him. Mr. Tarte had asked if Mr. Perley had been warranted in saying he was directed by the Minister to write certain letters. No answer had been made him. Mr. Langelier said another question put by Mr. Tarte had been what the Government intended to do with Mr. Perley if the charges against him were sustained. Would he be retained? The Minister had said Mr. Perley resigned his position on the Quebec Harbor Trust, but the member for Montmorency declared that he had been dismissed because of the charges made against him. There might not, however, be very much between the gentlemen on this question, Mr. Langelier said, when it was remembered that resignations are asked for in a way that was really a dismissal. It was extraordinary, Mr. Langelier said, that the Government had not formed any determination with regard to Mr. Perley. There could be no doubt he stood under a cloud. Mr. Perley declared in these letters that he was directed by the Minister of Public Works. Sir Hector's explanation was that there is a formula used by the officials and clerks in the department which reads: "I am directed by the Minister, etc." It did not mean that the Minister had directed him. It was not possible for a Minister to look over all the letters sent from his department. If the question of Mr. Tarte applied to other letters they would have to be shown him for him to answer. He did not think Mr. Perley ought to be discussed at that time. He had been accused before the House and the charges had been referred to the Privileges and Election Committee. The House had decided that the matter should go before a committee, and it was British fair play to "try a man first and kill him afterwards." If Mr. Perley were found to be guilty of the things charged against him the Government would not shield him, and would know how to deal with him, but until he was proven guilty he must be considered innocent.

Mr. Tarte followed the Minister, this time speaking in English. "Does are genuine letters I hold in my hand," he declared, holding aloft a bundle of letters. They were not forged, he continued, and he believed he was justified in saying that the House ought not to vote a salary to a man accused, not by him, Mr. Tarte put in, but by another hon. member of the House. There was no use saying the letters were forgeries. To say that he was in a conspiracy was an unmitigated falsehood. He asked if it was not reasonable to suppose that when such an important officer left such an important office that the Minister should inform himself of the particulars. He said he did not wish to be unjust to any man. If Mr. Perley be not guilty, Mr. Tarte said, he would be the first to declare it in the House. "But if this letter be true," and he held up a folded paper with one hand while with the other he raised a bundle of other letters from his desk. There were cries of "Read, read." "If the Prime Minister says read," Mr. Tarte responded "I will, but otherwise I will not read it until I come before the committee." Sir John shook his head with a troubled look. Sir Hector's face was very red, and his eyes were fixed on the yellow pattern in the green carpet. "I believe I have almost 80 letters written by the member for Quebec West"—the voice of the member for Montmorency filled the chamber with its determined distinctness. "They were not forgeries, they were genuine." They proved that during the session nearly from day to day a member of the House had received private information from the Department of Public Works. "I tell the hon. Minister of Public Works that his name was dragged from day to day into contempt by the member for Quebec West. If I were going to believe that these letters are true we would be face to face with high crimes. I was justified in asking if it be not against the public interest that the item for the salary of Mr. Perley be allowed to stand until we know if he is guilty or not guilty."

Sir John Macdonald thought it strange that at this stage of the proceedings an attempt should be made to draw the House into a discussion upon a question entirely irrelevant to the matter under consideration. Such an officer as a chief engineer of public works would always be required, and the vote was to furnish a salary for whatever officer acted in that capacity between July 1, 1891, and June 30, 1892. The vote was not asked for the salary of Mr. Perley nominally, but for the person who shall fill the office between the period named.

The debate was continued by Messrs. Davies Mills, Ives and Fraser up to 6 o'clock. After recess the matter was not resumed, as the House simply met and adjourned. The scrap was lively while it lasted.

Sir John Macdonald gives notice to-night that he will move on Thursday next that Joseph G. H. Bergeron, member for Beauharnois, be appointed chairman of committee of the whole House.

The Washington Negotiations.

Before the orders of the day were called the Washington negotiation matter was brought up again by a question from Sir Richard Cartwright as to when the papers would be brought down.

Sir John Thompson said that he had already explained that the bringing down of the papers was delayed because it was necessary to obtain the consent of the Imperial Government with regard to some of them, but they would be brought down as soon as possible.

Mr. Mills thought the Government ought not to have the Governor-General say in the speech from the throne that the papers would be brought down if the Government did not have control of them. Sir John Thompson made a brief reply in which he denied that there was any unnecessary delay in bringing down the papers, and claimed that all the Speech from the throne had promised was that the papers would be brought down as soon as possible.

The Government Printing.

On the item for the Department of Public Printing and Stationery Mr. Somerville brought up the question of printing being done outside of the Department. Mr. Chapleau said that no printing was now done outside of the Government Printing office. Three years ago some of the voters' lists had been done in outside offices, but now the department would do all its own work, even the geological survey report, which had been done in Montreal, being done in the bureau this year.

A slight passage of arms took place between Messrs. Ives and Amyot on the former's twitting the latter as to the manner in which the printing in the province of Quebec was done.

Dr. Roome and Messrs. Marshall and Armstrong interviewed the Hon. Mr. Dewdney, Superintendent General of Indian Affairs this morning with reference to passing an act bringing Indian reservations under the jurisdiction of the drainage acts of the several provinces. Mr. Dewdney promised to give the matter his attention at an early date.

A Government caucus will be held tomorrow morning.

The regular annual meeting of the Dominion Rifle Association will be held tomorrow. It is most probable that Hon. G. A. Kirkpatrick will be re-elected president of the Association and Hon. J. A. Ouimet chairman of the council.

Dinner parties are being given to-night by Sir Adolphe Caron and Hon. G. E. Foster.

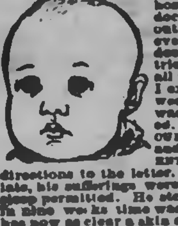
ON FIRE WITH ECZEMA.

Terrible Sufferings of Little Baby. Seven Doctors and Two Hospitals Fail. Cured by Cuticura.

My baby boy, 5 months old, broke out with eczema. The itching and burning was intense; the eczema spread to his limbs, breast, face and head, until he was nearly covered; his torturing agonies were pitiable to behold; he had no peace and but little rest night or day.



He was under treatment at different times at two hospitals and by seven doctors in this city without the least benefit; every prescription of the doctors was faithfully tried, but he grew worse all the time. For months I expended about $5 per week for medicines, and was entirely discouraged. I purchased CUTICURA, CUTICURA SOAP and CUTICURA RESOLVENT and followed the directions to the letter. Relief was immediate, his sufferings were eased, and rest and sleep permitted. He steadily improved and in nine weeks time was entirely cured, and has now as clear a skin and is as fair a boy as any mother could wish to see. I recommend every mother to use it for every Baby Humor.

The Daily Review.

THURSDAY, MAY 21, 1891.

Dr. Maclagan, a Scot, Succeeds the Late Dr. Magee, an Irishman.

LONDON, May 20.—Scotchmen are delighted at the appointment of Right Rev. William Dalrymple Maclagan, Bishop of Lichfield, as Archbishop of York. Dr. Maclagan, though less brilliant than his predecessor, Archbishop Magee, is notably pious and energetic and a man of deep learning and much astuteness.

The Right Rev. William Dalrymple Maclagan, son of the late David Maclagan, M.D., Physician to the Forces, was born in 1826, and was educated at St. Peter's College, Cambridge. In early life he served in the army in India, and retired as a lieutenant in 1852. He was sometime Honorary Chaplain to Queen Victoria, a Royal Dean and Chaplain to the Bishop of London and subsequently Rector of Newington and Vicar of Kensington. He was consecrated Ninety-first Bishop of Lichfield in 1878.

Wants a Duty on Nickel.

OTTAWA, May 20.—Mr. P. Imrie of Glasgow, Scotland, is here. He will propose to establish extensive nickel steel works in Canada if the Dominion Parliament will impose an export duty on crude nickel or matte. He thinks the duty on matte should be $100 per ton. Mr. Imrie says the world cannot do without our ore and he sees in an export duty a chance to establish refining works in Canada employing thousands of our own people.

Rough on the Canadian Hog.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Secretary Rusk has issued an order requiring that all sheep and swine intended to be imported from Canada shall be quarantined for 15 days. Contagious diseases exist in other countries, and as Canada does not quarantine against them the order was issued to prevent the introduction in this country of diseases of swine and sheep by importation through Canada.

Struck by Lightning.

CONSECON, Ont., May 20.—This afternoon during the thunderstorm the barn and stables belonging to Charles A. Chase, who lives about two miles from this place, were struck by lightning and with their contents, which consisted of one horse, several cattle, hay, grain and farming implements, were totally consumed.

Killed By a Colt.

WARDSVILLE, May 21.—While playing with a young colt this afternoon the 5-year-old son of Duncan Purcell of the third concession of Aldborough was kicked in the stomach and died in 15 minutes.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

DEBATE ON THE ELECTORAL FRANCHISE ACT.

The First Division List—Mr. Jamieson's Prohibition Motion Taken Up—Contractors Said to be Favored by the Department—Several Questions for Ministers to Answer.

OTTAWA, May 20.—In the House to-day Dr. Landerkin and Mr. Lister asked some questions of the Minister of Public Works with regard to letting the contracts and the construction of the public buildings at Walkerton and Strathroy.

Prohibition.

There was a long list of notices of motions to be gone through, but the impression of the House was that they would by rapidly disposed of and the debate on Mr. M. C. Cameron's bill be taken up. However, when Mr. Jamieson's resolution was reached the hon. member stood up and surprised the House by proceeding to debate it.

Mr. Jamieson addressed the House under very discouraging circumstances. Not from the very start to the conclusion of his remarks could he secure attention. All over the benches there was a persistent hum of conversation, which at times almost drowned his voice. He began by telling the House that he did not think any apology was necessary for again bringing this question to the attention of the House. The resolution was the logical outcome of the position the House had taken in connection with the abolition of the liquor traffic. During the present session there had been a great number of petitions sent from all parts of the country. These, he contended, were entitled to be received with respect, and should be given their due weight. It was clear in his opinion that the people were ready for a prohibitory liquor law. He hoped the question would not become a partisan question. He reviewed the course in Parliament of the movement. On several occasions the Commons had passed resolutions declaring for the abolition of the liquor traffic. Some people might think that the time had not yet arrived when a prohibitory liquor law should be passed, but on the other hand there were a large number who thought the people would under the measure be educated up not only to temperance but to the enforcement of the law. He referred to the act which had been introduced embodying the principle of a prohibitory liquor law, which was not acceptable to the Premier, and to the compromise agreed upon by which the Canadian Temperance Act, popularly known as the Scott Act, became law. It had been claimed that repeal of that act by the general desire of the people indicated a retrograde movement in regard to this question. The hon. member denied this, and claimed that the repeal of the Canadian Temperance Act indicated that the people were dissatisfied with local option and that peculiar kind of prohibition embodied in the act. He produced statistics showing how drunkenness had decreased during the years that the Scott Act was in force as compared with the years before and after the act became law. In eighteen counties of Ontario when they were under license, in 1884 there were [illegible] convictions for drunkenness. In 1888, when the Scott Act was in force, the convictions decreased to 185, and in 1890, when they were under license again, the same class of convictions rose to 560. This question, he argued, had narrowed itself down to this, whether the people were ready for this change of the law, which would be highly beneficial in its operation. After dealing with the Province of Ontario he turned to Prince Edward Island, where the whole of the island was under prohibition except the city of Charlottetown, and the results had been most satisfactory. In Nova Scotia more than half of the territory was under the act, and that the people were satisfied with the result was shown in the fact that they had no desire to return to the license system. In New Brunswick nine counties out of fourteen were under the operation of the prohibitory act. In Quebec the law was not generally adopted, but the results were gratifying where it was in operation. In Manitoba four-fifths of the Province was under the influence of the prohibitory act. Some temperance men, he went on to say, had proposed that they should regulate the traffic, and asserted that this was the proper way to deal with it; but the result of regulation in the past had been such as to give little encouragement for hope from regulation. The only remedy for the evils of the liquor traffic was prohibition.

Messrs. O'Brien and Coatsworth delivered short addresses.

The Franchise Act.

Mr. M. C. Cameron moved the second reading of his bill to repeal the Dominion Franchise Act and all its amendments. The speech in which he supported his motion was marked by the terseness and vigor with which six years ago he opposed the bill from the same place from which he spoke to-night. Mr. Cameron said no act affecting the representation of the people in Parliament in Canada during the last quarter of a century had been received with such wide opposition as had the Franchise Act. It had been wholly uncalled for; there were no demands for it, no petitions. Five or six years had shown it harsh, difficult to work out, unsatisfactory in details. It had been introduced by the First Minister for political ends, and has been pushed through against stern opposition solely for political ends. It was intended to damage one political party and benefit another; its effect had been to damage both. He believed that the honest sentiment of a majority of the people of the country and of a majority of the House was against the act. The experience of the the last six years, during which it had been in operation a part of the time and a part of the time suspended, showed that it opened wide the doors to all kinds of political fraud. (Hear, hear). He had made the statement, he went on, that the act opened the door to all sorts of frauds in elections, and he gave some examples of how good voters are out of the lists and had been put on by the revising officers or someone else. In an electoral division he knew of there were on the voters' lists on which the last election was conducted 125 names on twice, 15 names on three times and 50 names on as income voters of men who were not living in the riding on the county for a year before the application was made. Could gentlemen on either side of the House, he asked, be content to conduct elections on voters' lists such as these? In another county 119 names were added to the lists at the revision, and yet when the electors came to the polls to vote only 12 of them were on the list. In the same list 12 names were put on who were minors. This showed that the electors had no protection or assurance that when their names were put on at the revision they would be there on polling day. In another county, he said, 130 names were struck off, erased from the voters' lists at the revision, and yet every name was on the lists upon which the elections were held. He would not say where the fraud was, he would not say there was fraud, but it was extraordinary that all these names should have been left on the list.

The Liberals were handicapped in the race; but they were often handicapped in the race. It was generally with the Conservatives "tails I win, heads you lose." (Cheers.) It was generally a battle contested with loaded dice, and for the last two elections the Government had had everything in their hands. If they were an honest voters' list, fairly scrutinized and honestly printed, one would have nothing to say, nothing to complain of, but with a voters' list so imperfect surely there was room for grave objections. This was not all. For two years before the election there was no revision of the voters' list, but two months after the election arrangements were being made for a revision, and $150,000 appeared on the estimates covering part of the expenditure. Of course the Government, as everybody would admit, did not know how long it might live. "It may," added the member for Huron, "be on the brink of a precipice now. I hope they are." [Great laughter.] If the voters' lists were revised this year the Government would have to pay, according to the cost of the two former revisions, $350,000, and the candidates would have to pay at least an equal sum. In conclusion, Mr. Cameron appealed to hon. gentlemen opposite whether it was not a fact that the Dominion Franchise Act had proved unsatisfactory to themselves. Did they not find it complicated and expensive, and did they no find when they came to the polling day an enormous number of mistakes that had crept into the lists? Was it not time that the act was repealed? He suggested in the place of the present another franchise—one based on the Local Legislature franchise of each Province. Then they would have one not costing a million and a half of money, but one without money and without price. It was one prescribed by the people among whom we lived and it was given to us, not costing a farthing. He contended that those who had any experience of the Provincial franchise would agree with him that it would be far better, less complicated, less expensive than the one we had now for the Dominion. He had heard as pronounced a Conservative as he was a Liberal declare that of all the measures passed in the last 12 years the Electoral Franchise Act was the most defective, the worst in principle and the most difficult to understand. [Loud cheers.]

The Government's Reply.

Sir John Thompson was the Minister who rose to reply, and by way of preface he told the House that Mr. Cameron had just followed the course that he expected he would. He reminded the House of the discussions that had taken place, and remarked that notwithstanding the fact that there were so many new faces, every member of the House must be familiar with the subject. In 1885 there had been a most elaborate discussion of every principle involved. In 1886, when he had occasion to introduce some amendments to the Franchise Act, they had a very full discussion, and again in 1887, in 1888 and last year every argument was [illegible] viewed which the committee of the whole House had dealt with at such great length in 1885. Sir John then claimed for the existing act that it secured the most complete uniformity in the principle of representation, and argued that if it were repealed it would be necessary to revert to a system which gave less security for uniformity. He criticized the Provincial franchise and the various kinds of officials by whom it was administered in the different Provinces. He remarked that reference had been made to the fact that considerable expense had attended the carrying out of the revisions of the lists in the past, but declared that this would not always be the case. The first revision involved the preparation of electoral lists from the original lists and necessarily entailed an expense which could not be expected in subsequent revisions. The cost of the second revision was enormously increased in order to provide for the permanent setting up of the lists, so that the cost of subsequent revisions might be lessened. They now came to the third revision with the full expectation that the cost would be largely decreased—reduced almost to a minimum. The bill now before the House, Sir John went on to say, asked the House to adopt a different franchise for each province of the Dominion and to make that franchise for all time. The result would be inevitable confusion and an injustice to voters now on the Dominion list who in some of the provinces would be deprived of their right to exercise the franchise, although they might be as capable of doing so as he himself. Another argument advanced by Sir John against the adoption of the bill was that it would necessitate another general election. He took up in a good-humored way Mr. Cameron's remark about the Government being on the brink of a precipice. He concluded by moving that the bill be read this day six months.

Mr David Mills made a very able reply to the Minister's speech.

After remarks from Messrs. Daly, Desjardines and others a vote was taken with this result:

Notes.

Mr. Barron, in introducing his bill to amend the act respecting the election of members of the House of Commons, said that the amendments he proposed were two: the first allowed the deposit of $200 to be made other than in cash as at present required; and the second made it compulsory on the judge to hold a recount if asked to do so.

In answer to a question by Mr. Lepine Hon. Mr. Chapleau stated that the typesetting machines in government printing office cost $2000 each, that they would set 2500 ems an hour and that at the rate of wages paid in the bureau the cost would be 4 2-7 cents per 1000 ems.

JUMPED TO HER DEATH.

Sarah Little's Attempt to Escape from the Mercer.

TORONTO, May 21.—Sarah Little on April 15 was brought up from Belleville to serve a term of one year for receiving chickens knowing them to have been stolen. At the Mercer she gave her place of birth as Toronto, but could not give any address where friends might be found. On admission she was detailed to work in the laundry, and her dormitory was located in the fourth story of the western wing of the building. To all appearance the girl was tractable and worked hard. She had very little to say to anyone and quickly gave the impression to those in charge that she was only too willing to accept the rules of the reformatory and be guided by them.

About 4.30 o'clock on Monday morning the night guard, who makes the round of the dormitories every two hours, was startled by hearing piercing screams coming from the dormitory in the third story. Hurrying there she found that the women had been alarmed at seeing a dark body slide quickly down from above, immediately in front of one of the windows. Whatever it was looked in for a moment and disappeared with a shriek. They persisted in their story, and it gained confirmation when the guard, on going to the window, saw a rope swaying in the wind, proving conclusively that the prisoners had some ground for alarm.

While this was going on inside, an outside watchman was attracted by cries for help which came from the sidewalk fronting the west wing. Hurrying to the spot he found a woman lying on the brick pathway uttering ejaculations of pain and feebly calling for assistance. The alarm once given the woman was speedily carried into the building and medical assistance summoned. It was discovered that the unfortunate was 17-year-old Sarah Little. Her spine was found to be broken, her right knee fractured and an ankle sprained. She was conveyed to the hospital ward, where she now lies between life and death.

Her story as told Miss O'Reilly, the superintendent of the Mercer, is as follows: On Sunday night after retiring to her bed, which is separated from the others by a wooden partition, she took the rung of a chair and pried apart two of the bars, making an opening sufficiently large through which she could squeeze through to the outside. This accomplished she took her blanket and cut it into strips. This she tied together and twisted it into a rope of sufficient strength to bear her weight. This was fastened to one of the bars, and getting outside on the window edge she began to let herself down to the ground below. Everything went all right until she got opposite a window in the third story. There she was noticed by some of the women, who began to scream. This frightened her so badly as her appearance did theirs, and she let go her hold in her terror and fell to the earth. Had it not been for the other women she would have undoubtedly succeeded in getting clear away. As it is it is probable she will never be able to work again, even if it is possible for her to recover.

WALLACEBURG, May 20.—The Wadsworth mystery is likely to again claim the attention of the public. Wallaceburg parties have received a letter from people named Wadsworth in New Jersey making enquiries about Wadsworth, who they say is their father. James Heskiah Hardy, whose name was mixed up with the mystery, is again residing in Sarnia. It is rumored that Pinkerton's men have the case in hand.

THEY SERVE THEIR PARTY.

A REFORM contemporary complains that, whereas members of Parliament are presumably elected to attend to the affairs of the country, and are paid for that work, a great many of them render little or no real service. This is unfortunately true, says the Hamilton Spectator, but the fact does not now come to light for the first time. In fact the leader of the Reform party laid down the rule that his duty and the duty of his followers was not to further the interests of the country but to oppose—not to aid in securing good laws but to obstruct. This is a most monstrous doctrine to lay down; but it is that which has guided Reform members of Parliament. They do not comprehend that they owe any duties to the country—their one aim is to turn Conservatives out of office and put themselves in, and their desire is not to help to make legislation as good as possible, but as bad as possible.

Compare this conduct with that of Mr. Meredith and his followers in the Ontario Legislature. It is quite safe to say that no member of the assembly—not even one of the ministers—exercises more watchful care over legislation than the leader of the opposition. He points out defects, recommends changes in the public interest, and gives the country the benefit of his knowledge, his experience and his ability in placing good laws upon the statute book. As the leader is, so are the followers. They understand that they are elected to serve the country, and are paid for so doing. They understand that when they draw their sessional indemnity they draw pay for services rendered. How many Reform members of the Dominion parliament can say the same? They openly announce that their duty is to oppose. They talk against time, and then tell the public that the sessions of Parliament are unnecessarily prolonged. They demand all sorts of needless returns, and then tell the public that the expenses of the House are shamefully large.

The difference between the two oppositions does not arise so much from a difference in men as from a difference in the traditions and policies of the two parties. The Conservative policy is a patriotic policy. The main question when any measure comes up is, Will it benefit the country generally? The Reform policy is to secure office. The main question is, Will it advance the fortunes of the party?

But no one of the distinguished gentlemen who hold party before country has any hesitancy about taking the people's money for service which has not been rendered to the people.

Is it any wonder that the people refuse to trust such a party?

THE Globe refers to the increase in the interest paid on the Dominion debt per head of the population, but it neglects to point out that the increase was greater in the five years of Reform rule than it has been in the twelve years of the Conservative regime.

THE recent death of Sir Edward Kenny, who was Receiver-General in the first Government formed after confederation, calls attention to the fact that of the thirteen members who took office on July 1st, 1867, eight are still living. Only two of them, however, now hold office in the Cabinet, Sir John Macdonald and Sir Hector Langevin.

$500 REWARD OFFERED.

FOR THE RECOVERY OF THE BODY OF MR. PURCELL.

Meantime a Vigorous Search is Being Made for the Corpse—A Weird Scene Along the Islands of the St. Lawrence—Craig Not Yet Caught.

CORNWALL, May 21.—John James Craig, one of the supposed snatchers of Contractor Purcell's remains, is still at large, though the officers pretend to know of his whereabouts. It is generally supposed that he is hiding in some friend's house, and as he is known to be well armed a peaceable surrender is out of the question. An attempt is being made to-night to capture him.

The evidence against the men is purely circumstantial. A farmer named Murchison is prepared to swear that Craig drove down with him from Cornwall on Thursday evening, and when reaching a clump of trees not far from the graveyard got off the wagon on the pretence of going to visit his cousin, he one whose horse he shot about a year ago. He did not show up at the latter's house, however, that evening, and early the next morning was seen by several people running away from the direction of the cemetery through the fields behind the farm, as if he did not want to be seen. Both men were seen in a boat near the cemetery several times previous to the night on which the robbery took place, and Derouchie was out all the night in question. A young farmer named Tighe states that he did not go to his work till about 8 o'clock that morning, which for him was very late. As to the third man who was under suspicion a thorough investigation into the evidence, which certain people claimed was conclusive of his guilt, convinced the detectives he had nothing to do whatever with the work. It is understood, however, that Craig and Derouchie are not the only ones implicated in the affair, and new developments may be expected, several people being under surveillance. In the meantime the search for the body has not by any means been abandoned and last night men explored all the shoal waters near Stanley.

The search among the islands for the body last night was an event of unusual interest. Boats were provided with flaming pine torches. One boat was in charge of Barnard, the Indian pilot, who stood, spear in hand, watching in the bow for anything dead or alive that might be worth picking up, another man in the rear doing the paddling and steering. It was a pretty sight, the light of the pine torches composed of a kind of small wire basket, in which the pieces of pine are lit, shining far over the water. Though the storm had made the river very muddy, they were able to look down a distance of at least 10 feet into the water. The tour made was a lengthy one, but nothing to denote the missing corpse or the place where it might be concealed was found, and the only things brought back were a couple of big fish.

Craig is closely connected with many very excellent families in the county, whom he has disgraced by being sent to the penitentiary.

Craig came to the "Branch" on Sunday last and is armed with a rifle and two revolvers. He is a daring and nervy fellow and will in all probability make a desperate fight before he is taken. The place where he is known to be is a thick swamp, and on account of the large amount of underbrush he could keep in hiding until the frost drove him out, as he could easily enter the cellars at night and secure rations enough to keep him for some time.

Posters have been issued by the executors of the estate offering $500 reward for the recovery of the body within ten days.

It was a Rosebud All the Same.

The following conversation was overheard in a King-st. horse car on St. George's day:—Harry, where is your rosebud to-day? In my pocket, my dear; two of them for a quarter. Why, how cheap! but won't they get crushed? Give me one. Here you are, then—want a match? Why, that's a cigar you're giving me. Certainly, a "Rosebud Reliance," one of Tasse, Wood & Co.'s best brands. That's a shame, Harry, but now you've deceived me; you might tell me why they are called rosebuds. Well, the reason is because the end to be lighted is closed like a rosebud, in consequence of which the cigar lights evenly like a cigarette, and therefore can never burn crooked. Now, in lighting ordinary cigars you will notice—What?—car stops.

Concerning Our Canals.

A supplement to the annual report of the Department of Railways and Canals shows that the total revenue from tolls amounted to $346,049 for 1890, compared with $381,189 during 1889, an apparent decrease of $35,040; but an actual decrease, taking account of rebates, equal to $25,908. The 245,962 tons of grain which passed through the Welland Canal to United States ports, 16,433 tons were trans-shipped at Ogdensburg and passed down the St. Lawrence canals to Montreal. The rebate on the former amounted to $3,287, and on the latter $[illegible]. From the foregoing figures it will be seen that the quantity of grain passed down the Welland Canal from United States ports to United States ports has steadily increased each year from 47,820 tons in 1886 to 245,962 tons in 1890, being an increase of 198,080 tons, and an increase over the previous year of 58,168 tons. The quantity to Montreal shows a decrease of 29,288 tons for 1890 from the previous year, and 104,208 tons less than in 1888.

On the subject of reduction of tolls on coal, the report says: "Upon the urgent request of the forwarders and others interested in the coal trade, His Excellency the Governor-General-in-Council, on the 11th April, 1890, authorized a reduction of tolls on soft coal passing down or eastward through the Welland Canal, from 20 to 10 cents a ton for the season of navigation only. The results have not been such as were anticipated, the quantity passed down during the season of 1890 being 2,680 tons less than in 1889, and 21,728 less than in 1888. Of the quantity of coal, 23,396 tons, passed eastward through the Welland Canal during 1890, Canadian vessels carried 22,781 tons and United States vessels 615 tons."

Of the total quantity of freight moved on the Welland canal, says the report, agricultural products comprised more than one-half. On the St. Lawrence canals the total quantity of freight moved was [illegible] tons, of which 319,670 tons were agricultural products and 326,871 tons of merchandise. On the Ottawa canals the total quantity moved was 651,285 tons, of which 636,908 tons was the product of the forest.

"The Canadian Pacific and Canada Atlantic Railways have become formidable competitors to the Ottawa Canals for the carrying of lumber from the Ottawa district.

"Lumber of all kinds exported from Ottawa and Hull to the United States during the year 1890 is reported to be as follows:—By railroad, $2,812,312; by vessels, $1,896,706. Quantity carried by the Ottawa canals for the same period is as follows:—Sawn lumber, 318,456,000 feet; shingles, 4,902,000 feet.

"The quantity of grain exported from Chicago to Canada by lake during the season of 1890 is reported to be 2,477,648 bushels, and the quantity in transit 4,606,321 bushels.

"The total value of freight exported from Chicago to Canada is reported to be $1,897,708.22, of which amount Canadian vessels carried $1,146,771.84."

During the year 12,126 tons passed through the Rideau Canal, the tolls of which amounted to $6,361. The tonnage through the Ottawa river canals amounted to 675,771, and dues thereon to $26,961.

A MISSOURI TORNADO

SPREADS DEATH AND DESOLATION ON EVERY SIDE.

A Score or More Persons Killed or Fatally Injured—Houses Blown Down and Their Inmates Buried in the Debris—A Shocking Story of Death and Desolation.

MEXICO, Missouri, May 21.—A terrific tornado passed three miles northeast of this place at 3 o'clock this afternoon near Bear Creek. Fifteen houses in that vicinity were destroyed, ten or twelve persons were killed and an equal number fatally injured and large numbers badly. At the house of Farmer Duffy John Dorger and family were living. James Dorger, aged six, was killed outright. Lizzie Dorger's skull was crushed and a large piece of timber penetrated her side. She soon died. Mrs. Dorger was crushed to death by falling timbers and Mr. Dorger was fatally injured. The house was swept away. Nothing has been heard of Mr. Duffy and it is supposed his body was carried away by the cyclone. The barn was blown down and two horses killed. At William Strassberry's house William Yostranger and family were visiting. The house was swept bodily away. William Yostranger was killed, his wife was badly injured and his little girl fatally hurt. Will Strassberg was also fatally injured at the house of Eli Norris. Gertrude Fletcher was instantly killed, E. B. Norris was fatally injured, Cable Norris was badly and his wife seriously hurt. Wittie Fletcher and his sister Kate were killed and their bodies terribly mangled. At the same place Mrs. Emily Seed, aged 62, was fatally hurt and Mrs. Norris, mother of E. B. Norris, was killed. F. R. Norris was badly hurt.

Joseph Kendall's house and barn were blown down. Kendall narrowly escaped. James Dillard's house was blown down. A mowing machine was carried 100 yards and torn to shreds. A large iron boiler, weighing 1200 pounds, was broken to pieces. A calf was carried over a quarter of a mile. Several horses were killed and 25 chickens were plucked clean. The cyclone passed on to the east, passing Rush Hill one mile north, carrying destruction everywhere. There is no doubt great destruction of property and life further east. Great trees are torn up or blown down. The scene at the places is horrible. E. B. Merry was holding his baby in his arms when the cyclone struck Merry was dashed against the house and the baby was carried many yards and dashed against a tree.

The house of Valentine Erdle caught fire and was destroyed. The inmates had vacated the house and nobody was hurt.

The house of T. B. Hall was blown down, but the family escaped. A horse at that place was carried a half mile and dashed dead on the ground.

Boston Kunkel's house was swept away and Mr. Kunkel was killed. Farmers Rogers and Crane were also killed there.

Several farm hands near the Kunkel and Rogers farms are also believed to have been killed.

BUY NOW IF AT ALL.

EVERY day makes more apparent the fact that the town is going ahead rapidly. Numerous changes have taken place in the way of the ownership of property. Many workingmen are buying houses and lots or lots on which to build. One of the most suitable locations is that known as the Erie property, at the west end, owned largely by Mr. Wm. Fitzgerald. This week he has closed the sale of a very desirable new house and lot, and has several eligible lots on this property to dispose of. Property in this neighbourhood is rapidly being built up, and it will be well to have a look at the situation if one is at all disposed to buy. The terms are very favorable and especially low for cash, though payment on time may be arranged.

Funeral Announcement

The death took place yesterday at Orillia of Mrs. O'Brien, grandmother of Dr. Brennan. The body was brought here for interment, arriving to-day. The funeral will take place from the residence of Dr. Brennan on Friday morning, 22nd inst., at 9 o'clock, interment at the Roman Catholic cemetery.

Since it is now a well established fact that catarrh is a blood disease, medical men are quite generally prescribing Ayer's Sarsaparilla for that most loathsome complaint, and the result, in nearly every instance, proves the wisdom of their advice.

A Runaway Excitement.

This afternoon the horse attached to the handsome new coupe owned by Mr. R. Gibbs took fright while standing on Hunter-st. and ran away, causing considerable excitement on George-st. The horse dashed down George-st., turned on to Charlotte and ran into the yard of the Balmoral hotel. No damage to speak of was done to the coupe.

Methodist District Meeting.

The Methodist ministers of this district met at Millbrook yesterday when the district meeting was opened. All the ministers of the district, including Rev. S. J. Shorey and Rev. J. H. Locke, of town, and Rev. A. C. Wilson, of Ashburnham, were present. The session was devoted to ministerial work. To-day the lay delegates will be present and business will be proceded with.

Capt. Howard Nicholson, of the North King, is in town to-day.

Mr. T. Fortye has accepted a position with the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company and goes on the road as traveller for the company.

Mr. Walter Paterson, who has been ill for some weeks past, his friends will be glad to learn, has so much improved that he was able to enjoy a drive yesterday.

Hawking and spitting, foul breath, loss of sense of taste and smell, oppressive headache, etc., are the results of catarrh. Nasal Balm offers a certain and speedy relief and permanent cure from these miseries. Thousands of testimonials speak of its wonderful merit. Try it; sold by all dealers.

The Edison Men Coming.

Building operations at the Edison works are brisk. The excavations for two more buildings which were commenced some time ago are now complete and the mason work on one of them well advanced. These buildings will be pushed ahead with the same energy and enterprise that has marked the operations of the company since their advent here. Some of the machinery has arrived here for the machine shop, and workmen are engaged fitting up the interior of this building. Mr. Nelson, Superintendent of the wire department, with two of his foremen, and other men, has arrived here. It is expected that the main body of the company's employees will be here on the 28th inst. Now that the railway sidings have been completed into the works everything will run smoothly in in connection with the building operations. Every day many car loads of material are shunted into the grounds to be consumed in the erection of the buildings.

BUTLER IN THE POLICE COURT.

Charged With Conspiracy in the City of London—Several Charges Against the Prisoner.

Charles Butler, the well-known grain and seed and piano operator who made Peterborough the headquarters of his companies, and whose arrest some weeks ago was already noticed, came up for examination on a charge of conspiracy at London on Saturday. The complainant was Mrs. John Dicey, of Westminster, and in her evidence said that on April 2nd two men came to her place. One signed his name Thomas Hope; the other gave no name. It took them an hour and a half to persuade her and the family to allow the instrument to be placed in the house. There was a card produced with the name of the firm on it, and Hope wanted them to sign it so that in case of the death of herself or husband they could take it away. The card was signed after the words "payable on demand" were struck out. They took the card away. Five days after the piano was delivered by Mr. Butler and two other men in a dray. The piano was put in the sitting room, and Butler produced a paper and talked as if she had ordered the piano. She produced a paper left by Hope on his first visit, certifying that it was left as a sample; and should become the property of Mrs. Dicey when four others had been sold in the neighborhood. Butler then produced the original card she had signed, and said it was a plain order, and she must pay for the piano. Afterwards her little girl brought the card to her. On the 9th Butler returned with a man he called Prof. Williams. He told her if she did not settle the company had told him to go on and sue, and the case was entered, but would be stopped if she settled. He told her it would cost her about $200 if the case went on, and she was sure to lose. He took some papers out of his satchel, and told her if he left them she would have to attend court at Peterborough. Finally, he offered to let the matter drop if she would pay him back what it had cost him in the deal, $60, he pretended to have paid for commission and the cost of moving the instrument, etc., making up $116, and she, under influence of fear, signed the note.

Before making the settlement she went to the sugar bush, saw her husband, and he told her to do what she pleased about it. Her daughter read the paper before she signed it. She understood in the first place just as the card read, that she was to get the piano for nothing, except leaving it in the house, providing that the agent made four other sales in the neighborhood. She was in town on the 9th and saw Mr. Clark the lawyer, who advised her that she should not pay for the piano. The case was then adjourned till Tuesday, May 26, Mr. McKillop stating that he had two other charges against the prisoner, which would be ready then. Mr. E. Meredith, Q.C., and Mr. Durand, of Galt, defended Butler.

Serious Result of an Accident.

Mr. R. Hamilton, of the Sun Life Assurance Company, is suffering from a severe affliction, the result of a rather insignificant accident he experienced some days ago. Mr. Hamilton was engaged sinking a small post in his garden at his residence of his limb against the sharp top of the post, when by accident he struck the knee joint The injury was considered to be nothing at the time, but a day or two afterwards inflammation set in and serious results are now feared. Mr. Hamilton has suffered the most excruciating pain from the inflamed limb and is in a very weak condition at present.

A Sudden Death.

Mr. Wm. Thomas, brother-in-law of Mr. Adam Hall, died this morning at Mr. Hall's residence after a very short illness. The deceased had been unwell for a few days, but nothing serious was anticipated until last evening when serious complications developed. Medical skill was unavailing in efforts to alleviate his suffering and about eleven o'clock this morning he passed away. The deceased gentleman was well known in town, having resided here for quite a number of years. He came here to take a position with Mr. Thos. Bradburn, then in the dry goods business, and for a number of years subsequently he was with Mr. Robt. Fair. He was a quiet, unassuming man, but was respected by all of his acquaintances. The funeral will will take place from Mr. Adam Hall's residence on Saturday.

See Him To-night.

John Thompson in his musical extravaganza "On Hand" appeared in the Opera House last night. The audience, however, failed to be on hand, with exception of some sixty or seventy-five persons, who were principally seated in the gallery. The performance is a unique presentation. A farcial comedy opening the evening, after which came Thompson in his musical "On Hand." There is no plot, but just sufficient conversational interjection to allow the clever and versatile Thompson to make his appearance in a dozen or more different characters. The company consists of three, two ladies who both sing fairly well, and Thompson himself. The latter, however, is a whole company in himself and could furnish amusement and entertainment for a week to the same audience. As a character actor he is good, while he is a musician of remarkable genius. He appeared as the typical Irishman, the German clarionet player, an Italian violinist, a Chinese washee-washee, a "Billy Billy" and a Sheeney clothes dealer. In all these he introduced musical novelties and new dances. He made music on violins, large and small, clarionet, banjo, chinese fiddle, cows horn. Thompson is a clever comedian and musician introducing many new and laughable features, and he should have a packed house to-night when he appears again.

The Wise Savants

Tell us that Rheumatism is a blood disease that it can be cured only by a remedy which works through the blood. And yet, if you have the darting pains of Rheumatism in muscles or joints, try a little of Clark's Lightning Liniment. It will go direct to the seat of pain and relieve it at once. There is no waiting weeks and months until the disease can be attacked through the blood. This seems to be contrary to scientific claims, but it is true that Clark's Lightning Liniment will cure Rheumatism. Sold by all druggists; price fifty cents. Clark Chemical Co., Toronto.

EXECUTED FOR MURDER.

JAMES KANE IS HANGED BY THE NECK AT BELLEVILLE.

For the Murder of his Wife in March—He is Silent on the Scaffold and Dies Hard—An Account of his Awful Crime.

By Telegraph to the Review.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., May 21.—James Kane was this morning executed here for the murder of his wife Elizabeth. The prisoner took breakfast, eating a good meal, and engaged in his last preparations for eternity. At 7.45 the executioner entered the prison and within a few minutes completed his preparations. It was not until 8.16, however, that the procession for the scaffold left the condemned man's cell. Two minutes later the rope was adjusted around Kane's neck and at 8.19 the drop fell. The prisoner

DIED WITHOUT SPEAKING.

He was pale and composed, but seemed to die hard, his groans being painful to hear.

The prisoner's last night was spent quietly as usual. At midnight he lay down and slept quietly until 4 a.m. Half an hour later his daughter arrived and at 7.15 took her last farewell of her parent. At 5 o'clock the prisoner's spiritual advisers, Mgr. Farrelly and Father O'Brien, arrived and engaged in devotional exercises.

THE STORY OF THE CRIME

thus expiated is, so far as known to the public, as follows:—Some 6 years ago James Kane, formerly a soldier in the British army, took as his second wife a widow name Elizabeth Skinner. Kane was an Irishman, 46 years old, and a Roman Catholic. The woman was English, 49 years of age and a Protestant. For a week prior to the murder James Kane and his wife had not been living together, she residing with her sons, Alfred and James Skinner, children by her first husband. On the afternoon of Monday, March 23rd last, shortly before 5 o'clock, Kane went to the shop of James Skinner and asked his stepson where his mother was. He was told that she was assisting Alfred Skinner, who was removing from a house on Church-st. Kane immediately went to the house in question and was met near the door by Mrs. Alfred Skinner, who was leaving the place. He entered the kitchen door and was alone with the woman. What passed between them is not known, but Mrs. Alfred Skinner hearing screams called to her husband, who was approaching the house, and told him that Mr. Kane was in the house with his (Skinner's) mother and she was afraid he was killing her. This premonition proved to be but too true. Skinner rushed into the house, and seeing Kane near Mrs. Kane, struck him a blow with his fist and knocked him to the floor. Mrs. Skinner also entered at the same time and Mrs. Kane staggered towards her, but fell immediately to the floor, and in a few minutes was dead. In Kane's possession was a large butcher knife which was covered with blood and with which he had near the heart, causing her immediate death. The murdered woman never spoke a word. When informed that he had killed his wife, Kane said he was proud of what he had done, and he also expressed the wish that he had killed some of her boys, claiming that it was through them that he had committed the deed. While being conveyed to the police station the murderer expressed the satisfaction he felt at the deed he had committed. The instrument used, a butcher knife sharpened to a point, was taken from the Queen's hotel, where he worked as hostler.

SINCE THE SENTENCE

of death has been passed upon him, Kane did not, to outward appearance, evince a keen realization of the awful position in which he had placed himself and has, indeed, accepted the situation with utmost indifference. His spiritual advisers, Monsigneur Farrelly and Rev. Father O'Brien, spent much time with him in devotional exercises and he apparently derived much consolation from their ministrations. He acknowledged that he should suffer death for the crime which he committed. In appearance Kane was not a man whom one would think likely to perpetrate such a deed. He was about 5 ft. 6 in. in height, of medium build, partly bald, with grey moustache and short beard.

The Sunshine of the Heart.

Cheerfulness is an excellent wearing quality. It has been called the bright weather of the heart. Without it home is dark and desolate, and society becomes a nuisance—a something to be avoided. Unfortunately, we too often meet the miserable, low spirited nervous man and woman. They are continually tortured with a feeling of ennui, a sense of goneness, lifelessness and melancholy. Many complain of their constant nervousness, short breath, a drowsiness after meals, unrest and disquietude at nights, dyspepsia and indigestion. Enough all will readily admit to make life unendurable. Hundreds indeed have a desire to end life at once, and thus get rid of their sufferings. Reader, are you earnest in your desire to secure a natural, healthy, cheerful character and disposition? Are you actuated by a desire to make the world pleasanter for yourself and others? This desire may be attained by the use of that infallible remedy, Paine's Celery Compound. The history of medicine cannot point to its equal as a cure for the troubles which afflict and torment you. Do as thousands of others have done; use without delay this great restorer of the nerve system, this grand builder of muscle and flesh, and you will live in peace and joy to bless its great discovery.

CASH HARDWARE STORE.

On and after 1st April we shall do business on a Cash Basis.

To cover the inevitable losses attendant upon a credit business, which accrue from amount of time spent in keeping accounts, collecting, bad debts, interest account, and in numerous other ways, larger margins of profit must be asked.

In these times cash buyers ask, expect and are entitled to close prices. A careful consideration of the subject convinces us that the time has come, for a cash business done on smaller profits.

The only customers who may be put to inconvenience are those who have had long credit. In more ways than one it will be to their advantage to pay cash.

For convenience of our old customers who consider their accounts due when presented, we will call 30 days cash and render all accounts the first of each month, and we wish to say that we will be happy to do business with them on these terms.

As the new departure is something of an experiment, what would be considered a close cash price will be made all through the stock Not a few leaders only, but a general reduction in everything from the fourth flat to the cellar.

Our idea is to perform more than promised rather than promise more than can be fulfilled.

Our stock is large and varied, consisting of Builders', Contractors', Household, Mechanics', Painters', Shoemakers', Farm, Mill, Factory, Lumbermen's, Sporting, Threshers', Cabinetmakers', and other lines of Hardware.

Indigestion

Is not only a distressing complaint, of itself, but, by causing the blood to become depraved and the system enfeebled, is the parent of innumerable maladies. That Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best cure for Indigestion, even when complicated with Liver Complaint, is proved by the following testimony from Mrs. Joseph Lake, of Brockway Centre, Mich.:—

"Liver complaint and indigestion made my life a burden and came near ending my existence. For more than four years I suffered untold agony, was reduced almost to a skeleton, and hardly had strength to drag myself about. All kinds of food distressed me, and only the most delicate could be digested at all. Within the time mentioned several physicians treated me without giving relief. Nothing that I took seemed to do any permanent good until I commenced the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which has produced wonderful results. Soon after commencing to take the Sarsaparilla I could see an improvement in my condition. My appetite began to return and with it came the ability to digest all the food taken, my strength improved each day, and after a few months of faithful attention to your directions, I found myself a well woman, able to attend to all household duties. The medicine has given me a new lease of life."

THURSDAY, MAY 21, 1891.

SHALL HE WED HER.

"Certainly not," I rejoined, "unless you had some good reason for doing so, such as having been able to account for the visits of two of the ladies to the hotel and not of the third."

"They all had a good pretext for being there. Mrs. Couldock gave her card to the boy before going into the parlor and left as soon as he returned with word that the lady she called to see was not in. Miss Dawes gave no card, but asked for a Miss Terhune, I think, and did not remain a moment after she was informed that that lady had left the hotel."

"And Mrs. Walworth?"

"She came in from the street adjusting her veil, and upon looking around for a mirror was directed to the parlor, in to which she at once stepped. She remained there but a moment, and when she came out passed directly into the street."

These words disconcerted me: the mirror was just over the table in the small room, but I managed to remark nochalantly:

"Could you not tell whether any of these ladies opened the Bible?"

"Not without seeming intrusive."

I sighed and dismissed the man. When he was gone I approached Taylor.

"He can give us no assistance," I cried.

"My friend was already on his feet, looking very miserable.

"I know of only one thing to do," he remarked. "To-morrow I shall call upon Mrs. Couldock and Miss Dawes and entreat them to tell me if, for any reason, they undertook to deliver a letter mysteriously left in the Bible of the——Hotel one day last month. They may have been deputed to do so, and be quite willing to acknowledge it."

"And Mrs. Walworth! Will you not ask her the same question?"

He shook his head and turned away.

"Very well," said I to myself, "then I will."

Accordingly the next day I called upon Mrs. Walworth.

I took her by the hand, and, gently forcing her to stand for a moment where the light from the one window fell full upon her face, I said:

"You must pardon my intrusion upon you at a time when you are naturally so busy, but there is something you can do for me that will rid me of a great anxiety. You remember being in——Hotel one morning last month?"

She was looking quietly up at me, her lips parted, her eyes smiling and expectant, but at the mention of that hotel I thought—and yet I may have been mistaken—that a slight change took place in her expression, if it was only that the glance grew more gentle and the smile more marked.

But her voice when she answered was the same as that with which she had uttered her greeting.

"I do not remember," she replied, "yet I may have been there; I go to so many places. Why do you ask?" she inquired.

"Because if you were there on that morning—and I have been told you were—you may be able to solve a question that is greatly perplexing me."

Still the same gentle, inquiring look on her face; only now there was a little furrow of wonder or interest between the eyes.

"I had business in that hotel on that morning," I continued. "I had left a letter for a young friend of mine in the Bible that lies on the small table of the inner parlor, and as she never received it I have been driven into making all kinds of inquiries in the hope of finding some explanation of the fact. As you were there at the time you may have seen something that would aid me. Is it not possible, Mrs. Walworth?"

Her smile which had faded reappeared. On the lips which Taylor so much admired a little pout became visible, and she looked quite enchanting.

"I do not even remember being at that hotel at all," she protested. "Did Mr. Taylor say I was there?" she inquired, with just that added look of exquisite naivette which the utterance of a lover's name should call up on the face of a prospective bride.

"No," I answered gravely; "Mr. Taylor, unhappily, was not with you that morning."

She looked startled.

"Unhappily," she repeated. "What do you mean by that word?" And she drew back, looking very much displeased.

I had expected this, and so was not thrown off my guard.

"I mean," I proceeded calmly, "that if you had had such a companion with you on that morning I should now be able to put my questions to him, instead of taking your time and interrupting your affairs by my importunities."

"You will tell me just what you mean," said she earnestly.

I was equally emphatic in my reply. "That is only just. You ought to know why I trouble you with this matter. It is because this letter of which I speak was taken from its hiding place by some one who went into the hotel parlor between the hours of 10:30 and 12, and as to my certain knowledge only three persons crossed its threshold on that especial morning at that especial time. I naturally appeal to each of them in turn for an answer to the problem that is troubling me. You know Miss N——. Seeing by accident a letter addressed to her lying in a Bible in a strange hotel, you might have thought it your duty to take it out and carry it to her. If you did and if you lost it——"

"But I didn't," she interrupted, warmly. "I know nothing about any such letter, and if you had not informed so positively that I was in that hotel on that especial day I should be tempted to deny that, too, for I have no recollection of going there last month."

"Not for the purpose of rearranging a veil that had been blown off?"

"Oh!" she said, but as one who recalls a forgotten fact, not as one who is tripped up in an evasion.

I began to think her innocent and lost some of the gloom which had been oppressing me.

"You remember now," said I.

"Oh, yes, I remember that."

Her manner so completely declared that her acknowledgment stopped there, I saw it would be useless to venture further. If she were innocent she could not tell more, if she were guilty she would not; so, feeling that the inclination of my belief was in favor of the former hypothesis, I again took her hand and said:

"I see that you can give me no help. I am sorry, for the whole happiness of a man, and perhaps that of a woman also, depends upon the discovery as to who took the letter from out the Bible where I had hidden it on that unfortunate morning." And, making her another low bow, I was about to take my departure when she grasped me impulsively by the arm.

"What man?" she whispered, and in a lower tone still, "What woman?"

I turned and looked at her. "Great heaven!" thought I, "can such a face hide a selfish and intriguing heart?" and in a flash I summoned up in comparison before me the plain, honest and reliable countenance of Mrs. Couldock and that of the comely and unpretending Miss Dawes, and knew not what to think.

"You do not mean yourself," she continued as she met my look of distress.

"No," I returned; "happily for me my welfare is not bound up in the honor of any woman." And leaving that shaft to work its way into the heart, if that heart was vulnerable, I took my leave, more troubled and less decided than when I entered.

For her manner had been absolutely that of a woman surprised by insinuations she was too innocent to rate at their real importance. And yet, if she did not take away that letter, who did? Mrs. Couldock? Impossible. Miss Dawes? The thought was untenable, even for an instant. I waited in great depression of spirits for the call I knew Taylor would not fail to make me that evening.

When he came I saw what the result of my revelation was likely to be as plainly as I see it now. He had conversed frankly with Mrs. Couldock and with Miss Dawes and was perfectly convinced as to the utter ignorance of them both in regard to the whole affair. In consequence, Mrs. Walworth was guilty in his estimation, and being held guilty could be no wife for him much as he had loved her and urgent as may have been the causes for her act.

"But," said I, in some horror of the consequences of an interference for which I was almost ready to blame myself now, "Mrs. Couldock and Miss Dawes could not have done no more than deny all knowledge of this letter. Now Mrs. Walworth does that, and"——

"You have seen her? You have asked her"——

"Yes, I have seen her, and I have asked her, and not an eyelash drooped as she affirmed a complete ignorance of the whole affair."

Taylor's head fell.

"I told you how that would be," he murmured at last. "I cannot feel that it is any proof of her innocence. Or rather," he added, "I should always have my doubts."

"And Mrs. Couldock and Miss Dawes?"

"Ah!" he cried, rising and turning away, "there is no question of marriage between either of them and myself."

I was therefore not astonished when the week went by and no announcement of his wedding appeared. But I was troubled and am troubled still, for if mistakes are made in criminal courts and the innocent sometimes, through the sheer force of circumstantial evidence, are made to suffer for the guilty, might it not be that in this little question of morals, Mrs. Walworth has been wronged, and that when I played the part of arbiter of her fate I only succeeded in separating two hearts whose right it was to be made happy.

It is impossible to tell, nor is time likely to solve the riddle. Must I then forever blame myself, or did I only do in this matter what any honest man would have done in my place? Answer me, some one, for I do not find my lonely bachelor life in any wise brightened by the doubt, and would be grateful to any one who would relieve me of it.—Anna Katharine Green.

CORBETT AND JACKSON.

THE PUGILISTIC ENCOUNTER ENDS IN A DRAWN BATTLE.

The San Francisco and Australian Pugilists—An all Night Fight of Sixty-one Rounds and no Decisive Result.

By Telegraph to the Review.

SAN FRANCISCO, May, 21.—No pugilistic event ever occurred on the Pacific coast that created more interest or excitement than the great heavyweight battle between Jim Corbett, of San Francisco, and Peter Jackson, of Australia, which was fought at the gymnasium of the California Athletic Club to-night. The purse was $10,000, $1,000 of which went to the loser. It was generally understood the winner would eventually meet Frank Slavin.

A large amount of money was wagered on the coast during the last two days. The California Club last night appointed Hiram Cook referee. Jackson was seconded by Sam Fitzpatrick and Billy Smith. Corbett's seconds were John Donaldson, Billy Delaney and Harry Corbett. The flooring within the ring was covered with padding, over which heavy, dark colored felt was stretched. A new feature at this contest was the 10-second clock, which was called into use whenever a knock down occurred.

It was some minutes after 9 o'clock when Jackson and Corbett, with their seconds, entered the ring. There was a general expression of commendation at the elegant form they presented. The weights so far as could be obtained were Jackson 197, Corbett 185, though it was claimed by some that the difference was even greater than that. After the gloves were adjusted the men advanced and shook hands. Time was called at 9.30.

Round 1.—A few seconds were spent in preliminary sparring. Jackson led lightly and a clinch followed. The men broke away slowly. Jackson led with the right and missed; another clinch followed and Corbett seemed loth to break away. Corbett touched Jackson lightly on the jaw, and as the round closed he received a left-hander in the ribs.

Round 2.—Corbet led, and in the clinch which followed he forced Jackson against the ropes. When the came to the centre Jackson led twice, but failed to reach his man very hard. Corbett made a half arm swing, but Jackson jumped away. Corbett then got one in on Jackson's stomach, and a moment later avoided a body blow by dodging.

The battle up to the ninth round was a very clever exhibition on both sides. Corbett showed a disposition to clinch, while Jackson did most of the leading. Both men showed wonderful smartness on their feet and in dodging, and neither of the men showed any bad temper. At the close of the eighteenth round honors were about even and both men appeared fresh.

The men had been in the ring an hour and fifteen minutes when the nineteenth round opened. The 20th round was a hot one and Corbett had the best of it, getting in several right and left handers on the jaw.

The fight was continued through the these rounds, and Corbett was still forcing in the thirty-first round though he made no very vigorous attacks, both men being too tired to do much.

Round 32.—Jackson rallied and took the aggressive in this round, though he did little beyond giving Corbett a sharp rap in the side.

Round 33.—Both men acting cautiously.

Round 34.—Both still cautious and trying to gain strength, and the spectators becoming impatient.

Rounds 35, 36, 37 and 38.—Both men acting carefully and trying to recover wind. No advantage to either in these rounds. Corbett appears a trifle the fresher of the two. Up to forty-eighth round there was little hard fighting. In that round both men punched viciously and each landed hard. The round was not decisive however.

The fight was continued up to the 57th round, both men giving and taking punishment. It now seems to have developed into a contest of endurance, both fighting wearily, neither anxious to force the fighting. Jackson is evidently the fresher of the two, but is manifestly afraid of his hard-hitting opponent. The crowd is becoming sleepy and impatient. The spectators are calling "finish," "Peter, do him." Just before time was called for the 60th round the referee called the men up and told them if they want d the money hung up they must fight for it. In the 60th neither showed an inclination to accept this offer. The 61st round produced no result and it is likely now the fight will be declared a draw.

At the end of the 61st round Referee Cook claimed that the men were unable to fight any longer and decided fight "no contest."

A Novel Birthplace.

The Port Hope Guide says:—"A young married lady hailing from Warkworth, named Stillman, went over on Wednesday to meet her husband in Rochester. She got on the steamer at Colborne and was taken ill at Port Hope. The services of young Dr. Clemesha were secured, who went over on the boat, but before Charlotte was reached a bouncing boy was born. It is proposed to give the child the full name of the Captain of the Eurydice. It will be a difficult question to decide in future whether the youngster will be a Canadian or an American citizen."

FOREIGN POLITICS.

Lord Salisbury's Speech at Glasgow—The Portuguese Question.

LONDON, May 21.—In his speech at Glasgow yesterday Lord Salisbury said:—For many years an anxious part of the duties of the Foreign Office has been our relations with Mohammedan communities, lest their crumbling and decay might cause a general disturbance. That danger is now decreasing, and in some parts has passed away. The Sultan of Turkey has devoted his energies to repairing the confusion into which his dominion has fallen, and has succeeded in so averting danger that the peace of Europe is no longer menaced from that quarter. (Cheers.) Still more hopeful is the revival in Persia, where there is such a desire for greater liberty and such an increase of material progress as to justify the hope that that nation will never cause a conflict with Christian powers. The revival in Egypt also is among the most wonderful events of this generation. (Cheers.)

Referring to the convention with Portugal, Lord Salisbury said it was no easy matter to arrange that compact. England had to refrain from anything likely to injure a State linked with old recollections of kindness, and which must be regarded as an essential portion of the European body. On the other hand, he had to satisfy our countrymen of the Cape Colony, who could not understand why Portugal was allowed to claim on paper the annexation of a broad belt of Africa. If this belt had been held by the Anglo-Saxon race it would have led to civilization two centuries ago. The people of Cape Colony wanted Portugal to be thrust aside altogether. England had to observe the prescription to international law, and would not ignore the claims of Portugal to certain portions of Africa. The convention gives England high lands on which white men can settle and work. The low lands along the Zambesi were offered to Portugal, and can only be worked by people born there and having the blood of that country.

Referring to East Africa, Lord Salisbury held that the railway about to be carried to Victoria Nyanza would destroy the slave trade through the abolition of caravan traffic. He concluded by praising Mr. Gladstone for the course he had adopted in recent years of uniformly treating foreign affairs without party feeling.

The O'Shea Case.

LONDON, May 21.—The hearing in the Divorce Court of the application to make the decree nisi absolute in the case of O'Shea v. O'Shea, in which Mr. Parnell is co-respondent, has been fixed for Tuesday next.

Dillon and O'Brien's Bail.

DUBLIN, May 21.—The Tipperary court has refused to remit the bail of Messrs. Dillon and O'Brien, as a warrant for term of imprisonment, but has reduced the bail one-half, the crown assenting.

A Municipal Deputation.

OTTAWA, May 22.—A very large and important deputation, representing 150 municipalities in Ontario, waited upon Sir John Macdonald in Ottawa yesterday to urge the claims of the municipalities who had constructed railways prior to the present policy of the Government to be reimbursed, at least to the extent of aid that had been extended to other municipalities by the Government. Sir John Macdonald admitted the importance of the request, but reminded the deputation that any aid to Ontario would necessitate similar aid to the other provinces, and would involve the raising of a very large sum of money. The Government had not the statistics at present to consider the matter, but would give the subject careful attention and consideration.

To Improve Navigation.

In addition to the revote of $74,000 for the Trent Valley canal, the Dominion estimates contain the following items:—Towards the construction of swing bridge at Bobcaygeon, $3,000; towards building one pair of lock gates and hanging $1,800; towards the building of four lock offices, $1,600; towards the settlement of W. H. Hall's claim, $600.

MISCELLANEOUS.

In certain parts of Africa crickets are said to constitute an article of commerce. People rear them, feed them in confinement and sell them. The natives are very fond of their music, thinking that it induces sleep. Superstitions regarding the cricket's chirp are very varied. Some believe that it is ominous of sorrow and evil, while others consider it to be a harbinger of joy.

An Egyptian scythe recently unearthed is exhibited among the antiquities in the private museum of Flinders Petrie in London. The shaft of the instrument is wood, supporting a row of flint saws, which are securely cemented into it. This discovery will set at rest the speculations which have been made as to how the crops of the land were gathered in the flint and early copper age.

There has been a decrease during the year past in the number of students attending the German universities, especially in the departments of philosophy and natural science. It is the first annual decrease since 1873. There are now 28,711 university students in Germany. Berlin is easily first with the large total of 5,527, and Rostock is last with 371. Leipsig has 3,458 and Munich 3,382.

A learned professor of the Paris Academy des Sciences has been making experiments which have resulted in convincing him that the rabbit is of all living things the most capable of withstanding a very low temperature. Inclosed all night in a block of ice, a rabbit was found next day getting on very comfortably and evidently not aware of anything very peculiar in his circumstances. In this regard the rabbit leaves far behind our faithful friend the dog, though, according to the learned professor, sheep, goats and pigs take good second, third and fourth places.

The new rifle with which the German army and navy have been armed during the last few months is a terror in the way of small weapons. The gun has a bore of 31 inch and throws a projectile of lead coated with nickel steel weighing 14.5 grains, or about half an ounce. The cartridge used weighs nearly an ounce, and 1-3.25 inches in length. The magazine of the rifle carries five cartridges. The speed of the bullet on leaving the muzzle of the gun is about 2,100 feet per second, and the limit of its effective range is a little under two miles. Brick walls of small thickness are not absolute proof against this gun, as one shot striking the same spot will make [illegible]

Purify Your Blood

The importance of keeping the blood in a pure condition is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is heredited and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing more conclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

FRIDAY, MAY 22, 1891.

THE FIRST DIVISION.

For weeks the Liberal press has been making endeavors to make the people believe that the Dominion Government was on the edge of a precipice and that the first slight shock would cause it to fall with a crash. All sorts of rumors and inventions were published and so persistently harped on that some people imagined that as soon as a test came the Government would be sorely pushed if it did not meet with defeat. How absurd these fancies were, and how false and foolish the stories were which the Globe and its followers have been publishing, was shown when the first division of the session took place on Wednesday night. The Conservative ranks were united and presented a solid front, and the result of the test was a majority of 27 for the Government, which was increased on the next vote to 28. The actual majority in a full House would be two more. This should silence the vain boastings of the Liberals and put an end to the absurd yarns appearing in the Liberal papers. At any rate it will show the people how absurd they are and what foolishness it is for the Globe to be prating day after day of divisions in the Conservative party and dispair in its ranks when the Government has such a good working majority. The spirit of the Conservatives was shown when, after hearing the result of the vote, they rose and exhibited their pleasure with the manner in which the Government had been sustained by singing the National Anthem.

A BARGE CANAL WANTED.

THE following letter is taken from the Ottawa Citizen:—

"SIR,—A letter appeared in the Citizen signed by E. K. Wickstead headed 'Ottawa Ship Canal' and '$50,000,000,' and appeared to me to be a pity that that Mr. Wickstead would not devote his industry and talent to better purpose. That the opening of navigation between the Georgian Bay and Montreal would greatly benefit the Western producers and the Ottawa country and more than double the trade of Montreal I full believe, but a ship canal, meaning thereby twenty-one feet of water, is impracticable, and if it could be made ships would not use it, for seagoing ships are unfitted and unsuitable for inland navigation. What is wanted is a barge navigation of about eight feet of water and elevators at sundry points where required. Grain in transit requires handling and airing, for which no cheaper method can be found than by elevators or transhipment. As a good depth of water can be had cheaply in French River that might be deep enough to pass the largest lake boats to Lake Nipissing, whence the grain could be forwarded to Montreal or any other place either by barge or railway, as might be desired, and as the water power of the Ottawa and abundance of wood for making barrels could be utilized for converting wheat into flour. It is difficult to conceive the greatness of the benefit.

"Friend Wickstead, drop the word 'ship' and substitute 'barge,' and drop your estimate from fifty millions to ten millions, which would be plenty, and go ahead.

"Yours truly,

"C. S. MACNUTT.

"Ottawa, 16th May, 1891."

There is no doubt that Mr. MacNutt is right in his estimate of the value of a good barge canal, and what he desires, and the facilities the trade requires, can easily be obtained by completing the Trent Valley canal. This great waterway has been partly constructed and its completion would cost less than the lowest figure named by the Citizen's correspondent. There is any quantity of water power for milling and other manufacturing purposes at different points on the route. Another advantage this route has is that, by connecting the navigable inland lakes, it would give a greatly extended shore line to the canal and open up a large extent of country that would be tributary to it. A barge canal is wanted and the Trent Valley is the route.

THE prohibitionists have a new and eloquent champion of their cause in the House in Mr. Coatsworth, the new member from Toronto.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by millions of mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

SCIENCE AND PROGRESS.

INTERESTING PARAGRAPHS CULLED FROM VARIOUS FIELDS.

The Pollution of Streams and the Dissemination of Infections—Much Needed Advice and Counsel on the Subject by W. B. Atkinson, M. D.

The average man seems to think that the air and water are equally free for him to pollute at his own sweet will or as it may suit his convenience. The pollution of water courses, running streams, creeks which water many a pasture field, and which wind through many a forest glade, until miles away from the source of pollution, innocent families are broken up by the loss of parents, or one or more children are snatched away, while confidingly using the water which for years has been regarded as the purest that could be desired, is a matter of far-reaching danger. Nor is this all. The cows are permitted to drink at the little stream, which, running through their pasture, has never been the object of suspicion. Their milk is used by the family or sold to distant patrons, and the deadly typhoid is carried to the distant city, there to decimate the population or enfeeble those who survive. The time has come when ignorance cannot be used as an excuse. The strong arm of the law must be invoked, and the intentional or even careless pollution of the water must be heavily punished.

A few illustrations will show the frequency and terrible danger of this conduct. A builder erected six houses in a country place, and carefully enclosed a small spring with a sewer, into which all the sewage of these six houses were turned. Soon the people living below, whose houses were on the line of the little spring, were annoyed by a constant odor of fecal matter which they traced to the water-way, and an examination showed the presence of quantities of cesspool filth being carried along with the stream. The full importance of this matter was shown when a survey of the steam, as it meandered through the fields and woodlands, disclosed the fact that it emptied into a much larger stream, used by several dairy farms as the sole source of their water supply for man and beast. A double wrong was done in each case. The families of these farms were thus constantly in danger of disease, and were also innocently liable to send the same to every family to which they sold the milk. Upon investigating the houses, for which this sewer had been made, I found that a case of mild typhoid fever had just occurred in one of them.

Again, a farmer, or other person living on a stream, loses a hog by cholera, a horse by glanders, a number of hens from any of the disease which prevail among fowls, and the carcass is at once thrown into the convenient stream, with the expectation that it will soon be carried away. A second illustration will evince the result of this kind of pollution. A beautiful valley for several weeks was the seat of an epidemic of diphtheria, and many children died of this loathsome disease. An examination proved that the disease had broken out soon after the body of a hog which had died of cholera had been thrown into the adjacent water, and, after being carried a short distance, was washed up on the banks in a putrid condition, where it laid for a time, until the family concluded that the terrible sore throat and sickness which afflicted them was the result of the foul air they were compelled to breathe. The putrid corpse was sent on its way to afflict other homes. In this instance it would appear as though every means had been employed to ensure a foul stream to give forth its death-dealing germs to the houses which lined its banks. The cesspools of houses and factories were so placed as to allow their contents to flow into the stream, thus providing the best form of culture beds for disease germs. I may mention here that the people of the village adjacent assisted, from sheer ignorance, to have innocently aided, in a variety of ways, in spreading the epidemic. A school in the neighborhood first attacked was closed, as a precaution against the carrying of the contagion, when immediately many of these children went to a school at a distance, and thus acted to do the very thing supposed to be provided against.

A party camp out, near a stream. When ready to break camp, in many instances all the refuse food, even the straw bedding, more or less foul, are dumped into the water as the easiest way of disposing of it. Or a dealer finds a lot of food on his hands, either perishable by reason of the hot weather, or because it is already partly decayed: he dumps it into a stream, where it is eaten by the fish, who speedily die from the effects, and thus the dead fish and the putrid food add to the pollution of the water. Everyone should regard himself a sanitary officer so far as to prevent as much as he can the doing of anything inimical to health. Were the careless or the intentional evil doer aware that he was under the observance of a body of people who were determined to prevent his injuring their health, whether thorough carelessness or wickedness, he would at least be more circumspect in his actions. If each citizen made it a duty to see as he went along that petty wrong-doings were at once frowned on, there would by vastly less of such things. How many of us care to interfere to stop a fight between boys on the street! The people must aid the sanitary authorities, and while seeing that they do no wrong themselves, see also that the evil-doer is kept within bounds.—W. B. Atkinson, M.D.

A Monstrous Freak of Nature.

I saw, says Bartholinus, the traveler, first at Hafnia and afterwards at Basil, one Lazarus Colleredo, a Genoese of about 28 years of age, who was the most oddly malformed creature I have ever had the good fortune to meet. This Lazarus has a little brother growing at his breast, who was in that posture born with him. His left foot alone hung downward. He had two arms, but only three fingers upon each hand. He could move his hands, ears and lips, and had a little beating at the heart. This little creature is nourished by what the greater eats and drinks; has distinct vital parts, sleeps, sweats, and moves. Both of these strange creatures received names at baptism, the larger the name of Lazarus, the smaller that of Baptista. Baptista has his eyes shut the major portion of the time; his breath is very faint, so that holding a downy feather at his mouth it scarcely moves. His mouth is usually open; his head is larger than that of the brother who is doomed to carry him on his bosom as long as both live; his face is in an upright posture. Both have beards; that of the larger brother being well kept. Lazarus is a man of full stature, courteous deportment, and goes elegantly attired. The brother that nature has fastened to his breast is only 28 inches in length, the major portion of which is head. Lazarus covers the body of the creature with his cloak; nor would you thing that a monster was wrapped in its fold unless you knew their awful story. A fear that Baptista will die and also cause his death makes Lazarus solicitous regarding his brother's welfare.

Indigestion

IS not only a distressing complaint, of itself, but, by causing the blood to become depraved and the system enfeebled, is the parent of innumerable maladies. That Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best cure for Indigestion, even when complicated with Liver Complaint, is proved by the following testimony from Mrs. Joseph Lake, of Brockway Centre, Mich.:—

"Liver complaint and indigestion made my life a burden and came near ending my existence. For more than four years I suffered untold agony, was reduced almost to a skeleton, and hardly had strength to drag myself about. All kinds of food distressed me, and only the most delicate could be digested at all. Within the time mentioned several physicians treated me without giving relief. Nothing that I took seemed to do any permanent good until I commenced the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which has produced wonderful results. Soon after commencing to take the Sarsaparilla I could see an improvement in my condition. My appetite began to return and with it came the ability to digest all the food taken, my strength improved each day, and after a few months of faithful attention to your directions, I found myself a well woman, able to attend to all household duties. The medicine has given me a new lease of life."

A Cure for Constipation and Headache.

Dr. Silas Lane, while in the Rocky Mountains, discovered a root that when combined with other herbs, makes an easy and certain cure for constipation. It is in the form of dry roots and leaves, and is known as Lane's Family Medicine. It will cure sick-headache and is the best Spring Medicine. For the blood, liver and kidneys, and for clearing up the complexion it does wonders. Druggists sell it at 50c. and $1 a package.

Forgiven.

He was a bit of a boy not over 8 years old, but he followed me so persistently and kept up his cry of "Paper, sir!" so continuously that I turned on him in a way I afterwards regretted. He felt hurt and insulted, and as he disappeared in the darkness I heard him calling:

"Never mind, old man! I'll grow up and give you the awfullest licking a man ever got!"

We have met almost daily for the past year, and on each occasion there has been no evidence of unbending. A dozen times, at least, I have heard him remark in an aside:

"There goes a fellow I am going to lick if it takes me fifty years!"

The other day I was surprised to receive a call from my young enemy. Although he looked no older or stronger, I was wondering if he had come to carry out his awful threat, when he extended his little "paw" and said:

"Say, let's quit."

"I'm agreed."

"I said I'd lick you, and I meant it all along, but—but——"

"What's happened to change your mind?"

"Mother's dead—died Monday," he gasped as he sat down, "and I don't want to fight nobody nor nothin'. If you'll forgive me, I'll forgive you."

And so we shook hands and made up, and I know we both feel the better for it.

Everybody Knows

That at this season the blood is filled with impurities, the accumulation of months of close confinement in poorly ventilated stores, workshops and tenements. All these impurities and every trace of scrofula, salt rheum, or other diseases may be expelled by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, the best blood purifier ever produced. It is the only medicine of which "100 doses one dollar" is true.

Mr. Robt. Fair, of the Golden Lion dry goods house, has made a new addition to his already most complete and extensive establishment. A sign at the door appeared yesterday announcing the fact that umbrellas would be covered while you wait. This is an actual fact. An old umbrella, with a good frame, can be made as new in a few minutes. After the worn out cover has been removed a new one can be put on in its place in three minutes. This is quite a bonanza for the general public, so gather up your umbrellas and go and see them recovered in three minutes at the Golden Lion.

Mr. Tovell's Congregation Disturbed.

The St. Catharines Star says:—"Right in the middle of Rev. Mr. Tovell's sermon to the Oddfellows on Sunday evening the congregation was disturbed by the appearance of a bat, which gained admission through one of the open windows and proceeded to upset things generally. It would whirl around from gallery to organ loft, darting here and there among the heads of those in the seats, apparently attracted by the generous displays of forget-me-nots, lilies of the valley, hyacinths, daffodils and pansies arrayed in lovely splendor on the feminine spring hats. The pastor had to stop and request that the windows be opened full length so that the winged animal could get out. But it would not go. It shot within an inch or two of the rev. gentleman's head, and narrowly missed one of the artificial flower gardens in the organ loft. The pastor turned appealingly to the singers, as if he would like them to start up Fly Forth, O Gentle Dove, but Bro Gilleland didn't catch on. Finally the thing of evil disappeared, the congregation settled down into the listening mood again, and the service proceeded."

A Pleasant Herb Drink—A Spring Medicine.

The druggists tell us that the people call daily for the new cure for constipation and sick-headache discovered by Dr. Silas Lane. It is said to be Oregon grape root (a great remedy in the far west for those complaints) combined with simple herbs, and is made for use by pouring on boiling water to draw out the strength. It sells at 50 cents a package and is called Lane's Family Medicine.

A MUSICAL EVENING.

The Band Concert that Will Close the Celebration of Her Majesty's Birthday.

The closing feature in the celebration of Her Majesty's Birthday on Monday next will be the grand promenade concert which is to be given in the market building. The event will be a fitting climax for a day's celebration, and to the lovers of music it will be a treat rich and rare. As is known the programme is to be rendered by the fine band of the Governor-General's Foot Guards and the local battalion band. The Ottawa organization is composed of musicians of talent, while the ability of our local bandsmen, under Bandmaster Miller, is known and appreciated at all times. When two such bodies unite to provide a programme for an evening the public may look forward to an entertainment of surpassing and unusual excellence. The 57th Band have been practising hard at their selections and are going to acquit themselves with commendable excellence on Monday evening. The object of the concert is a worthy one. The funds realized will go towards providing new clarionets for the 57th band. The reed instruments at present in use in the band are rather inferior instruments and better ones are imperatively needed. It is hoped, therefore, that there will be a large attendance at the concert. In itself it will be worth the money, while the bandsmen are undoubtedly entitled to general public patronage for services rendered. The programme which will be rendered is as follows:—

1. Grand March…."Unity"….57th Batt. Band [and G.G.F.G.
2. Overture……."Le Macon"………G.G.F.G.
3. Fantasia.."Pride of Scotland"…..57th Batt. [Band.
4. Valse…."Haren on the Rhine"…G.G.F.G.
5. Selection……."Maritana"…………57th
6. Fantasia."Ten Minutes with the Minstrels"
7. Overture….."Bohemian Girl"………57th
8. Lancers….."Madame Angot"…..G.G.F.G.
9. Fantasia."Brudder Gardeners Picnic".57th
10. Galop………."Kamaman"……G.G.F.G.

"God Save the Queen."

THE RANGERS IN RED.

Another March-out—Orders Issued and Promotions Made.

The 57th Battalion had a march-out last evening under command of Lt. Col. Rogers and headed by the band. The men were in review order last night, with helmets and leggings and made a very creditable appearance. The battalion parade to St. John's church on Sunday afternoon with the Governor-General's Foot Guards, and on Monday they will muster at 9 30 a.m. for a street parade.

The following orders were read last night, giving notice of the parades and a number of promotions made:—

A Bit of Philosophy.

Live within your income. How to do this is the vital question. Two courses are open, increase income or curtail expenditure. It's about as hard to cut down expenses as to increase income. However, amidst the general perplexity which the situation calls up there is the reassuring thought that no matter how things go, one way to save is to buy your teas at hawleys' where prices are at the bottom notch and qualities on top of the heap. If you need to save buy your teas at hawleys', george-st., the famous tea men. d113

LADIES IN CONVENTION.

AN INTERESTING MISSIONARY CONVENTION.

The Afternoon Meeting—Reports Presented and Programme Rendered—Evening Meeting—Programme and Address.

The convention of the representatives of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society which was held in the George-st. church yesterday proved to be of a very pleasant, interesting and enlightening character. The afternoon meeting which was held was of a highly attractive nature. There was a good attendance of ladies and all evinced interest in the work. Mrs. (Rev.) Locke presided in the chair, except during the interval when she was speaking when Mrs. Kendry, the District organizer, acted for her. Mrs. (Dr.) Harrison, of Keene, presided at the organ.

The roll call of auxiliary delegates followed, after which reports from different auxiliaries were read. Mrs. Wm. Fitzgerald read the George-st. auxiliary report, Mrs. A. M. Price that of the Charlotte-st., Mrs. Montgomery that of Lakefield, Mrs. Stanton that of Millbrook, Mrs. Hutchinson that of Bellieboro and Miss Emberson that of the Beaufort Auxiliary. Miss Griffith read a report from the Mission Band of the George-st. church. Mrs. Kendry as District Organizer, gave an interesting report of success and non-success in organizing auxiliaries.

Miss Butcher rendered a charming vocal solo, after which Mrs. Kerr, of Beaufort, read an appropriate paper and Mrs. Locke read a leaflet on "Why no time for the Master's Work."

Miss Kennedy, of the Charlotte-st. Auxiliary, read a paper, the subject of which was "The Lord of the Harvest." A recitation by Miss Stewart, of the George-st. Mission Band, was followed by a duet by Misses Smart and Rutherford.

Mrs. (Dr.) Harrison, of Keene, read a paper on Juvenile Mission work. Mrs. Brooks read a letter from Turkey anent work there and the question drawer was then opened, the questions read and answered by Mrs. Sherin, of Lakefield.

It was moved by Mrs. Locke, seconded by Mrs. Sherin, and carried, that a vote of thanks be given Mrs. Harrison for her paper, and also that she be asked to have it published.

The general report showed an increase in membership and interest in the work. One death was recorded, that of Miss Whitfield, of Millbrook.

It was decided to send the following memorials to the Central Branch:—

1. That in the report the name of Auxiliaries be printed in districts instead of alphabetically as formerly.

II. That the division of the Branch be made according to Mrs. Carmen's motion, a general Board meeting in London, Ont.

It was moved, seconded and carried that the question of the sub-division of the Central Branch be discussed and voted on at the District Auxiliary meeting.

The meeting closed with the doxology and the gathering adjourned to partake of refreshments, which were served by the George-st. ladies.

THE EVENING MEETING.

In the evening there was a large attendance at the public meeting which was held in the Sunday school room. Rev. Mr. Locke presided as chairman, and Mrs. Kendry, the district organizer, and Miss Sherin, of Lakefield, occupied seats on the platform.

The meeting opened with devotional exercises, after which the chairman made a few opening remarks referring to mission work and mentioning with pleasure the representative which the George-st. church had in the foreign field. After the singing of a hymn a paper was read by Mrs. Sherin, of Lakefield, which was well received. It dwelt upon the benefit of conventions to individual auxiliaries and upon the many openings of usefulness that women must find on all sides at the present time in the work of missions.

A vocal solo, "Free as a Bird," by Mrs. Harrison, of Keene, was rendered in excellent voice.

Miss Lizzie Sanderson read a leaflet bearing on Chinese missions, a comic story of the people by a returned missionary.

Mrs. (Rev.) Shorey rendered a vocal solo which was thoroughly enjoyed and appreciated by those present.

Rev. Mr. Rutlidge, of Cobourg, was then introduced and gave an able address on missionary matters. He was glad, he said, to be in Peterborough again and to have the subject of missions for his address. In his mind missions were God's most favored and welcome work. After further opening remarks he proceeded to give an address which was a pleasant account of his work in Manitoba among the Indians and Chinamen. Pleasing anecdotes were interspersed which added much to the interest. All were more than pleased with his very fervent and helpful discourse. A collection was then taken up and the meeting closed with the singing of the hymn "God be with you till we meet again" and the benediction.

PERSONAL.—Mr. Alfred Mellor, lately of Toronto, has been promoted from the branch of the Quebec Bank at Toronto, to the branch at Thorold.

THE SUNBEAM.—The steamer Sunbeam made her trial trip and gave entire satisfaction to her proprietors, Messrs. Hilliard and Eden. The Sunbeam will make four trips each week from Chemong to Lakefield and return, the remaining two days being open to charter for excursions, etc.

RETURNED.—After spending the winter in England visiting friends, Mr. H. F. Mellor has returned home, looking quite fresh after his trip.

TEA AND CONCERT.—The ladies of the Presbyterian Church are working hard to make their tea and concert a success on Monday evening next. A good programme will be presented, which shows that they are evidently catering to the mind as well as the pallet.

COUNCIL MEETING.—A regular meeting of the Council was held on Monday night. A request by Mr. H. C. Garbutt on behalf of the Agricultural Society, to have some work done near the Society's grounds, was referred to the Street and Sidewalk committee with power to act. The Road and Sidewalk committee reported deferring action on the matter of building a sidewalk on Bridge-st. The Clerk was instructed to advertise for tenders for plank. On motion $20 was granted for street watering purposes, and after ordering payment of some accounts the Council adjourned.

Cheese.

The Montreal Gazette of Wednesday says:—"There is little or nothing doing here, but the position in the country is becoming modified, and business will no doubt open out more freely shortly; at least advices from Great Britain show that there is little to be had there, and were it not for the fact that home make is cheaper than imported, probably considerably more would have been done already. Canadian fodder cheese has been sold for London account at 52s@53s, the purchases representing negotiations made a week or so ago, but ideas would no doubt have to be shaded now. Anyhow, it is claimed that offers of 50s 61 have been made on Bristol account, and there is no reason for doubting it. Reports from the country to-day show that the factorymen are more disposed to meet buyers, 9½c@9⅝c being the range at Belleville and 9⅛c at Ingersoll for what business was done. The cable came to-day at 57s, which may be interpreted that the market there is working off old cheese and shaping itself in preparation for the new make."

Ingersoll Cheese Market.

INGERSOLL, May 19.—At the cheese market to-day sixteen factories boarded 2,800 boxes of first half of May make. Sales, 1,215 boxes at 9⅛c.

Belleville Cheese Market.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., May 19.—At our market to-day forty-six factories offered 1,224 white and 1,571 colored, total 2,795 boxes. The following were the sales: 260 white and 525 colored at 9⅛c; 425 white and 505 colored at 9⅛c; 464 white at 9⅛c.

We Eat Too Much.

An intelligent and close observer says the majority of people eat about a third too much. The average American really dines three times a day, with his beefsteak breakfast, chops for lunch, and roast beef at his 6 o'clock dinner. And he does it at his peril, for this habit of overfeeding, especially of eating so much meat, is one of the provoking causes of so many sudden illnesses and so many sudden premature deaths. Three meals a day of hearty food is exhausting to all the vital processes, and even the strongest succumb finally to this "ridiculous and wasteful excess." Americans are a nation of brain workers, and cannot safely indulge in high living. High thinking, or constant use of the brain in any direction, calls for a plain and nourishing diet. Brain workers, especially, ought to live sparingly. Luxurious feeders require much exercise in the open air and freedom from pressure on the brain. For the aged, or even for those above 50, luxurious living and overeating are especially dangerous. As functional activity lessens with increasing years, the supply of food should be decreased accordingly. The hardiest races live on the simplest fare. Frugality in diet—i. e., a minimum amount of the right quality—serves far more certainly to prolong life, insure health and well-being, than a rich abundance and variety, which is accountable in a large measures for the ill-health and dissatisfaction of the present time.

EVERY day makes more apparent the fact that the town is going ahead rapidly. Numerous changes have taken place in the way of the ownership of property. Many workingmen are buying houses and lots or lots on which to build. One of the most suitable locations is that known as the Eris property, at the west end, owned largely by Mr. Wm. Fitzgerald. This week he has closed the sale of a very desirable new house and lot, and has several other sales on this property to dispose of. Property in this neighborhood is rapidly being built up, and it will be well to have a look at the situation if one is at all disposed to buy. The terms are very favorable and especially low for cash, though payment on time may be arranged.

The Daily Review.

FRIDAY, MAY 22, 1891.

A PREACHER'S FRAUD.

The Rev. John Jones was an undoubted success. His uptown church was crowded Sunday after Sunday with an appreciative congregation. So much did people desire to hear him and bathe in the flood of his eloquence that it became necessary to auction the sittings, for which there were always the most spirited bidding. Like all phenomenal parsons, his most earnest and enthusiastic admirers were to be found in the emotional sex.

Though the reverend gentleman was endowed by nature with lofty stature, an excellent voice and a good delivery, he was unfortunately not prolific in ideas. He discovered this early in his career. He had tried [illegible] to write his own sermons, but had finally drifted into another method, which had [illegible] justification in the magnificence of the result. He had got into communication with a religious publisher not forty miles from Lafayette place, who always kept a limited supply of manuscript sermons in stock. The Rev. John took these Sunday after Sunday as the skeletons of his discourses.

By a method of amplification he turned them into homilies, which were the very thing liked by the flock of which he was the venerated shepherd.

The Rev. John often noticed that these sermons were written in a very unmasculine hand. He had, occasionally, also to rectify the sentiments when his trained nose scented the traces of a faintly suggested heterodoxy.

One evening at a quiet tea party he met a young woman whom he had never seen before. The eloquent parson, who had escaped all the pitfalls laid for his capture by his own maiden parishioners went home deeply in love with a girl who had scarcely noticed his presence. A friend, to whom he spoke about her a few days after, told him she was a clever girl, with rather unsettled opinions on religious matters and rather poor. The Rev. Jones had many opportunities of marrying money, but he resolved, everything notwithstanding, to have nobody but her.

Fortune smiled on his suit, and before six months the lady had almost capitulated, and the pair were trembling on the verge of an engagement.

Though Mr. Jones did his best to keep the matter secret until the latest possible moment, it leaked out as such things always do. There was real though concealed indignation among the slighted beauties of his congregation. Miss Briggs, the daughter of his principal elder, was ambitious to benefit humanity as a clergyman's wife in general and Mr. Jones's wife in particular. Her papa had fostered the ambition. The Briggs family solemnly came to the conclusion that their pastor was a deceiver.

In the meantime Mr. Jones had been devoting so much time to Miss Everett that he sometimes found little time to devote that consideration to his bought sermons which had been his custom heretofore. He sometimes even had to preach them just as he bought them.

The first Sunday that he ever had Miss Everett to hear him this was particularly the case. In the middle of the sermon he chanced to look down at her, where she sat close to the pulpit. He noticed with apprehension that the girl had become deathly pale. [illegible] time his eye caught hers she had recovered her ordinary composure.

The next time Jones saw her her manner towards him was marked by a chilling coldness. He used all his wiles, but was not able to drag from her the cause of the change.

The sermon of the preceding Sunday had made a great impression. An enthusiastic admirer of the preacher had taken it down in shorthand as it fell from his lips. There was a meeting of the committee, at which the discourse became the subject of remark, and a prominent pillar of the church offered to get it printed at his own expense from the said manuscript, as a delicate compliment to their pastor. It was resolved to keep this step secret from him till the dainty pamphlet was in the hands of the public.

Jones had come home from seeing Miss Everett one evening. He was feeling very much depressed on account of the unsatisfactory couple of hours which he had just passed, when the servant brought in a parcel that had just been left for him.

He opened it, and his hair almost stood on end with amazement when he saw what it contained.

There was his bought sermon staring at him like a guilty thing surprised. There was the horrible laudatory notice on the title page, which seemed to be trumpeting his shame for the whole world to hear. He sat down in his chair and covered his face with his hands. What would Miss Everett say if she knew what manner of man he was! If he had not been a clergyman he would have cursed the well-meaning fools who had betrayed him.

Yet, how was the fault theirs! Had he not preached the hateful thing as his own, and held them spellbound with it!

Just then the thought came, who will ever know! He went to bed with his mind made up to simply do nothing, for he felt nothing could be done.

For a week he carried his secret about with him. Was it the love of this woman that had given things a different complexion from what they had formerly had! He had not seen her during that time. Everything had become so unbearable that he finally made up his mind to go to her with the whole truth.

That evening he put one of the printed copies in his pocket and went to her house.

He found her in the drawing-room alone. They had not been talking five minutes, during which time he felt like a man going to be hanged, drawn and quartered, when he drew the little booklet from his pocket.

"Have you seen this?" he asked. "Yes," said the girl, coldly.

"Well, I wish to tell you something about it which will probably make you give me up, just as it will make it necessary for me to leave my congregation when I tell them."

He paused for a moment and then continued: "That sermon is not mine—I bought it."

"I know it," she answered, "for I wrote it."

"You wrote it!" he burst in.

"Yes," she continued; "you know I am poor. Well, I have a gift that way, at least Smith & Folio think so, and I have written bundles of such things for them."

"My fault is all the greater," he said, putting out his hand. "Goodby."

"If you go," she said, slowly, "it is not because I have sent you away." She stopped and then continued. It was because I thought you a coward and were going to let the lie stand that I got almost to, well, hate you."

The Rev. John Jones did not go.

"But," he said suddenly, as if remembering something, "what will happen when I tell the people at the church? I shall have to give it up."

"No, you need not," she answered, "because—because when we are married, if I write the sermons and you preach them, they will be yours all the time. For are not husband and wife one person?"

A MAD POET

rushed into a newspaper office recently, and threatened to clean out the establishment, because they printed his verses wrong. Said he: "I wrote, 'To dwell forever in a grot of peace,' and you idiots put it 'a pot of grease.'" The mortified editor presented him with a vial of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, a year's subscription and an apology.

The little "Pellets" positively cure sick and nervous headache, biliousness, costiveness, and all derangements of the stomach, bowels and liver. It's a large contract, but the smallest things in the world do the business—Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They're the smallest, but the most effective. They go to work in the right way. They cleanse and renovate the liver, stomach and bowels thoroughly—but they do it mildly and gently. You feel the good they do—but you don't feel them doing it.

As a Liver Pill, the "Pellets" are unequaled. Sugar-coated, easy to take, and put up in vials, and hermetically sealed, and thus always fresh and reliable. A perfect vest-pocket remedy, in small vials, and only one necessary for a laxative or three for a cathartic.

They're the cheapest pill you can buy, because they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned.

You only pay for the good you get.

Always open

—the offer made by the proprietors of Doctor Sage's Catarrh Remedy. It's a reward of $500 cash for an incurable case of catarrh, no matter how bad, or of how long standing. They'll carry it out, too. It's one thing to make the offer. It's a very different thing to make it good. It couldn't be done, except with an extraordinary medicine. But that's what they have. By its mild, soothing and healing properties, Dr. Sage's Remedy cures the worst cases. It doesn't simply palliate for a time, or drive the disease to the lungs. It produces a perfect and permanent cure. Try it and see. If you can't be cured, you'll be paid.

In Case of Fire.

Fire requires air; therefore on its appearance every effort should be made to exclude air. Shut all doors and windows. By this means fire may be confined to a single room for a sufficient period to enable all the inmates to be aroused and escape; but if the doors and windows are thrown open the fanning of the wind and the draught will instantly cause the flames to increase with extraordinary rapidity. It must never be forgotten that the most precious moments are at the commencement of a fire, and not a single second of time should be lost in tackling it. In a room, a tablecloth can be so used as to smother a large sheet of flame, and a cushion may serve to beat it out; a coat or [illegible] ly successful result. The great point is presence of mind—calmness in danger—action guided by reason and thought. In all large houses buckets of water should be placed on every landing, a little salt being put in the water. Always endeavor to attack the bed of a fire; if you cannot extinguish the fire, shut the window, and be sure and shut the door when making good your retreat. A wet silk handkerchief tied over the eyes and nose will make breathing possible in the midst of much smoke and a blanket wetted and wrapped around the body will enable a person to pass through a sheet of flame in comparative safety.

Get up and Hustle.

Push! How many farmers appreciate the meaning of the above word? There are many who know how to push, but they do not push in the right direction. The thing is to push ahead. Nobody can be hurt if you push and drive in the right direction. Never take part in pushing anything down, but push the other way or keep from pushing entirely. Poor humanity goes down fast enough of its own weight when once it gets started down the declivity toward misery and poverty. Don't add to its speed by any act of yours, push with all your might and all your heart in the right direction—toward the elevation of the farm and agricultural principles. Push toward success. To stand still in this busy world is to be run over by the surging crowd that is ever going forward. Brother farmers push your town, your county, your farming institutions, your agricultural paper and everything that pertains to the advancement of agricultural progress. Talk about them let the world know of them, work for them, and tell of their wonderful advantages. Don't stand back because it will cost you trouble or exertion. Remember that the man who pushes others up and helps them, who helps build up his town, his agricultural institutions, etc., gathers to himself strength for his own elevation.—Walter J. Bennett, in Farm and Home.

DESERTED HIS BRIDE.

Although the Wedding Feast Was Spread and the Guests Were Present.

OTTAWA, May 22.—E. Robert, son of M. Robert, butcher, was to have been married last night to a daughter of W. R. Denning of New Edinburgh. The preparations were completed even to the wedding dinner being spread at the house of the bride's parents, and many of the guests had assembled but the bridegroom failed to appear. It is said the parents of the groom, who is a Roman Catholic, objected to the marriage and he left the city.

CONDITION OF TRADE.

Business Moving Forward About as Reported for Several Weeks Past.

NEW YORK, May 22.—Bradstreet's reports business generally has gone forward about as reported for several weeks past. Toronto advices report no improvement in general trade with the fruit business very active and collections poor. Dispatches from Montreal report trade quiet with a moderate sorting demand in dry goods and hardware. The Dominion reports 45 business failures this week against 30 last week and 26 this week last year. The total number January 1 to date is 858 against 795 last year.

OCEAN MAIL SERVICE.

The Prospects of Success are Said to Be Not of the Brightest.

LONDON, May 22.—Despite the confidence of the Dominion Government in the success of their efforts to secure the establishment of a new fast Atlantic steamship service, as shown by the official announcements in the Canadian House of Commons, the prospects of success are not of the brightest. It is understood the Allans have formally withdrawn from the negotiations with the Barrow-in-Furness Company, the Allans being unwilling to undertake the financial responsibility the others deemed necessary. The only remaining step is to form a new outside company, but nothing has yet been done owing to the depressed state of the money market. Should the general financial outlook brighten, negotiations may progress, and if they do it is thought possible that when the Allans see the force of the new movement self-interest will induce them to take part in it.

MONTREAL BANK RUMORS.

Report That Sir Donald Smith is About to Resign the Presidency.

MONTREAL, May 21.—There is a rumor current here that Sir Donald Smith will shortly resign the presidency of Bank of Montreal and be succeeded by Senator Drummond. The bank officials refuse to give any information before the annual meeting, which will take place on June 1.

Voice Culture.

HAGERSVILLE, May 21.—A very successful convention of the Haldimand Teachers Association was held here yesterday and to-day, under the presidency of Mr. S. Morgan, B.A. Mr. Richard Lewis of Toronto addressed the convention on voice culture and articulation, methods of conducting reading and elocutionary principles. Last evening Mr. Lewis gave an elocutionary entertainment in the Methodist church, with Mr. S. Phillips, B.A., principal of the new Hall School, in the chair. The entertainment was very largely attended and the varied program given by the well-known Toronto elocutionist was heartily applauded throughout.

It will pay you to advertise in the DAILY REVIEW.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

THE HOUSE ADJOURNS OVER THE QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY.

The Bill Extending the Time for the Completion of the St. Clair Railway Passed—A Fruit Growers' Deputation—Mr. Perley Again.

OTTAWA, May 22.—The House today has done too much "talkee" to make much real progress, as although it has been in committee of supply since half past four o'clock it has passed less than half a dozen items, the Tarte matter, the High Commissioner and other matters taking up a good deal of time.

A large number of private bills were introduced, including one by Col. Denison to amend the act respecting the Lake Erie, Essex and Detroit River Railway Company.

In the absence of Sir John Sir Hector Langevin moved, seconded by Mr. Chapleau, that Mr. Bergeron be appointed chairman of committee of the whole House with the official title of Deputy Speaker.

Mr. Laurier made a pleasant little speech in which he offered his personal congratulations to the honorable gentleman, and twitted the Government in a good-natured way on appointing another Rielite. He supposed that it was a tribute to his independence on that question, and was another instance of virtue being its own reward.

On orders of the day being called Sir Richard called attention to a letter on page 14 of Auditor-General's report with reference to promotions in his department and pointed out that some change had been made in the law at the time of the consolidation of the statutes. He thought the law gave the auditor the right to make promotions in his own department.

Sir John Thompson said he could not state positively from memory what the original act was, but the consolidated statutes certainly did not give the auditor that power now. The matter referred to in the letter had however been settled by the promotions being made by order-in-council.

Mr. Edgar brought up the Tarte matter by complaining of delay in bringing down the papers.

Sir Hector Langevin read a statement from the Deputy Minister of Public Works that the papers went back to 1877 and were very voluminous, but would be ready in a day or two.

Mr. Davies thought it outrageous that the Minister of Public Works, who was accused of high crimes and misdemeanors, should treat this matter so slightly, and complained of great delay in bringing down the papers.

The matter then dropped and the House went into Committee of Supply, Clarke Wallace in the chair.

On the item for Public Works salaries a long discussion took place on the question of the salary of Mr. Perley, and over an hour was consumed in threshing out the question of the propriety of his retaining his position while the charges were being investigated.

Sir John explained again that the vote was not for Mr. Perley but for the chief engineer of the department whoever he might be. As to the question of suspending Mr. Perley he (Sir John) would never allow any man to be punished merely on suspicion and without any trial or investigation.

After recess a number of private bills were read a second time and referred to their several committees, and the House again went into committee of supply. The new deputy speaker occupied the chair for the first time.

The items for High Commissioner were taken up. The Opposition criticised at some length the part taken by Sir Charles Tupper in recent elections. The House was very thin, a good many members having left this afternoon and a great many more leaving to-night. Sir John Macdonald acknowledged that he had sent for the High Commissioner.

In the Railway Committee this morning the bill extending the time for the commencement and completion of the St. Clair Railway bridge was passed, as was also the bill extending the time for finishing the Canada & Michigan tunnel.

A deputation of the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association had an interview with the Minister of Agriculture this morning and urged the appointment of an inspector of fruit, and especially the grading and branding of apples for export. They also urged the establishment of an experimental fruit farm in the Niagara peninsula.

Mr. Carling said that he had always been of the opinion that Canadian products should be marked so that they could be distinguished, and he would bring the subject as well as that of an experimental fruit farm to the attention of his colleagues.

J. T. Middleton of Hamilton had an interview with Mr. Bowell to-day and urged that the present duty on granite be not increased. The Minister promised to consider the matter.

Sir Donald Smith gives notice to-night that he will ask on Tuesday if the Government intends introducing a measure this session to increase salaries of judges.

The House remained in committee until 11 o'clock; passing all items in Civil Government and Civil Government contingencies. Mr. Mills asked whether it was true that the Government had suffered loss through the defalcation of a Crown timber agent at Calgary and what was the amount.

Mr. Dewdney said it was. The amount was about $2000.

TORONTO TOPICS.

TORONTO, May 22.—The representatives of the different Scotch societies of the city last night discussed the question of erecting in Toronto a memorial to the poet Burns, at a cost not exceeding $25,000. It was decided to procure information as to the cost, etc.

Adam Brown, ex-M.P., addressed a large meeting of members of the Board of Trade to-day at 1 o'clock (President Davidson in the chair) on the importance of trade with Jamaica and the West Indies, and on the commercial results of an exhibition recently held at Kingston, from which place he has just returned. The mayor of Kingston, Jamaica, was present and spoke.

Fell Between the Cars.

PARIS, May 22.—Robert McKeown, G.T.R. brakeman on the wayfreight running between Stratford and Brantford, was making a coupling here, when he fell under the cars between the rails and received serious injuries.

His Foot Cut Off.

EGANVILLE, May 22.—Matthew Foley, employed in the saw mill of Mr. Alexander McLaren at Osceola, was removing some dirt from around the saw when his left foot came in contact with it and was completely severed close to the heel.

A Child Almost Suffocated in a Box Stove.

WOLSELEY, N.W.T., May 22.—A child about 3 years old belonging to Mr. T. S. Rutherford was reported missing. A thorough search was made and the missing youngster was discovered in a box-stove almost suffocated.

MOVEMENT OF WHEAT.

The Alleged Corner in France—Heavy Purchases of Russian Wheat.

PARIS, May 22.—The Eclair, a newspaper of this city, publishes to-day interviews with the officials of the Ministry of Agriculture in reference to the projected wheat "corner." These officials said that they did not believe that the people who were engineering the "corner" would succeed in attaining the object in view, as the French farmers had refused to co-operate with the manipulators of the wheat deal. The French farmers, the officials of the Ministry of Agriculture said, always sold their produce on the spot and would not enter into contracts with any large syndicate, especially a foreign one. The French crops were in a very critical condition. The home supply, they said, would fall short of 20,000,000 hectolitres. If the present rainy weather continues the result would be disastrous to the farmers.

ODESSA, May 22.—An English-German-Italian syndicate has bought 30,000,000 roubles' worth of Russian wheat.

The Harvest Outlook.

NEW YORK, May 22.—To-day's Herald says editorially: The solution of the all-important crop problem is very much simplified by the weather changes of the last three days. Not only have the thirsty grain fields of the country been supplied with water enough to tide over the present exigencies of the drought, but in large areas rain enough to last the soil a week has fallen. Unless some unforeseen and very extraordinary injury overtakes the growing cereal and cotton crops there can be little doubt the yield in most districts will be near, and possibly somewhat above, the average.

With this improvement in the American harvest outlook the skies are brightening for transatlantic farmers. The London Meteorological Office weather reports yesterday showed that moderate rain was falling in England and a cyclonic depression in the English Channel gave promise of refreshing rains on the Continent. It is highly probable that Europe will soon benefit by the northward movement of the tropical vapor currents which have this week put a new and brighter face upon our Western wheat fields.

ELECTRICITY AWAKENED HER.

The Girl Who Had Lain in a Trance Fifty-six Days.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 22.—The 12-year-old daughter of Asa Meadows of Independence has been ill nearly a year. About two months ago she lay down, closed her eyes, and was perfectly helpless, the only evidence of life being a gentle respiration. For 56 days she neither moved nor took nourishment of any kind. Four days ago a powerful electric battery was applied, and applications have been made regularly ever since. This morning she was able to eat a light breakfast.

Died "By the Way."

SUDBURY, May 22.—A well-dressed woman named Annie Hyde got off the west-bound train at Sudbury on account of illness. Four days later she succumbed to inflammation of the lungs. Miss Hyde was en route from Stratford-on-Avon, England, to join a brother in Cavalier County, Dakota. The body was interred in the cemetery here. The effects of deceased were taken in charge by W. B. Irving, chief of police of Sudbury. Mr. Piercy received instructions to forward them to Dakota. Sufficient money was found to pay all expenses.

Suicide at Wiarton.

WIARTON, May 22.—Mrs. George Davidson of this place, 50 years of age, left the house about 9 o'clock in the morning and not returning at noon a search was made and she was found suspended from a rafter in the stable, about 30 feet from the house by a towel, which was tightly bound around her neck.

Frightened Himself to Death.

NEW YORK, May 22.—Michael Gaulrepp of No. 1147 Stebbins-avenue died yesterday morning from what doctors term pseudo-hydrophobia. In other words, he had frightened himself to death. On April 26 last he was bitten on the right hand by a dog. The wound healed, but despite the fact that the doctors told him he was all right the man worked himself into a perfect frenzy, and yesterday morning he died, it is believed of heart failure.

A Toronto Tailor Missing.

ORANGEVILLE, May 22.—Wm. Tailor, a tailor who came here from Toronto about three months ago, left his employer's shop in East Broadway apparently only on an errand of a few minutes. Since then he has not been seen dead or alive. He left a new suit of clothes behind him, and was not embarrassed financially. The cause of his sudden disappearance is a mystery.

Death Came While He Was Conversing.

CHESLEY, Ont., May 22.—Samuel Caldwell of the second concession of Elderslie got up at about the usual time, but complained of not feeling well. While engaged in conversation, he suddenly closed his eyes and in a few moments afterwards was dead. The doctor pronounced the cause of death to have been a paralytic stroke. He was in his 78th year.

Shot Himself Instead of the Cat.

HAMILTON, May 22.—Henry J. Lawry, butcher in the market, after driving home from the city last evening, went over to the daughter-house to kill a cat that had been killing the young chickens about the place. The revolver had missed fire and he turned the muzzle back to look into the cylinder, when the weapon went off. The bullet struck him in the centre of the forehead, crushing in the skull upon the brain. Mr. Lawry fell back on the steps. He may recover.

Carelessness Caused It.

BRANTFORD, May 22.—The driver of Mr. John Moore's express between Ayr and Paris accidentally shot himself last evening. He carried a revolver in a belt, and threw the latter over the seat. In moving the seat the revolver was discharged and the ball entered his leg. He was severely wounded.

Dying From a Peculiar Accident.

ORANGEVILLE, May 22.—Thomas Robinson of Bellwood, who had only been in the Forks a few days, was turning a stone, when he got a twist or wrench which ruptured his kidney. His recovery is doubtful.

Found Dead in Bed.

FERGUS, May 22.—Robert Milne, aged 71, of the Halfway House, Fergus-road, was found dead in bed. His wife and daughter were absent on a visit to Hamilton.

Petition Dismissed.

WINNIPEG, May 22.—The petition to unseat A. W. Ross, M.P. for Lisgar, was dismissed to-day by a full court on preliminary objections, which proved fatal.

The Rope Broke at Broken Bow.

BROKEN BOW, Neb., May 22.—When the trap had been sprung at the execution of Albert Haventine to-day, the body shot down six feet, when there was a snap and the body fell to the ground. The rope had broken. The man was hanged a second time successfully.

BRITISH AND FOREGIN.

FRIGHTFUL COLLISION ON A GERMAN RAILROAD.

A Passenger Train Runs Into a Circus Train—Many Persons Are Killed Including the Wife and Daughter of the Proprietor of the Show.

BERLIN, May 22.—In a collision to-day between a passenger train and a special train conveying Carre's circus troupe at Kirchlinger, near Osnabruck, a number of persons were killed, including Madame Carre, the wife of the proprietor, and her daughter. The engineer and fireman of the circus train and two guards were also killed and 20 persons were seriously injured. The two trains came together with a frightful shock and three carriages were telescoped and smashed into fragments.

A SIGNIFICANT VICTORY.

The Great Political Strike in Belgium Ended.

LONDON, May 22.—The working classes of Belgium have won a signal victory in compelling the central section of the Chamber of Representatives to declare in favor of a revision of the constitution. The great strike started in the early part of the month was unprecedented in its motive, which had nothing to do directly with wages or hours, but was intended as the only protest the disfranchised workingmen could make against the denial of the suffrage. They determined that if they could not vote they would not work and that the constitution must be revised in the interest of liberal suffrage. The People, organ of the workingmen, called on the Ministry to make a frank declaration regarding the revision of the constitution, which the workmen believed to be destined to oblivion by calculated delays. The strike spread throughout the four great coal basins of Belgium, and one after another the various industries fell into line with the movement, and trade and commerce were threatened with paralysis.

The leading mine owners and metallurgists became alarmed. They exposed to the king the immense injury already done and the greater injury threatened to Belgian industry by the delay in voting for revision. The traders of Serang petitioned the Chambers in the same sense. The wildest rumors got afloat and almost created a panic. It was said and even published that German troops would enter Belgium to re-establish order. This report aroused patriotic indignation, but did not put an end to the strike.

Numerous arrests were made with a view to coercing the strikers; but the men remained firm, and at length the majority of the Chamber formally signified willingness to support the proposed revision and aid in effecting a substantial reform. To-day the strike ended, and the Belgian workingmen are everywhere jubilant over their victory. Should there be any faltering on the part of the Ministry or the Chamber the workingmen stand ready to resume the strike at the call of their leaders.

A Parisian Storm.

PARIS, May 22.—A terrific storm passed over this city last evening, causing considerable damage and creating much alarm. A huge waterspout formed on the Champs Elysee, traversed the Place de la Concorde and burst in the Jardin des Tuileries, uprooting trees, destroying lawns and flower beds and washing away pathways. A thunderbolt fell in the Esplanade des Invalides, but there was no loss of life. Consternation prevailed in the neighborhood caused by the storm.

Adrift at Sea.

LONDON, May 22.—The Dutch steamer Veendam, belonging to the Netherland line, is disabled at sea with 795 passengers on board. She was sighted off Newfoundland with a strange steamer alongside, evidently rendering assistance.

Cholera in Arabia.

LONDON, May 22.—Cholera has appeared among Indian pilgrims on the Island of Kamaran off the west coast of Arabia.

Fattening on the Jews.

ODESSA, May 22.—The police here are fattening hugely by blackmail on wealthy Jews. Prominent Jews think the time is not ripe to form a Jewish nation in Palestine, as wealthy Jews would not invest capital in such a hopeless enterprise.

The Baron's Jewish Colony.

LONDON, May 22.—Baron Hirsch has completed the purchase of an immense tract of land in Uruguay, upon which he will form a Jewish colony.

10,000 Exiles for Siberia.

LONDON, May 22.—There are 3000 prisoners in Russia awaiting suitable weather for their transportation to Siberia. The prisoners will be voluntarily accompanied by their wives and families, numbering 10,000 persons.

Killed by a Falling Bucket.

As the loaded bucket was being raised the guy rope slipped and the bucket came down, pinning Scott to the deck. His shoulder and breast bone were [illegible], internal organs were badly crushed and his backbone was dislocated. He cannot recover.

WINNIPEG, May 22.—Col. Villiers, D.A.G., will temporarily succeed Col. Taylor, commandant of Infantry School, who died yesterday. Efforts are being made by citizens to secure the appointment of Major Buchan, formerly of the Queen's Own and [illegible], to the position.

The Pugilists Will Not Get Paid.

Makes the Weak Strong

The marked benefit which people in run down or weakened state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but in the most natural way Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes creates an appetite, purifies the blood, and, in short, gives great bodily, nerve, mental and digestive strength.

That Tired Feeling

"I derived very much benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I took for general debility. It built me right up, and gave me an excellent appetite." Ed. Jenkins, Mt. Savage, Md.

Fagged Out

"Last spring I was completely fagged out. My strength left me and I felt sick and miserable all the time, so that I could hardly attend to my business. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it cured me. There is nothing like it." R. C. Brooks, Editor Enterprise, Belleville, Mich.

Worn Out

"Hood's Sarsaparilla restored me to good health. Indeed, I might say truthfully it saved my life. To one feeling tired and worn out I would earnestly recommend a trial of Hood's Sarsaparilla." Mrs. Phebe Morris, 99 Brooks Street, East Boston, Mass.

GOOD ADVICE.

The Minden Echo advises the settlers of Haliburton to grow at least enough wheat to make their own bread. It says that a large amount of cash is sent out of the country for flour and this drain helps to keep its farmers poor. If wheat can be profitably grown in the district this is good advice. Farmers are getting into the habit of buying many supplies which they might manufacture on the premises, and there is danger that bread-making, butter-making, the curing of hams and bacon and other household industries may be relegated to the factories entirely.—Toronto Globe.

Certainly the advice given in the foregoing paragraph, from both papers, is sound and should be heeded. And while the principle is sound when applied to a farm, it is also sound when extended so as to cover a nation. If a farmer purchases what he could have raised at home, he has lost an opportunity to save money, and a nation that imports what could be produced within itself is impoverishing itself and benefitting the country from which it purchases. The farmer who buys his wheat, bread or butter when he would have produced it does a larger outside business than he probably would otherwise have done. He sells something else to pay for the things bought. But that would be, it is plain, be no evidence of progress, and the volume of imports and exports is not invariably an index of a country's prosperity, for increased home manufacture might lower the volume of foreign trade while the actual trade done might be increased. It is the duty of the legislators to shape the fiscal policy so that home production and manufacture may be encouraged, in order that the profits of production and manufacture may be retained for the people and the country developed. This is done in Canada by the National Policy.

THE STANDING OF PARTIES.

The analysis of the vote in the House of Commons on the repeal of the Franchise Act made by the Empire gives the following result:—To sum up the standing of parties in the House, as determined by the first vote, gives the Government a majority of 4 in Ontario, the leading province of the Dominion, and an overwhelming majority in every other except Quebec and Prince Edward Island. In fact, the Opposition can only figure out a bare majority in Ontario and Quebec together by claiming the independent member from Dorchester, who happened to vote with them on this occasion. Applying the information gained by the vote to the membership of the House, the result may be tabulated as follows:

	Conservatives.	Opposition.	Majority.
Ontario	48	44	4
Quebec	30	35	..
Nova Scotia	16	5	11
New Brunswick	13	3	10
Manitoba	4	1	3
British Columbia	6	0	6
N. W. Territories	4	0	4
P. E. Island	2	4	..
			38
Less Opp. maj. in Que. and P.E.I.			7
Total Conservative majority			31

If there is any comfort for the Opposition organs in these figures they are cordially welcome to the whole of it.

The Ottawa correspondent of the Montreal Witness, a Liberal paper, says:—"Mr. Barron, the tennis and cricket player and horseman from North Victoria, struck a mare's nest in moving for papers concerning the dismissal of J. R. Graham, of Fenelon Falls, as fishery overseer, who, he declared, was persecuted and dismissed for working for Mr. Barron in the recent election. Mr. Tupper surprised Mr. Barron by stating that Mr. Graham had not been dismissed, but that an investigation into certain charges against him was pending."

The Wise Savants

Tell us that Rheumatism is a blood disease that it can be cured only by a remedy which works through the blood. And yet, if you have the darting pains of Rheumatism in muscles or joints, try a little of Clark's Lightning Liniment. It will go direct to the seat of pain and relieve it at once. There is no waiting weeks and months until the disease can be attacked through the blood. This seems to be contrary to scientific claims, but it is true that Clark's Lightning Liniment will cure Rheumatism. Sold by all druggists; price fifty cents. Clark Chemical Co., Toronto.

It was a Rosebud All the Same.

The following conversation was overheard in a King-st. horse car on St. George's day:—Harry, where is your rosebud to-day? In my pocket, my dear; two of them for a quarter. Why, how cheap! but won't they get crushed? Give me one. Here you are, then—want a match? Why, that's a cigar you're giving me. Certainly, a "Rosebud Reliance," one of Tasse, Wood & Co.'s best brands. That's a shame, Harry, but now you've deceived me; you might tell me why they are called rosebuds. Well, the reason is because the end to be lighted is closed like a rosebud, in consequence of which the cigar lights evenly like a cigarette, and therefore can never burn crooked. Now, in lighting ordinary cigars you will notice—What?—car stops.

LOVE'S TOKENS.

Written for the Review.

Flowers beautiful and rare were brought
The casket to adorn,
Of one whose soul was called away
In childhood's rosy morn.

Meet emblem of sweet innocence
Their freshness and perfume,
But he is where immortal flowers
In heav'n's Elysian bloom.

This floral gift so beautiful
With symbolism fraught,
Although admir'd by all, was deem'd
By some too dearly bought.

Too dearly bought! What depths of love
Were stirr'd they little know,
Else they would talk less lightly of Affection's overflow.

Musing how love thinks not of cost,
Flash'd through our mind this thought,
If all lov'd Jesus more, what great
Gifts would to Him be brought.

We did not call it sacrifice
This off'ring to bestow,
Free, unsolicited 'twas given
Because we lov'd him so.

O, that pure love within men's hearts
For Christ glow'd more and more,
Then would they treasures willing Into His coffers pour.

The Great Consummation.

Edward Everett once said: "I never contemplate the history of navigation of the ocean by steam, but it seems to illustrate to me in the most striking manner the slow steps by which a great movement advances for generations, for ages, from the first germ,—then when the hour is come, the rapidity with which it rushes to a final consummation.

As far back as the introduction of steam navigation of the ocean, mighty efforts were made to produce a remedy which would benefit men and women in certain ailments, more common to-day than they were fifty years ago. The troubles we refer to are nervous debility, sleeplessness, headaches, moroseness, melancholia, tired brain, together with their dreaded followers, dyspepsia and indigestion. Remedies without number were introduced under various names, each one trumpeted forth as the best. Suffering humanity however was never permanently benefitted until that great discovery by Prof. Phelps—Paine's Celery Compound was given to the world. It is true that for a time its use was somewhat restricted and slow; but as soon as its advantages, its power, its great efficacy became known to all thinking and intelligent people, it at once rushed to the front; and by its use, the great desire of all sufferers has been more than realized. It has in every case raised the weak and nervous sufferer to health and strength. It has given an assurance of new life to the despondent and morose sufferer; and spread joy, peace, and pleasure in its train. Paine's Celery Compound is in very truth the consummation and completion of medical skill, and must ever prove mankind's great benefactor.

OTONABEE.

A Pleasant Social and an Address and Presentation.

Correspondence of the Review.

On Tuesday evening, May 19th, the Bethel Church Branch of the Epworth League held its first social. This branch was formed in March last. Mr. Ernest Doyell is the President, Mr. Newton Stewart Secretary and Mr. James Matchett Treasurer. The branch has a membership of about sixty persons of different religious denominations, Methodist, Presbyterian and English Church, and working in Christ-like harmony. The pastor of the church is Honorary President and with the President occupied the chair at the social. There was a full representation of the League and a number of visitors and the evening was a most enjoyable one. The League opened in due form and the business rapidly disposed of. A very fine programme was then rendered, consisting of choruses, solos, recitations and readings, which were cheered and encored by the audience. Then came the distribution of the viands of the many and well filled baskets of the finest quality, which were accompanied with tea and coffee. At the close of this refreshment part of the evening, order was restored and Mrs. Rev. A. C. Wilson was asked to take a seat on the pulpit sofa by the side of her husband, when three sisters of the League came forward, Misses Olivia Doyell, Georgina Stewart and Susie Matchett. The latter at once proceeded to read the following address:—

Dear Mr. Wilson,—We the members of the Epworth League and Bethel church, wish to extend our deep regret in contemplating your removal from amongst us to another field of labor in the Master's vineyard. We thank you for your untiring efforts especially during the last few months in laboring so faithfully for our spiritual welfare and we feel greatful to God that you have been the instrument in His hands of leading so many of us to the saving knowledge of the truth, and we can but pray that in the future you may be equally successful in your material labors in whatever field you may be placed and in the end receive the reward promised by the Master to His faithful servants. We wish you to accept the accompanying gifts (a beautiful piano lamp and silver sugar bowl and spoons) to yourself and Mrs. Wilson, and we hope that you both may long be spared to go hand in hand in every good work.

Signed on behalf of the members.

Georgia Stewart,
Olive Doyell,
Susie Matchett.

Mr. Wilson made a suitable reply, thanking them most heartily for the tangible expression of their appreciation of his labor among them, and especially because it came as a token of real good he had been the means of doing them. He was very sorry in heart to part with them, but looked forward to a re-union in that place where "congregations never break up."

Since Rev. A. C. Wilson came three years ago decided improvements in every respect have taken place. The congregation has doubled, and the number of communicants has also doubled. A new pulpit and choir stand, the organization of a choir and an organ are due to the energies of his labors and usefulness.

Ask Your Friends About It.

Your distressing cough can be cured. We know it because Kemp's Balsam within the past few years has cured so many coughs and colds in this community. Its remarkable sale has been won entirely by its genuine merit. Ask some friend who has used it what he thinks of Kemp's Balsam. There is no medicine so pure, none so effective. HINTS IN FARMING FOR PROFIT.

The generous farmer reaps generous crops.

The lambs should be in an inclosure and be fed by themselves.

Costly experiments never pay. Adam found that out the first time he tried it.

It is the last load of manure that feeds your crop; all before that feeds the land.

It is a poor crop that will not pay for keeping an account of its cost and receipts.

Something does not come of nothing. The elements of the crop must be in the soil.

Plants received from abroad must be opened on arrival, the bunches loosened and immediately healed in.

If eggs and dressed poultry were sold by weight, it would be more just than by count to both buyer and seller.

Mr. Murtfeldt says a cow is like a closet or cupboard—you can take nothing out unless you put something in.

A deep sandy loam is among the very best soils in which to successfully plant. If a little gravelly, all the better.

The first four or five months feed for bone and muscle; after that more fat, though a variety should always be given.

The soil intended for a strawberry bed should be plowed deep, and, when ready for the plants, be like a pulverized bank of ashes.

In setting out plants do not sprinkle the foliage, as it causes moisture to collect, injurious to the crown of the plant, causing rot.

Keep the barn yard cleaned up. A nail in a horse's hoof may cause you more trouble than it would to keep the yard clean for a lifetime.

A warm and comfortable stable will save feed and straw, and dry leaves from the woods are softer than oak boards, and dryer than the earth.

The bush Lima bean is very highly commended. It needs no poles, is of excellent quality, can be planted closer than the tall Lima and stands the drouth better than snap beans.

The way for a farmer to determine his profit or loss is the way every other competent business man keeps books. It is to balance aggregate receipts against aggregate expenses.

Make the best of what you have, and you may find that you live in as good a part of the world as there is. Imagining there is something better somewhere else makes thousands unhappy.

A March pig is worth more than an April one, and is worth more than two June pigs, writes one who has been a successful breeder of swine for twenty years, and this without disease among his flock.

All roots must go down their full length into the soil, spread apart fan shaped, and then the soil firmly pressed around them with the hands, clearing the crown even with or a little above the surface.

To keep barn and stable doors open has troubled many men. The time spent by the world in hunting up sticks to prop doors back would make many years. Yet a simple hook on the barn, and staple on door—costing scarcely anything—would do the business.

It is announced that, under the influence of Mr. Gladstone and others, diversified farming is to be greatly stimulated in England. As it is now, certain districts confine themselves to certain lines, creating the necessity for importations which might otherwise be prevented.

BUY NOW IF AT ALL.

Every day makes more apparent the fact that the town is going ahead rapidly. Numerous changes have taken place in the way of the ownership of property. Many workingmen are buying houses and lots or lots on which to build. One of the most suitable locations is that known as the Erin property, at the west end, owned largely by Mr. Wm. Fitzgerald. This week he has closed the sale of a very desirable new house and lot, and has several eligible lots on this property to dispose of. Property in this neighbourhood is rapidly being built up, and it will be well to have a look at the situation if one is at all disposed to buy. The terms are very favorable and especially low for cash, though payment on time may be arranged.

Mr. Thos. Telford writes:—At sunrise this morning the thermometer stood at 34 degrees, only 2 degrees above freezing, but no doubt in low situations and on some vegetables the white frost will make itself felt, as I have seen places white at 36 degrees. It will probably bring rain soon.

Uncle Tom at the Opera House.

The old time-worn southern drama "Uncle Tom's Cabin" did not draw a large house at the Opera House last night. The slave story was presented with all its old pathos and fervor. "Uncle Tom's Cabin" has been a back number for years, but usually draws a good house on the strength of a reputation.

An Alarm of Fire.

Shortly before twelve o'clock an alarm of fire was sounded for a supposed blaze in a roughcast house on Stewart-st, occupied by Mr. T. A. McMurtry. The alarm was caused by smoke that was noticed from stove pipes. A delay was caused again by the absence on the street of the fire teams. There is a complaint that the firemen make, which is a justifiable one. Persons are too fond of sounding an alarm of fire. A puff of smoke or a burning chimney is sufficient for some to telephone an alarm and call the firemen away from their work. To-day it resulted in a broken leg to Mr. Carrens. Some of the persons who give these ill-judged alarms may be made an example of.

Mr. Dunn, a detachment of the 57th (by permission) and the Band will also take part.

The Cavan Drainage By-Law Suit—A Further Enlargement.

At Osgoode Hall, Toronto, yesterday before the Hon. Mr. Justice McMahon, the Cavan drainage by-law case came up for hearing. In this matter Edward Johnston, who is a farmer in Cavan township, will seek to quash By-law No. 364 of the corporation of the township of Cavan, passed on the 20th day of March last which provides for draining parts of the 11th, 12th, 13th and 14th concessions of the township of Cavan and parts of the 12th and 13th concessions of the township of Monaghan, and for borrowing on the credit of the municipality of the township of Cavan, the sum of twelve thousand dollars for completing the same.

The case had been enlarged before, and yesterday at request of counsel it was further enlarged until June 16th.

It is said that evidence will be brought forward to prove that at the time the by-law was provisionally adopted or finally passed before the Council there was not a petition therefor of a majority of the persons shown by the last revised assessment roll to be the owners of property to be benefitted by the proposed drainage works. A large number of farmers who signed the first petition for the passing of the first by-law on the presumption that the cost of the drainage works would be about $8,000 withdrew from that petition and signed a counter petition against proceeding with the work when they learned that the cost would be about $12,000. A large number of affidavits have been fyled, for and against the drain, which will be read when the case comes up for hearing. The Judge's decision on the case is anxiously looked forward to by the farmers, of whom there are many whose lands will be effected by the drain. E. B. Edwards appears for the relator, and John Burnham, Q. C., for the respondents.

A Strong Delegation.

There will be a strong delegation at the Christian Alliance convention which opens here on June 9th in the Opera House. Rev. A. B. Simpson, of the Gospel Tabernacle, New York, Rev. Dr. Wilson, late of St. George's Episcopal church, New York, Rev. F. L. Farr, of Milford, Mass., Rev. C. W. Ryder, of Providence, R.I., Rev. J. Salmon, of Toronto, Mrs. E. M. Whittemore, Mrs. Simpson, Miss Lindenberger and Miss F. L. Shephard, of New York, and Mrs. Beck, of Philadelphia, Pa., are expected to be present.

A Horse's Kick Breaks a Leg.

An accident under peculiar circumstances, occurred at the corner of George and Simcoe-sts. this morning just at the time the alarm for fire was sounded. The hose wagon came dashing along Simcoe-st. and a crowd was standing at Fairweather's corner. Mr. Wm. Fitzgerald who was driving stopped his horse to allow the firemen to pass when his horse kicked sideways and the hoof struck Mr. Wm. Carrens, of Smith on the leg above the ankle. It was a severe blow and knocked the old gentleman to the ground. He was picked up and carried into Mr. Fairweather's store where it was found that the leg was broken. Medical aid was secured and the fractured limb set.

St. John's Services To-morrow.

The usual arrangements at St. John's to-morrow will be modified owing to the military service in the afternoon. The venerable Archdeacon Lauder, Rector of Ottawa, will be present and has kindly consented to preach in the evening.

The two Bible classes will necessarily be postponed, but the Sunday school will be held as usual.

The parade service will begin at 3 p.m. and will conclude about 4.15. As the whole seating accommodation of the church will be occupied by volunteers, it is impossible for the authorities to give any general invitation to the public, which they much regret. At the conclusion of the service, however, if the weather be favorable, the National Anthem will be sung on the church grounds, led by the combined military bands, in which it is requested that all present will join.

THE QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY.

THE ARRANGEMENTS AND EVENTS FOR LOCAL PEOPLE.

The Visit of the Foot Guards and the Military Programme—Sunday's Programme and Monday's Many Movements.

To-morrow will be the 24th of May, the seventy-second anniversary of the Queen's birthday. The day falling on the Sabbath the usual loyal celebration which has for over half a century marked Her Majesty's birthday, will fall on the 25th. However, the day itself, the 24th, will not go unmarked by unusual events, and on Monday Peterborough will put on gala attire and join in celebrating the Queen's Birthday.

SUNDAY'S STIR.

To-morrow will be marked by the arrival here early in the morning of the Governor-General's Foot Guards, of Ottawa. This crack corps will come over the rails of the C.P.R. on a special train and will be here probably about six in the morning. They will walk into their city of tents on Burnham's Point, where a fatigue squad of the 57th are hard at work to-day. In the afternoon at two o'clock the visiting soldiers, accompanied by the 57th Battalion, will attend divine service at St. John's church. The service is certain to be of an interesting and earnest character. The beautiful church service has been neatly printed at the REVIEW Job Department, and copies will be placed in the hands of each soldier to enable each to enter with earnestness and intelligence into the service. This will be the only military display to-morrow.

But the Sons of England never allow the anniversary of their Queen's birth to go past without a special feature. On the Sunday which falls nearest the 24th the members of the Order always attend divine service once in the day in a body. To-morrow evening the members of the local lodges will march in a body to the Charlotte-st. Methodist church, where Rev. S. J. Shorey will deliver the sermon.

These two special services will be the distinguishing features of the 24th here.

MONDAY'S CELEBRATION.

On Monday the anniversary will be right royally commemorated in sundry ways and divers places by the people of Peterborough. The cheap rates on the railways will no doubt take a number out of town, while the excursions to different points may also be fairly patronized.

MILITARY MOVEMENTS.

The centre of attraction undoubtedly will be the militia. The Governor-General's Foot Guards who are to arrive as stated above will join with the 57th Battalion in a grand military parade in the morning. In the morning at 9.30 the men of the 57th will muster at the drill shed and march to the Hunter-st. bridge where they will meet their comrades in arms. A short parade of the streets will bring the two battalions back to the Guards' camp in Ashburnham. Here the trooping of the colors and the march past will be done, and at twelve o'clock a grand feu de joi will be fired. The visiting soldiers will then be dismissed and will have the remainder of the day at their own disposal, as also will the local volunteers. The men in the afternoon can attend the lacrosse match and games on the P.A.A.A. grounds in Ashburnham or take in the races at the Driving Park. The Guards will remain until twelve o'clock, when they will leave for Ottawa.

THE AFTERNOON ATTRACTIONS.

In the afternoon a grand lacrosse match will be witnessed on the P.A.A.A. grounds when the local club will meet a team from the Toronto lacrosse club. This will be the first game of the season and is sure to be a hot and exciting contest. There should be large crowd present to encourage the Peterborough boys. Besides the lacrosse match a programme of races will be run off, and an afternoon of good sport furnished.

The following team will represent the local lacrosse team on Monday:—

Goal	F. Larone
Point	F. Packenham
Cover Point	T. Crosin
1st Defence	J. McCabe
2nd Defence	T. Meagher
3rd Defence	E. Hickey
Centre Field	W. Hendron
3rd Home	F. White
2nd Home	J. Begley
1st Home	J. Daly
Outside Home	J. McDonogh
Inside Home	W. Phelan

Field Captain—W. Redkins.

AT THE DRIVING PARK.

Then at the Driving Park there will be an afternoon of races and the programme is attracting considerable interest among horsemen. There are two events; the named race and the 2.38 trot, and good purses are offered in each. The entries will ensure a good exhibition of speed. Several flyers have been exercising for weeks past at the track getting in readiness for the races. This will no doubt attract a good crowd of spectators.

OUT OF TOWN.

At Idyl Wild there will be the grand opening of the season. Boats will run from all points on the lake and the Golden Eye will leave her wharf here at 7.30 o'clock in the morning. One hundred dollars are to be given away in prizes and a day of great enjoyment is promised to all who go down the beautiful Otonabee to Idyl Wild.

Canton Peterborough will leave for Campbellford on the 8.20 train. The Canton will participate in the Oddfellows demonstration in that place and are down to give an exhibition drill.

Monday will also be the day of Rev. Father Conway's picnic at Norwood. This event is an annual one and past experience has marked it as one of the events of the season. Arrangements have been made for a great day's outing and no doubt many Peterborough people will go down to participate in the fun.

The Cruiser also runs a special trip to Stony Lake on Saturday night, returning on Tuesday morning, giving any desirous of doing so, an opportunity of spending the 24th at Peterborough's charming summer resort.

With fine weather a grand day of enjoyment will be ensured to all, no matter whether they remain at home or seek enjoyment out of town.

THE EVENING EVENT.

The event of the evening will be the grand promenade concert which is to be given in the market building by the bands of the Foot Guards and the 57th. Both have prepared special music and hard practice has made an evening of rare musical enjoyment a certainty to all those who attend. The funds go towards purchasing new reed instruments for the 57th band and the patronage of the event should be large. The programme that will be rendered will be as follows:—

1. Grand March...."Unity"....57th Batt. Band (and G.G.F.G.
2. Overture......."Le Macon"........G.G.F.G.
3. Fantasia.."Pride of Scotland"....57th Batt. (Band.
4. Valse...."Ehren on the Rhine"...G.G.F.G.
5. Selection......."Maritana".............57th
6. Fantasia."Ten Minutes with the Minstrels"
7. Overture....."Bohemian Girl".........57th

"God Save the Queen."

CHARGED WITH FRAUD.

Circumstances Surrounding a Case Save a Man From Conviction.

Police Magistrate Dumble held a long session of the Police Court this morning hearing the trial of George Taylor who was charged with having fraudulently and knowingly by false pretences obtained from Mr. J. B. McWilliams the sum of $20. The accused has been out on bail since Tuesday last when Mr. McWilliams swore out the information. He is a man of sandy complexion, probably between forty and fifty years of age.

Mr. E. B. Wood, County Crown Attorney, appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. E. B. Edwards defended the prisoner. The accused elected to be tried summarily.

THEIR BUSINESS CONNECTION.

Mr. J. B. McWilliams was the first witness called. He testified that the prisoner had come to him and stated that he was short of funds and asked witness to cash a cheque for $20. The cheque was produced dated February 6th on the Standard Bank of Toronto. The witness said he went to Toronto, but always forgot to cash the cheque. Taylor subsequently came into his office and asked him if he had realized on the cheque. Witness told him he had not and the prisoner then borrowed another ten dollars; he was going to Belmont and was a little short. He said he would give a cheque covering all the indebtedness. The witness gave him the money and afterwards wrote to Toronto to the manager of the Standard Bank to obtain information in regard to the accused. He could not produce this letter, but had the reply, which he produced, stating that Taylor had no account in the bank. The witness first met prisoner who had come into his office and talked of money matters. Witness went to Seymour to a mine to test a new prospecting instrument the prisoner had invented. The prisoner had proposed that they go into the mine speculations, but witness would not until he had an option to the property.

Mr. McWilliams interjected considerable information here that was not evidence, notwithstanding Mr. Edward's objections. He said the prisoner represented to be a man of means, for he had been negotiating to buy the nine townships of Mr. J. M. Irwin, and had asked witness to write to the Gilmours and Rathbuns, whose property he was also going to buy.

The witness was positive that this money was not paid in January. He had lent prisoner $5 a short time before cashing the cheque. When they went to Seymour witness had paid the expenses of both. He was quite sure that on February 6th, the day it was dated. He fixed the time only by the cheque. He denied that prisoner had borrowed the twenty dollars and given a cheque dated in advance. He denied also that prisoner said at the time he gave the cheque that he had no funds in the bank.

Again Mr. McWilliams interjected some information that was objected to. He said he had never been suspicious, but had always treated the prisoner as a gentleman until about three weeks ago. At that time he missed a book on mineralogy and a map of Methuen from his office and had found the book in the prisoner's valise. Witness said he had never had any dispute with prisoner in regard to any mining speculation nor had he ever threatened him with proceedings if he did not pay the cheque.

Mr. J. L. Brodie, Manager of the Toronto branch of the Standard Bank, was next called and testified that he did not know the accused and that George Taylor had no account in the bank. A George Taylor, of Port Hope, had had an account in the bank in 1887 but it was closed then. The cheque produced would not have been paid if presented.

This was all the evidence for the prosecution.

SOME ARGUMENT.

Mr. Edwards, for the defence, submitted that no case had been made out and that the circumstances did not point to any attempt to defraud. His client told him that he had simply borrowed the money from Mr. McWilliams and had given the cheque as an acknowledgement of the debt, telling Mr. McWilliams that there were no funds in the bank. The money, his client said, was not paid on February 6th, but on January 26th, and the cheque was dated ahead. It was an extraordinary course that had been pursued. Mr. McWilliams without even asking for payment of the cheque had sworn out a warrant and had the man arrested. Mr. Taylor would have paid the cheque and he had the $20 in his pocket to pay it at the present time.

Mr. Wood held that a strong case had been made out and reviewed the evidence.

The Magistrate after summing up the case and requisite points which had to be proved in a case of false pretences, said that the circumstances of this case were such, that Mr. McWilliams and Mr. Taylor were together in a speculation, and the cheque had been held and the prisoner had not been asked to pay the money. It did not look like an ordinary business transaction. There was just enough doubt to allow him to exercise his privilege and allow the case to be disposed if compensation was made.

Mr. Wood—Do you find him not guilty?

The Magistrate said he preferred to give a finding that would not leave a conviction against a man who may have as good a character as he had himself.

Some cross discussion followed. The twenty dollars, the value of the cheque, was taken by the Magistrate from Mr. Edwards, but was refused by Mr. Wood, and when the prisoner had been dismissed and was leaving the court room the twenty dollars were given back to his counsel.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY REVIEW.

Indigestion

IS not only a distressing complaint, of itself, but, by causing the blood to become depraved and the system enfeebled, is the parent of innumerable maladies. That Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best cure for Indigestion, even when complicated with Liver Complaint, is proved by the following testimony from Mrs. Joseph Lake, of Brockway Centre, Mich.:—

"Liver complaint and indigestion made my life a burden and came near ending my existence. For more than four years I suffered untold agony, was reduced almost to a skeleton, and hardly had strength to drag myself about. All kinds of food distressed me, and only the most delicate could be digested at all. Within the time mentioned several physicians treated me without giving relief. Nothing that I took seemed to do any permanent good until I commenced the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which has produced wonderful results. Soon after commencing to take the Sarsaparilla I could see an improvement in my condition. My appetite began to return and with it came the ability to digest all the food taken, my strength improved each day, and after a few months of faithful attention to your directions, I found myself a well woman, able to attend to all household duties. The medicine has given me a new lease of life."

A STORY OF HUNGARY.

The village of Kiroslava, in the Banat, earned in 1738 an evil name that extended all over Europe then and is not forgotten even now. Corpses that had lain for a month under ground were dug up as fresh and uncorrupted as when committed to the earth. Blood flowed from the mouth and nostrils so as to fill the coffins, the hair and nails had grown and the skin had been renewed. These were the vampires, the wrokiak, who left their graves at night to prey upon the living, who, when they too died of vampireism became vampires in turn.

There was but one recourse. To dig the vampire up, behead it and drive a stake through the body, which was then burned. This wild tale caused the death of hundreds from sheer fright. Not only the peasants, but the most distinguished men in Hungary believed it as did the Duke de Richelieu, French Ambassador at Vienna, and M. de Vassmont, Envoy of Duke Leopold of Lorraine.

The handsomest Csikos or horseherder about Kiroslava was Jokai Ferenz. He had served as a hussar and was as trim and active a lad as ever galloped across the dusty puszta, a prime dancer, of Zardas and a favorite of many a merry Maryar maiden.

He, like the others, was carried away by the vampire frenzy that took hold of his imagination and tormented him with horrid dreams, that only ceased when the vampires [illegible].

Of his sweethearts, Mitzi or Minnie Kalkech, the innkeeper's daughter was his favorite; a brown skinned, black eyed lass, to whom half Kiroslava paid court. The innkeeper, however, thought Mitzi better matched with some substantial farmer than with a reckless Csikos, whose life was passed in galloping like mad among herds of wild horses.

The [illegible] had vanished and quiet reigned in the village. But a dreadful discovery made the morning after St. Sylvester's Eve spread dismay once more among them. The innkeeper's stablemen had found at dawn the body of poor Mitzi lying in the courtyard almost naked and covered with wounds inflicted with a knife. No weapon, however, was found, nor any other clew. The cattle in the courtyard had trampled out the marks of the murderer's feet. By the body lay the broken fragments of a pitcher, and it appeared that it must have been while going to fetch water at the well in the night that poor Mitzi had been slaughtered.

No face was sadder at the funeral than that of the Csikos, who excited compassion among all those in the little god's acre. He and the old innkeeper remained until the last, when each went his way without a word.

All attempts to trace the assassin were in vain, and after a time people only spoke of the matter at intervals. But about a year afterward an event occurred that brought back to mind all the details of Mitzi's murder.

There was a camp of Tziganes in the woods behind Kiroslava and in it a beautiful gypsy girl, Saralta. A forester going his rounds in the woods came upon the mangled body of the Tzigane, whose hands and feet had been hacked off and the body afterward dragged to where it was found in the bush. The reeds by the water were trampled down as if the murderer had gone there to wash his hands after his bloody work.

No attempt was made to connect the two murders. But in both cases the victim had been surprised and overpowered. There were no signs of a struggle. Arrests were made, but after a time the prisoners were allowed to go. The dead woman had been noted for her gallantries, and it was supposed that one of her swains, maddened at her faithlessness, had killed her. Among gypsies the case was not uncommon.

Another year passed, and the fate of this village Carmen was almost forgotten, when a third murder, the most atrocious of them all, cast a black shadow over the little community. This time the victim was Ilma Starik, wife of Sandor, or Alexander Marcovics, the miller. In the wood behind the mill was a little open space where the timber had been cleared away and it was here that Sandor, alarmed at her disappearance, found her after a long and exhausting search. The headless body was lying in a pool of blood and the head had been flung into the branches of a tree by the murderer. The body was hacked and hewn into a shapeless, bloody mass.

The neighbors, who hurried to the spot on hearing Sandor's awful cry, had trouble in bringing him back to his senses, nor could he give any intelligible account of what had happened.

A small detachment of hussars were stationed at Kiroslava, and two were at once dispatched to the neighboring town to tell their colonel. It was night, but the moon was at its full and their sabres and spurs kept up a merry jingling as their horses cantered over the country road. After half an hour they caught up with a man on foot going in the same direction as themselves. Both recognized the Csikos. It struck them both that as he walked his eyes were fixed upon some distant object, nor did he seem to be aware of their presence.

They came up with him, and no wonder they stared. The white dress of the Csikos was all smeared with blood and in his right hand he carried open a large claspknife, bloody from point to hilt.

They called to him. He did not reply. Then one drew his sabre and struck him smartly across the shoulders with the flat of it. The Csikos started and stretched out his hands as if to save himself from falling. He dropped his knife, then tried to pick it up and failed, but stood facing them swaying from side to side like a drunken man.

Then, for the first time he spoke. "What are you doing here?" he asked. Then further, "What are we doing here?"

"Ask that of the Colonel when we get to his quarters," answered the trooper.

"Why?" said the Csikos, simply.

"Because then you can tell how you got those stains on your coat."

"Stains," repeated the Csikos. He looked at them and his face became clouded. Then at a sign from the hussar, he placed himself between them and walked along.

The rest is soon told. The Csikos was tried, convicted, and hanged. He died bravely and swore to the last that as far as the fatal three night were concerned his memory was a blank.

No one believed him except the old German surgeon of the hussars. "When he killed those women," said the old man, "he was perfectly passive. His moral nature was asleep."

The peasants declared the Csikos to be a vampire.

"But he was alive," some one answered.

"No, no," they replied, "dead, but his people were afraid to bury him."

This talk went on until the body of the Csikos was dug up, a stake driven through it and buried. Some said a groan was heard, others, that a succession of stifled cries issued from the body as the cart jolted along. "Idiots," said the old German surgeon, "fooled by the creaking of those confounded axes."

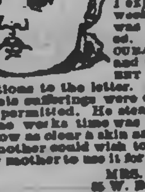
ON FIRE WITH ECZEMA.

Terrible Sufferings of Little Baby. Seven Doctors and Two Hospitals Fail. Cured by Cuticura.



My baby boy, 5 months old, broke out with eczema. The itching and burning was intense; the eczema spread to his limbs, breast, face and head, until he was nearly covered; his torturing agonies were pitiable to behold; he had no peace and but little rest night or day. He was under treatment at different times at two hospitals and by seven doctors in this city without the least benefit; every prescription of the doctors was faithfully tried, but he grew worse all the time. For months I expended about $5 per week for medicines, and was entirely discouraged. I purchased CUTICURA, CUTICURA SOAP and CUTICURA RESOLVENT and followed the directions to the letter. Relief was immediate, his sufferings were eased, and rest and sleep permitted. He steadily improved and in nine weeks time was entirely cured, and has now as clear a skin and is as fair a boy as any mother could wish to see. I recommend every mother to use it for every Baby Humor.

MANY ENGAGE IN THE SEARCH.

For the Corpse of the Late P. Purcell At Summerstown.

CORNWALL, Ont., May 22.—The [illegible] which young Craig shows the [illegible] connected with his arrest is assuming all the appearance of a kind of second Donald Morrison affair. As in the latter case Craig's friends claim his innocence, and many of them uphold his determination to keep out of the road of the officers if possible. Like Morrison, he has sworn to defend himself if an attempt is made to arrest him, and it is stated by reliable people who have met him within the last few days that, like the outlaw of Megantic, he is fully armed for any emergency. The effect of the offer of $100 reward has been miraculous and a small flotilla of various crafts started out this morning to gain the reward. The Indians of the surrounding islands have turned out in large numbers and last evening the boats, provided with pine torches, flitted up and down the river like a swarm of gigantic fireflies.

"I would have shot them like dogs, if it had been me," said Mrs. Derochie to me this morning, when referring to Detective Greer and Malo, who arrested her husband. "He was very foolish indeed," she continued, "to have gone with them when he knew he wasn't guilty." She is a young woman, rather good-looking and showing considerable spirit in her trouble. She is left with three small children and has the sympathy of a good many. "I know he isn't guilty," she continued, "and I can swear that he was at home the night the body was taken. He never was with Craig either, for Craig came to eat supper with us after he drove from Cornwall, and my husband saw him at the door when he left, about 1 o'clock. I suppose, though, that there will be lots of his enemies to swear against him and try to show that he was guilty." She then launched out into several uncomplimentary remarks about the Purcell family. When asked if she had any suspicions as to those that were implicated in the matter, she replied in the negative, and in answer to the question, "Do you think Craig had anything to do with it?" she said: "I don't know, don't see what Johnny Craig would want with the dirty body." She has great hopes that her husband will be able to prove his innocence.

The interview with Mrs. Derochie at her home in Glen Walter gives some information that has heretofore been unknown about the whereabouts of Craig. It was only known previously that Craig had gone down in Murchison's wagon and left him near the graveyard on the pretence of going to see his cousin, which he never did. About half an hour afterwards he was on the island and bought some things, after which he left again in his boat in the direction of Purcell's place. This looks very much as if he were the man whom the nuns saw row away from the Purcell boat-house while they were praying and whom they mistook for some one else who was suspected at the time. When in court Derochie showed himself very independent and pleaded not guilty. When asked if he had anyone to defend him he would defend himself, and when he was remanded at the request of Mr. MacLennan, Q.C., he said he should like to know what there was against him and to have his case done at once. The only remark of interest he has made since he went to jail was to the effect that he would make it hot for those that got him "picked up."

THE DUNKARDS AND THE SPORTS.

[illegible] Once Taken Down.

DAYTON, O., May 23.—After a long discussion the Dunkard conference has resolved that members of the church should at once destroy all signs on their farms that forbid hunting. The Dunkards are religiously opposed to legal controversy, and as hunting cannot be prevented by tedious process of law, the conference determined to take down the caution signs and allow hunters to roam at will over their farms. This will open fully one-fourth of this country to sportsmen this fall.

Oppose an Export Duty on Nickel.

STRAIGHT LAKE, May 21.—The proposition to impose an export duty on nickel, advocated by Mr. Imrie of Nova Scotia, is universally condemned here. Such a duty would be a death-blow to the nickel industry, from which much is expected in this district, and would be disastrous to the interests of the Province of Ontario.

It is indignantly asked why should such a duty so detrimental to the interests of Ontario be imposed for the special benefit of a few coal men in Nova Scotia.

As the results of the recent experiments of the American Government have settled the future of nickel actual mining operations are being rapidly pushed forward, and a number of nickel properties in this district, especially in the Townships of Moncrief and Craig, are being developed and giving employment to a large number of men. The ore deposits which are in the Huronian formation are in proximity to extensive dikes of diorite.

The ore itself is a mixture of chalcopyrite and pyrrhotite carrying large proportions of nickel and resembles the ores being worked at Sudbury with the exception that it is considerably richer.

A gang of men under the direction of Captain La Peche are operating a diamond drill recently received from the Diamond Prospecting Company of Chicago with very satisfactory results. The nickel veins or deposits in this vicinity are unusually wide, and assays show that the ore increases greatly in richness as depth is reached. This immense deposit, according to analysis, contains over 20 per cent. of nickel as sulphuret of nickel and sulphuret of iron.

Marquette capitalists are negotiating to acquire a large tract some three miles from here, and it is said that the location in Craig owned by a Toronto gentleman named Fairclough will shortly change hands at a big figure, the buyers being a wealthy syndicate of English capitalists.

Remarkable Condition.

ORILLIA, May 24.—Ruta Marshall, a domestic in the house of Mr. James B. Tudhope, fell into a trance, from which she has not yet recovered. Means have been taken to bring her to, but when spoken to or shaken she merely opens her eyes with a dazed expression. The cause given for her condition is that some of the tissues of the brain are clogged up. One of her sides has become paralyzed and she is very low. What makes the case more peculiar is that Miss Marshall is a big strong girl who has not heretofore known what sickness was.

May Lose His Life in Vain.

QUEBEC, May 22.—A little child of Mr. Charles Demenies of St. Raymond, while at play on the Lake St. John Railway track at Frenette's crossing yesterday, was struck by a passing train and instantly killed. The coroner left this morning to hold an inquest. The father in trying to save the child was also struck by the train and badly injured.

A Bit of Philosophy.

Live within your income. How to do this is the vital question. Two courses are open, increase income or curtail expenditure. It's about as hard to cut down expenses as to increase income. However, amidst the general perplexity which the situation calls up there is the re-assuring thought that no matter how things go, one way to save is to buy your teas at Hawleys', where prices are at the bottom notch and qualities on top of the heap. If you need to save buy your teas at Hawleys', George-st., the famous tea men. d113

CASH HARDWARE STORE.

On and after 1st April we shall do business on a Cash Basis.

To cover the inevitable losses attendant upon a credit business, (which accrue from amount of time spent in keeping accounts, collecting, bad debts, interest account, and in numerous other ways, larger margins of profit must be asked.

In these times cash buyers ask, expect and are entitled to close prices. A careful consideration of the subject convinces us that the time has come for a cash business done on smaller profits.

The only customers who may be put to inconvenience are those who have had long credit. In more ways than one it will be to their advantage to pay cash.

For convenience of our old customers who consider their accounts due when presented, we will call 30 days each and render all accounts the first of each month, and we wish to say that we will be happy to do business with them on these terms.

As the new departure is something of an experiment, what would be considered a close cash price will be made all through the stock. Not a few leaders only, but a general reduction in everything from the fourth flat to the cellar.

Our idea is to perform more than promised rather than promise more than can be fulfilled.

Our stock is large and varied, consisting of Builders', Contractors', Household, Mechanics', Painters', Shoemakers', Farm, Mill, Factory, Lumbermen's, Sporting, Threshers', Cabinetmakers', and other lines of Hardware.

BUY NOW IF AT ALL.

EVERY day makes more apparent the fact that the town is going ahead rapidly. Numerous changes have taken place in the way of the ownership of property. Many workingmen are buying houses and lots or lots on which to build. One of the most suitable locations is that known as the Erin property, at the west end, owned largely by Mr. Wm. Fitzgerald. This week he has closed the sale of a very desirable new house and lot, and has several eligible lots on this property to dispose of. Property in this neighbourhood is rapidly being built up, and it will be well to have a look at the situation if one is at all disposed to buy. The terms are very favorable and especially low for cash, though payment on time may be arranged.

A BANK TELLER'S HAUL.

A MOLSONS EMPLOYE AT HAMILTON RAKES IN $5000.

The Friends of the Defaulter Have Promised to Make Restitution—The Books Said to Have Been Falsified to Cover up the Dishonesty—The Name of the Defaulter is Said to be Stewart.

HAMILTON, May 25.—It has just leaked out that a clerk employed in one of the branch banks here is short in his accounts to the extent of about $5000. The bank people have endeavored to keep the matter as quiet as possible so as not to make depositors feel uneasy. The friends of the dishonest clerk have promised to make full restitution to the bank. If this be done, the culprit will not be prosecuted. The clerk in question was considered very reliable, had no extravagant tendencies and was considered thoroughly honest. He was a first-class financier and was tendered a promotion a short time since, but rather than leave his old position here he preferred to work for the smaller salary. Provincial Detective Greer has been here for some days and is engaged to keep the bank clerk under surveillance until the managers of the bank have been satisfied, and if this is not done to the satisfaction of the latter very soon a full expose and prosecution will follow.

The teller referred to is said to be named Stewart and he has been employed in the Molsons Bank for some time. His honesty was never questioned. Being a clever financier the officials recently promoted him to a more responsible position in another branch, but, strange to say, he preferred to remain here, accepting a smaller salary than he would have received had he accepted the appointment offered him. Perhaps he thought that if he remained here he would have a chance of covering up his tracks, so that his dishonesty would not be discovered, and an examination of the books showed that they had been falsified and that there was a shortage in the neighborhood of $5000. This amount may be in excess of the actual shortage, but it is impossible to get the exact amount at the present time. At first there was some talk of prosecuting the clerk, but his friends came to the rescue and made good a portion of the shortage, and it is believed that full restitution will be made. If the bank gets its money it is doubtful if anything more will be said about the affair.

The defaulter is the last person who would be suspected of crookedness, because he is not regarded as a high-flyer. Apparently he lived quietly, certainly not extravagantly and not beyond his means. He was never known to dabble in stocks or speculate in a large way. Naturally the question is asked, What did he do with the money?

Grimwood Avenged.

CALCUTTA, May 25.—The murderer of Mr. Grimwood, the British political agent, has been hanged at Manipur.

The Original Package Law.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—The United States Supreme Court to-day upheld the constitutionality of the Original Package law passed by Congress and also held that it was not necessary for the State of Kansas to re-enact its prohibitory law after the passage of the Congressional act in order to shut out liquors in original packages.

It will pay you to advertise in the DAILY REVIEW.

DISGUISED AS A NEGRESS

WORE BANGS, A TIGHT-FITTING JERSEY AND A SHAWL.

A Negro Who Escaped to Canada After Beating His Wife Captured at Chatham—Arrested For Murder But a Post-mortem Proves His Wife Died from Natural Causes.

CHATHAM, May 24.—A colored man, who gave his name as Swift, was arrested on an eastbound Grand Trunk train near here yesterday morning. He was disguised in woman's clothing and was arrested on a telegram from Chicago for murder. It appears that he ill-treated his wife and kicked and beat her in a brutal manner. She subsequently died, but at the inquest held Friday the jury returned a verdict of death from natural causes, and Swift will probably be released again.

Some years ago he married in Chatham a colored girl named Mary Goings. Two years ago, when in Detroit, his wife left him and, coming to Chatham, stopped with a family named Talbot. Shortly afterwards Swift ascertained her whereabouts and one night came on the scene, broke open the door and, with a revolver in his hand, cleaned out the house and carried away his wife. Several years ago he worked as cook at the Rankin House. He is not a prepossessing bird in appearance and his native beauty is not improved by a scar extending from his temple to his nose, the result of a slash by a razor.

When caught he made an attempt to keep up his assumed character, imitating a female voice. His disguise was complete even to the back hair, his costume including a tight-fitting jersey and a shawl.

FIRE IN MONTREAL.

A Large Stone Block of Warehouses the Property of the Gray Nuns Completely Destroyed.

MONTREAL, May 24.—The most disastrous fire that has occurred in Montreal for a long time broke out shortly after 6 o'clock to-night. The fire started in Friedman's liquor warehouse in Debresoles-street and extended to the large stone block of warehouses extending from Debresoles to Notre Dame-street near the French Church, and occupied by the New England Paper Company, Young & Sons, dye manufacturers; the Metropolitan Manufacturing Company; R. Beullac, church ornaments; Pratt, pianos and organs.

The losses will be very heavy. Friedman's establishment was almost totally destroyed. The top flats of Beullac's establishment was completely ruined. Pratt's warehouse, which were stored with several hundred valuable pianos, were badly gutted and the other premises suffered more or less. The building, which is owned by the Grey Nuns, was badly wrecked. The total loss is estimated at over $100,000, which is probably covered by insurance.

Upwards of Half a Million Dollars Loss Occasioned.

DETROIT, May 24.—Fire broke out yesterday noon on the second floor of James E. Davis's wholesale drug house in Larned-street. The flames completely gutted the building and communicated to Fechheimer & Hart's wholesale liquor store, which was also burned out. Shortly afterwards the top floor of the Campau building adjoining Davis's was seen to be in flames. The fire was confined to the two top floors and only a number of lawyers were burned out. The loss is estimated at $250,000, partially covered by insurance. The works of the Detroit Screen Company were also partially destroyed by fire this afternoon. Loss $35,000.

MAY KISS YOUR WIFE.

Moreover, the Action May with Impunity be Performed on the Street.

BOSTON, Mass., May 25.—A Boston judge has to-day decided that it is quite lawful for a man to kiss his wife very affectionately on a public street. The case is peculiar, and has its funny as well as serious aspect. According to the testimony of the court, it appeared that Mr. Hall, a respectable young man engaged in the boot and shoe business in East Boston, was seen by an austere and sensitively virtuous policeman named Maguire, standing in a doorway in Hanover-street late last night, engaged in the delightful occupation of kissing Mrs. Hall. Patrolman Maguire, in vigorous Celto-Saxon, interrupted the osculatory proceedings, and insisted that the couple should move on. They demurred, whereupon the austere policeman took them to the station-house, and this morning brought them into court. Mr. Hall's counsel vigorously denounced the conduct of the policeman as an outrage on the rights of honest virtuous citizens. Judge Burke said that he did not think the arrest an outrage, as the fact of their kissing each other on the street was certainly an unusual action to the officer, who did not know the couple's relation to each other. He thought it would have been better for them to have deferred their marital affections until they had reached their home, but that it certainly was not a criminal act for them to kiss on the street. He ordered their discharge, and they left the court-room both happier and wiser.

A Farmer's Suicide.

DRUMBO, Ont., May 25.—Alexander Clarke, a young farmer near the village of Drumbo, on Saturday went out to the woods with a rifle and shot himself in the side. When found he seemed to be on the point of death. He is the son of George Clarke, one of the wealthy men of the district, and the son-in-law of another wealthy man, the late James Kennedy; also a brother-in-law of M. F. Ainslie, township clerk. Mr. Clarke is a farmer, but has been buying stock of late years. It is said that his transactions have not been successful, and that this has led to melancholy, which unhinged his mind. He cannot recover.

Human Hands in Catfish Stomachs.

WINNIPEG, May 25.—The hand of a child was found in the stomach of a catfish caught in the Red River yesterday, and to-day another catfish was caught with another hand in its stomach, apparently belonging to the same child.

Dropped Dead on the Wharf.

VANCOUVER, B.C., May 24.—E. D. McGregor, master painter, who has been in the city for about three years, was down on the Canadian Pacific Wharf this morning on business. When passing in front of the freight offices he fell suddenly. Those near by rushed up to him, and found him dead. His death was undoubtedly due to heart failure. Deceased was about 38 years of age. He has a sister living in the city, and is a son of the late Dr. McGregor of Ripley and Kincardine, Ontario.

The Defaulting Teller.

HAMILTON, May 25.—There are no new developments in the case of P. H. Stuart, the defaulting Molsons Bank teller. It is understood his friends have agreed to make full restitution. Meantime Stuart is under police surveillance.

OTTAWA GOSSIP.

The Reported Early Prorogation of Parliament—General Notes.

OTTAWA, May 25.—The rumor which was floating about the lobby a couple of weeks ago that the Government proposed to rush through the estimates and such private legislation as was urged and either prorogue the House about the twentieth of June or adjourn it until November is revived but I cannot get any authority for it. Some of the Opposition members who are here and with whom I have spoken say that the Opposition would fight against an adjournment but might entertain a proposal for an extra session provided the Tarte-McGreevy case can be pushed to a conclusion speedily.

The Senate meets to-morrow night after its two weeks' holidays. About the heaviest duty it will have to perform to-morrow will be to receive the two newly appointed Senators, Snowball of New Brunswick and MacDonald of Prince Edward Island, both of whom are here and who will be introduced by Senator Abbott.

The balance of the papers in the Tarte case asked for from the Public Works Department were handed to the clerk of the committee to-day. The committee meets to-morrow morning and will be ready to proceed to business.

Hon. Mackenzie Bowell laid the corner stone of the new Methodist church at Pakenham, Lanark County, on Saturday.

Col. Lay, American Consul here, to-day made application to the Department of Justice for extradition of Piagent, now in jail in Halifax on the charge of embezzling $40,000 in Texas.

William Smith, Deputy Minister of Marine, returned to-day from Montreal. He inspected there on Saturday the steamer Synthinia, one of the new cattle boats, and says he found her excellently fitted up for cattle, very comfortable and lighted by electricity.

Sir John Macdonald caught a slight cold yesterday and was not very well to-day, but is expected to be in the House to-morrow.

REFORMED EPISCOPALIANS.

Rev. L. W. Campbell of Toronto Elected to the Bishopric.

TORONTO, May 25.—The Canadian Synod of the Reformed Episcopal Church elected a new bishop yesterday, the choice falling on Rev. T. W. Campbell of Christ Reformed Episcopal Church of this city.

The Synod commenced and closed its very important session yesterday. Six years ago Bishop Wilson retired from the Episcopate overwhelmed with years and broken up by hard work. Until yesterday no election of a new bishop had been made, the affairs of the Canadian church being under the charge of Bishop Fallows of the United States Church, assisted by the Synod, which met annually. Finally, however, the Synod resolved that Canada should again have a bishop of its own and yesterday saw the appointment made. The Synod met in Christ Church Reformed Episcopal, College-street, proceedings commencing with divine service at 10 a. m. and closing after a short evening session. Bishop Fallows of Chicago presided.

Rev. T. W. Campbell, pastor of Christ Church in this city, was the unanimous choice for bishop by the Synod. He will have control of all the churches in the Dominion, and in all probability will have to give up his present pastorate. Bishop-elect Campbell is a native Canadian, having been born in Three Rivers, Quebec, some 34 years ago. His father was the Rev. Thomas Campbell, attached to the Wesleyan Methodist Church of Canada. In 1879 the Bishop-elect graduated in divinity from Victoria University, Cobourg. For the next two years he was associate editor of The Christian Guardian, leaving this position to become pastor of Woodgreen Methodist Church. Later he was transferred to Parkdale Methodist Church and while there, after a severe course of study, separated himself from the Methodists and joined the Reformed Episcopal denomination. He at once took charge of Christ Church, then at the head of Simcoe-street, and remained its pastor when it secured new quarters in College-street. Under his care the communicants, who at first numbered 36, now number 169. The Mayor is a member of Mr. Campbell's congregation and he is one of its most fervid supporters. Bishop-elect Campbell is a good speaker and a close reasoner. His sermons have the good quality of brevity and common sense and he possesses the happy faculty of keeping his congregation free from dissensions, and has been popular with it since first assuming charge. Like his distinguished parishioner, the Mayor, the bishop is inclined to be florid in the color of his hair.

The first business was the reception of the report of Bishop Fallows' Episcopal work for the year. It made a satisfactory showing and was adopted without discussion. Rev. John Dennis, M.D., of Newark, N.J., was introduced to the Synod and made a corresponding member. The Synod after some discussion resolved to divide the Dominion into the following districts: District of Ontario, all territory west of the westerly boundary of Frontenac county; district of Quebec, all territory east of Frontenac county in Ontario and westerly boundary of New Brunswick to include New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland.

KILLED IN CHICAGO.

A Young Canadian Meets His Death in the Western Metropolis.

TORONTO, May 25.—Mr. Thomas Long, 512 Jarvis-street, received a telegram Sunday at midnight announcing that his son, John Joseph Long, had been killed in a railway accident at Chicago. No further particulars were given. Mr. Charles J. Long left yesterday morning to bring home the body of his brother. The deceased was 24 years of age and was employed in the Armour packing establishment. He had intended coming to Toronto to spend the Queen's Birthday, and it is supposed he was about starting when the accident occurred. A peculiar and sad incident in connection with the unfortunate accident was that about half an hour after the receipt of the first telegram, a second was received from himself saying he would spend the day at home. The deceased was in Toronto about two weeks ago spending a few days with his parents. The body will probably arrive here Wednesday. The funeral will take place in Collingwood.

The Nancy court has sentenced to death an extraordinary criminal named Mercier. For years he bore a high character, but at the trial it was shown he murdered Abbe Circourt and the abbe's housekeeper, robbed the presbytery and then set fire to the place to conceal his crime. Afterwards he wooed a wealthy widow named Jacktal. Thinking his only son—a boy of 9 years—an obstacle to his suit, Mercier killed the lad by bending his back until the spine was broken at the nape of the neck. He then tried to kill the brother of the widow Jacktal because he objected to his suit. Many other crimes were also proven against him.

BARON BURNED TO DEATH

STRANGE DEATH OF LORD ROMILLY FROM SUFFOCATION.

The Coercion Bill Passed in the Newfoundland Legislature—The Battle Between the British South African Co. and the Portuguese—Several Foreign News Over Night.

LONDON, May 24.—At midnight on Saturday Lord Romilly upset a paraffine lamp in the drawing-room of his London residence. He was alone at the time and vainly attempted to extinguish the fire unassisted. Shortly after the butler smelled smoke, and on making a hurried investigation found Lord Romilly lying senseless in the burning drawing-room, the nobleman having been overcome by smoke and the fumes arising from the burning contents of the lamp. Lord Romilly was subsequently removed to St. George's Hospital, where he died. Fire engines, in response to alarms sent out, hastened to Lord Romilly's house. The firemen on entering found Blanche Griffin, a housemaid, and Emma Lovell, the cook, in the same state of insensibility in which their employer was discovered. They were also removed to the hospital, where it was found that both were already dead. Another female servant and the butler had succeeded in escaping from the house. The fire, which was not extensive, was soon extinguished.

PORTUGUESE THE AGGRESSORS.

Further Details of the Battle With the South African Company's Police.

LONDON, May 25.—Lord Randolph Churchill cables from Capetown a graphic account of the recent conflict between the Portuguese and British on the Pungwe River. The collision occurred near Massikessi on May 12 between the Portuguese force and the British South Africa Company's police. The Portuguese force numbered about 250 Europeans and 800 natives, with four guns. The South Africa Company's police numbered 60 and they had only one gun. The Portuguese were repulsed, seven of them being killed and a larger number wounded. It is believed that the Portuguese, having occupied Massikessi, which they found duly evacuated, were marching on Umtassa when the conflict occurred.

A despatch from Lourenco Marques, a Portuguese town of Africa on the north side of Delagoa Bay, says the British torpedo cruiser Brisk has arrived there and reports that a serious conflict has taken place between the British and Portuguese colonists. Commander Winsloe says the troops stationed at the Portuguese military post on the River Pungwe attacked the British South Africa Company's expedition commanded by Commissioner H. H. Johnston. Seven Portuguese were killed. The British loss is unknown.

LONDON, May 25.—The British Admiral at Delagoa Bay, referring to the recent encounter between the British South African Company's police and the Portuguese, reports that the Portuguese first assumed the offensive. The Admiral adds that the Portuguese were massed near Umtassa's kraal, whence they marched upon Fort Salisbury in order to make an attempt to capture that place.

LISBON, May 25.—The Portuguese at the time of the fight were within their own lines at Massikessi and several hundred yards of the Mozambique Co. The newspapers here concur in denouncing the persistent efforts of the British South African Company to prevent an understanding between Great Britain and Portugal.

NEWFOUNDLAND.

The Legislature Passes the Coercion Bill With Closed Doors.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., May 25.—The legislature passed the Local Coercion bill Saturday night with closed doors. There is public indignation in consequence.

The Governor's proclamation asking the observance of the holiday in honor of the Queen's birthday was disregarded, all business places being open. Last night the halyards of the flag-staff on the Colonial building were cut and an attempt was made to burn down the royal stand and flagstaff on the House.

The Delegates Disappointed.

LONDON, May 25.—In the lobby of the House of Commons to-day the Newfoundland delegates expressed their disappointment at the unconciliatory attitude of the Government in preparing to proceed with Lord Knutsford's bill in regard to Newfoundland on Thursday, also in withholding definite assurance that the Newfoundland Legislature's bill would be regarded as a purely temporary settlement of the questions in dispute.

No Cause for Alarm.

PARIS, May 25.—M. De Freycinet, President of the Council and Minister of War, in the Chamber of Deputies to-day referring to the arrest of Emil Tripon, an officer of the French territorial army and agent for the Armstrong gun works, on a charge of high treason, denied that any documents had been abstracted from the Ministry of War. M. De Freycinet added that no accurate plans had been published in connection with the manufacture of melinite, and that the mechanism for exploding it still remained in possession of the War Office.

A Lost M.P. Found Dead.

PARIS, May 25.—A fortnight ago Herr Bela von Gruenwald, one of the most distinguished members of the Hungarian Parliament, being on a visit to Paris, suddenly disappeared. There has been great anxiety on his account, and all the enquiries of the police as to his whereabouts have been in vain. But yesterday Herr Patuki of The Pester-Lloyd happened to enter the morgue, and there he saw among the dead the corpse of his fellow-countryman. It had just been taken from the Seine, where it was found floating.

Dashed by an Elephant.

LONDON, May 25.—Mr. Macture, Secretary to the British Legation at Belgrade, was feeding an elephant in a wild beast show, and the report is that the brute suddenly seized him by the middle of the body, and dashed him against the wall. Mr. Macture is seriously injured.

Russia to Abolish the Jury System.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 25.—The ministers are preparing a scheme to replace the jury system by judges appointed by the judicial administration. They also propose to abolish the elective character in the appointment of a justice of the peace.

Ives and Carter Matched.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 25.—A match game of billiards for $500 a side was arranged for last night between Frank Ives and Eugene Carter of Chicago. The game will be 600 points, 14 inch balk line, and is to be played in Milwaukee within 30 days.

King of Medicines

A Cure "Almost Miraculous."

"When I was 14 years of age I had a severe attack of rheumatism, and after I recovered had to go on crutches. A year later, scrofula, in the form of white swellings, appeared on various parts of my body, and for 11 years I was an invalid, being confined to my bed 6 years. In that time ten or eleven sores appeared and broke, causing me great pain and suffering. I feared I never should get well.

"Early in 1886 I went to Chicago to visit a sister, but was confined to my bed most of the time I was there. In July I read a book, 'A Day with a Circus,' in which were statements of cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was so impressed with the success of this medicine that I decided to try it. To my great gratification the sores soon decreased, and I began to feel better and in a short time I was up and out of doors. I continued to take Hood's Sarsaparilla for about a year, when, having used six bottles, I had become so fully released from the disease that I went to work for the Flint & Walling Mfg. Co., and since then on account of sickness. I believe the disease is expelled from my system, I always feel well, am in good spirits and have a good appetite. I am now 27 years of age and can walk as well as any one, except that one limb is a little shorter than the other, owing to the loss of bone, and the sores formerly on my right leg. To my friends my recovery seems almost miraculous, and I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the king of medicines." WILLIAM A. LEHR, 9 N. Railroad St., Kendallville, Ind.

HAVE NOT LOST A SINGLE DAY

The Wise Savants

Tell us that Rheumatism is a blood disease that can be cured only by a remedy which works through the blood. And yet, if you have the darting pains of Rheumatism in muscles or joints, try a little of Clark's Lightning Liniment. It will go direct to the seat of pain and relieve it at once. There is no waiting weeks and months until the disease can be attacked through the blood. This seems to be contrary to scientific claims, but it is true that Clark's Lightning Liniment will cure Rheumatism. Sold by all druggists; price fifty cents. Clark Chemical Co., Toronto.

To Close Early Saturday Night.

At the regular meeting of the W. C. T. U. yesterday a committee was appointed to canvass the business part of the town for signatures to the following:—

"Believing that the keeping open of places of business until late on Saturday night tends to the desecration of the Sabbath and keeps many of our employees and others from the house of God, besides furnishing a pretext for late hours on the street which we believe productive of harm to our young people, we, the undersigned merchants and shop keepers of Peterborough, hereby express ourselves willing to enter into an agreement and that a by-law be passed by the town council to close all places of business in this town at nine o'clock every Saturday evening."

The ladies also expressed their sorrow at seeing so much laxity in the enforcement of our liquor license law, several cases of Sunday selling and drinking having lately come under their immediate notice.

An Alleged Technical Larceny.

At the police court this morning a peculiar case was called. Mr. B. M. Wylie was summoned to answer a charge of larceny, the information saying that he did feloniously steal and carry away three trunks and a tub, the property of George Pearson. Before evidence was taken Mr. Wylie made an explanation. He said he had a landlord's warrant to distrain the goods of the woman with whom Pearson was lodging and he seized Pearson's goods with the others in executing his warrant. Pearson said that Wylie took the goods off a carter's wagon when they were being taken to the station. Mr. E. B. Stone appeared for the complainant and was willing to allow the charge to drop after the explanation if the goods were returned to Pearson at once. County Crown Attorney Wood was also agreeable and the magistrate enlarged the case until to-morrow morning when it will be dismissed if the seized good are returned. The magistrate told Wylie that he had acted in a very high handed and arbitrary manner and should be careful in the future or he might get into trouble. He should have showed his authority, the warrant, to Pearson, whose goods being those of a lodger were not in any case liable for seizure for rent.

The Spring Medicine.

The popularity which Hood's Sarsaparilla has gained as a spring medicine is wonderful. It possesses just those elements of health-giving, blood-purifying and appetite-restoring which everybody seems to need at this season. Do not continue in a dull, tired, unsatisfactory condition when you may be so much benefited by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It purifies the blood and makes the weak strong.

WONDERFUL VENICE!

THE ORIGIN OF ITS VERY PRETTY AND ANCIENT NAME.

Obscurity Covers its Earlier History—The City's Boom Began with the Arrival of the Bones of St. Mark—A Long Existent Government.

Venetia is one of the oldest provinces of Northern Italy. It takes its name from the ancient tribe of the Venetia the origin of which is not clearly known though these people constructed canals on a large scale as early as 380 B. C. In the third century A. D., the Veneti entered into an alliance with Rome, and when the Lombards overcame the Romans, the inhabitants of Venetia sought refuge from the conquerors in the islands of the lagoons. Removed from Teutonic influences, and under the protection of the Byzantine Empire, the most famous of the mediæval states here took its rise from the most insignificant beginnings. The earliest history of Venice is obscure. The first "Dux" or "Doge," is said to have been Paulucius Anafestus, and this good man is reported to have died in 716. In 809, the islands withstood an attack of King Pepin, the son of Charlemagne, and, practically throwing off the yoke of the eastern emperors, established a government of their own, fixing its seat upon the island of Rivoalto, upon which the main portion of Venice stands today. Doge Angelus Participotius established his residence upon the site of the present ducal palace in 819. Situated between the Byzantine and Franconian empires, Venice became a connecting link between the trade of both, and the great emporium of the traffic between the east and the west. In 828 the city received a great boom from the arrival of the bones of St. Mark, brought by the Venetian fleet from Alexandria. One hundred and fifty years later the church of San Marco was begun as a receptacle worthy of them. In the light of this deliberate action on the part of Venice concerning the remains of so eminent a character as St. Mark, New York's slowness in beginning the Grant monument seems not so very reprehensible as yet. It required over 100 years to complete San Marco, and the decoration of the structure stretched over several hundred years longer. We must remember that for nearly 1,100 years Venice was governed by Doges. Few governments have existed so long a time without serious interruption.

After the arrival of St. Mark's relics, the saint himself was adopted as tutelary "boss" of Venice. The official title of the supreme official functionary was "The Procurator of St. Mark," and St. Mark's emblem—the winged lion—was set up in the great square and in various public places. In the interests of her commerce, Venice made a number of foreign conquests, and the Lion of St. Mark erected in the market places of Treviso, Vicenza, Padua, Verona, Udine Brescia, Bergamo, Rovigo, etc., indicated the subjection of these cities.

There is scarcely to be found more fascinating reading than the history of Venice from the time of Doge Enrico Dandolo, who conquered Constantinople in 1204, and laid the foundation for the greatness of Venice as an eastern power. The lives of Dandolo and his successors, Marino Faliero, Andrea Contarini, Francesco Foscari and many others, are full of romantic as well as tragic detail, while the doings of the various governmental councils, and later of the inquisitors, are subjects of the most absorbing interest.

At the close of the fifteenth century, in Venice was focussed the commerce of Europe. The city had over 200,000 inhabitants and hundreds of palaces, the like of which existed in no other city; it had 300 sea-going vessels, with 8,000 sailors, and 3,000 smaller craft, with 17,000 men, as well as a fleet of 45 galleys carrying 11,000 men, who maintained the supremacy of the republic over the Mediterranean. In 1797, after the dissolution of Venetia as an independent state, the population of Venice had fallen to about 96,000.

To-day Venice is growing again, through industrial development and the prosecution of harbor improvements. The completion of a great breakwater, extending nearly two miles out into the sea, will make Venice one of the most accessible ports for the largest ships. The population at present is about 135,000, and the city consists of 15,000 houses and palaces, situated upon three large and 114 small islands, formed by 150 canals, and connected by 380 bridges. Already, again the city is the principal seaport of the Adriatic.

Care of the Hands.

There are not nearly so many secrets in hand treatment as people imagine. A little ammonia or borax in the water you wash with, and that water just lukewarm, will keep the skin clear and soft. A little oatmeal mixed with the water will whiten the hands. Many people use glycerine on their hands when they go to bed, wearing gloves to keep the bedding clean; but glycerine does not agree with every one, says the New York Ledger. It makes some skins harsh and red. These people should rub their hands with dry oatmeal and wear gloves in bed. The best preparation for the hands at night is white of an egg, with a grain of alum dissolved in it. Quacks have a fancy name for it, but all can make it. They also make the Roman toilet paste. It is merely the white of an egg, barley flour and honey. They say it was used by the Romans in olden times. At any rate, it is a first-rate thing; but it is sticky and does not do the work any better than oatmeal. The roughest and hardest hands can be made soft and white in the space of a month by doctoring them a little at bed-time, and all the tools you need are a nail-brush, a bottle of ammonia, a box of powdered borax and a little fine white sand to rub the stains off, or a cut of lemon, which will do even better, for the acid of the lemon will clean anything.

Celery.

Probably no class of people suffer more with rheumatism than farmers, and yet the remedy for this dreadful disease is, or should be, right at hand. If celery were eaten freely sufferers from rheumatism would be comparatively few. It is a mistaken idea that cold and damp produce the disease; they simply develop it. Acid blood is the primary and sustaining cause. If celery is eaten largely an alkaline blood is the result, and where this exists there can be neither rheumatism nor gout. It should be eaten cooked. Cut it into bits and boil till soft in as little water as possible. Add to this half as much milk as there is water in the celery, thicken with flour and season with butter, pepper and salt. If you cook it nicely and give it a fair trial, I am sure you will as soon have potatoes out of the daily bill of fare as celery.

Carelessness.

To the Editor of the Review

SIR,—There are three things that need a little more polite attention on the part of our citizens. One is that visiting corps should be cheered and not met with dumb silence. This is an unpardonable rudeness, I take it. Another thing is that when "God Save the Queen" is played by the band men should remove their hats. It is not a serious affair but it should be looked to. Still another is the complete disregard of all "fitness" in the selection of flags. The Encyclopedia Brittanica will put anyone right on that score.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by millions of mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa whether arising from teething or other causes Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Public Spirit.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—Outside Peterborough one often hears of the public spirit existing in our town, and sometimes we flatter ourselves into the belief that we have it. But if we are guilty of this rashness, surely on, or immediately after, any public demonstration we feel like advertising for our supposed possession under the "Lost, Strayed or Stolen" column. Another national holiday has passed, and again has one of Canada's crack corps aided our volunteers to celebrate it in a manner which should have called forth enthusiastic outbursts of loyalty and admiration. And yet, what could one tell of the sentiments of the dumb-stricken multitudes which lined the route of the parade?

It is all very well to say that "the proper feelings are there"; but if so they have been "there" so long in this town that they will soon run imminent risk of rotting there. Let us wake up, and give vent in a proper and seemly way to any public feelings which we hold and are not ashamed of. By so doing we shall stimulate that esprit de corps which [illegible] spirit requires public expression.

Yours, etc.,

CITIZEN.

PETERBOROUGH, May 26th, 1891.

A Soul-Stirring Song.

Rouget de Lisle, the composer of La Marseillaise, was a young officer of Engineers of the French Army. In this patriotic song he carried his feelings to the souls of the people. The new song flew from town to town, and its stirring melody was heard on every street. "La Marseillaise" was the liquid fire of the French revolution in 1792, and still possesses a soul-inspiring influence for the loyal and patriotic Frenchman of the present day who loves true liberty.

As the patriotic and loyal citizen's heart is stirred and made glad by the music of his country; so do the overworked, nervous, tired and broken-down sufferers hail with true joy, the name of Paine's Celery Compound. They have seen and heard of its great and wonderful power in the cure of all nervous ailments, headaches, weakness and general prostration. Its reputation as Nature's great health restorer has spread from town to town not only on this continent, but in Europe as well; and thousands now living owe their very existence to this great preparation. People talk of it at home, on the street, and in the market place, and it is no idle boast to assert that Paine's Celery Compound is pre-eminently the great family remedy for old and young.

Mr. Thos. Quincy, an old Peterborough boy, now of Chicago, is in town on a visit

Below the Freezing Point.

After our genteel dip on Saturday we had a regular building from the north on Sunday morning. At sunrise the thermometer stood at 28 degrees, being 4 degrees below the freezing point, with a good thick ice and doing considerable damage to garden vegetation.

Never had a preparation a more appropriate name than Ayer's Hair Vigor. When the capillary glands become enfeebled by disease, age, or neglect, this dressing imparts renewed life to the scalp, so that the hair assumes much of its youthful fullness and beauty.

Gospel Temperance Meeting.

Friends of temperance are specially requested to attend a gospel temperance meeting in the Mark-st. Methodist church, Ashburnham, on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. Mr. Dowd, Provincial Organizer, will endeavor to organize a lodge of the Independent Order of Good Templars. A good time is expected. Members of Carswell Lodge are urgently requested to attend.

An Early Morning Blaze.

About four o'clock this morning a fire was discovered in the rough cast dwelling house just west of George on Brock-st. The brigade were promptly on hand, the horses being in the stable this time, it being early. The fire was in the upper part and roof of the house and was soon extinguished by the firemen. It was an unoccupied dwelling owned by Mr. Thos. Bradburn, and was probably fired by an incendiary. The damage was about $100.

Anxious for a Decent Burial.

Adam Dobbie, the well-known unfortunate who makes the gaol his home, was at the Police Court this morning in search of another commitment as a vagrant. He was sent up for six months. When leaving Adam made a parting request of the Magistrate, asking that dignitary if he would promise to see that he (Adam) got a decent burial when he died and not allow his remains to be taken to Toronto and "cut up like a hog." The Magistrate made the promise that he would see that Adam's remains would receive a decent burial.

The Landlords Will Have to do It.

A number of George-st. merchants were summoned before the Police Magistrate this morning charge under the Health by-law with having a nuisance on the premises in the shape of closets. Some of the accused were new tenants and did not think they should be compelled to remove a nuisance of former tenants and the cases were enlarged for one week, the landlords to be notified in the meantime to do the removing. The Magistrate in speaking of the town by-law said it did not go far enough, it should provide in cases of neglect to comply with its provisions for the town to do the work and charge the proper parties.

TWO DAYS' DOINGS.

Celebrating Her Majesty's Birthday.

FOOT GUARDS IN TOWN

SPECIAL SUNDAY SERVICES IN HONOR OF THE 24TH.

The Visit of the Governor-General's Foot Guards, of Ottawa—Movements of the Soldiers—A Church Parade—A Military Parade on Monday—The Lacrosse Match—Peterborough Wins—The Races at the Driving Park—The Sons of England Attend Divine Service.

The seventy-second birthday of Her Majesty Queen Victoria was commemorated in Peterborough by what might be called a two day's celebration. The anniversary fell on Sunday, and the commemoration on that holy day was within the bounds of the fourth commandment and was fervent and earnest. In all the churches special prayers for Her Majesty were offered and in several the National Anthem was sung with the loyal and patriotic enthusiasm of true Britishers.

On Monday the town put on its gala attire, the citizens, young and old, rich and poor, ceased from their labors, donned their Sunday garments and went out to see the sights. Hundreds of conveyances came pouring in from the country bringing thousands of additional spectators to swell the crowd. Later in the day the volunteers mingled with the crowd and kept the echoes ringing with their tin band and whistle brigade. Every conveyance in town was in use and taken altogether it was a rousing day that did the town no harm. Both were glorious days as far as the climatic conditions were concerned. On Sunday the sun came out in a cloudless sky and a cool, gentle breeze fanned the pedestrian. On Monday another ideal day graced the occasion and made the outside attractions delightful.

ARRIVAL OF THE GUARDS.

The Ottawa Soldiers Occupy Their City of Tents.

It was a few minutes to six o'clock on Sunday morning when the special train bearing the Governor-General's Foot Guards, of Ottawa, pulled into the station here. The men did not disembark at the station but were backed down to the grounds and stepped off into their canvas houses which had been pitched by a fatigue party of the 57th and were ready and waiting for their occupants. There was no time for sleep, but when things had been put in order the men were marched up town to breakfast. They were billited at the different hotels and made their first appearance up street about 8.30, headed by the bugle band, detachments dropping off at their respective hotels. In the morning a squad of the men attended service at St. Peter's cathedral but the majority of those who were off duty were walking the streets seeing the town.

The regiment numbered 261 men strong under command of Col. Todd. The other field and staff officers were Major Tollard, Major Hodgins, Capt. Bowie, Adjutant, Capt. Powell, Paymaster, Major Heron, Quartermaster, Surgeon Hersey, Asst.-Surgeon Grant and Capt. Anmond. Major Wicksted, a retired officer of the regiment, was with them, as also was Ven. Archdeacon Lauder, Chaplain of the corps. The Guards were composed of six companies, officered as follows:—

No. ONE COMPANY.—Capt. Jarvis and Lieut. Brumell.

No. TWO COMPANY.—Capt. P. B. Taylor.

No. THREE COMPANY.—Lieut. McPherson and Lieut. Galway.

No. FOUR COMPANY.—Capt. Roper.

No. FIVE COMPANY.—Capt. Walters and Lieut. E. F. Taylor.

No. SIX COMPANY.—Capt. John Hodgins and Lieut. Fairweather.

The band numbered 34 strong under Bandmaster Carter and the bugle and drum corps 21, under Bugle Major Taylor. The pioneer corps of six men was under Staff Sergt. Armstrong and the ambulance corps of nine men was under Corp. Mullen. The site of the camp was the same as that occupied by the Queen's Own a year ago and was a beautiful camping ground. The tents were pitched on the grassy slopes which were lapped by the waters of the Otonabee and Little Lake. The men were charmed with their camp.

THE SOLDIERS AT CHURCH.

An Impressive Service Held at St. John's Church.

At three o'clock in the afternoon a church parade of the Guards and the 57th Battalion was held to St. John's church. Long before the hour for the parade thousands of spectators had gathered in the vicinity of the beautiful church waiting to see the Ottawa men. The 57th Battalion mustered at the drill shed and, headed by their band, marched towards the Hunter-st. bridge to meet the visiting regiments. The Guards, however, were prompt in falling in and were just entering the church yard when the local corps came up. The fine band of the Guards in their handsome uniforms looked exceedingly well and their music was excellently rendered. The appearance of the regiment was highly creditable and most favorably commented upon by the spectators. The soldierly bearing of the men, their gay uniforms and tall, black bear skin caps united to draw forth golden opinions from the crowd.

The church doors were thrown open as the soldiers arrived at the summit of the beautiful eminence in front of the church. The number of the red coats made it impossible for the church officers to allow outsiders or friends of the volunteers an entrance before the latter had entered. When the soldiers had all been seated within there was room for only about seventy-five or a hundred citizens, and most of these gained an entrance by invitation.

The service was a most impressive one and every man in the two battalions entered into it with earnestness and fervor. They were enabled to do this by the forethought of the church officers, who had had the service neatly printed for the occasion and a copy placed in the hands of each person present. The full church choir was present and the singing was of a most united and hearty character.

Ven. Archdeacon Lauder, chaplain of the Guards, conducted the service and Rev. J. C. Davidson, the rector, read the lesson and delivered the sermon. The discourse was of an appropriate character, ringing with loyalty both to God and Queen. It was attentively listened to by the soldier congregation. The rector chose for his text the words:—

Fear God. Honor the King.—1 Peter, ii, 17.

The discourse referred to the lesson which was inculcated by military celebrations—that of duty and dignity, respect for superiors and implicit obedience to those in authority. He went on to impress upon them their duty, to fear God, and honor the Queen. These duties came home to them with special appropriateness on that day, when they were celebrating at once the 24th of May and the festival of Trinity. He made a more extended reference to these two events and in conclusion gave a few words of welcome to the Ottawa soldiers. He said they were welcome to a town of which all citizens felt proud, and he hoped it would remain in their memories with pleasant remembrances. A good deal of their enjoyment depended upon association with men, and while the nature of things and short period of their visit would prevent that fellowship they would wish to see, yet they could feel that there were two common grounds upon which they both had met, and partly realized fellowship—first the ground of patriotism, and secondly on the higher common ground, kneeling together at the footstool of that God whom they all feared.

After the service the two battalions formed on the grassy slope in front of the church, while thousands of spectators filled every available vantage ground and lined the streets below. When the two corps had both formed up the Guards band played God Save the Queen and the immense concourse of soldiers and citizens joined in singing the patriotic hymn.

This finished, the Guards led back to their camp, accompanied by the 57th.

In the evening the soldiers enjoyed a walk or attended some of the services in the churches. Ven. Archdeacon Lauder, their chaplain, occupied the pulpit at St. John's and preached a vigorous discourse.

ENGLISHMEN AT CHURCH.

Loyalty and Patriotism Make Men Faithful Citizens.

> If I forget thee, Oh, Jerusalem, let my right hand forget her cunning; if I do not remember thee let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth; if I prefer not Jerusalem above my chief joy.—Psalm cxxxvii, 5-6.
> But now they desire a better country, that is, an heavenly.—Hebrews xi; 16.

The above passages of Scripture were chosen by the Rev. E. J. Shorey as the basis of the sermon which he preached to the Sons of England who attended the Charlotte-st. church in a body Sunday evening. The sons of Merrie England are always enthusiastic in their loyalty. It is the time-honored custom of the Order to commemorate Her Majesty's birthday by a church parade on the Sunday falling nearest the 24th, and this year the anniversary falling on Sunday unusual vigor was lent to the event.

Rev. Mr. Shorey delivered a peculiarly appropriate sermon, eloquent and impressive and full of the living gospel of salvation. He said, in opening, upon that occasion of celebration, upon that day the seventy-second birthday of their Gracious Queen, the most honored and beloved Sovereign that ever sat upon an earthly throne, he would strive to show them that love of country and of their Queen should led them to seek for citizenship in that better country, that is, the heavenly. In the first passage of Scripture of the text, he said, they had the spectacle of the peculiar people, the Jews, far from their home, recalling scenes of other and perhaps happier days and swearing eternal allegiance to Jerusalem. In the second passage from the New Testament they had the same people, or a portion of them who had become Christians, represented as having been taught by the Providence of God the lesson that it was than backward, better to look away from Jerusalem to that better Jerusalem which was eternal. The preacher then eloquently spoke of patriotism and love of country, saying that there was nothing that contributed so much to make men faithful citizens as a strong and unswerving loyalty to the land from which they came. Any man, he said, who spoke slightingly or contemptuously of it knew little of the sentiment of human nature and little of history. Attachment to their native land, patriotism or love of home and country was the foundation of loyalty and contributed to useful citizenship in every age. He then proceeded to call attention to certain considerations which rose out of this love of country, impressing upon them that they should look away beyond this life to that life beyond. He pointed out that if they attached importance to the land where they first saw the light how much more important it was to see that their title was sure to that better land, ruled over by the King infinite in wisdom and compassion. While they sang "God save the Queen" they should remember the King of Kings and Lord of Lords. He pointed out that the highest aim of the Sons of England or similar societies should not simply be to advance the temporal, mental and social welfare of their fellow countrymen, but rather that when they left this earth after their short pilgrimage to enter that immortal life that never passed away. They sang "Britons can never be slaves," but he warned them against being slaves to sin, to degrading passions. He appealed to them to come into the Kingdom of God, the supreme object of every man being to look beyond this life to that better land, that is, the heavenly. He set forth the vastness of the heavenly Kingdom and the glory of the King of Kings and asked them not to be not only Sons of England but Sons of God.

The sermon, while of necessity is only outlined, was listened to with great attention by the large congregation which crowed the church, and especially by the hundred or more Englishmen who occupied the centre pews. During the service the choir rendered a beautiful anthem in excellent voice.

MONDAY'S MOVEMENTS.

A Grand Day for the People of Town and County.

Monday morning broke clear and bright, with a cool breeze floating to temper the heat of Old Sol. It was citizen's and soldiers' day and all classes were out for the holiday. Early in the morning the streets began to be peopled, and at ten o'clock there must have been five or six thousand people along George and Hunter-sts. waiting for the military parade. Every window had its occupant and many viewed the volunteers from the roofs of the stores.

The 57th Battalion and "C" troop of cavalry mustered at the drill shed at 9.30 o'clock and shortly after ten o'clock marched to Ashburnham to meet the Guards. Col. H. C. Rogers was in command of the cavalry with Lieut. Strickland, Quartermaster Stapleton and Surgeon Stevenson. Col. J. Z. Rogers took command of the brigade when the two regiments met in Ashburnham, and Major Bell commanded the 57th. The other officers on parade were Major Edwards, Capt. Dennistoun, Adjutant, Quartermaster Forbes and Surgeon Halliday. The companies of the 57th were officered as follows:—

No. ONE.—Capt Mason.

No TWO.—Lieut. Schofield and Lieut. Haultain.

No. THREE.—Capt. Hill and Lieut. Stevenson.

No. FOUR.—Capt. Lee and Lieut. Leeb.

No. FIVE.—Capt. Miller and Lieut. Matthews.

No. SIX.—Capt. Brennan.

Lieuts. Hayes and Tebb carried the colors.

The parade as it came along Hunter-st. from the village presented a very martial appearance. The cavalry led, followed by the Guards and the 57th brought up the rear. The appearance of the men of the Guards was exceedingly good. The soldierly carriage, cleanliness and general appearance noticed in the church parade was more marked when the men appeared in review order. And the 57th men were not by any means behind in the display. They marched well and looked soldierly and clean. The marching of the men of both regiments elicited cheers at points along the march. The line of march was up Hunter to Water, up Water to Murray along Murray to George, up George some distance, then a countermarch down George to Charlotte, west on Charlotte to Aylmer, up Aylmer to Hunter and thence to Riverside Park.

At the Park thousands of spectators were waiting the arrival of the parade. Upon arriving, the Guards formed up across the west side of the field with the 57th on the south and the cavalry to the north. The 57th stood at ease while the visitors went through some manœuvres. After the general salute, the colors were trooped, a military movement never before witnessed here. The Guards performed the beautiful movement with a precision and faultless correctness which brought forth the plaudits of the spectators. After this the battalions formed up and fired a feu de joie. Cheers were given for the Queen with a patriotic gusto after the bands had played the National Anthem. This over, they formed into column and marched, the Guards to camp and the 57th to the drill shed.

During the parade at the Park some half dozen of the junior members of the Guards fainted and had to be cared for by the ambulance corps. The fatigue of the journey and lack of sleep, combined with the heavy headgear, knocked the young fellows out.

After the parade the men were dismissed and made the streets merry with their hilarity, or took in the lacrosse match or horse races.

THE LACROSSE MATCH.

Peterborough Wins the First of the Season—A Good Game.

In the afternoon quite a large crowd of spectators gathered at the P.A.A.A. grounds to witness the lacrosse match and sports which were down on the programme. Unfortunately the Toronto club which was advertised to meet the Peterborough boys were unable to come and at the last moment a team from Hastings, composed of Norwood and Hastings men, promised to come and give Peterborough a game. They came and were a fairly strong team, but showed their lack of practice. They were too weak at all events for the local team, who played a fine game.

It was the first game of the season and the mettle of this year's club was brought out somewhat. There is good material in the boys and the team play which was witnessed yesterday promises well for the season. Every man played a good game and it is hardly fair to individualize, but Hendren and Packenham were in good form and did some excellent work. Some of the new blood also proved itself of the proper hue and lacrosse enthusiasts may feel sanguine of the season with the team. The visitors had some good men, Stephenson, of Norwood, getting in some great work, while Hendren defended the flags in hard pressed sallies in good style.

The game was played on time, one hour and a half, and at the expiration of this time Peterborough had two goals and their opponents had failed to score.

The teams were as follows:—

S. Hendren	Goal	F. Larone
F. Stephenson	Point	F. Packenham
J. Jury	Cover Point	T. Cronin
T. Fraser	1st defence	J. McCabe
W. Landeville	2nd "	T. Meagher
H. Howard	3rd "	E. Hickey
E. Doherty	Centre	W. Hendren
H. Lombard	1st home	F. White
D. Fraser	2nd "	J. Begley
R. Morrison	3rd "	J. Daly
G. Hill	Outside "	J. McDonough
W. Anderson	Inside "	W. Phelan
W. Fowlds	Umpire	W. J. Green
T. Howard	Field Captain	W. Redkins

Dr. Brennan, Referee.

When the ball was faced it went into Peterborough territory, but its stay was short, and for the next twenty minutes it was principally a defence game for the visitors, shots being made on their goal unceasingly. Stephenson, who was on point, was cool and did good work, making several beautiful throws. But Packenham on Peterborough point, was a sure man to send it back, and if he failed to get it Meagher, Cronin, or McCabe were ready to support him. Hendren in centre also played a pretty game. The struggle was a prolonged one and furnished good sport for the spectators, several pretty drops being made. The local boys did some good team playing. After a tussle in the centre Begley got the ball and made a straight, clean shot on goal and the ball passed between the flags. Time, 32 minutes.

The second game was another exciting struggle and was perhaps a little more evenly contested than the first. The visitors pressed Peterborough's defence hard several times, but they were equal to the emergency. After fifteen minutes hard play, and in a struggle at the flags, Daly passed the rubber between the flags, scoring the second game for Peterborough.

After a breathing space twenty minutes play took place, without a game being scored, although the visitors flags were hard pressed several times. Time was called without any more scoring and the game went to Peterborough by two games to none.

Three racing events were then run off for silver medals. In the hundred yard race W. Hendren won in two heats. T. Cronin won the mile race, his two competitors dropping out before a mile had been covered. — Christmann was an easy winner in the half mile race.

This closed the programme and the gathering dispersed.

THE RACES AT THE DRIVING PARK.

The Open and Named Races run off in Short Order.

There was a good attendance at the Park during the afternoon. The track was in capital condition. The Judges, Messrs. W. Croft, C.D. Eck, Toronto, and J. A. Kelly, Brighton, took the stand shortly after two o'clock, Mr. Eck acting as starter and Mr. Kelly as time-keeper. Following are the entries for the first event:

THE OPEN RACE.

For a purse of $125.—Geo. Curtis' (Lindsay), bay gelding, "Little Jim," driven by Curtis; Joe Daly's brown mare, "Minnie Bell," driven by Ed. Brown; A. B. Appleby's bay mare, "Mollie Clarke," driven by M. C. Chadburn.

Brown drew the pole, Curtis second, Chadburn third. There was considerable scoring in getting off for first heat. Mollie Clark, under Chadburn's skillful handling, captured the pole inside the first 100 yards, and held the lead until the finish, closely pressed by Little Jim on the home stretch. Minnie Bell broke badly and was practically out of the heat. The second heat had a good send off, Mollie Clark holding the lead until collared by Little Jim, giving place afterwards to Minnie Bell. The last half was trotted with Minnie Bell and Mollie Clark side by side, until Little Jim forged ahead of Mollie Clarke, but breaking on the home stretch lost the heat. The third heat showed some rapid sailing. They started on the first offer, Mollie Clarke holding the pole and trotting for the heat, Minnie Bell well up and Little Jim following. The first round finished in same order. On the second round Minnie Bell pulled up and secured a fair chance for the heat, little Jimmy breaking at the three-quarter. The last quarter was a lively race, Mollie Clarke taking the heat with Minnie Bell and Little Jim following. Three straights for Mollie Clarke gave her the race, Little Jim second.

Following is a summary of the race:—

A. B. Appleby's bay mare, Mollie Clarke	1	1	1
Geo. Curtis' (Lindsay), bay gelding, Little Jim	2	2	3
Joe Daly's (Lindsay), brown mare, Minnie Bell	3	3	2

Time, 1st 2.39½, 2nd 2.39½, 3rd 2.37.

THE NAMED RACE.

For a purse of $100, brought out two entries, A. B. Appleby's chestnut, "Col. T," driven by Chadburn, and Jim Daly's bay gelding "Jimmy D," driven by the owner. Daly drew the pole after the start held lead for fifty yards but his horse broke badly and was collared by "Col. T" who trotted in an easy winner in 3 24. The second heat was a pretty test of speed, the horses trotting neck and neck. Jimmy D. broke badly on the second round and the chestnut took the heat without being pressed. The third heat was taken by Col. T. an easy winner. Following is a summary:—

A. B. Appleby's chestnut, "Col. T"	1	1
Jim Daly's bay chestnut, Jimmy D	2	2

Time, 1st 3 21, 2nd 3 21, 3rd 3.23.

Several entries made for this race did not reach the track. The crowd dispersed about 5 o'clock, having had a fair afternoon's sport.

THE BAND CONCERT.

A Musical Entertainment Enjoyed by Thousands.

In the evening the promenade concert held in the new market building at which the programme was rendered by the Guards' Band and that of the 57th, was a grand musical treat. There was a large attendance, but the crowd that listened to the music from the streets below numbered thousands. The programme was one of varied excellence and the two musical organizations who rendered it were possessed of ability and leadership which, with practice, gave the listening thousands music full of vigorous life, effective shade and harmony and time. The opening number by the two bands, the Unity March, was a grand musical rendition and was substituted for another number towards the end of the programme. The Guards have an excellent band and the 57th are with them. Extended reference to the programme is impossible, but all who were absent missed a treat of rare excellence. A pleasant feature of the evening took place at the end of the sixth number, when Miss Brown presented Bandmaster Carter, of the Guards, with a beautiful bouquet, a compliment that was gracefully acknowledged. The programme was as follows:—

Grand March	"Unity"	G.G.F.G. and 57th Batt. Band
Overture	"Le Macon"	G.G.F.G.
Fantasia	"Pride of Scotland"	57th Batt. Band
Valse	"Ehren on the Rhine"	G.G.F.G.

THE CANTON AT CAMPBELLFORD.

A Big Day in the Village—An Exhibition Drill.

Canton Peterborough Patriarchs Militant went to Campbellford yesterday morning on the 8.20 train to participate in the grand Oddfellows demonstration which was held their. The Canton turned out twenty strong and report having enjoyed a grand day' outing. Belleville Canton was also at Campbellford. The two Cantons gave exhibition drill which were well executed and greatly admired. The Peterborough men arrived home last evening pleased with the day.

A cricket match between Norwood and Campbellford was part of the day's programme and resulted in a victory for Campbellford by a score of 72 to 27.

Horse races were run off in the afternoon, and a jockey in the running race was thrown twice from his horse and the second time severely injured.

AT IDYL WILD.

An Excursion to this Pleasant Rice Lake Resort.

The steamer Golden Eye left her wharf in the morning with a very fair crowd on board for the opening picnic at Idyl Wild. Good music was provided and during the sail down the river and on the lake the dance was enjoyed. Idyl Wild was reached at twelve o'clock. The Daisy brought to the same place parties from Keene, Harwood and Hiawatha, while the Pearl brought a large party from the lower end of the lake, and altogether there was quite a gathering. At the resort dancing was indulged in at the hall and a number of gifts were distributed among the steamers' passengers. The weather was fine and sailing on the lake was most enjoyable. Everything passed off well and pleasantly, and the Golden Eye left Idyl Wild at 5 o'clock, reaching Peterborough about 8.30. Many more would no doubt have attended this opening picnic but for the near approach of the farmers' picnic at Jubilee Point on June 11th.

STRAY SHOTS.

The Closing of the Visit and Odd Notes of the Day.

The smoking concert which was given by the officers of the 57th in the Olympic Club rooms to the officers of the Guards terminated early. The Guards had to parade at 9 o'clock and had to leave early.

It was just twelve o'clock when the visiting soldiers were all embarked on the train at the camp grounds and left for Ottawa. The officers of the 57th were down to see them away and three hearty cheers and a tiger were given for the Guards as they steamed away.

The men of the visiting corps evidently had a great time and thoroughly enjoyed their trip. They expressed themselves as pleased with the 57th, which they described as a smart, tidy corps.

The officers of the Guards brought their mounts with them, four horses being among the cargo of the baggage car.

The Ottawa papers were all represented. The Free Press, Citizen and Journal each had a man with the regiment.

A special service for the volunteers was held at St. Peter's Cathedral Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. There was a large congregation, among whom were a number of the Guards and the 57th. Rev. Father Nevin delivered a patriotic and appropriate sermon and Rev. Father Dube said the benediction. It was an impressive service.

At the military service, as stated, every volunteer was furnished with the order of service, handsomely printed in colors, the work having been done in the REVIEW job department. The two regimental crests were artistically joined together and the Union Jack floated over the National Anthem. On the introductory page appeared the following words of welcome:—"The rector and wardens desire on behalf of St. John's congregation to offer their warm greetings to the officers and men of the Governor-General's Foot Guards, as well as to their fellow citizens of the 57th. They feel it both an honor and a pleasure to welcome to St. John's Canadian volunteers as comrades in the cause of religion and patriotism."

Invitations to St. John's services were given to officers of the church, the Mayor and Council, members of Parliament and Crown and municipal officers, who occupied pews reserved in the front of the church.

The chaplain of the Guards, Ven. Archdeacon Lauder, is an elderly man of striking appearance, every line of his countenance and carriage indicating almost youthful energy, activity and ardor. He served both church and state in Peterborough, preaching at St. Luke's and St. John's.

The band of the Guards were the guests of the Peterborough bandsmen and were handsomely entertained. The visiting musicians were delighted with the town and their fellow bandsmen here.

In the afternoon the non-commissioned officers of the 57th entertained the non-coms. of the Guards at the Snowden House. A short time was pleasantly spent in social intercourse, songs, speeches, etc., making the time a merry one.

Indigestion

Is not only a distressing complaint, of itself, but, by causing the blood to become depraved and the system enfeebled, is the parent of innumerable maladies. That Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best cure for Indigestion, even when complicated with Liver Complaint, is proved by the following testimony from Mrs. Joseph Lake, of Brockway Centre, Mich.:—

"Liver complaint and indigestion made my life a burden and came near ending my existence. For more than four years I suffered untold agony, was reduced almost to a skeleton, and hardly had strength to drag myself about. All kinds of food distressed me, and only the most delicate could be digested at all. Within the time mentioned several physicians treated me without giving relief. Nothing that I took seemed to do any permanent good until I commenced the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which has produced wonderful results. Soon after commencing to take the Sarsaparilla I could see an improvement in my condition. My appetite began to return and with it came the ability to digest all the food taken, my strength improved each day, and after a few months of faithful attention to your directions, I found myself a well woman, able to attend to all household duties. The medicine has given me a new lease of life."

ART AND NATURE.

You may not know, but Clement Scott was the young American sculptor who won such distinction abroad last Fall, and over whom during the following Winter Society at home, with her usual fickleness, had come to rave. It is something unusual for Philadelphia to arouse herself over an American, but in Scott's case it seemed natural enough. The personal attractions of the man himself, to say nothing of the distinction Paris had bestowed upon him, were grounds sufficient for his being a social favorite.

Immediately upon his arrival from abroad he was besieged with invitations to receptions and balls, teas and dinners, and the like. Various societies gave public receptions in his honor; the country clubs lunched him, and the city clubs gave him dinners. It went very well for a time, but in a time, too, it grew most tiresome. Scott stood the whole thing as long as he could; then, breaking a dozen or more engagements, he closed his rooms and went away to the seashore. He had learned to his own satisfaction—to his own disappointment—how little Society knew of his art, how little she cared, and that it was the glitter of his medal, not himself, that people loved.

It was the middle of Spring when Clement Scott came to Hull. He had lived there during the Summers previous to his going abroad. The sea, the cliffs, the stretches of white sand, the grass-covered hills, were all very dear to him, and he smiled as he found the memories of these coming back to him. There was one memory, though, which seemed to crowd all the beauties of sea and shore from his thoughts, and then of a sudden to bring them all trooping back again, and in the light of the boyhood love.

That love was something which had never gone from his memory. In his studio in Paris he had often caught himself shaping in the soft clay the features of that one face. He was good at molding, but however truly his hands might follow his memory, he could never seem to catch the spirit of the image in his mind; he could never put life into the form. "It is not she," he would say. "It does not love me." And then he would crush the clay into a shapeless mass and try his hand at other work.

It was very natural that Scott should feel as he did about the face he had loved in his boyhood. The circumstances were peculiar. He had saved the girl's life at the risk of his own. In crossing a track she had fastened her foot in a switch, and must have been killed had not Scott rescued her. As it was, she had not escaped without injury; her arm had been run over. Someone said the child's name was Mildred Boday. Scott knew the beautiful place the Bodays had been building on the hill near his own home, and there he had carried her, with her dress torn from the shoulder, and her little white arm cruelly crushed and bleeding, hanging at his side.

The injury was a severe one. It became necessary to amputate the child's arm close to the shoulder, and it was during this period of her confinement that Scott came to know Mildred Boday well. Young as he was, he loved the beautiful well enough to take joy in watching Mildred's sweet face, with the wealth of golden hair which hung about it, or in looking into Mildred's blue eyes, wide open with wonder or joy at his tales. When Mildred got about again, Clement was her right-hand man. The functions of the arm she had lost were supplied by an artificial arm of French mechanism—an arm that could be moved at will, or even taken off altogether. That arm was a source of great amusement to them. Sometimes its joints would stick, and Clement would have to rescue Mildred from some awkward position, and then they would laugh and think it a great joke.

At the close of his sixteenth year, Scott went abroad and took up his sculpturing under an Italian master, first in Rome, and then in Paris. Eight years afterwards he received his medal, and with it the praise of the whole of Europe. Then he returned to America.

So it was that the young sculptor, with all the glamour of a triumph abroad, and in the midst of an ovation at home, left the prattle and insincerities of New York society for the quiet and for the girl in the little sea town of Hull.

He found the sea, the cliffs, the stretches of white sand, all unchanged. Mildred Boday had changed. She was a woman. But she was just the same to him. There was a little formality at first, but formality could not live when they were together, and soon they came to be the same boy and girl they had been when they parted.

Scott fixed up his old studio and the workshop where he had modeled his first head. Mildred helped him to drape his walls and to place his belongings, and when they had finished, it was a pretty study. Scott had ordered a block of marble from Paris, and when it came he set to work upon it, to try the experiment of cutting an image directly in the marble and without the aid of the clay model. The image he was to follow was the Venus of Milo. He was doing it solely for pleasure, he said, and so worked only when he felt like it. Mildred was frequently by his side in the studio. Now and then she would put her hand to give him an idea of a curve or a line; and always it was more in fun than in earnest that the work went on.

In a few weeks, however, the head of the Venus was freed from the stone, and, to the astonishment of Mildred, the face that she had seen hewn bit by bit from the cold white marble seemed all at once to have life, to be real, and, more, to be her own.

She laughed, and she cried.

"I feel as if some one had shut me up in that stone, ages and ages ago," she said, "and that only now you had come to take me out."

"And what do you suppose you would have done had I never come?" Clement asked, glancing away at the Cupid-lips of his statue.

"Always been dead, I suppose," she said, with a sigh, looking up at him with a roguish smile.

The look was too much for Clement. The marble lips could not hold him when the red ones were there, just waiting to be kissed; nor could he work more that day—he was too happy.

But for some unaccountable reason society had got it into its head that young Scott, "the distinguished American sculptor," as he was commonly called, had left society and gone into seclusion to work. Strange stories got about. He was finishing a statue he had been at work upon for years, it was said; and immediately artists began to interest themselves concerning his whereabouts. The newspapers, working in the interest of the public, had made it their particular business to look into the matter. In part they were successful. They found that he was at Hull, and, because he would not be seen, they inferred that he must be working upon some masterpiece.

That was the story that went abroad.

Artists and newspaper men by the score came to Hull, all anxious to catch a first glimpse of the new work of art. Scott had finished little more than the head and bust of the statue of his Venus of Milo; one of the broken arms to be was still in the crude marble; and he absolutely refused to have his work viewed and criticised by this curious crowd—at least before he had finished.

It was, perhaps, a week after this sort of curiosity concerning Scott's new work had set in, that Mildred and he, in the studio together, were running through a batch of letters. They were, as usual, chiefly requests for interviews, or the like. Among them was a note from the president of the Society of American Sculptors. He wished Mr. Scott to give him and a few of his brothers in art the pleasure of beholding what, he felt sure, was to be the greatest of American sculpture masterpieces.

Scott laughed. "What perfect nonsense!" he said, as he read the letter aloud. It was the same old flattery, and all caused, he thought by his medal. He got up and walked across the studio to where his work stood, and pulling off the sheet that covered it, called to Mildred in a dramatic voice:—

"Look; the masterpiece of American sculpture," and he pointed his finger at the half-finished statue.

How Bruin Treed the Agriculturist and Got Away with a Sheep.

FERGUS, Ont., May 21.—A farmer named Billings, living on the 10th con. of West Luther, had an adventure with a bear the other evening which he will not forget for many days. Hearing a noise in his stable, the occupants of which at that time were some sheep, he lit his lantern and proceeded to investigate. Going to the door, which was divided into two sections, the lower part of which was shut, he looked into the stable and found the cause of the disturbance to be a large bear which was proceeding to dispose of the sheep as lawful prey. About the same time that Mr. Billings saw the bear the bear saw Mr. Billings. The man tried to scare off the intruder, but the bear paid very little attention for a time, and then he proceeded to make hostile demonstrations. As soon as Mr. Billings saw the bear coming towards him he swung himself up into the loft in great haste. As there was no ladder the bear could not follow and therefore had to content himself with watching beneath. Feeling secure in his lofty position Mr. Billings did everything in his power to scare the bear, but without success. He rattled stones, yelled, howled, shouted until he was hoarse, but the bear did not scare worth a cent. It proceeded quietly to carry off a sheep; and, thinking that discretion was the better part of valor, Mr. Billings stayed in the loft until the rising sun showed him that the coast was clear.

"A stitch in time saves nine," and if you take Hood's Sarsaparilla now it may save months of future possible sickness.

SIR ROBERT FOWLER DEAD.

A Member of Parliament and One of London's Ex-Lord Mayors.

LONDON, May 22.—Sir Robert Nicholas Fowler, Bart., member of Parliament for London, died to-day from heart disease. The death of Sir Robert Fowler was primarily due to influenza.

Sir Robert Fowler was born in Middlesex in 1828, and was educated at University College, London. He was one of the partners in the banking firm of Dimsdale, Fowler & Co., London, and served as Alderman and sheriff of the city in 1878 and 1881 respectively. He was twice elected Lord Mayor, and during his second term, in 1885, was created a baronet by the Queen. He sat for Penrhyn from Dec., 1868, to Jan., 1874, and since 1880 has been one of the three Conservative members for the city of London.

WATERTOWN, N.Y., May 24.—Mrs. S. T. Cummings has secured a warrant for the arrest of her husband on the charge of bigamy but he seems to have escaped out of the immediate reach of the law. Cummings is a Canadian. He came to Watertown with a wife and baby in 1890. His wife and child afterwards returned to Canada. Then Cummings changed his boarding place and fell in love with Emma Olive, the 16-year-old daughter of his landlady. The girl learned that he was married and his love-making was interrupted for a time. He went to Canada and returned, reporting that his wife was dead. He was then married to Emma, who is now the mother of a child two weeks old. The first wife has discovered the situation and is here to prosecute

WITH HER DOLL IN HER ARMS.

A Tot of a Child Meets Death in a Pathetic Way.

NEW YORK, May 25.—Joseph Hartl, who keeps a human hair store at No. 460 Broadway, Williamsburg, reported to the police at midnight last night that his little daughter Carrie, 3 years old, was missing from home and requested them to assist in finding her.

No trace of her was found until 6.30 this morning, when the unfortunate child was found drowned in a cask of water, head downward, in the cellar. Clasped tightly in her little arms was an old china doll, which was little Carrie's inseparable companion. It is supposed that the child took her doll down into the cellar to wash it, and in leaning over the barrel lost her balance and fell head foremost into the water.

Although the Prince of Wales has been subpoenaed on behalf of the plaintiff in the Sir William Gordon Cumming case, otherwise the "baccarat scandal," he will not appear in the witness-box, as his evidence is not required.

Mr. Henry Brown of the drygoods firm of Brown & White of Vancouver and Victoria, B.C., died a few days ago, leaving a boy and a girl behind him. He was a Past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of British Columbia, A. F. & A. M., and Grand Secretary at the time of his death.

Discount was easy in London during the past week. The influx of gold into the Bank of England amounted to 1½ millions, with three millions coming from Australia and America. The Bank of England yesterday made further purchases of gold eagles at a premium. On the stock exchange there was a general recovery of prices.

The election of M. Pierre Loti to Octave Feuillet's chair in the French Academy was expected, and the defeat of M. Zola was expected. Both events are gratifying. M. Loti is a writer with a style, with power of telling a story, with a gift of observation and a gift of description. Of hundreds of books which have been written about Japan, his "Madame Chrysanthème" is the most Japanese.

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

CASH HARDWARE STORE.

On and after 1st April we shall do business on a Cash Basis.

To cover the inevitable losses attendant upon a credit business, (which accrue from amount of time spent in keeping accounts, collecting, bad debts, interest account, and in numerous other ways, larger margins of profit must be asked.

In these times cash buyers ask, expect and are entitled to close prices. A careful consideration of the subject convinces us that the time has come for a cash business done on smaller profits.

The only customers who may be put to inconvenience are those who have had long credit. In more ways than one it will be to their advantage to pay cash.

For convenience of our old customers who consider their accounts due when presented, we will call 30 days cash and render all accounts the first of each month, and we wish to say that we will be happy to do business with them on these terms.

As the new departure is something of an experiment, what would be considered a close cash price will be made all through the stock. Not a few leaders only, but a general reduction in everything from the fourth flat to the cellar.

Our idea is to perform more than promised rather than promise more than can be fulfilled.

Our stock is large and varied, consisting of Builders', Contractors', Household, Mechanics', Painters', Shoemakers', Farm, Mill, Factory, Lumbermen's, Sporting, Threshers', Cabinetmakers', and other lines of Hardware.

BUY NOW IF AT ALL.
EVERY day makes more apparent the fact that the town is going ahead rapidly. Numerous changes have taken place in the way of the ownership of property. Many workingmen are buying houses and lots or lots on which to build. One of the most suitable locations is that known as the firm property at the west end, owned largely by Mr. Wm. Fitzgerald. This week he has closed the sale of a very desirable new house and lot, and has several eligible lots on this property to dispose of. Property in this neighbourhood is rapidly being built up, and it will be well to have a look at the situation if one is at all disposed to buy. The terms are very favorable and especially low for cash, though payment on time may be arranged.

A BRUSH WITH BANDITS.

A "FAR WEST" TALE FROM NEW BRUNSWICK.

A Gang of Road Agents Board An Express Train Between Bangor, Maine and St. John, N.B., But After Firing a Number of Shots Are Successfully Beaten Off.

St. John, N.B., May 26.—There are four bullet holes in the postal car of the mail and passenger train which arrived here from Bangor at 5 o'clock this morning, and a story of a daring attempt to rob the mail is told by the officials. The train was running out from Enfield, 25 miles east of Bangor, Me., when three men jumped aboard. It was then 8.30 in the evening and it was impossible to tell whether they were masked or not. Shortly after the bell cord was pulled, which signalled the engineer to stop the train. The engineer obeyed the signal and firing was heard in the vicinity of the postal car. Both the engineer and firemen were in a moment covered by a rifle in the hands of a man standing on the end of the baggage car, while two comrades of the train robbers tried to force an entrance into the postal car. In this apartment were the unarmed clerks, Messrs. Woodbury and Hickley and the United States officials, and the robbers finding it impossible to get in owing to the large quantity of mail piled up against the door fired through the car. Fortunately no one was injured and the men jumped off the train and dashed into the woods.

AFTER 18 YEARS.

A Long-Lost Husband Turns Up Under the Usual Circumstances.

Wilkesbarre, May 26.—An Enoch Arden case has just come to light here. Forty-six years ago George Thorn came to this country from England. In 1865 he married a Miss Dorrey A. Scranton, a miss of 16. Four children were born to them. Then one morning Thorn had a quarrel with his wife and he left home. Nothing was heard of him until five years later, when a copy of The New Orleans Picayune was received by his wife containing her husband's death notice.

Eight months later Mrs. Thorn married a William Jones. They are now living happily together. On Friday morning last who should knock at Mrs. Jones' front door but her long-lost husband. The wife recognized him at once and then fainted. Thorn, after remaining two days as the guest of Jones and wife, left for his home in Knoxville, Tenn., last night. He now says that he is sorry for what he did, but will not disturb his wife's present happiness.

He Swallowed a Clay Pipe Stem.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 26.—Dr. James McCann, at the West Penn Hospital this evening, made the fourth attempt to remove a piece of clay pipe stem from the left bronchial tube of David Williams, a 4-year-old boy. The lad had swallowed it a week ago. All efforts to grasp it with a probe, of which several kinds were used, proved futile, as it was impossible to secure a hold upon the hard substance. About two hours after the operation the boy died of exhaustion.

Derocha Discharged.

Cornwall, May 26.—Jerome Derocha, who was arrested May 14 on a charge of being implicated in the robbing of the grave of the late P. Purcell, appeared for trial this morning and was discharged.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

THE ALLEGED FRAUDS IN CHEESE EXPORTS.

A Dull Day in the House—The Tarte Charges Before the Privileges and Election Committee—The House in Committee of Supply.

Ottawa, May 26.—To-day the House met at 3.10 after its Queen's birthday adjournment, and apparently a large number of members had not yet recovered from their celebration, as barely one-fourth of the House was present.

Only about 75 petitions were presented and the flow of this nuisance seems to be checked now. It has been wholly unprecedented this year, the number so far exceeding 3500, while the number for a whole session seldom exceeds five or six hundred. In fact, one day this session more petitions were presented than are usually received in any average session.

Three private bills were introduced and Mr. Foster gave notice that he would move the House into committee of the whole to-morrow on his resolution respecting the Chignecto Marine Railway, which is to extend the time or abolish the penalty clause.

The House then went into committee of supply, Mr. Wood of Westmoreland in the chair in the absence of the deputy speaker.

Sir Charles' Salary.

Mr. Somerville drew attention to the details of expenditure in the High Commissioner's office at London, including the payment of Sir Charles Tupper's income tax rent and so on, and asked if these were not the sums intended to be covered by a special grant of $2000 voted the High Commissioner in addition to his $10,000 salary.

Mr. Foster said the published contingencies affected the office, and the $2000 affected specially the High Commissioner as bearing incidentally on his being there in his capacity as High Commissioner.

Mr. Somerville pointed out various items which should come out of the $2000 allowance, but which were all charged up to the contingent fund. One item, gratuity to Mrs. Wilkinson, $68.30, was a sample of what Mr. Somerville said should properly come out of the $2000 allowed for contingencies. If the High Commissioner was being paid $12,000 instead of $10,000 the people ought to know it.

Dr. Landerkin enquired whether, in the event of the High Commissioner's income being increased by reason of his connection with the gas company, if the people of Canada would pay the increased tax on his income.

Dr. Macdonald thought the Opposition were entitled to know just where this $2,000 went. If it was required to entertain Sir Charles Tupper's friends let that be frankly stated.

Mr. Foster said the Government did not ask what Sir Charles Tupper did with this $2000 any more than what he did with his salary. There was a similar allowance to Sir A. T. Galt when he was High Commissioner.

Mr. Hyman took it that Mr. Foster practically admitted that the $2000 was really an addition to the salary. If $12,000 was needed let the Government put it in that way [illegible] Mr. Foster: What's the difference between that and the way it's done now? [Hear, hear.]

Sir Donald Smith agreed with Mr. Hyman that it would be better to add the $2000 directly to the salary, but he believed the salary should be at least $20,000.

Mr. Davies objected to increasing the salary of a sinecure like the office of High Commissioner. Mr. Foster taking exception to the term sinecure, Mr. Davies insisted that it would be difficult to state what services Sir Charles Tupper performed within the last eight or ten years, except bestowing some attention on the scheduling of cattle.

Sir Donald Smith retorted that England paid her ambassadors in foreign countries greater salaries than the Premier of England.

After recess, Mr. Mulock called upon the Government to declare its position with regard to the attack of Sir Charles Tupper upon the Grand Trunk Railway Company. It was due to the people of Canada, he said, that it be repudiated or that it be known that Sir Charles was speaking in his official capacity as High Commissioner. It should be known if the Government, as they seemed to do, intended to give their countenance to attacks upon the value of the investments of English shareholders of the Grand Trunk. The item on which the present discussion had arisen was small, but the occasion was an important one.

The discussion was continued up to six o'clock.

After recess the House again went into committee of supply, and passed a greater part of the evening discussing some items for the Printing Bureau. Afterwards the items for the administration of justice were taken up, and the usual annual discussion on judges' salaries took place.

Sir John gives notice of a Committee of the Whole on Friday to consider a resolution that it is expedient, in order to enable the Winnipeg & Hudson Bay Railway to construct a railway from the city of Winnipeg to some point on the Saskatchewan River, to enter into a contract with such company for the transport of men, supplies, materials and mails for 20 years and to pay for the same $80,000 per annum.

Mr. White (Cardwell) gives notice of motion for copies of all memorials presented to His Excellency on the subject of a refund to municipalities in Ontario for subsidies to railway companies.

The House adjourned at 12.35.

Ottawa, May 26.—Mr. Bowell laid on the table to-day a return to the order of the House on Mr. Marshall's motion for copies of correspondence, etc., respecting steps taken by the Government to prevent American cheese being shipped through or from Canadian ports as Canadian, also copies of instructions on the subject. From the return it appears that last summer the High Commissioner received from the secretary of the Liverpool Provision Trade Association and Exchange a letter stating that it had come to the knowledge of the Cheese Committee of the association that Wisconsin cheese full creams and partly skimmed was being sold in Montreal as Canadian cheese and shipped from there and other ports as Canadian produce. The acting collector at Montreal to whom the matter was referred reported that he was informed that American cheese had been branded "Canadian," but no proof of it had been furnished. He further stated that he had allowed a firm in Montreal to put on its cheese the words: "American produce." In reply to this the Commissioner of Customs, under date Oct. 28, 1890, says: "While the notion in relation to the shipping mark placed on the cheese in transit is all right in most respects, it has been decidedly wrong in the use of the words "American produce," and instead of these words the marks should always be "Produce of the United States." The former marks are liable to misrepresentation in the English markets. The people of the United States have no more right to the term American than parties of other countries on this continent. On the matter being referred to the Department of Justice, the Deputy Minister under date 12th January, 1891, points out that the merchandise marks officers act creates the offence of false marking and prescribes the penalty. It must, however, be proved to the satisfaction of a jury that there was intention to defraud. In the present case he did not see how there could be any other intent than that of fraud.

THE PRIVILEGES COMMITTEE.

Preliminary Investigation Into the Langevin-McGreevy Scandal.

Ottawa, May 26.—The privileges and Elections Committee met to-day at 10.30. There was a large attendance, Hon. Mr. Kirkpatrick presiding. Hon. Mr. Laurier and other prominent members watched the proceedings. Mr. C. A. Geoffrion, Q.C., Montreal, appeared for Mr. Tarte, and Messrs. G. G. Stewart, Quebec, H. McN. Henry, Halifax, and Charles Fitzpatrick, Quebec, represented Sir Hector and Hon. Thomas McGreevy. Mr. James Woods, acting Secretary-Treasurer of the Quebec Harbor Commission, submitted documentary evidence called for by Mr. Tarte to prove the various contracts which it is alleged were fraudulently obtained. One important point came out in evidence. Mr. Woods testified that an unaccepted check for $25,000, signed by O. E. Murphy and endorsed by M. K. Connolly, was substituted in Oct., 1887, for a bank certificate for the same amount. Later on Mr. Connolly and Mr. Murphy asked for the return of the check. At the same time Hon. Thomas McGreevy personally wrote the secretary of the board stating that he saw an objection to the acceptance of Mr. O. E. Murphy's check in place of the one held on deposit. The commissioners, however, refused to return the unaccepted check given by Murphy and Connolly. They offered to destroy the check, but Mr. Murphy objected.

The committee will meet to-morrow.

Rebate on Sugar for Export.

Ottawa, May 27.—It is understood that the Government have decided to grant a rebate on all sugars manufactured in Canada for export, which will place the Canadian refiner in the same position as the American refiner to trade in foreign markets. The Canadian refiners are now pressing for a rebate on sugar manufactured for domestic purposes.

Deep Sea Fishing.

Ottawa, May 26.—The Dominion Government has decided to take steps to encourage the development of Canada's deep sea fisheries, with this object in view Hon. Mr. Tupper, Minister of Marine, will ask Parliament Friday to consider a resolution to grant $160,000 annually towards their development and to improve the condition of the fishermen.

The Senate.

Ottawa, May 26.—The Senate resumed its labors to-night, when the three new senators, Snowball, Howlan and McDonald, were introduced. The report of the committee on the vacancy of Senator Alexander's seat was laid on the table, and Mr. Abbott gave notice that he would move its consideration to-morrow.

Grief Made Her Dumb.

Port Arthur, May 26.—Two or three weeks ago a young Finn couple were married, and from the first the husband showed a desire to escape from the bonds. A few days ago he went away, and since then the wife has been rambling around apparently demented. Mary Ann Erik was up at the Police Court yesterday and committed to the jail for safe-keeping. She will not speak at all no matter who questions her.

Killed at a Crossing.

Quebec, May 26.—Mrs. Louis Gerard of Lorette, a washerwoman, was driving over the St. Valier-street crossing of the C.P.R. with her son, when the vehicle was struck by the locomotive and smashed to pieces. The woman was instantly killed and her son, who was with her, seriously injured.

Didn't Know, Etc.

Quebec, May 26.—Two brothers-in-law named J. B. Dompierre and Genois were examining a revolver at St. Rodis, when it accidentally went off in the hands of Genois, the bullet entering the abdomen of his brother-in-law. He will die.

64 Earthquakes in 24 Days.

Yokohoma, May 26.—Sixty-four earthquakes were felt in different parts of the empire in 24 days in March last. The greatest number occurring on one day was nine shocks on the 31st of that month.

Several Canadian Fires.

Norwich, May 26.—Early this morning the agricultural buildings at the fair grounds were destroyed by fire. Cause of fire unknown. Insurance $400. Loss about $1200.

Fire at Simcoe.

Simcoe, May 26.—The Williamson Block, Norfolk-street, occupied by Charles Mariatt, grocer, and by William Johnson as a billiard saloon, was destroyed by fire this morning. The building was owned by B. Cammell and was insured for $3000. Mariatt had $1000 insurance. The fire originated from a lamp in the billiard hall.

At Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, May., 26.—A boy playing with firecrackers set Finkelstein's tenement building on Hudson Bay Flats on fire this afternoon and rendered eight families, chiefly Icelanders, homeless. The loss on building about $1000, insured.

Robert Scott was arrested last night for setting fire to his brother's livery stables here, fortunately the flames were discovered before any damage was done.

No Hearse Big Enough to Hold the 600 Pound Corpse.

New York, May 26.—When Margaret Mulhaney used to wobble through the East Side streets everybody stopped and stared at her. Margaret was fifty-five years old and weighed 600 pounds. Her husband was dead and she at one time lived with an only daughter. Heart disease set in and on Saturday morning Mrs. Mulhaney died. Charles McCollum, the undertaker, found it impossible to put the huge body on ice. So it was embalmed. The funeral took place at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

An ordinary coffin is 16 inches wide and 12 inches high. A plain cloth-covered box, 37 inches wide and 20 inches high, enclosed the corpse. The hallway of the house being only 35 inches wide, the box had to be tipped sideways, while 12 brawny men strained every muscle to carry it through the hallway. The task lasted 20 minutes. No hearse was big enough to accommodate the coffin, and an undertakers' wagon carried the body to Calvary Cemetery, followed by five carriages of mourners.

A grave is ordinarily dug 24 inches wide. Ground had been bought for two graves, giving a width of 48 inches. Sixteen of the cemetery employes lowered the coffin into the double grave.

BRITISH AND FOREIGN.

LIEUT. GRANT PROMOTED TO THE RANK OF MAJOR.

The Young Scotch Officer Also Given the Victoria Cross—The Newfoundland Question—Parnell Delivers a Couple of Addresses.

Calcutta, May 26.—Lieut. Grant, who showed such skill and bravery in defeating an intrenched position near Thobal, with 80 Sepoys and 40 Ghoorkas, against almost the entire Manipuri army, has been decorated with the Victoria Cross, and has been promoted to the rank of major.

Lieut. Grant is a relative of the Grants of Grant, in the Highlands of Scotland, who "raised the Black Watch." His father is Lieut.-General D. S. S. St. J. Grant. The chance that came to the young lieutenant, for he is only 30 years of age, and the way he rose to it, became a brilliant spot in the gloomy tale of treachery, butchery and blundering of the Manipuri massacre. Lieut. Grant held Fort Thobal for three days, and then repulsed the Manipuri again at Alongtaing in a fight that lasted three long hot hours, during which the Senaputty prince and his two commanders were killed, and the Manipuri were driven off into the jungle by Lieut. Grant's men of the Second Burmahs.

A Proposal to the Delegates.

London, May 26.—The Government has made a private proposal to the Newfoundland delegates which will obviate the passing of the Knutsford bill. The delegates are now considering the proposal.

London, May 26.—Alexander Staveley Hill, M.P. for Staffordshire, in the House of Commons to-day presented a petition from the Newfoundland Legislature praying that one of the Newfoundland delegates now in this country may be heard at the bar of the House of Commons in protest against the passage of the Knutsford bill which is to come up again Thursday.

Mr. Hill gave notice that he would on the second reading of the Newfoundland bill move that the Newfoundland delegate be heard at the bar of the House.

The Fife Baby Not to Rank as a Princess of the Blood Royal.

London, May 26.—The Queen has decided that the Duke of Fife's daughter, the recently born granddaughter of the Prince of Wales, is to have only the rank and title to which she is entitled as the daughter of a duke. The Queen came to this decision in spite of the fact that the legal advisers of the crown concurred in the opinion that the Prince of Wales' granddaughter should rank as a princess of the blood royal. The Queen's decision is final.

Blue Jackets Take Possession.

Capetown, May 26.—It is rumored here that H.M.S. Magicienne, Capt. J. P. Ripon, which vessel on May 23 was announced to have arrived at Beira, Mashonaland, a Portuguese settlement in South Africa, in company with the British gunboat Pigeon, has landed a force of marines and blue jackets and has occupied the port on behalf of the British Government.

London, May 26.—Lord Randolph Churchill telegraphs from South Africa as follows: The Portuguese have reclosed the Pungwe route and have enforced exorbitant passport and customs duties for a short period. The open position of the South African Company's victorious force at Umtali is now serious owing to their inability to secure supplies.

Portuguese soldiers have brutally assaulted two British subjects named Somershield and Dangerfield at Lorenzo Marques, inflicting serious bayonet wounds. The immediate British occupation of the coast seems imperative.

PARNELL TO HIS FLOCK.

He Outlines His Policy in Speeches at New Castle and Limerick.

Dublin, May 26.—Mr. Parnell went to New Castle West and Limerick this morning and was warmly received. In Limerick he referred to the Boulogne negotiations, reminding his hearers that if Mr. O'Brien had then obtained the Home Rule assurances from Mr. Gladstone that he sought for, he, Mr. Parnell, would have been enabled to retire from public life, and he would renew the offer he then made.

If driven from the leadership of the Irish nation at the general election he would still persevere as a private citizen to struggle independently of all opposition for perfect freedom in Irish politics.

Marital Woe in England.

London, May 26.—During the ensuing session of Sir James Hannen's court 189 suits for divorce and separation will be tried. Among the cases for the special jury will be that of Russell v. Russell. The petitioner is the Countess Russell and the respondent Earl Russell, a grandson of Lord John Russell, the English "Little Giant" of former days. There are several separation and cruelty cases of interest in theatrical circles.

Burning of the Uhlan Barracks.

Berlin, May 26.—The barracks occupied by the 2nd regiment of Uhlans was burned to-day. The exhibition of fine arts opposite the barracks was saved with difficulty.

Chinamen Beheaded.

Hong Kong, May 26.—Nineteen Chinese were beheaded by order of the authorities at Kowwoo City. Nine of them are known to have participated in the Naoma Piercy tragedy.

A Prelate's Life Threatened.

London, May 26.—The Bishop of London, the Right Hon. and Right Rev. Frederick Temple, received a mysterious letter last week warning him that an attempt would be made to assassinate him at the ordination service held in St. Paul's Cathedral on Sunday last. Detectives carefully watched the Cathedral, but with no result.

Outrages in China.

Shanghai, May 26.—The Christian missions at Nankin have been attacked and pillaged by natives. The inmates narrowly escaped with their lives. The anti-foreigner movement, which is fomented by secret societies, has caused alarm at the treaty ports.

Chat From Over the Sea.

The strike of omnibus drivers in Paris is concluded. Minister Constans yesterday gave audience to delegates of the strikers and the companies' directors. As a result of this audience and the mediation of the municipal authorities the directors of the company met the union leaders and drafted an agreement which virtually ends the strike on the men's terms.

Ate Wild Parsnip.

Windsor, May 26.—Madgar Lajeunesse of the Tilbury North and Rochester town line a short time ago, while ditching, overturned a wild parsnip root. A short time afterward a 6-year-old son of his ate part of the root and two hours afterward died in great agony.

Dyspepsia

Intense Suffering for 8 years—Restored to Perfect Health.

Few people have suffered more severely from dyspepsia than Mr. E. A. McMahon, a well known grocer of Staunton, Va. He says: "Before 1878 I was in excellent health, weighing over 200 pounds. In that year an ailment developed into acute dyspepsia, and soon I was reduced to 162 pounds, suffering burning sensations in the stomach, palpitation of the heart, nausea, and indigestion. I could not sleep, lost all heart in my work, had fits of melancholia, and for days at a time I would have welcomed death. I became morose, sullen and irritable, and for eight years life was a burden. I tried many physicians and many remedies. One day a workman employed by me suggested that I take Hood's Sarsaparilla, as it had cured his wife of dyspepsia.

Suffering

I did so, and before taking the whole of a bottle I began to feel like a new man. The terrible pains to which I had been subjected, ceased, the palpitation of the heart subsided, my stomach became easier, nausea disappeared, and my entire system began to tone up. With returning strength came activity of mind and body. Before the fifth bottle was taken

A Bit of Philosophy.

Live within your income. How to do this is the vital question. Two courses are open, increase income or curtail expenditure. It's about as hard to cut down expenses as to increase income. Bush Fires Doing Damage—A Blaze in the Grove

Correspondence of the Review.

A. C. A.—The Committee of the northern division of the A. C. A. has made arrangements for the camp of the A. C. A. at the Big Island in Pigeon Lake, which is to begin on the 17th of July and continue till the 31st. The place selected is an excellent one and will be a first class place for canoeists and pleasure seekers to spend a couple of weeks holidays.

EARLY CLOSING.—Since the 15th inst. our business men have closed at 7 o'clock. This gives them a good long evening.

GYPSIES.—A couple of camps of gypsies were located here for the past two weeks and as usual they have kept up the horse trading, the selling of lace and other trinkets. They seem to enjoy a nomadic life.

FIRE ON THE ISLAND.—On Saturday last some person dropped a match in the grove just east of the school here, and before long the fire was running at a lively rate and before it could be quenched the firemen with the steam fire engine had to be called out. They were not long playing on it with a couple of streams till it was under control, and finally extinguished.

SEEDING.—As the season has been most favorable the farmers of this locality are about done seeding, but rain is badly needed to produce a growth.

I. O. G. T.—The I. O. G. Ts. held an open night here on Monday, the 25th inst., and as a number of the Dunsford members made this lodge a visit a very pleasant evening was spent. An interesting programme was rendered after which the meeting dispersed, every person who was present being pleased with the evening's entertainment.

BUSH FIRES.—Several bush fires have broken out in this vicinity and considerable damage may be done if rain does not come to quench them.

YOUNG'S POINT.

The Mills of the Village—The Wharf and the Bridges—Successful Picnic.

Correspondence of the Review.

SAW MILLS.—Mr. C. Young commenced running his saw mill for the season last Wednesday. He has a fine lot of logs to cut and has several contracts on hand, and expects to do quite as large business in lumber and shingles. The quantity of logs in his boom is nearly double what it was last year.

THE SHINGLE MILL.—Mr. A. Dunn, the well known shingle maker from Peterborough, has contracted again this season with Mr. C. Young. He expects to be able to commence running in a few days. The shingles Mr. Dunn turns out cannot be beat in the market.

THE GRIST MILL.—Since Mr. Golborne's death this mill has undergone repairs, and Mr. Young is looking for a good tenant. See his advertisement in the REVIEW of this week, in the Daily and Weekly editions.

NEW GOODS.—Mr. Stewart has opened out his new stock of dry goods, ready made clothing, boots and shoes, &c., &c., which he has purchased for cash in the Toronto markets, and is selling them at prices that cannot be beat for cheapness. Give him a call and be convinced.

THE WHARF.—The one half of the wharf that was erected here last spring by the Ontario Government has to be lowered to enable the steamers to land freight to advantage in both high and low water. Thanks to Mr. Walters for his promptness in this matter, as it is very much needed.

THE LOCKS BRIDGE.—Mr. De Loury, foreman of Ontario Government works, arrived here from Lindsay on Friday last with a gang of men to get ready the timber, &c., for the locks bridge, which is getting a thorough overhauling.

PERSONAL.—Mr. Thos. Walters, from Lindsay, arrived here last Saturday to give his foreman instructions re the locks bridge and alterations to wharf, &c. He looks jolly as usual.

THE WEATHER.—The farmers are feeling anxious for rain. The crops look dry, in fact we are all dry. A good wet would not [illegible].

THE IRON BRIDGE.—Mr. Con. Young has got the contract for the re-flooring of the county bridge, and the sooner it is done the better for all concerned. It ought to have been done a year ago.

CHURCH PICNIC.—The annual picnic of the Ebenezer Methodist church here, held on Saturday last, was quite a success. The attendance was good and the music and singing was also good, and financially speaking it was A-1. There were so many loaves and fishes left over that the managers are giving a ten cent treat at the church to all comers to eat up the fragments and have a chat for an hour or two. The management deserve credit for their trouble in making the gathering a success.

Dyspepsia has driven to an early and even suicidal grave many a man, who, if he had tried the virtues of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, would be alive to-day and in the enjoyment of health and competence. Sufferer be warned in season, and don't allow the system to run down.

Hear Him this Evening.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—During my stay in your city many of my friends have made enquiry regarding Sam Small. Permit me to state I have had the pleasure of his acquaintance and have listened to him many times during his stay in Chicago. Those who hear him this evening will be repaid a thousand times. Every boy, young man and parent should hear Mr. Small. If you desire to hear the history of rapid life in the great cities, and how soon a brilliant mind can be led astray, go to-night.

Respectfully,
T. S. QUINCEY.

A Runaway Accident.

On Monday Mrs. Jos. Robinson had a fortunate escape from injury in a rather exciting runaway accident. Mrs. Robinson, accompanied by her nephew, had only left her residence when the horse took fright and turning round short overturned the carriage and threw its occupants out upon the road. Neither of them were injured seriously, although Mrs. Robinson was badly shaken up. The horse left the carriage a short distance further on and was finally caught near Gilmour-st.

The entering wedge of a complaint that may prove fatal is often a slight cold, which a dose or two of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral might have cured at the commencement. It would be well, therefore, to keep the remedy within reach at all times.

Chasing Her Husband.

A little scene was enacted at the station at Stirling on the Grand Junction this morning when Conductor Stanton's train was coming from Belleville. A respectable looking woman, accompanied by a little girl, appealed to the conductor for a free ride to Campbellford. This was, of course, refused, and then the woman told her tale. Her husband had left her and the child and gone away with his daughter-in-law, and the frantic wife wished to follow him. She had left her purse at home. The conductor could not give her a pass and the train started. With touching entreaties she ran after the moving train, and the driver, supposing she had been left, stopped his engine. The woman then boarded the train and the big heart of the courteous conductor was touched, and he went down into his pocket and paid for a ticket himself. It is to be hoped that the woman's perseverance will be rewarded by an overhauling of the supposed unfaithful husband.

COBOURG'S RAILWAY.

An Effort to Revive the C., N. & P. Railway Project.

A meeting of the Board of Directors and the Advisory Committee of the Cobourg, Peterborough and Northumberland Railway was held in Cobourg yesterday, Mr. R. Mulholland, the Chairman of the Board, presiding. The object of the meeting was to make arrangements for reviving the charter of the railway, which it is proposed to run from Cobourg to the Canadian Pacific railway through Campbellford or some other villages north of Cobourg.

After the Chairman had explained the object of the meeting, the Secretary, Mr. A. Pue, reported that he had written to a number of contractors but had received nothing definite from them. The Secretary also submitted a draft of the proposed bill, in which it was proposed to increase the bonding power of the road, and it was adopted.

On motion of Mr. J. H. Dumble, seconded by Mr. C. C. Field, the name of Mr. W. Crossen was substituted on the Board for that of his father, deceased, and Mr. W. W. Armstrong's, of Campbellford, in lieu of that of Mr. Blodget, of Alnwick, resigned.

Some discussion took place as to who should take charge of the bill at Ottawa. Finally, on motion of Mr. Dumble, seconded by Mr. W. R. Riddell, Mr. Mulholland and Mr. Geo. Guillet, ex-M.P., were asked to go to Ottawa and use their influence towards getting a member to take charge of the bill and having it passed.

On motion of Mr. S. Clarke, seconded by Mr. Field, the Secretary was instructed to ask the other interested municipalities to contribute towards the expenses of the new legislation required, as about $400 would still be necessary.

The meeting then adjourned.

AN INFORMATION QUASHED.

Mr. Michael Carton Arrested on a Rather Serious Charge But His Council Frees Him Without a Trial.

Mr. Michael Carton, the well-known proprietor of the Bon Marche, now closed out, was arrested last evening by Chief Roszel on a warrant charging him with a somewhat serious offence. The information was sworn out by Mr. Thos. Bradburn, whose tenant Mr. Carton was. It is alleged that the latter forced Mr. Bradburn by threats to give him a receipt. The charge as laid read as follows:—

The said informant says that Michael Carton, at the Town of Peterborough, in the County of Peterborough, on Tuesday the 26th day of May, 1891, feloniously by unlawful motives to the said Thomas Bradburn and by restraint upon the person of the said Thomas Bradburn and by threats of violence to the said Thomas Bradburn did compel the said Thomas Bradburn to affix his name to a receipt for money in order that the said receipt for money might be afterwards used or dealt with as a valuable security with intent to defraud the said Thomas Bradburn contrary to the statute in that behalf.

Mr. Carton was released on bail last evening and appeared at the Police Court this morning. The case had attracted quite a crowd of spectators to the Court, but the scene was to be a short one. Mr. R. E. Wood, County Crown Attorney, prosecuted and Mr. E. B. Edwards appeared for the defence.

Mr. Edwards as soon as the information had been read rose and demurred to it, first on the ground that there were several distinct statutory charges combined in the information which should be laid separately, and secondly that the term "valuable security" did not mean in its legal sense such an article as a receipt, which was an instrument upon which money could be obtained. No evidence, he held, could convict under the information, no indictable offence was charged and he asked that the information be quashed.

Mr. Wood replied, holding that the statute did not restrict the meaning of the term "valuable security," which could be a matter of construction on the evidence.

Magistrate Dumble thought the objection tenable. If the document signed was not a valuable security in the meaning of the statute, if it was not an instrument on which money could be raised, the definitions under the Larceny and Post Office Acts and the only definition he could find, the information was useless. The document in this case being a receipt upon which no money could be obtained he thought it useless spending time taking evidence on a charge that did come within the meaning of the statute.

Mr. Edwards also wished to draw the Court's attention to the fact that a warrant had been issued for the defendant who was a house owner.

The Magistrate said this made no difference. On the objections, he said he found the information bad.

This was quashing the information and Mr. Edwards immediately seized his satchel and hat, called to his client and both left the court room.

Mr. Wood had in the meantime drawn up another information which was sworn to by Mr. Bradburn. This second charge was that Michael Carton did unlawfully assault, beat and ill-treat Thomas Bradburn, doing the said gentleman bodily harm.

A summons was issued for Mr. Carton's appearance and the case will come up to-morrow morning.

This afternoon a counter move was made by Mr. Carton and an information was sworn out against Mr. Bradburn charging him with assaulting, beating and ill-treating Mr. Carton. This information calls for a summary trial.

Police Pencillings.

The cells were vacant last night.

Mr. R. M. Wylie appeared at the Police Court this morning and stated to the Court that the seized trunks and tub had been returned to George Pearson and the charge of larceny against him was dismissed.

Wm. Ed. Smith, a boy who had seen seven or eight summers, was in the Court this morning to receive the opinion of the Magistrate in regard to his immediate future. It was stated that the lad's parents were dead, that he lived with his uncle and aunt who had recently sent him from their house. The boy for a week past had been cared for by Mrs. Walter Stocker. On the other hand it was said that the boy was incapable, would not go to school and was disobedient and mischievous. The Magistrate sent him home to try and do better.

Mr. Thos. Price was charged with keeping a vicious dog which had bitten the young son of Mr. Angiyslo. Evidence was heard as to the dog's character and the owner was given a month in which to dispose of him.

Mrs. Lynn, a lady who had an eating house license last year, was at the Court this morning charged with selling meals without a license. She said she did not want a license, because she intended to give up the business, there being no money in it. The case was dismissed.

THE FIRST SALE OF CHEESE.

First Meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board—The Board all Sold at Fair Prices.

The opening sale of this year of the local Cheese Board was held at noon yesterday in the market building. Twenty-four factories boarded 1,282 boxes, first half of May make. The buyers present were Messrs. Cook, Wrighton, Hodgson and Spence. Bidding was rather slow, but fair prices were received. Liverpool was quoted at 57s.

The cheese boarded were as follows:—

Mr. Cook led off in the bidding by offering 8⅜c. for the board. Mr. Hodgson followed with 8½c. for a carload and at this figure got Keene, Lakeview, Trewern, Warminster, Shearer and North Smith. Mr. Hodgson then offered 8½c. for the balance of the Board, Mr. Cook raised him ⅛c. which Mr. Wrighton again raised to 8¾c. for a carload. Mr. Cook went him better and bid 8 13-16c. for selections, but Mr. Wrighton stopped all further bidding by offering 9c., and secured Westwood, Norwood, Melrose Abbey, Peterborough, Pine Grove and Warsaw. Mr. Cook then bid 8⅝c. for the balance, and Mr. Wrighton raised it to 8¾c. Mr. Cook was after cheese and raised his offer to 8⅞c. and selected Ormonde, South Dummer, Brickley, Roseneath, Lakefield, Maple Leaf, Cherry Grove and Central Smith. All these accepted. Mr. Hodgson then got North Dummer for 8⅝c. and Mr. Cook Fraserville and Beaufort at 8⅝c.

This cleared the Board.

An Evening's Entertainment.

An enjoyable and successful entertainment was held last evening by the Ladies' Missionary Auxiliary of the Charlotte-st. church. Rev. S. J. Shorey occupied the chair. A programme of an interesting character was rendered. The opening number was an instrumental solo by Miss Rose Clarke, followed by a vocal solo by Miss Annie Brundrette and a reading by Miss Kennedy. Mrs. Taylor then read an excellent essay on women's work in missions, and Mrs. (Rev.) Locke followed with an earnest address on mission work. Mrs. Shorey rendered a delightful vocal solo, and Rev. Mr. Shorey closed the programme with a happy address of an appropriate character. Refreshments were then served and a pleasant time enjoyed socially. A business engagement prevented Mr. A. L. Davis being present to contribute to the programme.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by millions of mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa whether arising from teething or other causes Twenty-five cents a bottle.

The Ottawa Point of View.

The Ottawa Citizen of yesterday has a good telegraphic account of the visit of the Foot Guards to Peterborough. The Ottawa men appear to have been pleased with the site of the camp, as the telegram says:—"Disembarkation, which took place a short distance from the camping grounds, was quickly accomplished. A few townspeople and members of the 57th Battalion Peterborough Rangers were present and seemed well impressed with the appearance of their visitors and the sweet music of the band as they played the march to quarters. The camp ground is situated at Burnham's Point, a strip of land running into the lake, opposite the heart of the town, and is a beautiful spot for the purpose. There the men found their tents had already been pitched by members of the local battalion, and after the guard had been told off the men prepared for breakfast." Speaking of the service at St. John's on Sunday the report says:—"The 57th are an infantry regiment, red coated and wear the regulation infantry white helmet. Their uniforms are new, and the men being of good proportions and well drilled presented a fine appearance. The service was bright and interesting. It was conducted by Ven. Archdeacon Lauder, and Rev. J. C. Davidson, M.A., the rector, preached the sermon, his text being 'Fear God; Honor the King.' In the course of his remarks he said the 57th Battalion welcomed their brethren in arms from Ottawa, and hoped they would have nothing but pleasing recollections of the place. During the offertory the choir of the church sang very creditably the anthem, 'The Lord is Great in Zion.' Dr. Davies, formerly of Ottawa, presiding at the organ." The Citizen's report concludes as follows:—"The rest of the day was spent in sightseeing, all ranks of the 57th being very attentive to their visiting comrades. At ten o'clock the Guards embarked for home well satisfied with the result of the trip, and leaving behind many friends."

THE 24TH IN NORWOOD.

A Picnic in the Park—An Entertainment in the Evening.

The Queen's birthday has been the date of the annual picnic of the congregation of St. Paul's Roman Catholic church, of Norwood, for several years, and as usual the picnic was held this year on that day. The festal gathering was held on the park, and a large number passed through the gate during the day to participate in the pleasures going on within. A large number went from Peterborough to attend the picnic, among those present from town being Rev. Father Rudkins and Rev. Father Scollard.

The exhibition building, which in the fall of the year contains quantities of tempting fruit and other edibles to be viewed only, was adapted to the purposes of the dining hall, and delicate and substantial edibles loaded the tables and many enjoyed the feast provided by the ladies. Dinner and tea were served in the hall, and the tables were well patronized on both occasions.

Outside, in the angle formed by the L shaped building, a large platform had been erected for dancing, which was the principal amusement. A frame work was built over the platform and a covering stretched upon it to provide shade for the dancers. The orchestra, Butcher's orchestra from Peterborough, occupied an elevation at the east end of the platform and furnished good music for the merrymakers, while Mr. James Coughlin, of town, efficiently performed the duties of master of ceremonies. The platform was almost continuously occupied during the day and tripping the light fantastic toe enjoyed by large numbers.

An air gun afforded considerable entertainment and the marksmen who patronized it enjoyed the sport and entertained those who witnessed the tests of skill.

A list of sports was a part of the programme, but owing to an absence of competitors in several of the events it had to be curtailed.

The 100 yards boy's race was a spirited contest and a second trial was necessary to break a tie for second place. Wm. Londregan won the first prize and H. Stephenson the second.

The boy's boot race afforded, as it generally does, considerable amusement. Wm. Londregan was again the winner and H. R. Pearse won the second prize.

There were several competitors in the trial of strength by throwing the shoulder stone. F. Down, with a record of 26 feet 3 inches, took the first prize, and E. Fitz second, his record being 24 feet 10 inches.

A clock, for which tickets had been sold during the day, was drawn for in the evening, and was won by ticket No. 89, series A., held by Mr. T. H. Martin, of Peterborough.

The weather during the day was very pleasant. During the greater part of the day it was bright and clear, and in the afternoon the clouded sky shaded the heat of the sun and provided a general shade for the picnickers. The large crowd present enjoyed the different amusements, and the popular pastor of St. Paul's, Rev. Father Conway, moved about greeting the people, encouraging the amusements and seeing that all enjoyed the day.

An Evening Concert.

In the evening the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church gave a concert in the Town Hall, which was specially decorated for the occasion, to an appreciative audience. The chair was taken by Mr. W. H. Stephenson at 8 o'clock, when the following programme was carried out:—

Instrumental Solo	Miss Blanche Pearce
Duet	Misses Edith and Hattie McLachlan
Song	Miss Mary R. Stephenson
Reading	Mrs. T. H. Pearce
Duet	Mrs. Jones and Miss Cumming
Reading	Miss Lillie Ford
Song	Miss Edith McLachlan
Intermission.
Song	Master Willie Foster
Quartette	Mrs. Patterson, Mrs. Richardson, (Messrs. Jory and Trusco't.
Reading	Miss Lillie Scott
Song	Mr. Callender
Instrumental	Mr. Steer
Reading	Dr. Ford
Song (with violin obligato)	Mrs. Methle
Duet	Miss B. Roxburgh and Mr. F. (Roxburgh
Duet	Messrs. Callender and Jory
Instrumental	Mr. Steer

After a few remarks by the chairman, the entire audience joined in singing the National Anthem, Mr. Steer presiding at the piano.

The programme on the whole was exceedingly well rendered and spoke very highly for the musical and literary ability of the local talent. Especially noticeable was the playing of Mr. Steer and the singing of Mr. Callender. The concert was a most enjoyable one and financially was a success.

The piano used on the occasion was one made by the Karn Co., of which Mr. John Hendron is the agent.

A Protest.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR.—Peterborough Lodge No. 61, Sons of England Benevolent Society, in conjunction with the lodges at Campbellford, Lakefield and Lindsay, have arranged for an excursion via the Grand Trunk railway to Toronto on June 4th next, the proceeds, if any, of such excursion to be divided amongst the lodges named and to be used for such purposes as are consistent with the objects of benevolent societies. The Canadian Pacific Railway Company has, however, seen fit to enter into competition with a benevolent society. They first tried, we have reason to believe, to arrange with another society in Peterborough to run an excursion in opposition to the above, but failing in that they are now advertising an excursion on their own account on the same date. We are the first to suffer, so far as we can ascertain, by this policy of the C.P.R. competing with benevolent societies, but it is to be presumed that the company will continue this policy with the result that no society will go to the trouble and expense of running excursions to competitive points.

If this were a matter of competition between the two railway companies we would have nothing to say, but when a wealthy corporation like the Canadian Pacific railway competes with a local society lodge, we think we are justified in appealing to the members of all other societies in town, who are liable to similar treatment at any time, to assist us on June 4th and also to join us in this protest against the action of the C.P.Ry., and at the same time to ask the citizens of Peterborough on the same date to show their appreciation of the conduct of that company by assisting us in this most unequal contest that has been forced on us by our big competitor.

Yours truly,

A. E. DIXON,

Rec. Sec. Peterborough Lodge, No. 61.

Indigestion

Is not only a distressing complaint, of itself, but, by causing the blood to become depraved and the system enfeebled, is the parent of innumerable maladies. That Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best cure for Indigestion, even when complicated with Liver Complaint, is proved by the following testimony from Mrs. Joseph Lake, of Brockway Centre, Mich.:—

"Liver complaint and indigestion made my life a burden and came near ending my existence. For more than four years I suffered untold agony, was reduced almost to a skeleton, and hardly had strength to drag myself about. All kinds of food distressed me, and only the most delicate could be digested at all. Within the time mentioned several physicians treated me without giving relief. Nothing that I took seemed to do any permanent good until I commenced the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which has produced wonderful results. Soon after commencing to take the Sarsaparilla I could see an improvement in my condition. My appetite began to return and with it came the ability to digest all the food taken, my strength improved each day, and after a few months of faithful attention to your directions, I found myself a well woman, able to attend to all household duties. The medicine has given me a new lease of life."

MADE A TARGET OF HIM.

An Obstreperous Lodger Shot by His Landlady's Son.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., May 26.—Cameron Bowen, 19 years of age, came home last night about 11 o'clock and found his mother Emily Bowen, aged 45, and a lodger by the name of William Harris both drunk. Young Bowen ordered Harris to leave the house. He refused and abused young Bowen, who drew a small revolver and fired two shots in rapid succession at Harris. The first grazed the skin on the back part of the neck, the second took effect, entering the flesh about half an inch above the nape of the neck, passing out, inflicting only a flesh wound. Young Bowen then left the house and handed himself over to the Ontario police.

FELL TO DEATH.

A Hamilton Man Killed While at Work Yesterday.

HAMILTON, May 26.—A terrible and fatal accident occurred at the West-avenue school this morning. John Silk, a plumber, and his assistant, Thomas Cazalia, were at work repairing the bell. The belfry is at the front of the building over the main entrance. Silk was working at the bell and missed his hold and fell backwards. He alighted on his head and shoulders on the ground, falling a distance of 35 or 40 feet. His head was crushed in and his skull fractured. A large pool of blood marked the spot where he fell. The ambulance was sent for, and the wounded man was conveyed to the hospital, but he lived only ten minutes. Silk was a married man about 25 years old.

CATTLE EXPORTERS EXCITED.

Many Toronto Shippers Who are Interested in the Matter.

MONTREAL, May 26.—No further tidings have been received here regarding the seizure of the Lake Huron's cattle at Liverpool and cattle exporters are anxiously waiting details. It seems that 310 head of cattle by the Mongolian, which arrived at Liverpool yesterday, were also seized. The following are the shippers interested: Aikens & Flanagan, E. Watson, J. Eibott, T. Crawford and M. Goldsmith. The shippers on the Mongolian were: J. Dunn, Gordon, R. Ironsides. About 375 head are cattle from Manitoba. Dr. McEachran, the Government Inspector, ridicules the idea that there is any pleuro pneumonia in Canada and that the cattle are infected with the dread disease.

The deputation representing the steamship agents and cattle shippers will go to Ottawa to-morrow to urge the Government to intercede with the Imperial authorities to prevent the proposed legislation prohibiting the carrying of cattle on the spar decks of steamers.

DEATH IN THE PLAYTHING.

An Exploding Celluloid Ball Sets Fire to a Girl's Clothing.

BORDENTOWN, N.J., May 26.—Annie, the 17-year-old daughter of Nathan Atkins of Tuckerton, was so badly burned by a peculiar accident yesterday that her life is despaired of. While standing near the kitchen range drying her hands a celluloid ball—such as is made for children to play with—suddenly exploded and set fire to her clothing. In an instant she was enveloped in flames. Her screams brought her mother to her assistance, and she put out the flames by wrapping a rag carpet about her.

OPENED FIRE ON HIM.

An Ex-Convict Tackles the Wrong Man and Will Lose an Arm.

WINDSOR, May 26.—About a year ago James Pillon, of McGregor got drunk and assaulted a neighbor, John Donnelly, with a loaded whipstock. He was sent to the Central Prison for six months. One of the witnesses against him at the trial was Michael Connolly, station agent at McGregor. Yesterday Pillon meeting Connolly charged him with sending him to Toronto. Hot words followed which ended in Pillon attacking Connolly with a club. Connolly was getting considerably the worst of the deal when he pulled his revolver and shot Pillon, the charge taking effect in his right forearm. It is thought he will lose the arm. Connolly was not arrested, nor is it likely he will be.

Escaped from Jail.

OTTAWA, May 26.—Two prisoners named Edward Johnson, aged 40, waiting trial for embezzlement, and James McGinnis, aged 23, charged with a criminal assault at Aylmer, Que., yesterday climbed over the corner wall in the jail yard and escaped.

Fell From a 3-Story Window.

ST. CATHARINES, May 26.—At 12.30 to-day a girl named McInerney, employed at the Welland House, while engaged in cleaning windows, fell from the third story of the building. Dr. [illegible] was called and found [illegible] fracture of one leg and [illegible]. The fall was fully 35 fe[illegible] her escape from instant death w[illegible].

Historian Fyffe Committed For Trial.

LONDON, May 26.—C. E. F. Fyffe, the historian, who is again charged at Croydon Police Court to-day with indecent assault upon a lad. Fyffe, it will be remembered, was so overwhelmed with the charge brought against him that he attempted suicide by cutting his throat. Fyffe was brought to court to-day in an ambulance. Many prominent people were present during his examination. He was committed for trial.

[illegible] Observe Their Sabbath.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 26.—M. de Pobedonostzeff, chief of the Holy Synod, has submitted to the council of the empire an ordinance forbidding Hebrews to observe the Hebrew Sabbath by closing their business places or by refraining from work, and compelling the Hebrews instead to close their places of business Sundays and upon other days which are observed by the orthodox Greek church.

Forced to Return.

BERLIN, May 26.—The military at Spandau have just forced 150 penniless Russian emigrants, who were journeying to the coast with the intention of embarking for Brazil to return to Russia.

Kitty is Free Now.

LONDON, May 26.—The decree of divorce obtained by Captain O'Shea from his wife, Mrs. Kitty O'Shea, on account of alleged adultery with Mr. Parnell was to-day made absolute.

Struck by the Pilot.

ST. CATHARINES, May 26.—R. Hunniford and his brother-in-law, Joseph Fleming of Toronto, were crossing the track of the N.C.R. at the gravel pit, when Fleming was struck with the cow-catcher of a train and thrown about ten feet off the track. Miraculous to state, he escaped with some severe injuries to his back.

A New English Anthem.

With great-grandchildren, too,
She blest has been.
We've been their sureties,
Paid them gratuities,
Pensions, annuities,
God save the Queen.

Quick Change.

"Hullo, Cadley," said Bronson, entering the restaurant, "how are you?"

"Pretty well."

"What are you doing now?"

"Well, when I came in here two hours ago I was not in business; but I've changed some since; I'm a waiter just now."—Harper's Bazar.

A Lucky Poet.

The following letter shows how a young gentleman made money by publishing a book of poems. The publisher wrote immediately after the book was published:

"DEAR SIR:—Your whole edition has gone off, leaving a balance of £20 in your favor. Check inclosed. P. S.—There was a fire in the warehouse and the contents were insured."

Coming Events Cast Their Shadows.

Johnnie Chaffie—I know whose coming to-night.

Miss Chaffie—Who?

"Jim."

"How do you know?"

"I saw you take his photograph out of the album and put it on the mantlepiece, and you put Fred's out of sight until Saturday evenings."—Texas Siftings.

An Afflicted Widow.

A young lawyer, Major Gassaway, has been in the habit of visiting the Widow Flapjack about four evenings in the week. This has been going on for some time, but the lawyer has not proposed. Mrs. Peterby was talking with the Widow Flapjack about this very lawyer. She said:

"What a splendid education he has! He seems to be at home on every subject. There's nothing he cannot explain."

"Except his object in calling on me," replied the widow with a sigh.

Considered Themselves Irresistible.

Patsy the Tramp—Say, cull, I've got a new scheme.

Birdy the Tough—Naw. What is it?

Patsy—See this yer paper. It says that when girls are in love they don't eat much. See!

Birdy—Well?

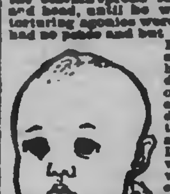
Patsy—Well—we contracts with a boarding-house to get all the girls stuck on us. See! We gets our board, and the house saves money on the girls' faded appetites. See!

Birdy—Say, there wouldn't be no difficulty in gettin' the girls mashed on us, would there?

Patsy—Naw!

ON FIRE WITH ECZEMA.

Terrible Sufferings of Little Baby. Seven Doctors and Two Hospitals Fail. Cured by Cuticura.



My baby boy, 5 months old, broke out with eczema. The itching and burning was intense; the eczema spread to his limbs, breast, face and head, until he was nearly covered; his torturing agonies were pitiable to behold; he had no peace and but little rest night or day. He was under treatment at different times at two hospitals and by seven doctors in this city without the least benefit; every prescription of the doctors was faithfully tried, but he grew worse all the time. For months I expended about $5 per week for medicines, and was entirely discouraged. I purchased CUTICURA, CUTICURA SOAP and CUTICURA RESOLVENT and followed the directions to the letter. Relief was immediate, his sufferings were eased, and rest and sleep permitted. He steadily improved and in nine weeks time was entirely cured, and has now as clear a skin and is as fair a boy as any mother could wish to see. I recommend every mother to use it for every Baby Humor.

3 PRACTICAL POINTS

One of the most successful German physicians gave as the secret of his wonderful success these three important points:—

1. Keep the Head Cool.
2. Keep the Bowels Open.
3. Keep the Feet Warm.

These conditions are not so easily obtained as one would think. Why? Because without pure and healthy blood a vigorous circulation cannot be kept up, and because the food and occupation of most people tends to clog up the bowels and produce constipation. The success of B. B. B., like that of the German physician, lies in so purifying the blood and regulating the bowels, liver and stomach, that these three conditions are fulfilled easily, and disease can find no lodgment in the body.

THE BEST SPRING MEDICINE.

B B B

This medicine does purify the blood and cure all diseases arising from impure or unhealthy blood. It does regulate the entire system and cure constipation, dyspepsia, biliousness, sick headache, scrofula, skin diseases, rheumatism, and all disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. EVERY day makes more apparent the fact that the town is going ahead rapidly. Numerous changes have taken place in the way of the ownership of property. Many workingmen are buying houses and lots or lots on which to build. One of the most suitable locations is that known as the [illegible] property, at the west end, owned largely by Mr. Wm. Property in this neighbourhood is rapidly being built up, and it will be well to have a look at the situation if one is at all disposed to buy. The terms are very favorable and especially low for cash, though payment on time may be arranged.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

MEASURES TO CHECK FOREIGN IMMIGRATION.

Sir William Vernon Harcourt Criticises the Government—Chancellor Goschen States that the Barings Received No Assistance From His Department.

LONDON, May 27.—In the House of Commons this evening Sir William Harcourt, on the second reading of the budget, severely scored Mr. Goschen's policy as subversive of the recognized principles of English finance. The House had been told that free education would absorb over £1,000,000, but not how the money would be applied. Borrowing from future revenues for naval expenditures was destructive of sound finance and in violation of the principle that the year's expenditures should be met from the year's revenue.

Mr. Harcourt inquired as to the Government's intents regarding the coinage of gold and what part the Government took in the Baring guaranty.

Mr. Goschen replied that the Government had a precedent as to its course as to naval expenditure in the course of the Liberals when in power regarding army localization. The Admiralty dealt with a vast amount of ship building, extending over years, and although the work had been and was being arranged for this year, it was necessary to treat the estimates as extending beyond the year. The Government, although much pressed, had undertaken no part in the Baring guaranty, directly or indirectly. The pre-Victoria gold coin, with light gold withdrawn from circulation, was less than the estimated issue of gold coinage, and therefore not a burden to the treasury.

Octavius Morgan, member of Parliament for Battersea, gave notice that on Thursday he will ask the government whether it is not advisable to adopt measures to check foreign immigration. He will suggest the adoption of legislation on the lines of that which has been found necessary in the United States, Canada and Australia.

NEWFOUNDLAND PETITIONS.

Mr. Goschen Consents To Hear a Deputation At the Bar of the House.

LONDON, May 27.—Alexander Staveley Hill, M.P. for Staffordshire, in the House of Commons to-day presented a petition from the Newfoundland Legislature praying that one of the Newfoundland delegates now in this country may be heard at the bar of the House of Commons in protest against the passage of the Knutsford bill, which is to come up again on Thursday. Mr. Hill gave notice that he would move to this effect on the second reading of the bill.

Mr. Goschen, Chancellor of the Exchequer, said the Government would assent to hear the Newfoundland delegate at the bar of the House. The Newfoundland bill will be heard on Friday. Mr. Goschen added that the bill before the Newfoundland Legislature was limited in its operations to one year, which the Imperial Government could not accept in view of its engagements with France.

France is Evidently Expecting that Long-Announced War.

PARIS, May 27.—The Chamber of Deputies to-day passed a bill providing for storing sufficient grain in every fortified town in France to feed all the civilians of such a town in time of war for two months.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

THE M'GREEVY-LANGEVIN SCANDAL BEFORE COMMITTEE.

The House Adjourns Until Saturday After a Four Hours' Session—Questions Respecting Election Promises to the City of Quebec—A Prohibition Delegation.

OTTAWA, May 27.—The House adjourned at 5.30 to-night until Friday (to-morrow being a holiday) after a quiet session at which a fair amount of pro priva work was done.

Mr. Tupper introduced an act to further amend the steamboat inspection act, and in doing so explained that it was for the purpose of exempting steamboats from re-inspection under certain circumstances.

A number of questions of more or less local interest were asked and answered, and some of general interest, amongst the latter being two with regard to alleged election promises that the Government would guarantee that a bridge should be built across the St. Lawrence at Quebec, and that the $1,000,000 debt of that city, on account of the North Shore Railway, would be cancelled.

Sir Hector Langevin, in reply, said that a survey for a bridge at Quebec had been made, but he could not say when the report would be brought down. With regard to the $1,000,000 loan, he said that the telegram purporting to have been sent by Sir John Macdonald was not complete as published, but he said a measure would be brought down with reference to North Shore bonds.

Mr. Tarte wished to know whether A. P. Perley was still Chief Engineer of the Quebec Harbor Commission, if not when he had resigned, etc., and was informed by Sir Hector Langevin that Mr. Perley had resigned on Jan. 15, 1891. He had held the position since 1884 and his successor was Mr. Boswell.

Three private bills respecting the River St. Clair Railway, Bridge & Tunnel Company, respecting the Canada and Michigan Tunnel Company, and respecting the Lake Temiscamingue Colonization Railway Company, passed through committee without amendment, were read a third time and passed. These are the first private bills sent to the Senate this session.

A number of motions for papers were passed and 16 private bills read a second time and referred to their several committees. This part of the day's proceedings was performed with great quickness, Speaker White getting through with 14 of them in 8½ minutes.

The Senate passed its first bill this session to-day. It was the Government measure reviving the modus vivendi this season. As already stated there is every reason to believe that His Excellency will assent to this bill shortly so that it might come into effect at once.

WANT PROHIBITION.

A Delegation of Clergymen Interview the Ministers.

OTTAWA, May 27.—A deputation representing the various Protestant denominations and temperance organizations waited on Hon. Mackenzie Bowell and Hon. George E. Foster to-day to urge the Government to support Mr. Jamieson's resolution in favor of prohibition and to prohibit the liquor-permit system in the Northwest. The visitors included Rev. Dr. Potts, Rev. Dr. Ryckman, Rev. Mr. Morrison and Mr. Ormiston. The visitors did not receive much encouragement. Hon. Mr. Bowell saw difficulties in the way of enforcing a prohibitory law. If the people wanted the liquor traffic suppressed both parties would unite in carrying out the general expression of the people. Hon. Mr. Foster dealt with the matter from the financial standpoint. How could the country, he asked, make up the deficit of seven and a half millions in revenue if the liquor traffic were suppressed! Although a prohibitionist he differed from others as to time and methods in carrying out such a policy. Prohibition, he added, would never be adopted unless it was generally desired by the people.

THE M'GREEVY SCANDAL.

A Batch of Letters Read Before the Privileges Committee.

OTTAWA, May 27.—The Privileges and Elections Committee met again to-day, there being a good attendance and Mr. Girouard in the chair. Mr. Roy, Secretary of the Department of Public Works and until recently Sir Hector Langevin's private secretary, was under examination. In reply to the first question put him he said that he knew nothing of the papers, as he was only secretary of the department since January last. "Then in whose custody are they?" asked Mr. Geoffrion, Mr. Tarte's counsel. "They are in mine," was the reply. Mr. Roy admitted that he was in charge of the papers, but took no part in getting them ready for the committee. Finally it was ascertained that the papers were really in the custody of the Deputy Minister, Mr. Gobeil, whom it was decided to call.

Robert McGreevy was next called and read the famous letters written by him to his brother, Hon. Thomas McGreevy, and which have already been published by Mr. Tarte. Some of the remarks caused quite a sensation—such as that warning his brother against a "pack of cut-throats." One dated May 30 implied influence enough with the Minister of Public Works to get any engineer for Esquimalt Harbor that they might desire. Another letter stated that "Sir Hector and myself will decide what is to be done in the future. He will adopt my views." This and several other letters were written on Public Works paper. In one of the letters Thomas McGreevy told of "getting the Minister" to give a contract to a firm who had not been the lowest tenderer, adding the names of the lowest tenderers. At this point a dispute arose as to the relevancy of a certain letter before it was read, and finally it was proposed to clear the room of strangers and first submit the letter to the committee. Mr. Tarte was satisfied if the "P.S." was only read, but many of the committee desired that it should all be read. Another letter was laid aside, despite the protest of Mr. Laurier, who declared that it was relevant to the investigation. Mr. Mulock held that to pursue such a course was to burk the inquiry. Sir John Thompson objected to the remark and said that it was only intended to postpone for the time being the reading of these letters and afterwards to decide whether or not they should be read.

The following are samples of how "Uncle Thomas" professed to be able to run things:

OTTAWA, May [illegible]

Dear Brother,—I enclose you letter from [illegible]. You ought to ask him [illegible]. We don't want it. Telegraph him to [illegible] on receipt of my letter [illegible]. Tell [illegible] ere, that they have contract for [illegible] hospital. They were not the lowest, [illegible]. I got the Minister to give it to them.

Your [illegible] not reached [illegible] yet. Will look after it to-day. I will [illegible] and [illegible]

Tell me to-morrow if you can do so at once, and if not I will have to go down and look to it. Bradley told me he has sent to Larkin Connolly & Co. what they asked for by telegraph. [illegible] will be in Quebec Friday morning and will give the necessary authority required to make a beginning on the Baie Des Chaleur Railway in order to save the charter.

Yours truly, THOMAS MCGREEVY.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS CANADA,
OTTAWA, March 17, 1883.

DEAR ROBERT,—Nothing new since I wrote last. I hope Larkin will receive his letter authorizing him to go on with his grading around the hall. The total amount is $7500 levelling and grading. The matter is all settled, but he will have to wait until the money is voted for payment. I have had a long interview with Perley on harbor works and graving dock at British Columbia. Fleming was to have signed his report to-day on harbor works. It will be shown to me as soon as signed. I will see it to-morrow and Sir Hector and myself will decide what is to be done for the future. He will adopt my views. I will see you and Murphy about it before doing anything. It is a big thing for the future. I think the graving dock at British Columbia will be lengthened. They are now making estimates of it. I think he is going to put another $150,000 in estimates for it. Weather very cold. Yours truly,

THOMAS MCGREEVY.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS CANADA,
OTTAWA, March 17, 1883.

MY DEAR ROBERT,—Larkin and Murphy are here. Larkin has learned a good deal of what has been done. The estimate for February is through and amounts to over $25,000. That makes nearly $75,000 gone out within a month. They ought to be flush out there now. I sent you to-day the votes and proceedings about what Edgar asks about Baie Des Chaleurs. E. W. Pope sent for me to ask what answer he would give. I agreed that he should give the required information, but will state that I have notified him of my withdrawal from the directorate and severed my connection with the company. Other questions will follow. Pope told me that they had put in some answer which he has sent to the Minister of Justice. I will go and examine them to see what they have put in. Your letter received. I will attend to what you ask. THOMAS MCGREEVY.

P.S.—Murphy will not leave before to-morrow evening.

There was a little tilt between the lawyers as to the admission of some of the letters, and the committee had a short session with closed doors, and it is understood that it is decided that the letters should be admitted. The committee then adjourned until Friday, when Mr. Gobeil, Deputy Minister of Public Works, will be examined and also Pat Larkin and the two Connollys. The former is to be asked about some papers which are not amongst those laid before the committee by the Public Works Department, and the three letters to produce letters from Mr. McGreevy which they are supposed to hold. I understand that the intention is, if possible, to get all the documentary evidence before the committee on Friday and begin the taking of oral evidence next week.

THE MANITOBA SCHOOL ACT.

Its Constitutionality Under Discussion Before the Supreme Court.

OTTAWA, May 27.—In the Supreme Court to-day the appeal of Barrett v. City of Winnipeg was taken up, S. H. Blake opening on behalf of appellants. This is a case to test the constitutionality of the School Acts passed by the Province of Manitoba and which abolishes Separate Schools there. Mr. Blake commenced by pointing out that the legislation which was proposed by the Manitoba School Acts was to eliminate from the schools all Roman Catholic books and teachers and to make them exclusively Protestant schools. If Roman Catholics were to have schools they would require to maintain them at their own expense. To educate Roman Catholics under such circumstances was, to use the words of a certain judge, to make them skilled villains instead of educating them to take the part they ought in the country. For forty-five years Separate Schools existed in Manitoba and now it was intended to abolish them. Dealing with the constitutional aspect of the question, he claimed that by the Manitoba Act it was insisted that denominational schools should be preserved to the province, and that whatever law or practice existed prior to Confederation was to be continued afterwards. It was a dangerous thing to give knowledge without religion, as understood by this Church. Although the power to maintain these schools or tax Roman Catholics for their support was good, it was wholly unjust that people should be compelled to contribute funds for what their religious conviction to them was wrong and which they were never called on to pay before.

Mr. Ewart of Winnipeg followed for appellants, stating that it was quite right that the Legislature might have power to compel all parties to attend school, but it was wrong to compel anyone to attend a school which he conscientiously opposed. He contended that by the school acts the rights of a section of the people were prejudiced and accordingly were entitled to a remedy.

BY SMUGGLING OPERATION.

Out of Which the Opium Ring is Said to Have Made $1,200,000.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 27.—The yacht Halcyon, it is now stated, has succeeded in smuggling 100,000 pounds of opium into this country from China. The opium was transferred from the yacht to a small steamer, which, in turn, loaded the drug on a lumber schooner in Puget Sound. The duty on opium is $12 per pound, so that the opium ring have made a profit of $1,200,000 by the transaction. The owner of the Halcyon, Mr. Whaley, is in this city, while the yacht lies in Barclay Sound, B.C.

Suspected Train Robbers Caught.

BANGOR, Maine, May 27.—There were arrested at Costigan two men, George Orman and Samuel Julian, hailing from Nova Scotia, for alleged participation in Monday night's attack on the Maine Central train at Enfield. They are evidently tramps and disclaim all knowledge of the affair. There are said to be four others in the gang and officers are after them.

Old School Presbyterians.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 27.—The sixty-second annual synod of the Reformed Presbyterian Church of North America began this morning in the Eighth-street church with 200 delegates present from all parts of the United States, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. This synod is that branch of the Reformed Presbyterian Church known as the old school, and the same question will come before this synod that caused the split in [illegible]. A MONTREAL MYSTERY

PARTLY SOLVED BY THE RECOVERY OF THE VICTIM'S BODY.

It is Now Believed That he was Decoyed to the River Bank, Murdered and Robbed and Thrown Into the River—The Police Investigating all the Circumstances.

MONTREAL, May 27.—The mystery surrounding the disappearance of Daniel McClanaghan, the well-known Montreal hotel man, has been cleared up by the finding of his body in the Lachine Canal this afternoon. The body was much decomposed. On being searched there was found in the pockets a gold watch and part of a chain, 65 cents in silver, a bunch of keys, one of the deceased's business cards and an invoice. There was a bruise on the back of the head, evidently made with a blunt instrument. It is believed that the man was brought there, murdered, robbed and his body thrown into the water, where it has remained ever since. The deceased man disappeared on the evening of May 8, when he told his brother that he was going out on a little business. He had sold a horse during the day and it was known that he had at least $150 in his pocket. He was last seen on the Friday evening near the Canadian Pacific Railway station with two strangers by a policeman, who heard McClanaghan tell the two men that he would meet them at 7.30 that evening, to which the taller of the two men replied that they would rely on him. They then parted company, McClanaghan taking a car for the west end, while the others entered the C.P.R. station. That evening McClanaghan disappeared and so did the strangers, leaving a number of people they promised to buy horses from to hunt for them. The matter will be investigated.

EDMUND YATES' GOSSIP.

Lord Lansdowne's Resignation—Lord Stanley or Lord Lorne will Succeed Him.

NEW YORK, May 27.—In his cablegram to The Tribune from London Edmund Yates says: For some time there have been persistent rumors that Lord Lansdowne will soon retire from the post of Viceroy of India. I have inquired into the matter and find that at present there is no official sanction for the report. I gather, however, from what I have heard, that his withdrawal, probably as soon as the Manipur and Miranzai troubles are over, is far from improbable. It has been an open secret that ever since his appointment in 1888 he has found that the climate does not agree with his health. If he desires to resign, this and this only will be the reason. The two most probable successors to the office, worth, by the way, some £4000 a year, are said to be Lord Lorne and Lord Stanley of Preston. I fancy that in case of a vacancy the latter has the better chance.

SIR CHARLES WILL GO.

To the International Postal Convention at Vienna—Tupper Banqueted.

LONDON, May 27.—Sir Charles Tupper leaves to-morrow for Vienna to attend the International Postal Congress as Canadian delegate. He has received full instructions from Ottawa. To-night a complimentary banquet will be tendered to Sir Charles in acknowledgment of his services during the elections in Canada.

The adhesion of Australia to the postal union put another obstacle in the way of Imperial penny postage.

The Tupper Banquet.

LONDON, May 27.—At the banquet to Sir Charles Tupper to-night the company numbered about 70. Lord Brabourne, the chairman, was supported by the Lord Mayor, Lord Norton, Osborne Morgan, M.P., Baden-Powell, M.P., Edward Watkin, M.P., Staveley Hill, M.P., and several other members of Parliament. Mr. Harvey of Newfoundland and some other colonial notabilities were also present. The Duke of Fyfe, Lord Rosebery and the Marquis of Hartington were among those who apologized for their absence. The chairman, in giving the toast of the Canadian Government, coupled with Sir Charles Tupper's health, combatted the criticism that the affair was a party gathering by declaring that men of all parties were present, whose creed was "to maintain English supremacy, to unite English hearts all over the world, and to hand down their glorious heritage an undivided empire."

Sir Charles Tupper in reply spoke for over an hour. He sketched his own political career, dealing specially with Confederation, the National Policy and the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway, following for the most part very familiar lines. He urged strongly the need for a fast Atlantic service. Referring to the recent election at great length, he said the dissolution was due to Sir John Macdonald's desire to test Canadian feeling on the issue of no discrimination against England in promoting reciprocity with the United States. Annexation, he claimed, would be the inevitable result of the Liberal policy. Hence the question was of vital importance to this country and the empire generally. It was the duty of men of all parties here to support the Government of the Dominion. He again renewed his attack on the Grand Trunk Railway, repeating many of the points brought out in the recent controversy.

Died of Yellow Fever.

ST. JOHN, N.B., May 27.—The Norwegian bark Capella arrived at quarantine here to-day. When the medical officer boarded her the vessel was found in charge of the second mate, who reported, on March 28 Captain Thorvse was taken ill with yellow fever and died on April 6. The first mate died of the same disease three days after. Both were married and belonged to Christiania.

Goodwin is Missing.

OTTAWA, May 27.—George Goodwin, who was to have been tried to-day for horse-stealing, did not put in an appearance. A warrant was issued for his arrest. Goodwin recently figured prominently in connection with the murder of Richard Langford at the Carp.

Killed by "Leap Frog."

ASBURY PARK, N.J., May 27.—Bert Hewlett, aged 15 years, died this afternoon from injuries received while playing "leap frog" at school here yesterday. He was a son of Thomas Hewlett of New York.

HAMILTON, May 27.—This morning George Batten, who works at Gartshore's foundry, fell down the hoist, a distance of 25 feet, and the contents of the car fell on top of him. He broke his spine and was [illegible] injured about the chest. He was taken to the hospital.

THURSDAY, MAY 28, 1891.

THE POPULAR VOTE.

A RETURN of the votes cast in the last general election, which has been submitted to Parliament, disposes of the allegations of the Liberals that they were handicapped by a gerrymander of the constituencies, for the popular majority in every province but one was with the Government. Even in Quebec, from which the Liberals obtained a small majority in the House, gave a popular majority for the Conservatives. The following table gives the total majorities in each province:—

	Conservative.	Liberal.
Ontario	734	....
Quebec	3,858	....
Nova Scotia	4,441	....
New Brunswick	6,769	....
Prince Edward Island	....	857
Manitoba	1,427	....
British Columbia	3,499	....
Northwest territories	3,173	....
	[illegible]	857

THE Liberals had better have a care, or there continued attacks on Sir Charles Tupper may bring him back to the House and they are sufficiently overmatched now without the war horse of Cumberland.

As the Liberals were unable to defeat the Government on an appeal to the people, the Globe now asks the Governor-General to refuse to accept the advice of the Government and thus dismiss them. But this appeal, a very odd one from a so-called Liberal source, will be as unsuccessful as the other.

THE STORY OF HIS LIFE.

A Temperance Lecture by Rev. Samuel Small, D. D., of Atlanta.

Rev. Dr. Small, or Sam Small, as the evangelist is generally called, was greeted by a large audience last evening when he delivered a lecture in the Opera House under the auspices of the Epworth League of the Charlotte-st. Methodist church. Dr. Small is a man of medium height and somewhat slight built and with an intelligent face adorned with a heavy mustache. He speaks with fluency and clearness, although his voice is a little harsh. His descriptions of his struggles with his besetting sin were graphic and striking, his references to his family very effecting and at times he was eloquent in his appeal to the audience. He tells a story well and his stories always have a point, but he wasted several minutes of denunciation humor on medical colleges such as abound on Uncle Sam's domains but have no abiding place on this side of the line. He was frequently applauded during the delivery of his lecture.

Rev. Mr. Houck, of Bridgenorth, presided and introduced the lecturer with a few well chosen sentences.

The subject of Dr. Small's lecture was "The Story of My Life, or From Barroom to Pulpit," an account of his experiences as a man once a slave of the drinking customs and who had secured his freedom. He described, in eloquent terms, his early teaching and training by an affectionate mother. After receiving his education, he entered the honorable profession of the law and secured a good standing in it. He found that the customs of those whom he met, of brilliant men and men in positions and honor, were such as he had been taught to shun, but he thought that when such men saw no wrong or danger in them that there could not be much danger in indulging in the pleasures of the world, and, despite warnings thrown across his path and depending upon his strength to keep from falling, he joined in the pleasures. He drifted on, descending further and further, until he was no longer his own master and his appetites and passions had made him their slave. The craving for drink was the beginning and continuing cause of his trouble and he tried medicinal remedies to eradicate it, but from his experience and what he had since learned he declared that the medical man who said the appetite for drinking could be cured by medicine told a lie. It was a disease of the flesh and the spirit, and the only physician who could cure it was the Great Physician of Galilee. He was severe on the "medical mills" which ground out three crops of M. Ds. each year, which, however, was not applicable to Canada. His occupation of an official position at Washington and official appointment to Paris, and his return to Atlanta were referred to, but he sank lower, all human means for reformation being of no avail. One day, in a sober interval, he took his children, as a matter of curiosity, to hear Rev. Sam Jones, and was impressed with the preacher's words. Two days later, after a debauch, he went to God for succor, was rescued and saved, and from that week he had not had one pang of the appetite that had controlled him. He appealed to all to aid in bringing about the prohibition of the liquor traffic, and closed with an eloquent peroration descriptive of the happy condition of the world that would ensue.

A vote of thanks was tendered the lecturer and acknowledged, and the audience dispersed after singing the National Anthem.

BRIDGENORTH.

The Anniversary Tea of the Methodist Church —A Pleasant Gathering.

Correspondence of the Review.

The anniversary tea of the Bridgenorth Methodist church was held on Monday last, the anniversary of the birth of our Queen. Donne's beautiful park, adjoining the more famous Chemong Park, was the scene of the pleasant gathering. An evening tea meeting in the open air is not a frequent occurrence, but the idea is a good one, as has been demonstrated on this and former occasions. The tables had been provided with an ample supply of toothsome edibles, and tea was served by the ladies to upwards of three hundred persons. After tea, about six o'clock, a platform meeting was held, at which Dr. Goldsmith presided, and able and interesting addresses were given by Rev. F. Johnston, of Lakefield, Rev. Mr. Grant, of Lakefield, and Rev. J. B. Clarke, of Norwood. The choir of the church was in attendance and gave several admirable selections. Rev. D. S. Houck, the popular pastor, was present of course, and was unceasing in his successful efforts to make all enjoy themselves. The tea was a very successful one in every way, and the proceeds amounted to about $60.

A Business-Like Conversation.

"Good morning (shaking hands) Mr. Ross; I did not expect to meet you quite so soon, as I was informed your illness was very severe." "So it was Mr. Palmer, but my wife acted as my physician, and that I have no doubt accounts for my quick restoration to health." "This is perfectly astonishing, Mr. Ross: only three weeks ago you were used-up looking, pale and nervous, and a fit subject for a six month's lease of a sick bed. How has this been accomplished?"

"Simply, Mr. Palmer, owing to my common sense, or rather good luck in having taken my wife's advice. She insisted upon my taking a time of rest, and using Paine's Celery Compound and nothing else. I have been a willing and obedient subject, and you see the result. I feel as strong as ever before, and can now indulge in hard work, to make up for lost time. I am now a strong advocate of this great scientific preparation, and honestly feel that I can always recommend it."

The gentlemen parted, and each went his way, Mr. Palmer feeling that he had learned something that might possibly be of use in the future.

A Pleasant Herb Drink—A Spring Medicine.

The druggists tell us that the people call daily for the new cure for constipation and sick-headache discovered by Dr. Silas Lane. It sell at 50c and $1 a package and is called Lane's Family Medicine.

Live within your income. How to do this is the vital question. Two courses are open, increase income or curtail expenditure. It's about as hard to cut down expenses as to increase income. The first meeting of the Court of Revision on the Rolls of the town for 1891 was held at the Council Chamber on Tuesday evening. Councillor Moore, Chairman and Councillors Hall, Davidson and Dennistoun were present. The appeals numbered 83, none of them being of extra importance. The main changes asked for were small reductions and changes of ownership, while of course, several persons appeared regarding dogs and three of them were struck from the rolls. The appeals disposed of numbered 22, four being withdrawn. The total reductions made amounted only to $3,300 The Court adjourned to meet on Wednesday, June 3rd, in the Council Chamber.

THE BRADBURN-CARTON CASE.

The Story of the Occurrence Told by Mr. Bradburn—Evidence not Completed.

There was quite an audience at the Police Court this morning, the Bradburn-Carton case being the attraction. As stated yesterday Mr. Carton had to plead to a charge of assaulting, beating and ill-treating Mr. Thos. Bradburn and Mr. Bradburn had to answer to a similar offence alleged to have been committed on Mr. Carton. Mr. R. E. Wood, County Crown Attorney, appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. E. B. Edwards for the defence.

Some argument took place at the commencement as to whether the two charges would be tried at once, that is, if the evidence would only be taken once. Mr. Wood objected and wanted the charge against Mr. Carton disposed of first. It was decided to do this. Both charges were read and Mr. Carton and Mr. Bradburn each pleaded not guilty.

MR. BRADBURN'S STORY.

The charge against Mr. Carton was proceeded with first.

Mr. BRADBURN was the first witness and he said:—Mr. Carton is a tenant of mine but is about leaving the premises. I went to examine the premises to see if they were in good repair and I took Mr. Graham with me. I had some talk with Mr. Carton as to what he should do before leaving. I found the shop in very bad repair. Mr. Carton said he would rather have me make the repairs and he would pay the bill. Mr. Graham was to make an estimate and I was to see Mr. Carton on the 26th and tell him what the repairs would cost. On the morning of the 26th I went in to tell Carton that I could not give him the estimate. As soon as I went in he passed me and shut the door and locked it. There was no one in the shop but the two of us. I asked him what he had locked the door for and he said, I want to see you inside, and we walked into the back room. As soon as we got inside he caught me by the collar and said "G— d— you, I have just got you where I have been trying to get you for some time. Now," he said, "a settlement you must make me before you leave here or I'll take your life." I asked him what settlement he wanted, and he said he wanted a clear receipt of everything and acceptance of the key on the 30th of May. I asked him to come into my office and he said, "You try to go out of here and

I'LL KNOCK YOUR BRAINS OUT."

He was holding me by the collar all this time. He went into the front shop to get a pen and ink and said to me, "Sit down on that chair and don't move, for I would just as soon knock your brains out as not." I asked what kind of a receipt he wanted and he said, "I'll tell you what to write." I wrote the receipt as he dictated it and signed it. He read over the receipt and then wrote three or four lines which he told me to sign as well. This was a promise to accept the keys on the 30th. In choking me back against the wall, he either kicked me or pushed me over boxes and that is the result (exhibiting his bruised leg). I signed the second paper and began to take a copy of the receipt, and he asked me what I was doing. I told him I wanted a copy of what I had signed, and he said, "Write another word and I'll knock your brains out." I got out of the office, got into the buggy and went up to Mr. Wood's office. I am over 70 years of age and his threats caused me to fear that I would be injured. There was no chance of my escape. The back part of the shop was boarded up and I could not go out through the glass, for I might as well have been murdered inside as be cut to pieces by the glass.

DOCUMENTS PRODUCED.

The witness was subjected to a long and close cross-examination by Mr. Edwards. Mr. Bradburn denied that he had signed the receipt voluntarily or that he had mentioned the sum of $25. He denied also that he had taken up a board and told Carton to give up the receipt or he would knock his brains out. His whole anxiety was to get out of the store. He had accepted a cheque from Mr. Carton and taken it away with him. He took the cheque because he had to. Mr. Carton did not go outside to see the number of the store when writing the receipt.

Mr. Edwards produced the receipts and read the same.

The first receipt was in Mr. Bradburn's handwriting and the second in Mr. Carton's They read as follows.—

I hereby agree to take $25 in full for all demands to date for rent and damage of shop now occupied by Mr. Carton. Peterborough, 26th May, 1891. Also I agree to take keys off his hands and consider this a full settlement.

T. BRADBURN.

I also further agree that his tenancy of this store be occupied No. 342, Peterborough, George-st., end on 30th of this month, May 26th, 1891.

T. BRADBURN.

This closed the evidence for the prosecution.

THE DEFENCE.

Mr. GEO. STEVENS was the first witness for the defence. His evidence was to show that Mr. Carton was in the habit of locking the door since he had stopped selling. He never put the key in his pocket.

Mr. GEO. CARTON, brother of the defendant, was called, but knew nothing of his brother's habit of locking the door.

HECTOR BAKER, a boy who had been employed at Mr. Carton's shop, also gave evidence in regard to locking the door, saying he was in the habit of locking it when persons came in. The back door, he said, was usually left unlocked.

Mr. JOHN GILES who has purchased Mr. Carton's stock and removed it to another store, testified that Mr. Carton had stopped selling since he purchased it and the front door had been locked.

Mr. Wood produced the cheque which was on the Bank of Toronto for $25 and had been marked good.

Mr. W. J. MINORE gave evidence of having seen Mr. Bradburn getting into his buggy after coming out of Mr. Carton's store. The witness got in and drove up street with him as far as Mr. Wood's office and noticed that he was less talkative than usual, being absorbed in thought.

Mr. GRAHAM also testified corroborating Mr. Bradburn's evidence in regard to the agreement as to the estimate of damages. Witness did not think $25 would make the necessary repairs. Mr. Carton, he said, told Mr. Bradburn that he would rather he would make the repairs which would not cost more than $500.

Mr. GILES said he had happened along on Tuesday morning and saw Mr. Carton, and another man of whom he took no notice, inside. He observed nothing unusual in their demeanor. Mr. Carton was between the man and the door and when he saw witness he motioned him to go away, as he interpreted it.

Some little argument followed as to the admission of Mr. Carton's evidence for the defence.

The Court adjourned until three o'clock to allow it to be heard.

Mr. Carton has entered an action against Mr. Bradburn for $2,000 damages for false imprisonment.

What It Costs

Must be carefully considered by the great majority of people in buying even necessities of life. Hood's Sarsaparilla commends itself with special force to the great middle classes, because it combines positive economy with great medicinal power. It is the only medicine of which can truly be said "100 Doses One Dollar," and a bottle taken according to directions will average to last month.

HOLDING UP OUR END.

THE CENTRAL BRIDGE WORKS PUSHING TO THE FRONT RANK.

More Bridge Contracts Taken—Toronto's Water Main a Success—A New Railway Device of Great Merit to be Manufactured Here.

Steel is king. For thirty years iron held the sceptor and was the approved material for use in the construction of bridges, viaducts and a similar class of engineering work. Then came the time for steel, and to-day it is supplanting iron for all purposes. The Central Bridge Works, Mr. W. H. Law proprietor, are to-day using nothing but steel in filling orders. Yesterday Mr. W. H. Law was apprised of the fact that tenders sent in for bridges for the Intercolonial Railway had been accepted. These will be taken in hand at once and pushed through.

At the works are being now constructed the steel pillars, girders and roof members for the extension and improvement of St. George's Cathedral at Kingston. The specification calls for a large quantity of intricate work, especially that designed to support the large dome, which will form a prominent feature of the building when the extension is completed.

A TORONTO CONTRACT FILLED.

Not only in bridge building does the Central Works excel. Last winter the works turned out for the Toronto waterworks an immense quantity of steel water pipe, 48 inches in diameter. The work was executed promptly. In order to allow of the pipe being laid from the surface of the bay a flexible joint was designed by Mr. Law and built at the works. Quite a number of these were required. Flexible joints had been constructed before for similar works, but nothing approaching the size indicated. The joints were exceedingly difficult to make, the conditions to be met requiring that they should be water-tight and yet moveable to allow of the great pipe being lowered to the bottom of the bay. In every particular they satisfied the conditions of the contract. A part of the distance across the bay and over the island is traversed by a pipe 5 feet in diameter. This pipe was made at Toronto, but the flexible joints to fit this pipe was made at the Central Bridge Works. Last week a test was made by experts of the pipe line to ascertain if any leakage of surrounding water into the pipe existed. Of this test the Empire says:

"Messrs. John Fenson and J. L. Clarke, who examined the new steel conduit under instructions from Superintendent Hamilton, have handed in their report, which is here summarized:—Three tests were made at the crib at Hanlan's point by pumping the water down to a level of three feet below the level of the lake, then carefully noting the time required to fill, marking the rise each half minute. The first test was made on the five-foot pipe, with the gate on the four-foot pipe closed. The second was made with the gate upon the four-foot pipe partly raised. The results were in these cases practically the same. The third test was with the four-foot pipe opened wider, and this was so nearly identical with the others that it was manifest that the leakage was in the five-foot pipe. The time occupied in making the test was 30 minutes, making the rise average one inch each minute. They then show that with the three engines pumping at the rate of 15,000,000 gallons per diem the water in the crib at Hanlan's would only be 1 foot 7 inches below the outside level. Thus in actual use the strain is much less than under the test. The leakage was found to be 34 gallons per minute, more than 19-20ths of which was in the five-foot pipe. The total area of leakage is equal to a circular orifice 2¾ inches in diameter. They suggest that another be made in a few weeks, and if there was then a diminution in the leakage it would show that the leaks consisted of small orifices, which would in time entirely close. They express their entire satisfaction with the four-foot pipe and believe that the five-foot pipe can easily be made equally satisfactory. Further, they believe there is no serious contamination of the water supply through leakage, as whatever income there may be is from the purer waters of the lake."

It will be noticed that the pipe and connections constructed by the Central Bridge Works is very favorably referred to and is practically satisfactory in every particular and that the Toronto built pipe is the delinquent and the hope expressed that it can "easily be made as satisfactory." It is safe to say that had it not been for the flexible joints designed and made by Mr. Law that the laying of this pipe would have been an impossibility, except at enormous expense and by cumbrous and difficult methods.

STEEL WATER PIPE FOR HOME USE.

The mains of the Peterborough Water Company are—as is the invariable practice—cast iron, largely of British manufacture. The weight and consequent cost of such pipe forms a large item in a water plant outlay. Some time ago Mr. Law sought to introduce here the manufacture of the new spiral steel pipe, manufactured and coming into use on the other side of the line. The project was not carried out, but remains to be yet developed. To meet the agreement with the Edison General Electric Company, the town required that a 10 inch main should be extended from the mains of the water company to the Edison Works. Mr. Law suggested the use of steel pipe instead of the cast iron article, and received the order for 3,000 feet which is now being made, in lengths of 30 feet. The pipe is 3-16 of an inch thick and will stand a very high pressure, and the additional advantage accrues from its use that joints will only require to be made in the trenches every fifty feet instead of every twelve feet as formerly. Nearly 1,400 feet is made and the balance will be finished in a short time.

A NEW RAILWAY APPLIANCE.

Just as long as railways cross the country and cattle run at large will a source of danger exist. Cattle reach the track from the road crossings much more frequently than they do from defective fences along the line. To prevent animals from reaching the track use is made of what is known as "cattle guards," a pit, lined with timber, one on each side of the road, with fences built up to the ends of the pit. To some extent this device is successful in restraining the nomadic habits of the rural cow, but then the pit is expensive to construct and requires frequent repairs. A new appliance has been designed by Mr. Law and the patent applied for. It is constructed of angle bars of steel laid horizontally together and locked by an ingenious but simple device. Four panels are comprised in one set, two lying between the rails and one on each side. The economy of the matter is apparent in that no pit with its lining of timber is required, and by this means a very great saving is effected, the new guard being simply spiked to the ties. Lying on the floor of the shops are four sets, made to order for the Grand Trunk Railway as an experimental lot. The resident engineer, Mr. Macklin, speaks very highly of the improvement, and others who have seen it are confident that it will revolutionize this detail of railway construction. It is a difficult matter for a man to walk across it, let alone a cow or horse, no matter how ambitious either may be to reach pastures new. Railways have signified their intention of investigating the new guard when placed in position, and several orders are sure to follow.

NINETEEN MEN AT ONCE.

The Modern Samson in Peterborough—Something About Him and His Wonderful Feats of Strength.

The strongest man in the world was in Peterborough last night and for the small sum of twenty-five cents some three hundred persons, or thereabouts, all of the male persuasion with the exception of a bare half dozen, witnessed some of his marvellous feats in lifting.

Louis Cyr is the name of the giant who is now known all over the civilized world having by his enormous lifts won for himself the title of the strongest man on earth or the modern Samson.

He is undoubtedly a wonderful man. Born in Canada in St. Johns, Que., in the year 1863, he is now only 27 years of age. He is a French Canadian and does not speak English fluently. In conversation he is cortεous, intelligent and good natured. In size he is a giant and in strength he is a veritable Samson. Whether like that Biblical character, his strength lies in his hair or not he did not state, but nevertheless he wears his shiny black hair long hanging down his back. He tips the scales at 318 lbs., measured 48 inches round the girth and 56½ inches round the chest. His head is large and his face full and fleshy. His limbs are of enormous size and his biceps measure 21 inches. His muscles, in fact the entire man, is as hard as a piece of iron. He told a reporter that he had never used tobacco or drank strong liquor. He appears in tights and his muscles stand out like hempen ropes when he is lifting his heavy weights.

His exhibition last evening did not include all of his feats, but he did sufficient to vindicate his claim to his title. For instance imagine one man lifting nineteen persons at one time, a total weight of 3,443 lbs. This he did as his closing feat. One who did not see it, can hardly realize what an enormous strength is required. He had a 245 lb dumbell which he put up with one hand with ease. He offered ten dollars to any man in the hall who would left this weight ten inches off the floor. Nearly every man in the hall tried to win the money but all failed. Then he had a 100 lb dumbell which he handled like a plaything and a 45 lb shot which he tossed liked an India rubber ball, catching it on his muscles from a high fall. With one hand he shouldered a barrel of flour, a weight of about 218 lbs. Another feat was performed with the town bill poster. He took Mr. Stocker with one hand and held him up at arms length and laid down on his back and rose again without Walter's feet or hands ever touching the ground. To show his steady nerve after these marvellous feats he gave most clever exhibitions of balancing. A chair, a whip, a plate, a silk hat, a clay pipe, a burning paper cone and a whisp of hay were balanced on his nose one after the other. Some people, he said, thought he was clumsy because of his size, but he dispelled all such suppositions by giving an exhibition of high jumping. He jumped a stick at a height of about four feet, and each time alighted with the softness of a child.

For his final great feat he had a plank platform resting on two trestles. Nineteen men were put on this platform and the giant got beneath it and lifted the total weight of 3,443 lbs and balanced it on his shoulders.

He was surrounded by a crowd after the performance who found much satisfaction in feeling his iron muscles and solid frame.

The Fire Brigade band were present and rendered several selections during the evening. The services of the band were generously given gratuitously to the Cricket Club under whose auspices the exhibition was given. Mr. Wm. Burdock also rendered several clever mouth organ selections.

COMMENCED OPERATIONS.

Officials of the Edison Company who are Here—Employees at Work.

The first operations in the manufacturing line at the Edison General Electric Company's works here were commenced yesterday. During the past few days a large number of the company's officials and employees have arrived here.

Mr. Langton, the General Superintendent, is here, and has charge of the entire manufacturing department. Mr. Martin still continues in control of the building operations. Col. Frances, the Canadian General Auditor, and his staff is also here.

Of the heads of the works department, Mr. Madgett, superintendent of the machine shop, and Mr. H. Nelson, superintendent of the wire department are here. There, about sixty employees of the company here at present and yesterday work was commenced on jobs which did not require power.

The building operations are being pushed with all possible speed and brick work on the second building will be commenced in a day or two.

Mr. W. G. Bain & Co. have been awarded the contract for roofing the two buildings which are now in course of erection and also for the plumbing work. This firm have also the contract for the roof, plumbing, etc., for the White Hotel on Charlotte-st.

The entering wedge of a complaint that may prove fatal is often a slight cold, which a dose or two of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral might have cured at the commencement. It would be well, therefore, to keep the remedy within reach at all times.

ART AND NATURE.

They both laughed, and then Mildred added more seriously: "But, Clement, it is fine."

"I am glad you like it," he said. "I don't care what they think; and, besides, what do these cads, who haven't seen any of my work, know of my work? Their praises annoy me. I doubt if some of them could tell a plaster cast from a marble cutting. They are ignoramuses in regard to art—the most of them," and Scott threw the sheet back over the statue, disgusted.

"They can't tell sculpturing when they see it," he went on. "Why, if I were to fix you up as the statue, I doubt even if they would discover the deception. And, by Jove, Mildred, I'll do it! I'll fix a box to look like marble, stand you in it, drape your shoulder and whiten your hair and face. With the use of some plaster of Paris we can make your breast seem to come directly out from the rough stone; and your arm—why, Mildred, we can take that off; you will be the real Venus of Milo, and I'll wager they won't see the deception. Are you willing, Mildred?" he asked, all excitement now.

"Do you think they would be deceived?" Mildred asked. "What a joke if they were," she went on, catching the spirit of his plans. "What a joke!"

And so it was decided. Scott sent the president of the Society of American Sculptors a favorable answer to his letter. He named the day and named the hour he should [illegible] friends, and [illegible] he said, they should have a peep at it. Mildred and himself at once began preparations for the exhibit, and long before the appointed day came they were in high glee over the prospects, for their private rehearsals had proven more than successful.

And then the trial and the end of it all came. It was a beautiful day about the 1st of June. The studio had been arranged with especial care for the occasion. There were bits of the sculptor's art about the room, some profiles in white against black plush upon the walls, and draperies hung in profusion.

At 2 o'clock the invited guests, artists, and journalists, about a dozen in number, arrived at the little Summer home of the Scotts on the hill. Clement received them and entertained them over cigars with the talk of men and things which usually interest such people. For a full hour they sat this way. He could see plainly that his guests were becoming impatient for something more exciting than talk, but still he kept them in the studio.

Some one called to see Scott. He excused himself and was gone some minutes. When he came back he was profuse in his apologies for his long absence, but he made up for the absence by unlocking the door which, as he said, led into his workroom.

It was a large room, totally unfurnished, into which he led them. The sunlight streamed in through open windows and fell in streaks across the stained floor. Near the centre of the room stood the half-finished statue, upon which his work had really been done. There were tools and chips of marble lying about the stone as though work had but just been suspended. Extending across the extreme end of the room hung a heavy, dark plush curtain.

"I suppose I should apologize, gentlemen," Clement began, "for bringing you here to see a work that is as yet so far from completion; still, since it is by your own request that you come, I hardly see what apology I can offer."

There was a chorus of "Pray, no apologies," and Scott went on, pointing to the statue in the centre of the room, "This is the first study of the work you have come to see, gentlemen; even it is quite incomplete—but still no apologies."

And, so saying, Scott went to the open windows, drew down the shades, and shut out the sunlight. There was an uncertain glimmer in the room, which he soon steadied by lighting some reflector lamps. Then he stopped a moment before the plush curtain.

"I almost fear to show you this work, it is so imperfect," he said.

There was no reply.

He waited a moment and it grew oppressively still. He stepped to the curtains, pushed them aside, looked at his work a moment, and then joined his guests. They stood in a group at the other end of the room.

There was not a sound, not an exclamation of surprise; hardly a breath.

There, before them, from what appeared to be a solid block of white marble, rose the magnificent head and full shapely bust of a goddess. It was indeed the Venus of Milo. The stone was placed so as to give but a profile view of the face, but the profile was divine. The left arm of the figure was broken quite off, while on the right side the work had not progressed far enough to disclose the broken member.

So strong was the contrast between finished and unfinished stone; so perfect, so human, the finished portion of the work seemed, that it was almost painful to see the rough, uncut edges of the marble press into the smooth surface of the finished breast. There was an expression about the face which seemed to say to those lookers-on, "When shall I ever be taken from this cold stone?" And because they could not answer that question they were silent.

The guests glanced from one to another, then hurriedly back again to the statue, lest it should have vanished before them.

Scott stood by the side of his stone study of the Venus and noted their astonishment. Still no one spoke.

He was growing fearful of what this silence might mean, and he ventured—

"Well, is it good?" His voice sounded queerly.

There was an audible whisper.

"Marvelous! Marvelous!" breathed the guests. They said no more.

It was enough. The silent spell had been broken: they had not detected the difference in clay.

And, drawing the curtain before the image of his heart, Clement Scott threw up the shades, letting a burst of blinding sunshine into the room.

That Fall the most noticeable work of art at the exhibition of the Society of American Sculptors was a study in marble of the Venus of Milo.

It was by Clement Scott.

And society, when it learned that this same Scott, whom the Winter before it had so petted, had gone to a little sea town to get him a wife, brought itself to be forgiving for once when it saw who that wife was. While the president of the sculptors said to Clement one day, as he studied the face of Mildred Boday:—

"Well, I see, my boy, there is a difference in clay."

CASH HARDWARE STORE.

On and after 1st April we shall do business on a Cash Basis.

To cover the inevitable losses attendant upon a credit business, (which accrue from amount of time spent in keeping accounts, collecting, bad debts, interest account, and in numerous other ways, larger margins of profit must be asked.

In these times cash buyers ask, expect and are entitled to close prices. A careful consideration of the subject convinces us that the time has come for a cash business [illegible] on smaller profits.

The only customers who may be put to inconvenience are those who have had long credit. In more ways than one it will be to their advantage to pay cash.

For convenience of our old customers who consider their accounts due when presented, we will call 30 days each and render all accounts the first of each month, and we wish to say that we will be happy to do business with them on these terms.

As the new departure is something of an experiment, what would be considered a close cash price will be made all through the stock. Not a few leaders only, but a general reduction in everything from the fourth flat to the cellar.

Our idea is to perform more than promised rather than promise more than can be fulfilled.

Our stock is large and varied, consisting of Builders', Contractors', Household, Mechanics', Painters', Shoemakers', Farm, Mill, Factory, Lumbermen's, Sporting, Threshers', Cabinetmakers', and other lines of Hardware.

BUY NOW IF AT ALL.

EVERY day makes more apparent the fact that the town is going ahead rapidly. Numerous changes have taken place in the way of the ownership of property. Many workingmen are buying houses and lots or lots on which to build. One of the most suitable locations is that known as the Erin property, at the west end, owned largely by Mr. Wm. Fitzgerald. This week he has closed the sale of a very desirable new house and lot, and has several eligible lots on this property to dispose of. Property in this neighborhood is rapidly being built up, and it will be well to have a look at the situation if one is at all disposed to buy. The terms are very favorable, and especially low for cash, though payment on time may be arranged.

SIR JOHN IS VERY ILL.

WILL NOT LEAD HIS PARTY IN THE HOUSE THIS SESSION.

Consultation of Physicians at Earnscliffe—They Enjoin Positive and Complete Rest and Entire Freedom from Public Business—A Trip to England.

OTTAWA, May 28.—Very exaggerated and alarming accounts of Sir John's health were sent to American papers last night and cabled to England. The result has been that to-day there has been a constant stream of telegrams asking for information about the Premier. Fortunately the state of Sir John's health is by no means as alarming as has been represented and there is no truth whatever in the stories that he has been stricken with paralysis or that he is suffering from congestion of the lungs. The state of the case is simply this: Ever since Sir John overworked himself during the elections he has been subject to attacks of exhaustion, which have made his friends feel that he was over-exerting himself, and made them anxious that he should refrain from departmental and other work for awhile. These attacks have been slight, and he has quickly recovered from them and appeared to be in his usual health. On Friday he was in the House and appeared in exceptionally good spirits, and on Saturday night he had a dinner party at Earnscliffe, at which he seemed quite well. On Monday he was suffering slightly from a cold and remained in the House Tuesday and Wednesday, feeling a little weak, but able to attend to business. Yesterday his weakness increased somewhat and his attending physician, Dr. R. W. Powell, advised that a consultation be held with two specialists. Sir John agreed to this and in consequence Doctors Ross and Stewart of Montreal were telegraphed for and came up this morning. This afternoon the consultation was held and after a long and careful examination this bulletin was issued:

EARNSCLIFFE, May 28.

Sir John Macdonald has had a return of his attack of physical and nervous exhaustion and we have enjoined positively complete rest for the present and entire freedom from public business.

Signed { R. W. POWELL, M.D.
GEORGE ROSS, M.D.
JAMES STEWART, M.D.

In view of this medical opinion it may be taken for granted that Sir John will not again attempt to conduct the business of the House this session, although he may pay it an occasional visit, but will leave the affairs of the Government in the able hands of the Ministers of Justice and Finance.

There is absolutely no truth whatever in the story that Sir Charles Tupper has been cabled to come over nor in the story that Sir John will resign the premiership. He will simply abstain from work and let his lieutenants act for him. So soon as he has recovered his strength sufficiently it is most probable that he will take a trip to England, as a sea voyage always greatly benefits him, and with this and absolute rest and freedom from worry for a while it is hoped that he will become thoroughly recuperated and be enabled to resume his old place in the House when Parliament meets for next session.

MIDNIGHT—Dr. Powell has just returned from Earnscliffe and reports the patient's condition as fairly satisfactory.

SIGHT WEDDED TO SOUND.

THE LATEST INVENTION OF THE WIZARD EDISON.

The Phonograph and the Camera United to Produce a Living Picture—Over 80,000 Photographs May be Taken Each Hour.

NEW YORK, May 26.—From the laboratory of the Wizard of Menlo Park there is coming an invention which out-Edisons Edison. It is the marriage of the phonograph with the camera—the union in one instrument of sound and sight. With it the opera can be carried into the parlor and the artists can not only be heard, but seen. The popular preacher, the eminent public speaker, with it can all be brought to the home. The new wonder will be called the "kinetograph," a strange sounding title to the ear to-day, but destined perhaps soon to become as familiar as locomotive or telephone, both strange words in their infancy. Mr. Edison has been at work on this newest conception of his genius for three years. Now he knows that its base principle is right, all that remains to be done is to perfect the details. The new invention is a combination machine, in which the phonograph and the photographic camera work together. It will reproduce not only sound, but also a picture o what passes before it. Not a mere instantaneous impression of objects, but a continuous representation of them for a considerable space of time.

Mr. Edison claims it will reproduce an opera. The phonograph will render the music and the photographic apparatus will reproduce the performers so that their presence on the stage will be depicted, every muscle of their faces will be seen to work, strides, movements, all will be true to nature. In other words, the camera will give a continuous picture of the singer on the stage for say thirty minutes, all his motions and gestures, while its ally, the phonograph, will record every note he utters.

To produce this result it was necessary for the inventor to be able to take a series of instantaneous photographs, following each other in such quick succession that no lapse of time can be detected between the impressions recorded, and the series of pictures become in effect but one continuous picture.

And this Mr. Edison has succeeded in doing. Operated by an electric motor, his camera will take forty-six impressions in each second of time, and in this way the impressions are recorded so rapidly that the motions become resolved into pure motion, instead of a series of jerks. The impressions are recorded on a long roll of gelatine paper fastened to a spindle, which passes over a photographic lens.

This is how Mr. Edison himself describes the wonder:—"The machine starts, moves, uncloses, stops, takes a photograph, closes, starts, uncloses, stops, takes another and so on, and forty-six of these are recorded every second."

And this process can be kept up for 30 minutes without a pause. So 2760 photographs can be taken each minute and 82,800 every half hour. Thus the full representation of any an opera, the movement on the stage, and music can be recorded by this [illegible]

As Large As Life.

Mr. Edison has no doubt that he will live to see an opera recorded and reproduced by the Kinetograph. Said he:

"I take, for example, a dress rehearsal of 'Ermine.'

I will place my machine on a table in front of the stage. The two agencies, the phonograph and the Kinetograph, will work together in harmony and with a continuous capacity of 30 minutes. Both will start as the curtain rises. The phonograph will record the music, while the Kinetograph will record the motion of the performers at the rate of 46 impressions per second. This will give a continuous picture of what is going on on the stage. Afterward the photographic slips will be developed, replaced in the machine and a projecting lens will be substituted for the photograph lens. Then the reproducing part of the phonograph will be adjusted, and by means of a calcium light the whole effect can be reproduced at life-size on a white curtain in front of an audience. The original scene will appear to their eyes as true as life. They will see the singers before them and all their movements and gestures will appear as if they were actually on the stage. The colors will not appear, but otherwise you will see and hear the opera as you see it at the Casino. The machine is, in fact, merely a mechanical eye."

Mr. Edison has not yet a perfected machine at work. He does not expect to have a perfect one for some time yet. He has an experimental one rigged up in his workshop, covered by a wooden box. It is a regular photographic machine propelled by an electric motor. In the top of the box was a hole about the size of a silver dollar. The machine was started and I looked through the orifice. What I saw was the form of a man about an inch in size bowing and raising his hat. The motions were natural and continuous and no break could be detected between them. The picture I saw was only a negative, photographed on an endless slip. At the greatest rate of speed no gap could be noticed between the bows. They came along smoothly and naturally. But when the speed was decreased to twenty and thirty pictures per second the difference was at once noticeable. The motions became jerky and irregular.

They Can Be Duplicated.

Once set going to any power the camera works automatically. It is the great speed attained and the great number of impressions obtained in a limited space of time which, Mr. Edison says, enables him to get the pure motion or continuous photograph depicting everything that occurs.

The vibrations of light and motion are gotten rid of. The two machines, the phonograph and kinetograph, must work simultaneously and exactly together or the result would not be a success.

After the impressions are recorded any number of duplicates can be struck off, and when perfected this machine could be operated in any household. The time will come when they may be erected in hotels, and a nickel dropped in a slot will enable one to hear and see Patti sing one of her gems. Nor need it be confined to operas. It will reproduce anything that can be photographed and the phonograph will attend to the sound. It can be applied to the ring and a whole prize fight or sparring exhibition, with the motions, blows and talk, can be reproduced before an audience.

The Wizard says it is very simple. "I wrote an article some years ago," he said, "hinting at this very invention. The papers made fun of me—said I had better stop talking. This made me mad, and I determined to carry the conception to a successful issue. I felt confident that I could do it. The only trouble about it was to take the impression fast enough, so as to secure pure motion. This I have done. I intend to have it ready and in practical working shape for the Chicago Exposition.

"Do I expect to make money out of it? Well, I have never thought of that. I have worked it out for amusement; it has been a pet hobby of mine."

And the greatest inventor of his age looked quite content with the result of his labor.

HIS FATHER PRAISED.

The Governor-General Hears a Tribute to His Sire's Worth.

MONTREAL, May 28.—At the meeting of the Royal Society to-day an interesting incident took place. On the occasion of the visit of the Governor-General to the French section Mr. Benjamin Sulte, the well-known historian, was expressing the joy this section of the Royal Society felt at the visit of His Excellency, when he related the following fact, recently discovered by him: In the year 1840, a number of French-Canadian exiles to Australia, patriots of 1837-38, who had been reprieved, were on their way home, and in their haste to reach Canada, as they had not waited for the funds voted and provided for their voyage, they found themselves friendless and penniless in the London docks. In their bereavement great was their joy when an unknown gentleman approached them and, after ascertaining the facts and the circumstances in which they were placed, at once gave his own check for the amount necessary to take them safely home. This stranger, added Mr. Sulte, was none other than the father of Lord Stanley, the present Governor-General of Canada.

The Governor-General was deeply interested in the incident. Lord Stanley returned to Ottawa to-day.

TORONTO TOPICS.

A Carpenter Killed—The Local Option Law.

TORONTO, May 28.—A number of men were engaged on the third story of a hardware house in Adelaide-street yesterday in hoisting a heavy timber beam 14 inches square and 12 feet long, when one of the jacks slipped, letting the beam fall some eight or ten feet. John Thurst, one of the carpenters on the job, seeing the jack moving, jumped to get clear, but stumbled and fell, the beam striking him on the side of the head, crushing it terribly and killing him on the spot.

Argument was commenced yesterday before the Court of Appeal on the questions referred by the Lieutenant-Governor in council regarding the constitutionality of the local option law passed by the Ontario Legislature in April, 1890. It was decided to conduct the case as an appeal by the Attorney-General from the decisions of Chief Justice Galt quashing the bylaws passed under the act by the municipalities of London West, South Norwich and Oaklands. Æ. Irving for the Government addressed the court in support of the validity of the Provincial Act. He cited a number of decisions in support of the validity of the act, and reviewed a long list of legal technicalities to show that a bylaw would not be inoperative through the omission of a penalty for its infraction, that being one of the counts on which the bylaws had been quashed by Chief Justice Galt.

Died While Unhitching His Horse.

SHELBURNE, May 28.—Robert McCormick, who lived on the east half lot 7, con. 3, Melancthon, left Shelburne for home about 9 o'clock in the evening, accompanied by his wife and two children. Arriving home he went to put the horse away. A few minutes later his wife looked out to see how he was getting along and she found him lying on the ground where he had unhitched the horse. He only lived about an hour.

Canadian Pacific's Route to Tacoma.

TACOMA, Wash., May 28.—The Canadian Pacific Railway has either leased or purchased outright the Bellingham Bay and British Columbia Railroad, extending between Sumas on the boundary line and New Whatcom. The Canadian Pacific steamship Premier will make daily trips between Tacoma and Whatcom.

Died of the Whipping.

PONTIAC, Mich., May 28.—Miss Jennie Webb, a school teacher, whipped Frank Cook, a pupil, severely a year ago. He went home with great welts all over him, was taken with paralysis and died. Miss Webb was held for trial before the Circuit Court and the case has been on for two weeks. After three hours' deliberation the jury returned a verdict of assault and battery.

The Socialist Must Go.

SCOTTDALE, Penn., May 28.—The 2000 Socialists in the Connellsville coke region who took an active part in the late strike must go. The superintendents of the coke companies have received rigid instructions to dispense with their services. When any of them apply for work they are told, "This company has no use for Anarchists." Some of the men have changed their names in the vain hope of obtaining employment. Sixty men have been discharged at Morrell for their conduct during the strike.

He Can be a Real Ghost Now.

WASHINGTON, Pa., May 28.—A burglar disguised as a ghost entered Farmer McGowan's house at an early hour yesterday morning. McGowan awakened and fired at the burglar. When daylight came the intruder was tracked by a trail of blood to the banks of a creek about a hundred yards from the house, where all trace of him was lost. He is supposed to have fallen into the creek and drowned.

Fell to His Death.

PENETANGUISHENE, Ont., May 28.—Albert Wallwin, aged 12, son of J. E. Wallwin of Midhurt, was riding on a load of manure, when he overbalanced and pitched forward headforemost under the wagon wheel and broke his neck. His death was instantaneous.

A Pioneer's Sudden Call.

AYLMER, May 28.—Edward McConnell, 74 years of age, one of the pioneers of the 1st concession of Malahide, had just disposed of some cattle and returned to the house when he dropped dead.

Died in the Garden.

RICHMOND HILL, May 24.—Miss Lock, who resided on the homestead near Headford with her sisters and her brother George, walked out into the garden and expired in a few moments. Heart trouble was the immediate cause, but she had been in delicate health for some time previous.

SUDDENLY CALLED.

An Elder Drops Dead at the Session of the Presbyterian Assembly.

DETROIT, May 28.—At this afternoon's session of the Presbyterian General Assembly, just as Judge S. M. Breckenridge of St. Louis, Mo., an elder, finished speaking on the Briggs case he turned towards the clerk's desk, gasped and fell to the floor insensible. He was carried to the ante-room and Doctor Yemans attended him but in a few moments he was dead. The assembly at once adjourned and instead of the banquet in the evening a prayer meeting was held in the church. The judge was in his usual health a few moments before the end.

EARLDOM OF BERKELEY.

A LEGAL FIGHT AS TO WHO IS HEIR.

Did the Fifth Earl Marry His Domestic?—The Czar's Visit to Moscow Postponed—Berlin Journalists and Executions—An Atrocious Young Scoundrel.

LONDON, May 28.—The committee for privileges of the House of Lords to-day heard evidence in the claim made by Randal Mowbray Thomas Berkeley, commonly known as Viscount Dursley, to the earldom of Berkeley in opposition to Baron Fitzhardinge, Francis William Fitzhardinge Berkeley. Counsel on behalf of Baron Fitzhardinge said the fifth Earl of Berkeley tried to seduce a servant girl named Mary Cole and that failing in this attempt he secretly married her and then conspired with the Chaplain who performed the ceremony to destroy the proof of the marriage. The claim depends upon whether the fifth Earl of Berkeley did or did not marry Mary Cole previous to the birth of her eldest son. Great interest is taken in the case, all the available space in the hall where the hearing took place being occupied by people curious to hear the evidence. Among those present were a number of peeresses.

Archbishop Croke Says Recent Developments Have Killed the Cause.

DUBLIN, May 28.—Archbishop Croke said to-day: "I am greatly afraid the cause of Home Rule is lost. Within the last four months I have heard several staunch intelligent Irishmen say that, considering all that has occurred since the revelations were made in the O'Shea divorce case and the strange turn some of the Irish party and a certain section of our people have taken, preferring the interest of one man to the cause of their country, we have given both friends and foes to believe that we are at present utterly unfit for Home Rule."

The French Visit a Fiasco.

MOSCOW, May 28.—The French expedition here has proved to be a complete fiasco. French priests intending to visit the exposition are not allowed to cross the frontier without first obtaining a special permit to secure which two months time are required. Novels by Moupassant, Lemonnier and Sylvestre have been confiscated and all the visitors to the show are narrowly watched by police.

A Shocking Telephone Experience.

LONDON, May 28.—Mr. Weller, an employe of the London telephone office, while conversing over the telephone yesterday received such a shock on placing one of the receivers to his ear that he was thrown out of the telephone box. The officials state that there have been a number of similar cases recently. Experts are enquiring into the cause.

Another British Victory.

LISBON, May 28.—A despatch from Lourenso Marques, South Africa, says: Another fight has taken place between the British and the Portuguese. The scene of the encounter was on the banks of the Bembe River. The Portuguese were defeated.

Berlin Journalists and Executions.

BERLIN, May 28.—Berlin journalists are complaining that the authorities do not give an equal opportunity to all newspapers to be represented at public executions, and that the notices sent to the press are deliberately inaccurate, some favored papers, however, getting timely notice. It is also alleged that while the headsman does his work with neatness and dispatch, there is a good deal of useless severity in the preliminaries. The present Kaiser is not using the pardoning power with much liberality, having signed nearly a score of warrants since the beginning of the year. He gives, however, personal attention to petitions, which his predecessors did not, usually leaving such matters to the Minister of Justice.

Purify Your Blood

The importance of keeping the blood in a pure condition is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is heredited and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing more conclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

THE TARTE CHARGES.

THE conduct of the Liberal press and of members of the party in Parliament shows that they are determined at all hazards to injure Sir Hector Langevin through the charges Mr. Tarte has made, without reference to what the evidence may disclose. The repeated bringing up of the matter in the House, after it had been referred to the committee for investigation, was a piece of acting, so that charges could be repeated and the changes rung on them in the hope that the talk would have an effect that evidence would not entirely remove. The department was denounced for not bringing down papers, although the committee was not then to meet for several days, and although the papers went back for several years and time would necessarily be occupied in collecting them for presentation to the committee. Insinuations were made that have not been borne out, and all this was done, not to forward the enquiry or to bring out facts, but in an endeavor to prejudice the case before the public. The accused, however, although stating that he has papers in his possession, will not produce the documents until it suits his own convenience. The Globe has already found Sir Hector guilty of various crimes, without any evidence at all, and grinds out columns to assist the others in their work of trying to influence the public before the investigation is held. All this shows an unseemly desire on the part of the Liberals to make political capital only out of the matter and that they will take any unfair means of doing so, but the people will be prepared to give all connected with the charges at least the British fair play of being permitted to meet the charges, and of being held innocent until they are shown to be guilty.

SIR RICHARD CARTWRIGHT'S valor in attacking Sir Charles Tupper in Ottawa when Sir Charles is on the other side of the ocean is on a par with his bravery in attacking a man with one leg at long range.

THE Opposition is developing its policy of obstruction in a way that bodes ill for a business-like session of Parliament. They consumed a whole day on Tuesday talking over three items in the estimates and in the end allowed them to pass without a vote. The only point they gained was the obstruction of business and the consequent expense to the country.

A Bit of Philosophy.

Live within your income. How to do this is the vital question. Two courses are open, increase income or curtail expenditure. It's about as hard to cut down expenses as to increase income. However, amidst the general perplexity which the situation calls up there is the re-assuring thought that no matter how things go, one way to save is to buy your teas at hawleys', where prices are at the bottom notch and qualities on top of the heap. If you need to save buy your teas at hawleys', george-st., the famous tea man. d113

Died in Manitoba—A Narrow Escape and Accident—Notes.

Correspondence of the Review.

OBITUARY.—We are sorry to announce to the readers of the REVIEW the death of Mr. David Truscott, who died in Manitoba on Sunday, May 10th. He was formerly a resident here and was highly esteemed by all who knew him. He was also a prominent member of the Centreville Agricultural Society at one time. His numerous friends will regret to hear of his demise.

ILL.—We learn that Mr. Thompson Huggins is very sick with inflammation of the lungs. We wish him speedy recovery.

ABSENT.—Mr. Walter Bryce, teacher of S. S. No. 5, left for the Teacher's Convention at Bowmanville on Thursday, May 21st.

HAIRBREADTH ESCAPE.—Mr. John Mouncey had a narrow escape lately. While working on his farm his horses made efforts to run away and succeeded in dragging Mr. Mouncey within a hair's breadth of a harrow reared up against the fence with the sharp ends of the teeth outwards. We are glad he escaped what might have been a dreadful affair.

HORSE SICK.—Mr. Robert Stewart has a horse very sick with erysipelas. It is under the care of Dr. Fisher, Bailieboro. Mr. Stewart removed the animal to Mr. W. T. Donaldson's for treatment.

SOMETHING NEW.—We notice many of the farmers have taken a new mode of transporting flour, throwing aside wagons and democrats and taking the fashionable buggy.

ACCIDENT.—Mr. W. T. Donaldson, Cavan, had a strange accident lately. He was in Millbrook on business and somehow his horse escaped and while trying the runaway system upturned the buggy five or six times and finally damaged the harness so badly that Mr. Donaldson had to procure a new set. We learn the buggy was none the worse after its numerous summersaults.

GONE TO THE OLD COUNTRY.—Mr. Sidney Pickup, employed by Mr. W. T. Donaldson, left for London, Eng., on Friday, 22nd May.

CHILDREN'S DAY.—Sunday, May 24th, being children's day in the Presbyterian church the Rev. Mr. Andrews preached a sermon to the united Sunday schools. The Methodist Sunday school were present by invitation.

PRESENTATION.—At the Sunday afternoon service in the Methodist church Mr. W. T. Mather, on behalf of the Keene Methodist Sunday school, presented the Rev. Mr. Macfarlane with a fine large Oxford Bible. Rev. Mr. Macfarlane was taken by surprise, but accepted the gift with thanks. The service closed with "God Save the Queen."

QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION.—Monday, May 25th, was observed as a general holiday here. A number of flags were floating in the breeze. A few went to Idyl Wyld, others to Peterborough, but the most of those who went away were at the picnic in Nelson's Grove near Lang P.O.

IMPROVEMENTS.—A large number of places here are being fixed up with fences, &c. Our telephone and telegraph will soon be in working order.

COURT OF REVISION.—At the Township Court of Revision a large number of appeals were decided. The dog tax was removed and permission to incorporate was given to the Peterborough City Electric Railway.

ACCIDENT.—On Monday evening the steamer Daisy, going down the river, broke her shaft and after about two hours the Pearl came to her assistance and towed her to Idyl Wyld for the night.

The Kola Nut.

The kola nut has been highly recommended as a substitute for both tea and coffee. It possesses stimulating properties, but has almost no tannin. It grows in Brazil, the West Indies and Africa. If bits of the nut are chewed they produce in a short time an effect similar to intoxication, though not followed by the evil result of a "drunk."

The entering wedge of a complaint that may prove fatal is often a slight cold, which a dose or two of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral might have cured at the commencement. It would be well, therefore, to keep the remedy within reach at all times.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS.

Two Hundred Visitors.

Grand Secretary Lawless, of the Good Templars, was in town yesterday making arrangements for the meeting of the Grand Lodge of the Order which goes into session here on the 23rd of June next. The meeting of the grand body will bring some two hundred delegates to Peterborough. The business will occupy probably three days.

Oh, What a Cough.

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease consumption. Ask yourself if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. d16-w4-6m

Where is James [illegible]son ?

Chief Roszel has received a letter from Mr. E. H. Ross, of West Liberty, Iowa, who is anxious to obtain information as to the whereabouts of a man by the name of James Williamson, who came to Peterborough about the 4th of May. He was heard from once when he wrote on a paper with J. D. Baptie's letter head on the top. He is 27 years of age, stands 5 feet 7 or 8 inches, has red hair, blue eyes, red moustache, very fair and wears his hair pompadour. He was a book-keeper or grocery clerk. Any information regarding this man will be gratefully received by Chief Roszel.

A Dyspepsia has driven to an early and even suicidal grave many a man, who, if he had tried the virtues of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, would be alive to-day and in the enjoyment of health and competence. Sufferer be warned in season, and don't allow the system to run down.

The Sons of Scotland Instituted.

Another secret society was instituted in Peterborough last evening when a lodge of the Sons of Scotland was organized. The new branch comes into existence under the most promising circumstances, with twenty-five charter members. It is open to Scotchmen or their descendants and has for its object benevolence and mutual improvement. The lodge was instituted by Grand Secretary Banks. Grand Chief Winfield was prevented from being present by the illness of his wife, but in two weeks the Grand officers intend to visit Peterborough and confer the higher degrees. The following are the officers of the new lodge:

Past Chief	G. H. Noble
Chief	Dr. Caldwell
Chieftain	Jas. Munroe
Rec.-Sec	W. J. Minore
Fin.-Sec	M. B. Kidd
Treasurer	Chas. Brown
Marshall	Wm. Hamilton
Inside Guard	Thos. Breckenridge
Outside Guard	J. Gemmell

A Trial Run of the Firemen.

Inspector Forsythe, of the Underwriters' Association, was in town yesterday and made an inspection of the fire apparatus, alarms, etc. In the evening about 8.15 a trial run was made. The Inspector, with Assist.-Chief Craig and Chief Roszel, walked up George to Antrim-st., and pulled the alarm at the box on that corner. It was a fair test, for not a person but the three gentlemen who planned it knew that such a test was to be made. In exactly seven minutes from the time the alarm was pulled, and just four minutes after the big bell struck, the hose waggon was at the box, a run of about three quarters of a mile. This was considered very good time, but it could have been better if a short wait had not taken place in an attempt to locate the fire before the team started. The Inspector was very well satisfied with the turn out. He intends to make a recommendation that the alarm bell be changed from where it is, either to some higher or some open place. He inspected several of the buildings which have been damaged by fire recently, and was satisfied with the evidence which he saw the of the efficiency of the fire department. He also wants the horses to be kept in the fire hall all the time, so as to prevent any delays in the day time.

For bracing up the nerves, purifying the blood and curing sick headache and dyspepsia, there is nothing equal to Hood's Sarsaparilla.

LADY PUPILS PERFORM.

Dr. Davies Evening Concert a Brilliant Exhibition of Vocal and Instrumental Musical Culture.

The Opera House was very well filled on Thursday evening by an audience drawn from the music loving portion of our citizens who gathered to hear a treat such as the programme prepared revealed. The occasion was made the opportunity by Dr. Davies to, in some measure, in a public way exhibit the proficiency obtained by a number of his more advanced lady pupils, in both vocal and instrumental music. The programme was supported by the contributions of Mr. Arlidge, the popular flautist. The programme, which we print below, give the names of the soloists and performers. The choir had the assistance of several gentlemen, adding to the force and vigor of the selections.

The singing of the choir (without accompaniment) was particularly fine, and the attention to the details of the score showed that a ground work of careful tuition and instruction had been made in the course of practice and rehearsal. Miss Davidson's solo was a carefully rendered and pleasing contribution. Mrs. J. E. McIntyre sang her aria clearly, and with force and effect in the most difficult passages. Mrs. W. J. Morrow surprised the many friends who are aware of her ability as a pianiste. Her first selection was admirably rendered, the graduation of tone from light to strong, the bright and brilliant touch meriting the hearty encore which it received. Her second number was even more distinctly artistic, and the technical difficulties such as call for marked excellence to successfully deal with. Mrs. Morrow was again encored.

Mr. Arlidge, a veritable master of the magic flute, charmed the audience with his magnificent playing in two selections and was deservedly encored. Miss Nellie Wrighton sang with confidence and ability her difficult number of the programme. Miss Edith Hall gave two of the most charming songs of the evening in her song by Jordan and the encore that followed. Miss Wrighton and Mr. Fred. Clarke in the piano and organ duet, afforded the opportunity of hearing the combined harmony of the two instruments, when played with artistic effect. Miss Ethel Rogers gave a nursery song in charming tune and melody, and was heartily encored and complied with the call. The duet by Miss Wrighton and Mrs. McIntyre was so well received that a [illegible] and not to be refused encore called the ladies back to treat the audience to a second rendition.

The finale of the programme was the National Anthem, with the solo taken by Mrs. Macklin. The audience stood while the entire anthem was rendered. The choir gave the chorus with force and spirit.

The accompaniments were played by Dr. Davies, and Mr. Fred. Clarke. The fine piano, the tone of which was much admired, was from the warerooms of Messrs. Jackson & Co., Aylmer-st.

Under a Cloud of Suspicion.

And it would seem that there are White Caps still in existence in this district, or at all events Mr. Wm. Carr, who lives at the locks, has been slightly excited by a communication he has received from the alleged head of the Order. He has brought this trouble on his head by his close proximity to the river. Fishery Inspector Breese fined a couple of young men for illegal fishing and suspicion fell on Mr. Carr, who was as innocent of poaching as an unborn babe. Here is the letter they sent him, and he now lives armed with a bayonet on the end of a stick ready for the fray, so White Caps beware:—

To Mr. Wm. Carr:

SIR,—We have been informed that you are acting for Mr. Breese as an informer against parties fishing at the locks in the hope of getting half of the fine. Now, we want to warn you that if anybody is fined through you, that you won't enjoy half the fine, for just as sure as your name is Wm. Carr we will take you out some night and put a rope around your old neck and give you a good ducking in the river, and remember we mean what we say and we will do it, so just take warning and stay in your house and mind your own business.

MR. CARTON FINED.

The Magistrate Listens to Very Contradictory Evidence, but Finds Him Guilty.—$20 and Costs.

At three o'clock yesterday afternoon the Bradburn-Carton assault case was resumed at the Police Court and the same interested crowd of spectators were on hand to listen to the remainder of the evidence. Mr. Carton was to give his evidence, and this he did, telling a story that was entirely different to that detailed by Mr. Bradburn on Wednesday.

MR. CARTON being sworn said:—I remember Mr. Bradburn coming to my shop on Tuesday last. I stopped doing business since the 1sth, when I sold out to Mr. Giles. I have been in the habit since of locking the door to keep people from bothering me. When Mr. Bradburn came in I turned the key in the door but did not take it out of the lock, and it remained there all the time Mr. Bradburn was in the shop. When he came in we walked around and took a look at the shop. I asked him to name the figure which he wanted and if it was not too much I would pay him and if I thought it was unreasonable I would not pay it but do the work myself. Mr. Bradburn walked around and noticed the back door, asking where the catch on the bottom of it was. I told him I would rather pay a little more and have a peaceable settlement. I said I thought $5 would fix up all the damage I had done. He said $40 would be more like it. I said, "Mr. Bradburn,

IF THAT'S YOUR GAME

you will have to collect it in some other way." After a good deal of talk he agreed to take the $25 if I would pay it by a cheque. We talked the thing over and I told him that I had always paid my rent promptly in advance and thought I was entitled to a fair settlement. He said "Carton, you have done us a good deal of good and I will settle." I then agreed to give the $25. Mr. Bradburn agreed to take it. When the most of the conservation took place we were walking around. Mr. Bradburn was sitting down on a chair when he was writing the receipt. The first part of the receipt was written by Mr. Bradburn himself and the last part after the date was written at my dictation. There was no objection or question on Mr. Bradburn's part when signing the receipt. After reading the receipt I did not feel safe and he said "write what you like." I wrote the second receipt he signed it. Every word in regard to the swearing was absolutely false. I am not in the habit of swearing or fighting. There was not a word of profane or violent language used by me. I did not threaten him. What was the necessity? I never used such an expression as I'll knock your brains out. Up to the signing of the receipt there was no violent language used on either sides. I never thought of kicking an old man like him. After the receipt was signed and I had given him the cheque I said "Well, Bradburn, I'm glad I've got that receipt, but I consider you have got $20 from me you have no right to, I think the glass is all I should pay for." He snatched at the receipt and said "what a fool I've been, I'll give you some trouble," and called me a Methodist pup and other names. I thought he was suffering from delirium tremens. He picked up a stick and told me to give him back the receipt. I picked up another stick and told him I did not scare worth a cent and told him to go out, that I did not want to strike an old man like him. He raised his stick and I believe that it would have struck me if it had come down. He went out swearing that he would put me to a good deal of trouble. He unlocked the door and walked out himself. The back door was closed but not locked.

A STRAIGHT CONTRADICTION.

MR. WOOD cross-examined the witness. Mr. Carton said everything was fairly pleasant up to the time the receipt was signed. He swore positively that Mr. Bradburn's story was a complete fabrication. Mr. Carton contradicted Mr. Bradburn's evidence in many particulars. He told his brother that he had had a satisfactory settlement, but in reply to a question said he did not remember telling Mr. Wylie that he had had a satisfactory settlement with Mr. Bradburn. He had paid $20 more than he thought was fair, just for peace and quietness. The assault he complained of against Mr. Bradburn consisted in that gentleman taking him by the arm, swearing at him and taking up a piece of board and threatening to murder him. He would not say that he did or did not tell Mr. Wylie that he had had a satisfactory settlement. He had spoken of the damages being $100 in Mr. Graham's presence merely in a joking, laughing way.

It was agreed to allow the court to decide the two cases of assault on the same evidence.

MR. B. M. WYLIE was called to give evidence in regard to his conversation with Mr. Carton. He said he had a conversation with Carton on Tuesday afternoon on George-st. He told the witness in answer to a question that he was getting his business straightened up, that he had a very satisfactory settlement with Mr. Bradburn who was well pleased that he had done such an amount of business in his store.

This closed the case.

MR. EDWARDS addressed the Court, reviewing the evidence and pointing to Mr. Bradburn's story as an improbable one and Mr. Carton's as the probable one. He asked that the charge against Mr. Carton be dismissed.

MR. WOOD addressed the Court for the prosecution, reciting and connecting several material points in the evidence which went to corroborate Mr. Bradburn's story.

THE MAGISTRATE said this was a peculiar case. Measuring it by the physical damage done he had called it a common assault in order to hear Mr. Carton's evidence. Having heard that story it did not follow that because it was contradictory to Mr. Bradburn's that the latter's was broken down. If Mr. Bradburn's story in itself was not contradicted of a very serious nature, compelling a man by threats to sign a document, no matter if it was only a receipt. It might have been a cheque for thousands of dollars. It was an act of a highwayman and in this country where they depended on law and liberty for protection it was a serious offence to impose on any man's liberty. Where there was a complete contradiction the question was, was Mr. Bradburn's evidence broken down? The Magistrate reviewed the evidence, citing the small circumstances and particulars which went to corroborate Mr. Bradburn's story. Among the strongest of these was the fact that Mr. Bradburn had stated that he had attempted to make a copy of the receipt, but had been stopped and there on the document that had been in Mr. Carton's possession was the the commencement of the copy "I agree." Then there was the fact that Mr. Bradburn had gone a few minutes afterwards to the Crown Attorney, placed all the papers in his hands and told the same story that he had in Court, a story which it was improbable he would concoct in a few minutes. He had to go by the weight of evidence and he thought there was a lot of improbability in the suggestion that Mr. Bradburn's story was made out of whole cloth when there were a number of little points which confirmed it. He must come to the conclusion that Mr. Bradburn's story was the true one, that Mr. Carton was guilty. Both men could not be guilty, and he dismissed the charge against Mr. Bradburn. In passing the sentence he said money was hardly adequate punishment, and he felt he was hardly doing his duty if he did not make it imprisonment. However, he fined him $20 and costs or one month in gaol.

MR. EDWARDS at once put in notice of appeal against the judgment.

The Celebration of the Queen's Birthday—The Cricket Club Organized—An Exciting Runaway—Other Notes.

Correspondence of the Review.

CRICKET.—At a meeting of the Lakefield Cricket Club, held in Mr. Clarin's shop on Tuesday, May 22nd, the following officers were elected:—President, Mr. R. C. Strickland; Vice-President, John Clairn; Captain, John Cooper. Managing Committee, W. A. Eastand, Robert Watson and Darcy E. Strickland. Practice nights, Monday and Thursday. Subscriptions, 50 cents; under 15, 25 cents. With the above staff of officers we have no doubt (but) that our club will show a good record for the season. Success.

STREET INSPECTION.—The members of the Village Council will commence their annual inspection of streets and sidewalks on Monday next.

COURT OF REVISION.—On Monday evening the Council met as a Court of Revision on the assessment roll for 1891. Present, Reeve Casement, Councillors Hull and Lillicrap. Mr. G. J. Blomfield (for Mr. A. I. Wright) appealed against the assessment of park lot 5, con. 7, containing 9½ acres. On motion of Councillor Hull, seconded by Councillor Lillicrap, the assessment was reduced from $1,900 to $1,800. On motion of Councillor Lillicrap, seconded by Councillor Hull, John Hull's name was struck off the roll for lot 16th, north Smith-st., and Mr. P. S. Carger assessed for the same. Reeve Casement, John Todd and Alex. Calder asked abatement of the dog tax, as they had each lost a dog since being assessed.—Allowed. On motion of Councillor Hull, seconded by Councillor Lillicrap, the assessment roll as revised and corrected was accepted and confirmed. The Council then adjourned.

THE QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY.—The village was very quiet during the day. A few flags could be seen floating out in the breeze in honor of Her Majesty's 72nd birthday. A great many of our citizens were attracted to Peterborough by train and vehicle to witness the turnout of the Governor-General's Foot Guards. Others again went over to Bridgenorth to the tea, while a great many took advantage of the day and went for a trip through the beautiful scenery of Stony Lake by the steamer Golden City. In the afternoon quite a stir could be seen around the P.C.A. Hall, where the ladies of the Presbyterian Church were making preparations for their tea. They had a large number partaking of the excellent fair provided. The tables were nicely decorated with flowers, cakes, &c., in great variety. After the inner man was satisfied the concert was opened with a short and pleasing address from the pastor, Rev. John McEwen, the subject being "Competition." The following programme was very creditably presented:—

Recitation...........Miss Clara F. McEwen

The National Anthem closed a very pleasant evening, which added very materially to the treasury of the Ladies' Aid Society.

R. T. of T.—The Royal Templars will meet next Monday evening in their new hall, at 8 o'clock.

RUNAWAY.—On Saturday last a fine spirited horse belonging to Rev. Mr. Grant, while tied in the P.C.A. hall shed, was frightened at the shunting of a freight train, broke loose and ran over two baby carriages which were near at hand, breaking them very badly. Fortunately the babies escaped unhurt. It then ran close to the fence near the P.C.A. hall, two wheels going over the fence, which stopped it suddenly. It then broke out of the harness, jumped the fence and started off down street and was caught in front of Messrs. R. Graham & Son's store. It was badly cut. We are glad the accident was no worse.

PERSONAL.—We are pleased to state that Mr. R. Q. Dench, although not able to work, is able to move about again.

PULPITS.—Rev. Mr. McLaughlan, of Uxbridge, occupied the pulpit of the Presbyterian Church here last Sabbath, the pastor, Rev. John McEwen, preaching at St. Andrew's Church, Peterborough.

SABBATH SCHOOL WORK.—Rev. J. McEwen, Mr. J. M. Roberts and others have been holding Sabbath School Conventions at the 16th Smith on Tuesday and Lakehurst on Wednesday. Afternoon and evening meetings were held at each place, all of which were fairly well attended.

L. O. L.—Beresford L. O. L. No. 122 will meet in the Orange Hall next Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

REVIEWS.

THE METHODIST MAGAZINE—(Toronto: William Briggs.)—Among the handsomely illustrated articles in the June number are Memories of Zurich, with sketch of the tragic fate of the great Swiss reformer, Ulrich Zwingle, by the Editor. In the Jura, by Algernon Blackwood, is a graphic description with pen and pencil of the romantic scenery of the Jura Range. A brief article, More about Barbara Heck, by President Cummings, is accompanied by an engraving of the view from her grave. Much prominence is given to the subject of Medical Missions by an article by the Rev. Dr. V. C. Hart, recently appointed chief of the projected Methodist Medical Mission to China. Dr. Hart has had many years' missionary experience in that country, recites the wonderful success of the Medical Missions, and makes an earnest appeal for this new departure of Methodist missions. The Rev. George Bond records the wonderful story of the solitary Methodist mission in Moab, planted by Mr. Lethaby, a Methodist layman, and appeals for a Methodist mission in Palestine. The outline of Sir Edwin Arnold's magnificent poem, The Light of the World, is given with copious extracts. A vivacious sketch of travel by Lady Kentore, Homeward from the Antipodes, will whet the appetite for a continuation of her papers. The most striking and touching dialect story ever published in this Magazine is Deacon Pheny's Selfish Natur', by Annie T. Slosson. Habberton's strongly-written and dramatic story of moral reform, All He Knew, grows in interest. Other articles of interest complete the thirty-third volume of this Magazine, which improves in character with every volume, if not with every number.

If you will send us your address, we will mail you our illustrated pamphlet explaining all about Dr. Dye's Celebrated Electro-Voltaic Belt and Appliances, and their charming effects upon the nervous debilitated system, and how they will quickly restore you to vigor, and manhood. Sick Headache

Is a complaint from which many suffer and few are entirely free. Its cause is indigestion and a sluggish liver, the cure for which is readily found in the use of Ayer's Pills.

"I have found that for sick headache, caused by a disordered condition of the stomach, Ayer's Pills are the most reliable remedy."—Samuel C. Bradburn, Worthington, Mass.

"After the use of Ayer's Pills for many years, in my practice and family, I am justified in saying that they are an excellent cathartic and liver medicine—sustaining all the claims made for them."—W. A. Westfall, M. D., V. P. Austin & N. W. Railway Co., Burnet, Texas.

"Ayer's Pills are the best medicine known to me for regulating the bowels, and for all diseases caused by a disordered stomach and liver. I suffered for over three years from headache, indigestion, and constipation. I had no appetite and was weak and nervous most of the time. By using three boxes of Ayer's Pills, and at the same time dieting myself, I was completely cured."—Philip Lockwood, Topeka, Kansas.

"I was troubled for years with indigestion, constipation, and headache. A few boxes of Ayer's Pills, used in small daily doses, restored me to health. They are prompt and effective."—W. H. Strout, Meadville, Pa.

THE BEHRING SEA.

An Announcement in the British House of Commons.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—The President this afternoon received a cipher despatch from Minister Lincoln at London saying that official notice had been given in the House of Commons that a bill would be introduced Monday to authorize the Queen to prohibit British subjects from taking seals in Behring Sea.

The question engaged the President's principal attention to-day and he had conferences on its various phases with Secretary Foster, Tracy, Proctor and acting Secretary Wharton. One point considered was the advisability of sending war vessels to Behring Sea to reinforce the revenue cutters in preventing the taking of seals in case a closed season is decided upon. This fleet would co-operate with the English warships now in those waters. It is understood the Secretary of the Navy reported that there are three naval vessels that could be prepared for this service without much delay.

The news was received with satisfaction at the State Department. Generally it is taken as an indication that the British Government is preparing to accept the condition imposed by the President as a preliminary to arbitration and cause the British vessels to refrain from sealing meantime. The fixed period for the cessation of sealing referred to by Mr. Goschen probably relates to the remainder of this season. During this time the arbitrators—for it is presumed the British Government's action carries with it an acceptance of the terms of arbitration held out by the President during the correspondence—will have an opportunity to reach an agreement.

LONDON, May 28.—Mr. Goschen, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in the House of Commons this afternoon gave notice that the Government would introduce a bill on Monday which would enable the Queen to prohibit British subjects from catching seals in Behring Sea for a period, the extent of which will be stated when the bill is brought forward.

To Be Prohibited for One Year.

LONDON, May 28.—It is understood the Behring Sea bill to be introduced in the House of Commons will totally prohibit the fishing for seals for a year.

No More Bait for Americans.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., May 28.—The reports of a French commander stopping the sale of bait to Americans are confirmed to-day. Steam launches from the French warships drove the boats from the sides of the American schooners. They also took up the nets of Newfoundland fishermen, pulling them ashore. The outrage is a great loss to the inhabitants and to American fishermen.

Last Year's Seal Catch.

OTTAWA, May 28.—The report on the fisheries of the Dominion has just been issued. The total value of the fisheries for the year 1890 is given as $17,714,902.23, as against $17,-[illegible].08 in 1889, showing an increase of $[illegible],646.23. This is exclusive of the quantity consumed by the Indian population of British Columbia, Manitoba and the North-west Territories, of which no accurate data are at hand, but which it is believed would increase the total value to fully $[illegible]. The total value of the marine fur fishery in Behring Sea and adjoining waters was $519,111, showing a total catch of [illegible] seals. The number of fur seals caught by foreign vessels and disposed of in Victoria was 2474, of which all but 294 were caught in Behring Sea. The total value of the Canadian seal catch has increased $177,031, owing to advance of $1 per skin and an increase of 11,181 skins in the catch.

The Knutsford Bill Will Not Pass.

LONDON, May 28.—The House of Commons having been informed of the passage by the Newfoundland Legislature of the Act to carry out treaty obligations, the Government to-day consented not to proceed with the second reading of the Knutsford bill.

DEATH AT A DANCE.

The Sad Fate of Pretty Kitty O'Brien of Hamilton Last Night.

HAMILTON, May 28.—A pretty young girl named Kitty O'Brien, aged 22, daughter of James O'Brien, bridge carpenter, 120 Young-street, went to a party at Mr. Horning's house in Glanford, accompanied by her sister and Charles Horning. They arrived at the house about 9.30, and the girls took off their wraps and went to the ballroom. Before they had commenced to dance Miss Kitty O'Brien complained of feeling ill and sat down on a chair. Almost immediately after she fell forward on her face on the floor before anyone could help her. Dr. Boyce was summoned, but before he arrived she was dead. He pronounced it a case of heart disease.

EVIDENTLY STRANGLED.

The Montreal Mystery Shows Every Indication of Having Been a Murder.

MONTREAL, May 28.—An autopsy was made to-day on the body of McClenaghan, the hotelman whose remains were found yesterday in the Lachine Canal, and who it is suspected was the victim of foul play. The autopsy went to show that the deceased met his death by strangulation, and the doctors will submit a detailed report to the coroner's jury, which will commence an investigation on Saturday.

TWO BOYS KILLED.

By the Explosion of a Boiler in a Waterloo Tile Yard.

ST. CLEMENTS, Ont., May 28.—The boiler in Reichert's tile yard at St. Clements exploded causing the death of two boys, one being killed instantly and the other dying within a few hours after the accident. The boy who was instantly killed is a son of Mr. J. Mickus, auctioneer of Heidelberg, and the other is the son of the proprietor of the tile-yard, Mr. Reichert.

NONE LEFT TO TELL THE TALE.

Loss of the Schooner Hume on Lake Michigan—No Trace of Her.

CHICAGO, May 28.—The schooner Thomas Hume is believed to have gone down in Lake Michigan with all on board, involving a loss of seven lives. Nothing has been seen of the craft since she left Chicago a week ago to-day. A terrific squall came up shortly after the Hume sailed. It is thought the catastrophe occurred within 20 miles of Chicago. The schooner was commanded by Capt. Albright's son.

WENT DOWN THE FLUE.

A Youth's Ingenious But Unsuccessful Attempt To Break Jail.

GALT, May 28.—A young lad named Mierab, in Berlin jail waiting transference to Mimico Industrial School, whither he had been sentenced for four years, made a determined attempt to escape. The room in which he was confined is heated by a hot air register from a furnace in the basement. The youthful prisoner pulled up the register and began a descent into the regions below. The first stage of the journey was accomplished by a straight drop of 15 feet through the hot-air pipe, after which he crawled through a couple of elbows, and then dropped the remainder of the trip—but not to the hoped-for liberty. He simply landed on top of the furnace, but still inside of the pipe. No doubt finding his quarters somewhat uncomfortable, he raised a racket sufficient to attract attention, and in order to release him from his "narrow cell" a large hole had to be cut in the pipe.

Piaget Gets off Easily.

SAN ANTONIO, May 28.—The case against L. Piaget, manager of Banker Sullivan's ranch, who skipped to Canada with $40,000 of his employer's money, has been compromised. Piaget has sent $15,000 to Sullivan and will not be further prosecuted. Louise Labrousche, who fled with Piaget, is still in jail here.

Death Preferred to Poverty.

NEW YORK, May 28.—William Breitkoff, aged 66, and his wife Mary, aged 71, committed suicide at their home here by taking oxalic acid. The faces of the suicides were horribly contorted. Poverty drove them to suicide. They were about to be dispossessed for nonpayment of rent.

Currants Killed Him.

BRACEBRIDGE, Ont., May 28.—James Hargart, aged 23, of Loring P.O., died at Mr. Hoffkiss' lumber camp, Restoule. His death was caused by eating too freely of currants, which brought on inflammation of the bowels. He only lived three days.

Quarantining Canadian Lambs.

MONTREAL, May 28.—The recent quarantine of Canadian lambs at Buffalo and other points west where they are shipped to the United States has been so severely felt that it is likely some effort will be made to have the quarantine removed. The American market has hitherto been practically the only one for Canadian lambs outside of the comparatively limited number taken for local consumption.

An Advance in Coal.

NEW YORK, May 28.—Sales agents of the [illegible] Coal Producing Company to-day ordered an advance of 15 cents per ton on all [illegible] June 1. They also decided to restrict production in June to 3,250,000 tons.

Fustle—"I thought the Boomtown people were in love with their new minister; I hear he is going to leave."

Hustle—Yes; but he told the people they were going to perdition; and we thought if outsiders got onto it, it would hurt the town."

A Striking Similarity.

Miss Sharpe—Your friend, Wooden, reminds me so much of the learned professions.

Bulfinch—Ah, he'll be glad to hear it; but in what way?

Miss Sharpe—Why, there is so much room at the top.

Preposterous.

Gay—"I feel like a new man to-day."

Bright—"Do you? Glad to hear it. Perhaps you can see your way clear to pay that little bill."

"Gay—"I'm a new man, I told you. You can't expect me to assume the liabilities of the old concern."

EVERY day makes more apparent the fact that the town is going ahead rapidly. Numerous changes have taken place in the way of the ownership of property. Many workingmen are buying houses and lots or lots on which to build. One of the most suitable [illegible] is the Brin property, at the west end, owned formerly by Mr. Wm. Fitzgerald. This week he has closed the sale of a very desirable new house and lot, and has several eligible lots on this property to dispose of. Property in this neighbourhood is rapidly being built up, and it will be well to have a look at the situation if one is at all disposed to buy. The terms are very favorable, and especially low for cash, though payment on time may be arranged.

"They didn't make Corsets like that when I was a girl"—

We have great pleasure in introducing to the ladies of Peterborough
"THE ORTHOPEDY," KID FITTING CORSET,
being the only Moveable Bone Corset made. It is lighter than all others and will give an equal wear to three others of the best make of Corsets known. The bones are not fixed permanently in the Corset, but every bone can be taken out and replaced on the other side. All "Orthopedy" Corsets have an extra set of bones to be used in case of necessity of changing some of the bones, therefore these stays will retain their proper shape until they are completely worn out. We warrant every pair of these Corsets to give satisfaction, or return the money.

AT TURNBULL'S.

As the season advances we have many bargains to offer the public. One of the greatest attractions in our store to-day is some thirty or forty pieces of Dress Goods that were formerly from 20 to 50 cts. a yard. They are odd lines and are now being cleared out at 15 cts. a yard. They can only last a short time. Call early and secure the best patterns.

We want to tell you about our cheap Hosiery. We have piles upon piles of heavy goods to select from in men's, women's and children's, 3 pair for 25c. For week past we have been showing a window of prints at 10c. a yard., handsome as it is possible to have them and perfectly fast colors. We never had the like before at less than 12½.

Remember them if you do not see them in the window now.

We are showing an elegant range of White Embroidered Shirtings and all-over Embroidered Muslins.

We have a great many patterns of Figured Wool Delaines so that it is no trouble to get something to please with us.

We have bought out a Wholesale Agents Samples of pretty little Lace Dolmans and Fichus and are selling them now at a bargain.

Our best quality of Black Gloves and Hosiery this season are perfectly stainless dye. We have great pleasure in selling them as they please everybody as to quality and price.

SATURDAY, MAY 30, 1891.

SIR JOHN DYING

Death is at the Premier's Elbow.

His Physicians Give Up All Hope of Recovery.

He Had a Relapse Yesterday Afternoon and Suffered from the Effusion of Blood on the Brain—He May Live Two Days and May Not Live Two Hours—The Cabinet Assembled at His Residence—Parliament Adjourned—Sketch of His Wonderful Career—Characteristics of the Man.

OTTAWA, May 29, 11 p.m.—Sir John Macdonald is dying. A few moments ago a [illegible] [illegible] the Chamber of the Commons. All day the subject of the Premier's condition had been in many mouths, and the bulletins from Earnscliffe were caught with eager interest. During much of the day the report current was that his condition was easier and the prospect hopeful. This was the first bulletin issued:

"EARNSCLIFFE, May 29, 10 a.m.—The Premier passed a quiet and comfortable night and this morning his physical strength shows distinct improvement since yesterday.
(Signed) R. W. POWELL, M.D."

All evening, however, the rumors grew more ominous and disturbing. It was learned that at 6 Sir James Grant and Dr. Wright has been called to Earnscliffe. It began to be whispered that the Premier's condition was gravely critical. At first the more alarming rumors were generally discredited, and few were prepared for the shock which came later with the sad but pitiless news that and that death was at the door at Earnscliffe. The debate in the House had attracted a large crowd to the galleries. The Speaker's and Senators' galleries were crowded with the beauty and fashion of the capital. The bright faces, the handsome costumes and the eager buzz of gossip formed an interesting scene. In the chamber there were few vacant seats, for although it was Friday evening a division was expected and the House was much fuller than usual. The speeches were keen and vigorous, and the applause was frequent and hearty, reaching at times to the height of enthusiasm. Outside in the lobbies, there was a great throng of gossipers and promenaders, when, like a cruel blow, came this bulletin, which was posted up on one of the pillars by the Commons postoffice at 9.20 o'clock:

EARNSCLIFFE, May 29, 1891, 8 p.m.
Sir John Macdonald suffered a relapse this afternoon while I was with him at 4.15. He is quite conscious at present, but his condition is most critical.
R. W. POWELL, M.D.

In a moment the bulletin was surrounded. Signs of grief were upon every countenance. Sympathetic glances and sympathetic words were exchanged by political friend and political foe. The sad message flew from lip to lip into the pressrooms, into committee rooms, into the party headquarters, into the chamber and into the eager galleries. A few minutes later the ominous message, whose passage from Minister to Minister had been observed was made public, as follows:

EARNSCLIFFE, 10.30 p.m.
I have just seen Sir John in consultation. Speech gone, hemorrhage extended to brain. Condition quite hopeless.
(Sgd.) DR. POWELL.

At 9 o'clock, it may be mentioned, a message of a disturbing character had also been received by the Cabinet from the room at Earnscliffe, and Ministers were in a measure prepared for this final blow. Just before this message was delivered to the Ministers the House had sunk into a quieter state, while Mr. Mackintosh read newspaper extracts incidental to the line of argument. Sir John Thompson passed down to the seat beside Mr. Foster, near the dying leader's chair, and then the Ministers on the front benches whispered together for a moment. An intimation was conveyed to Mr. Mackintosh to cease speaking, and the chamber roused to anxious interest as Sir Hector Langevin rose in his place. There were marks of sorrow on his face and his voice was low toned and tremulous as he told the House the intelligence, which seemed to be given additional gravity by its announcement in Parliament. Standing beside the vacant chair of the Premier, Sir Hector said: "Mr. Speaker, we have known that for the last few days the Premier has been lying ill at his residence. I have the painful duty to announce to the House that the news from Earnscliffe just received is that the First Minister has had a relapse and that he is in a most critical condition. We have reports from the medical men in attendance on the right hon. gentleman, and they do not seem to believe that he can live many hours longer. Under these circumstances I will move, seconded by Mr. Laurier, that this debate be now adjourned." When Mr. Laurier rose all eyes were turned towards him. "Mr Speaker," he said, "under such sad circumstances it is a painful duty for me to second the motion of the hon. gentleman. The country will, of course, be shocked to hear the sad news, and I am sure it will not be possible to proceed with business further. I second the motion." Sir Hector then moved the adjournment of the House, seconded by Mr. Laurier. The members moved hurriedly from their places and around Sir Hector to question him whether he had any further intelligence and then stood about in groups and in subdued voices talked of the news. The voice of criticism was hushed and human brotherhood reigned. Up to midnight the telegraph offices were crowded, and messages were flashed from end to end of the Dominion, across the continent and by cable to England.

The Premier's illness really dates from early in the year, but he only disappeared from public view a week ago to-night and on Sunday became seriously ill. On Wednesday night the physician slept at Earnscliffe. Last night the patient was mending and slept well all night, so much so that Lady Macdonald, who had been up all the night before, retired to bed, and only occasionally went in to see how Sir John was resting. Dr. Powell arrived early this morning and found the Premier much improved. Sir John slept well and rose and took some beef tea for breakfast. He spent a portion of the morning dictating a few letters on public matters to his private secretary, Mr. Joseph Pope. He was doing a little work all day. He was weak, but Mr. Pope states that his mind was perfectly clear. "In fact," added Mr. Pope, "he was the same man." More than this, during the day the Premier discussed under public policy and tactics, these things finding the foremost place in his mind. At 4 o'clock Dr. Powell arrived and found his patient sitting up and feeling better. He was telling the doctor how he felt and what nourishment he was taking. The doctor had hold of his hand, when suddenly and without warning the terrible stroke descended. The features, so familiar to all, became white and set, and Sir John fell back in the awful embrace of paralysis. The alarm was given and messengers were despatched for two consulting physicians. Sir James Grant and Dr. Henry P. Wright, who arrived quickly at the bedside of the unconscious Minister. This was between 4 and 5 o'clock. The Premier had no pain prior to the attack, and probably suffered little or none.

Leaving the doctors alone with their patient, the reader is invited to consider the effect outside of this fearful news. The Governor-General had called at Earnscliffe about 1 o'clock to inquire about the condition of his chief adviser. He stayed only a short time. Word was sent to him at 6 o'clock of the state of affairs. Major Sherwood, commissioner of Dominion police, came down to Earnscliffe and took charge of the outside arrangements. He posted a sergeant at the present approach to the grounds and another man was placed on duty at the gate opening on to the broad drive leading to the main entrance. These men were relieved at regular intervals. Major Sherwood himself remained on hand and rendered valuable assistance to the scores of visitors who came down to learn, if possible, that there was hope of recovery. The Premier's son, Mr. Hugh J. Macdonald, M. P., was in the House at the time the stroke came and hastened down on the receipt of the news. Mr. Fred White, the former secretary and an intimate friend of the family, went down, as did also Mr. George Sparks, a nephew of Lady Macdonald, and Mr. Beard, the Premier's assistant secretary.

Hemorrhage of the Brain.

Meanwhile the worst was taking place inside. Paralysis had been succeeded by hemorrhage of the brain and all hope was gone. One of the consulting physicians wrote between 8 and 9 o'clock to Sir Hector Langevin as follows: "I have seen Sir John Macdonald in consultation with another. I found him paralyzed with hemorrhage of the brain. His condition is hopeless. He may live a few hours." Sir Hector received other notes to the same effect. The Minister of Public Works had not seen Sir John since council on Saturday. Sir John Thompson, Messrs. Bowell, Carling, Dewdney and Haggart were the first Ministers to arrive at Earnscliffe after the adjournment. Mr. Bowell, who next to Sir Hector Langevin is the Premier's oldest colleague, could not conceal his grief. These Ministers went inside and conversed with the physicians. As they came out they met Sir Hector, Mr. Chapleau and Mr. Ouimet going in. Mr. Foster arrived later with several members of the House. At 11 o'clock His Excellency entered the grounds accompanied by Capt. Walsh, A.D.C. He remained with Major Sherwood while Capt. Walsh entered the house, and in a few minutes Dr. Powell came out and held a long conversation with his Excellency, who then departed, leaving instruction that should any further change come he should be notified at once.

The Latest Word.

At 11 o'clock the newspaper correspondents who were sitting in the front hall were handed the following bulletin:

EARNSCLIFFE, 11 P.M.
Sir John still continues very precarious. Loss of power of speech. Rest somewhat better than during this afternoon. Takes a moderate degree of liquid nourishment.
(Signed) W. R. POWELL, M.D.
J. A. GRANT, M.D.
H. P. WRIGHT, M.D.

At midnight the doctors said the Premier was in nearly the same condition as he was at 5 or 6 o'clock. His voice and consciousness had so far returned as to enable him to say "Joe" and "Fred" when he saw Mr. Pope and Mr. White, and he was able to freely motion with one hand. Sir James Grant and Dr. Wright, the consulting physicians, who were in attendance upon the Premier until a late hour, held out no hope whatever for his recovery. It may be a question of a few hours or a day or two, but both are agreed that the end is near. Sir James describes the symptoms as those of severe cerebral hemorrhage, the result of overwork. There is complete paralysis of the limbs and muscles on both sides of the body from the crown of the head to the soles of the feet. The paralytic stroke began first on one side, but rapidly extended to the other, and when the consulting physicians left the patient shortly before midnight the only indication of physical power was the capability of protruding the tongue at intervals. The power of speech was entirely gone and consciousness had departed. Dr. Wright, while exceedingly reluctant to go into details, coincides with Sir James Grant in the opinion that the stroke has been the result of the severe mental strain to which Sir John has been subjected lately. It is not uncommon for men of Sir John's age, or even those many years his junior, to succumb to cerebral paralysis, but in Sir John's case there is every reason to believe that an exceedingly active brain has suffered from overwork.

OTTAWA, May 30.—1 a.m.—Latest information from Earnscliffe is that Sir John is somewhat easier and has been able to utter a few words. His brain seems clearer and he has been able to touch his lips and otherwise indicate his wants, but this is not regarded as any indication of recovery. Indeed, it is rather looked on as the brief recovery which so frequently is the immediate precursor of dissolution. Lord Stanley visited Earnscliffe as soon as he heard of Sir John's condition and remained a while. Sir James Grant, who left Sir John about midnight, says he may live two days but may pass away in as many hours.

OTTAWA, May 30, 2.30 a.m.—Latest reports at 2 o'clock from Earnscliffe are that Sir John is resting quietly, breathing more regular. Still there is no revival of hope.

His Career.

John Alexander Macdonald was born in Glasgow, Scotland, on January 11, 1815. He was second son of Mr. Hugh Macdonald, who lived originally in the parish of Dornoch, Sutherlandshire, but who, when John A. was aged 5 years, removed to Canada. This was during the great emigration movement of 1820. The family settled at Kingston, which was then the most important town in Upper Canada, and after residing there for upwards of four years removed to Quinte Bay, leaving John Alexander—then in his tenth year—at school in Kingston. At the Royal Grammar School he remained until his sixteenth year, when his father articled him in the office of George Mackenzie, where he threw all his energies into the study of law. At school he had given no promise of the remarkable career he has run, being prominent only in mathematics. But at law he soon excelled and was called to the bar at 21, an age at which law students to-day very often only enter on their course.

When he commenced active practice the first mutterings of coming trouble shook the country, and soon Papineau in Lower Canada and William Lyon Mackenzie in Upper Canada rushed to arms. A body of hunters, as the invaders were called, under command of a Pole named Von Shoultz, crossed from the American side over to Prescott, but Shoultz was captured and his followers killed and dispersed. Courts-martial were established at London and Kingston, and at the latter city Shoultz and his comrades were put on trial. Young Macdonald defended the unfortunate Pole who had been induced by illusive representations to cross the border after the rebellion proper had been put down. Barrister often at a stroke create a name but none ever did so more signally than did this young lawyer, in the defence of the Pole, whom no ability could save from hanging in face of the evidence.

Thus in 1839, at 25 years of age, he took rank as a leader of the bar. In the same year he entered into a legal partnership with Mr. Alexander Campbell, now Sir Alexander, and Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario.

In 1844 Mr. Macdonald was elected to represent Kingston in the second legislature under the union, defeating Mr. Manahan. He entered Parliament at a very trying time. Sir Charles Metcalfe, the new Governor-General, had come freighted with notions of authority imbibed in India and Jamaica, and was not disposed to submit to dictation by a Canadian House. A quarrel with the ministry resulted over some appointments to office and the latter resigned. The historical battle for responsible government followed, in which the Conservatives found themselves by hereditary duty called upon to support the Governor-General. The young member for Kingston showed his great tact by withstanding the strong temptation to break himself on the wheel. He did not plunge with premature impetuosity, as most young members do, into the debates of the House. He sat unmoved at his desk while the frays for which that period of Parliamentary history was remarkable went on, "looking half careless and half contemptuous," as a gentleman who had seen him there recently said. "Sometimes in the thick of the melee, he was busy in and out of the library. I scarcely ever remember then seeing him about the House that he was not searching up some case either then impending or to come up at a later date. He was for a great part of his time, too, buried in constitutional history." His first speech was a bold one—in reply to Hon. Robert Baldwin—but it did him credit.

In May, 1847, he was selected by Attorney-General Draper for the vacant office of Receiver-General, who said: "Your turn has come at last, Macdonald." Very soon he assumed the management of the Crown Lands Department, which was in a very topsy-turvy state, and with surprising speed brought it under business methods. Previously the department had been nearly as famous as the English Court of Chancery for its vexatious delays, but this changed at once, and has never since fallen back into the pernicious methods from which Mr. Macdonald rescued it.

History shows and the student of history is surprised by what a small majority the Draper Administration held power from 1844 to 1848 and during the troublous times at that. In the meantime Lord Metcalfe returned to England, Lord Cathcart filling the gap in the Governor-Generalship until the arrival of Lord Elgin.

On the defeat of the Draper Ministry in 1848 by Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Lafontaine the stirring times took on more stirring guise, but Mr. Macdonald was conspicuous for his wise attitude. Six years in opposition afforded him valuable discipline, and when he again sat on the Government benches there was but a single antagonist in the House for whom he was not a full match. While in opposition he opposed the reform of King's College and the Rebellion Losses Bill. It was an insecure period for governments and the Baldwin-Lafontaine Ministry soon showed signs of weakness. Finally the double-headed leadership made way for Sir Francis Hincks in 1851, and then it became apparent that Reform disruption was complete. It broke into two sections, one led by Sir Francis, the other by Mr. George Brown. Against foes within and without the Government staggered along until 1854, when an appeal to the country caused its overthrow. Then came a great surprise. The Reform wing which coalesced with the Conservatives in the fight were passed over in the House and the defeated wing joined the Conservatives in a Coalition Cabinet. In this McNab-Morin combination Mr. Macdonald became Attorney-General, and great interest was excited by speculating as to whether the Reform or Conservative element would predominate. That the latter prevailed was chiefly due to the tact of the Attorney-General. Sir Allan McNab was soon relegated to the sick room and John A. Macdonald led the Ontario section and George E. Cartier the Quebec section.

Interprovincial Troubles.

Between Upper and Lower Canada there was a growing gulf of suspicion and damaging distrust, which no man did more to remove than John A. Macdonald. His remarkable personality spanned the chasm for a lengthy period and prevented complications the outcome of which can scarcely be surmised at this day. Discontent was everywhere and public sentiment was in a dangerous state of unrest. The Sandfield Macdonald Government came but melted away as though in one night. The Tache-Macdonald (John A.) Administration followed, but its life hung in a ticklish balance all its days. Another coalition followed, in which George Brown, Oliver Mowat and William McDougall represented the Reformers.

Confederation a Fact.

As historians will tell, it was Sir John Macdonald who shaped the movement for Confederation, conducted the negotiations in the Maritime Provinces and in England and united the best energies of Canadian public men in favor of the great achievement. This is the greatest work of his life. His former labors led up to it, his afterwork was made up of vigorous efforts to complete and perfect it. He was called upon to lead the first Administration after Confederation and had the honor of knighthood conferred upon him.

In 1872 he appealed to the country in a general election and again secured a majority.

The Pacific Scandal.

Immediately after the general election of 1872 Sir John Macdonald fell on evil times. Hardly had the election concluded before rumors began to fly about to the effect that the elections had been won by gross corruption. There was nothing remarkable in this, as it is the common cry of the defeated party after an election. But in this case the cry instead of waning as time elapsed rather increased and grew in magnitude.

Parliament Meets.

Parliament met again on Oct. 23. The report of the Royal Commission was laid before it. It was perhaps the most memorable session of the Canadian Parliament ever held. The attack on Sir John Macdonald began at once, and some of the ablest speeches ever heard on the floor distinguished it. It raged for seven days, during the course of which the hero of it all made one of the ablest addresses that had ever issued from his lips. He spoke five hours, concluding with the statement that he had given the best of his heart, his brain and his life to the service of his country.

Nothing could save him, however, and after the debate had raged for seven days he, on Nov. 5, announced in a crowded House the resignation of his Ministry.

It was difficult to adequately appreciate the weight of the blow. It was a poor ending of 25 years of public life. It would have crushed even an extraordinary man. The rapidity with which he recovered from its effects and once more leaped into public favor and to power remain to this day the historical marvel of our time.

The Liberals who thought that in adhering to Sir John Macdonald the Conservatives had doomed their party for the rest of the natural life of their leader have had reason to acknowledge by the light of subsequent events that they were mistaken. They have had reason to feel assured that no other leader could have led his party into the land of promise so readily, so skilfully and kept it there so permanently as the man whom they deemed had abrogated his political life on that memorable day on the floor of Parliament when he bowed to the forces arrayed against him and gave up the seals of office.

A Citizen of Toronto.

During this period of eclipse he lived in Toronto. After a quarter of a century in public life he was still a poor man. He entered once more on the practice of his profession and could be seen occasionally in the courts at Osgoode Hall. It has been asserted that in the darkest of those days some fair weather friends who thought that his sun had set were inclined to turn their backs upon their old-time leader. He doubtless realized to the full the words which the immortal bard put into the mouth of the great Cardinal who hung on princes' favors.

But slowly the tide turned. The National Policy was evolved and a Conservative club, bearing the name of National, was largely through his influence reared in King-street. The matchless politician with his trained finger on the public pulse read its very heart beats during those four years of opposition. He had a treatment which would just suit the debilitated state of the country. The elections of 1878 came on and everybody knows what happened on that fateful 17th of September. The man who had less than five years before been hurled almost ignominiously from power returned to it as the chief of a strong and exultant party.

Of Sir John Macdonald's subsequent career the salient points are [illegible] in the public memory. Since the election of 1878 he has submitted his claims three times to the Canadian people, and three times they have declared him to be the darling son. In that period two great measures stand prominently forth—the upbuilding of the National Policy and the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Where Lay His Power?

The question has often been asked wherein lay his power. A survey of the civilized world fails to find his parallel. During the time he has held power in the Dominion the political figures have changed in every capital on the globe. Men have come and gone—arisen, shone and subsided into darkness. He alone grew from year to year in the people's affections until the spectacle was afforded of a statesman in a free state exercising all the powers of autocracy. He was continually surrounded by able men, men who exceeded him in eloquence, in learning, in power of [illegible], but not one of them thought to dispute his pre-eminence. Cartier, Hincks, [illegible], Tilley, Tupper, Howe, Macdougall, all bowed to his spell and acknowledged the master.

It would be difficult, perhaps, to briefly state what were the qualifications and [illegible] ties that he brought into his career, but the chief of them seem to have been [illegible]

Makes the Weak Strong

The marked benefit which people in run down or weakened state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but in the most natural way Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes

"I derived very much benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I took for general debility. It built me right up, and gave me an excellent appetite." Ed. Jenkins, Mt. Savage, Md.

Fagged Out

"Last spring I was completely fagged out. My strength left me and I felt sick and miserable all the time, so that I could hardly attend to my business. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it cured me. There is nothing like it." R. C. Begole, Editor Enterprise, Belleville, Mich.

SATURDAY, MAY 30, 1891.

THE PREMIER'S ILLNESS.

A GREAT wave of sorrow swept over the country when the news spread that Sir John Macdonald was seriously ill. Although he had not been strong for some days, the sad intelligence last night that his physicians could not hope for his recovery was a sudden blow, and in the House and throughout the country grief marked the track of the sad news. Sir John did not spare himself during the election campaign. He recognized that a great issue was to be decided that would have a far-reaching influence upon the future and the welfare of the country that he loved and to which he had given a life service, and he threw himself into the campaign with vigor. The result was such as he desired, but there was no repose for the veteran after the struggle and, instead of taking time to recuperate his strength, Sir John gave attention to the business of the important department of which he is the head while at the same time the preparations for the session of Parliament was another drain upon his strength. Added to this Sir John took charge of the Presidency of the Council, as well as the Department of Railways and Canals, and the work he accomplished demonstrated that he was possessed of marvellous vigor. Under these circumstances it is not surprising that the Premier's strength gave way and that he was laid upon a bed of sickness. The reports from Ottawa will be anxiously watched, and not only in Canada, for in the mother land and in other countries much anxiety will be felt; but it is in Canada, among his compatriots, that Sir John's abilities and admirable qualities were most appreciated and it is here that the chief anxiety will be felt. The services that Sir John has performed for his country during his long public career have endeared him to its people, who now anxiously and in sorrow stand by his sick bed.

The Wise Savants

Tell us that Rheumatism is a blood disease that it can be cured only by a remedy which works through the blood. And yet, if you have the darting pains of Rheumatism in muscles or joints, try a little of Clark's Lightning Liniment. It will go direct to the seat of pain and relieve it at once. There is no waiting weeks and months until the disease can be attacked through the blood. This seems to be contrary to scientific claims, but it is true that Clark's Lightning Liniment will cure Rheumatism. Sold by all druggists; price fifty cents. Clark Chemical Co., Toronto.

The World of Women.

All the metals are in vogue just now: copper bebnechs with silver, steel is wedded with gold, and there is a decided suggestion of iron in the dull beads that contrast with jet.

Gray suede gloves have been brought out with black crochet backs; four buttons are more worn than six in the daytime, and in the evening twelve buttons reach to the elbow, sixteen cover it.

A pretty and simple fashion for table decoration is at present all the rage. It consists of selecting large, fragrant roses of any preferred variety and placing them on the table as fancy dictates. Of course those with long stems and some leaves are selected.

A comparatively new work engaged in by women is that of lady factotums. For instance, if a lady is delicate and unfit for domestic cares, the lady factotum goes to the house, finds out the condition of things, superintends the servants, does the marketing, the shopping, answers the notes, delivers messages, and takes the place of an elder daughter, all, of course, for a fair remuneration.

The long Louis Quatorze coats have made peplums again popular. The full straight folds of the skirt worn under such a coat and the design of the coat itself are specially suited to the dignity of the peplum, a material which was never friendly to the frills and frivols of less historical designs. All the shades of mauve, silver gray, royal and hyacinth blue and wood are in the silky stuff, and most effective costumes are made of it.

The carpets can easily be cleaned and sweetened if there is such a thing as a grass-plot about the house—first beaten, and then dragged face downward over the grass; but if this cannot be managed the carpet may perhaps be hung over a line and beaten, and when it has been put down again on a well-cleaned floor it can be freshened by being wiped over with a large sponge or a cloth wrung out of a basin of clean salt and water.

A "butterfly social" is one of the novel entertainments for raising funds in charitable work. The room is decorated with butterflies of tissue paper, and in the centre of the ceiling a huge butterfly of wire and thin silk or paper is suspended, some three feet from one wing tip to the other. The legs of the insect are of wire painted black. Those who preside over the affair are dressed to resemble different varieties of butterflies, in blue and chiffon, black, brown, and yellow velvet, with gauze wings and a butterfly for a head dress.

THE GIANT GOLIATH.

AN AMUSING PICTURE OF HIM IN THE LIGHT OF MODERN EYES.

What His Great Strength Might Be Useful For Now-a-Days—An Unsolvable Question—The Strength of the Ancients and Moderns Compared.

Were men of olden time stronger than men of to-day? This question is interesting to every person who, like bluff King Henry the Eighth, "loves to look upon a man," and it is none the less interesting because apparently unsolvable.

What a great pity it is that there has not always been in the world some fixed meter or measure of strength, by which the powers of successive generations could be compared with each other. How interesting it would be to know, in the nineteenth century, how many pounds on the "striking machine" the two lion-like men of Moab, mentioned in the chronicles of the Bible, could register. We could then compare their strength with that of Boston's champion and see which was the hardest hitter of the three.

We are said to have a test of size. The armor of the knights of old is still in existence, and we are told (on how high authority I know not) that these suits prove we have increased in size; that an average man cannot be squeezed into a suit of armor of average dimensions.

This may be so, but these suits of mail give us a means of comparing, in some degree, the strength of the shoddy and the iron age. Put an ordinary man into a suit of armor and he can scarcely, staggeringly, bear its weight.

Yet we know that one of the feats of agility taught to squires, preparatory to being knighted, was vaulting into the saddle, without touching stirrup or bridle, when in full armor.

Of the very strong men known to us, who lived in the olden time, Sampson was the most powerful, but his gift may be regarded as a supernatural one, and therefore, natural human strength cannot fairly be compared with it.

Among those who possessed ordinary mortal powers Goliath, of Gath, stood pre-eminent. We are all aware that this heavy weight was a very large man, but very few, I fancy, know how he compared with ordinary humanity. His height has been variously estimated. It was six cubits and a span. Learned men are still fighting over the number of inches in a Hebrew cubit. According to the longest estimate he was eleven feet three inches high; according to the nearest estimate he was ten feet seven inches, while the shortest figures are nine feet nine inches. Nine feet nine is an undersized attitude as compared with eleven feet three, but, as the Rev. Adam Clark says, it is high enough for reason.

"It [illegible] the biggest man that ever walked this earth."

We have no record of his weight, but we have very accurate figures of his battle array, which seem to prove his gigantic strength.

When Goliath went out with his war paint on, he wore a coat-of-mail weighing one hundred and fifty-six pounds. Adding the rest of his offensive and defensive armor, he carried weight to the total amount of two hundred and seventy-two pounds, thirteen ounces; the head of his spear weighing eighteen pounds.

Is it not a great pity that we have no record of the strength of this man-mammoth? If we could only know how much he could raise on the lifting-machine! If we knew how large a dumb-bell he could put up! Fancy the size of the Indian clubs he could use!

Whether he could swing an elephant around his head by the tail is happily removed from the field of conjecture by the fact that an elephant's tail is too short to admit of a good purchase, but just imagine Goliath booming along on a giant bicycle!

If he belonged to the champion Nine and hit a ball where would that ball go? If he called for a "shoulder-high ball" the catcher would have to get on a step ladder to catch behind him. If he were running a base and a baseman got in his way, what would become of that baseman? And if he threw a ball to a baseman, wouldn't he throw it clear thro him? As rusher in a football team he would be appalling, and, assuming that he was eleven feet high imagine him, with a bearskin and baton to match, parading as drum major before the crack battalion! In fact the number of surprises, which he could present to us, were he still living, are so many and so bewildering that it is better, perhaps, to avoid any further attempt to specify them.

The Knout in Russia.

The knout is being used again in Russia by the governors and local magistrates with the utmost liberty. Thus, recently, Anastamin, Governor of Tubernigow, had an old peasant knouted within an inch of his life, without any process of law. The schoolmaster of the village expressed his opinion about this, and was brought to the government capital and knouted in his turn. And when the prosecuting attorney protested, because the schoolmaster is a noble, he was threatened with the knout if he mixed in affairs that concerned him not.

"Just as I Tell Nell."

She is just the only woman
Who can make for him this life
Worth the tiresome toil and trouble
And the never-ending strife.

Why, he treats her like a baby,
Saves her all the steps he can;
She is such a little creature,
And he's such a great big man.

It's a joke among the neighbors—
His uxoriousness, you know—
And they all exchange sly glances
When they see him come and go.

But more oft they smile to hear him
When a fact he wants to tell;
For he's sure to thus begin it;
"Now, it's just as I tell Nell."

Whether speaking of the earthquake,
Or the mercury that fell,
Or the janitor who left us—
It is "Just as I tell Nell."

Well, they may all laugh about it,
But for me I cannot tell
Why it is I love to hear him
Say "It's just as I tell Nell."

Unless it is the rough voice softens
Like the death tone of a bell
When he speaks the name he loves most
In his "Just as I tell Nell."

Out of the Mouths of Babes

Two children were playing on the sidewalk and a lady passed them.

"She's a grass widow," said one.

"What's a grass widow?" asked the other.

"Gracious! Don't you know that?" said the other, scornfully: "why, her husband died of hay fever."

An Eminent Professor Saved.

A well-known and highly respected professor of music in one our large Canadian cities is at present one of the happiest and most thankful men in the Dominion. He always enjoyed a large measure of success as a teacher, and his pupils were numerous and all from the best families of the country. The professor a short time ago became so weak and ill, that he was forced to give up his work, much to the regret of his classes. He became so exceedingly nervous and weak, irritable and despondent that his family became alarmed at his condition. The family physician after two weeks constant attention and treatment was not able to discern any improvement. One of the professor's pupils, a young man of considerable attainments, and who called daily to see the professor during his illness, boldly and without hesitation, recommended the use of Paine's Celery Compound, which proved to be no stranger in the young man's home. The professor acceded to his young pupil's request, and commenced the use of this great compound; and most wonderful to relate, an almost perfect cure was effected in less than five weeks. The joy of the professor's family was unbounded, and his expressions of thanks to his pupils were heart felt and touching. From a knowledge of the facts, we are enabled to state that the professor is now building up a strong and vigorous constitution, and has resumed tuition much to the joy of his many pupils. He still continues the use of Paine's Celery Compound, and refers to it as his great preserver.

Gigantic Sale of Clothing and Gents Furnishings.

As our business has out-grown the accommodation in our present premises we move during July to the large store lately occupied by Mr. Geo. Stethem. The new store will be fitted up in latest metropolitan style affording double the room we now occupy. As this necessitates the removal of our entire stock we propose to clear off everything instead of moving the goods by offering the same at a gigantic sale to clear at prices never before known in Peterborough. This sweep will cover our ready-made clothing, gents furnishings, and special reductions will also be made all along the line of our ordered clothing trade. The sale will commence on Wednesday, June 3rd, and will continue until the entire stock is cleared. People that want these goods should come and see the value we are giving. The sale is bona fide, for we must move. And we will make it a benefit to every buyer to give us a call. H. LeBrun & Co., sign of The Big Horse Shoe, George st. 2d126

He Was From Havana.

He wore a Panama hat and carried a white umbrella, and before he came to Canada he never smoked anything but Havana cigars. He's changed his mind now. He smokes Tasse, Wood & Co's Montreal cigars. He finds they are made better, and he can't see why he should pay duty on any inferior article. 3d12

Don't Feel Well,

And yet you are not sick enough to consult a doctor, or you refrain from so doing for fear you will alarm yourself and friends—we will tell you just what you need. It is Hood's Sarsaparilla, which will lift you out of that uncertain, uncomfortable, dangerous condition, into a state of good health, confidence and cheerfulness. You've no idea how potent this peculiar medicine is in cases like yours.

Mrs. Annie Besant's letter paper is stamped with a quaint design composed of interlacing triangles encircled by a snake—that Talmudic emblem significant of eternity, silence and wisdom. Half way round the Oriental crest are these words: "There is no religion higher than Truth." Her monogram is engraved on the envelope, and beneath the letters is the motto of her life—"Be Strong." Mrs. Besant writes a pretty hand, neat and clear as copper plate, and her letters, while necessarily brief owing to their number, are very gracefully turned. To all but her chosen friends she subscribes herself "sincerely, Annie Besant."

Candor is a virtue, but it is not advisible to wear one's heart on one's sleeve in society. The rule laid down by Pascal, one of the purest of men and most rigid of moralists, is a good one: "It is not a condition," says that excellent man, "that we state only what is the truth; we are bound also not, at all times, to say all that is true; because we ought only to give publicity to things that may serve a useful purpose, and not to such as may cause pain to individuals without conducing to general utility." Would that all gossiping busybodies would give heed to this sage advice, this sound, Christian logic!

The entering wedge of a complaint that may prove fatal is often a slight cold, which a dose or two of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral might have cured at the commencement. It would be well, therefore, to keep the remedy within reach at all times.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS.

Tuesday Evening Bible Class.

Will those interested in work for young women please note that while nothing in the way of [illegible] can be held in the rooms 416½ George-st. until the damages by the late fire have been repaired, the Bible class conducted by Miss Code is still held every Tuesday evening from 8 until 9 o'clock. All young women welcome.

Oh, What a Cough.

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease consumption. Ask yourself if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. d19-w1-4m

Clerical Exchange.

The services at St. Luke's for the three Sunday's commencing June 7th will be conducted by an American clergyman. The Rev. T. W. Thrush of Christ church, Detroit, will be a guest at St. Luke's rectory and take charge of the parish during the absence of the Rector. Although an Englishman Mr. Thrush has spent his clerical life in the United States and this will be his first visit to Canada. We have no doubt he will meet with a kind reception from the congregation to whom he will minister. The Rector of St. Luke's will fill the position at Christ church, Detroit, for a similar period.

Dyspepsia has driven to an early and even suicidal grave many a man, who, if he had tried the virtues of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, would be alive to-day and in the enjoyment of health and competence. Sufferer be warned in season, and don't allow the system to run down.

A Lamp Explodes and Causes a Fire.

Just before ten o'clock as the crowds were leaving the park after the band concert an alarm of fire was sounded for a blaze discovered at the residence of Mr. John Fraser, on Downie-st. Mr. Fraser was with the band in the park and Mrs. Fraser had gone over to a friends, leaving the house alone with a lamp burning on the table. The lamp exploded and the oil spreading over table and floor made a little lake of flaming fire. It was noticed by a neighbor and an alarm sent in from the corner of Park and Charlotte-sts. In exactly three minutes by the watch, the hose waggon was at the scene of the fire, but water was not turned on. It was a remarkably quick turn out. The fire was smothered out, after burning the carpet, table cover, a fur cloak of Mrs. Fraser's that was lying near by and the table. The damage in all will amount to about $100. There was an insurance.

For bracing up the nerves, purifying the blood and curing sick headache and dyspepsia, there is nothing equal to Hood's Sarsaparilla.

MOVING DOWN GEORGE-ST.

Mr. Jas. Stenson, Boots and Shoes, Going Into New and Handsome Premises

On Monday or Tuesday Mr. James Stenson will remove from his present store, next to the Peterborough Bookstore, down George-st. to new and handsome premises two doors north of Simcoe-st. on the east side, the store lately occupied by Mr. M. R. Kidd, grocer.

Mr. Stenson has occupied his present quarters for over thirteen years past and his place of business was known to every man, woman and child in the town who was familiar at all with George-st. But now he goes to brighter premises and will meet his old customers with all the improved accommodation and convenience of a new store.

The store, formerly known as the "Pantry," has undergone a complete transformation, having been refitted and renovated throughout. The old counters have been removed and a new floor laid. The ceiling has been artistically decorated, while the walls have been beautifully papered and the woodwork painted to harmonize. The whole makes a very handsome and bright interior. No long counters will be placed in the store, but tables, or short counters, provided with chairs and couches will be distributed throughout the shop. The front of the store has also been re-painted and looks nobby in its new coat.

In the second flat will be the repairing department and this will be fitted up in becoming style. The third storey will be utilized as a store room.

In the store the ladies' and children's department will be on the south side and the gentlemen's on the north side. A complete and extensive stock of every class of boots and shoes will be found on the shelves in the new as was always the case in the old store up street.

Mr. Stenson will welcome all his old customers to his new premises and as many new ones as will find their way to his neat, new and handsome quarters.

SANITARY SCAVENGING.

Cases Arising Under the Health By-law—A Pointer for Landlords and Tenants.

Several cases arising out of scavenging work were called at the Police Court this morning.

George Stevens was charged with committing a nuisance on the street by the careless removal of night soil. He paid the costs, $4.95, and the charge was withdrawn.

Mr. Jos. Christo was charged with violating the Health By-law by failing to clean his privy. It appeared that the job had been partly done and the case was enlarged for one week to allow the cleaning to be made perfect.

Mr. John Cunningham had to answer to a similar charge and gave a similar explanation. He was also given a week in which to have the closet properly cleaned.

There are a couple of points in connection with this sanitary work which the Court wished to be emphasized. One was the liability of the landlord in such cases. Some landlords suppose they have nothing to do with this work, but they are in error. The magistrate said that the tenant should notify the landlord that the work had to be done and if it was not done then the tenant could go on and do the work and keep the costs out of the rent. Then another point is that it will not answer to half do the work. The night soil must be all removed and a perfect job made of the work or prosecutions will follow.

Music in the Park.

The first band concert of the season was given last evening in the Court House park by the Fire Brigade Band. An immense concourse of citizens young and old gathered to enjoy the music, and the excellent programme which was rendered was appreciated. The park was beautiful in its garment of green and the music seemed to be sweeter because it was the first. Bandmaster Miller and his musicians rendered some delightful airs, with that efficiency and correctness of time, shade and harmony, which established them as peers in the recent band concert.

Result of the Fire Inspection.

The following communication has been received as the result of the recent visit of Inspector Forsythe, of the Fire Underwriters' Association, and will probably come before the Fire, Water and Light Committee for consideration on Monday evening next:—

TORONTO, May 29th, 1891.

To the Mayor, Peterborough Ont:

DEAR SIR,—My attention has recently been called to several defects in the fire department in your town, as a result of which our Inspector visited Peterborough a few days ago for the purpose of making a thorough inspection of your appliances, and now I give you an extract from his report:—"There are two or three features in connection with the fire appliances that require immediate remedy. The first is that at no time should the hose be without a team of horses and a driver, as is sometimes the case now, all the horses being out on the streets working at the same time. The second is that the town bell on which the general alarm are sounded, should be raised to a higher elevation than where it now is. Many of the surrounding buildings are quite as high as the bell and in consequence an alarm is heard only in the immediate vicinity of the bell."

I would be glad to hear from you at your earliest convenience as to what is proposed to be done to remedy these defects.

Yours truly,
ROBERT McLEAN,
Secretary.

A Canadian Divine's Opinion.

The programme for the Christian Alliance convention, which will be held in the Opera House on June 9th, 10th and 11th, includes three meetings each day, at 9 a.m., 3 p.m. and 7.30 p.m. It is probable that the programme of subjects will be as follows:—First day, Christ our Saviour and Sanctifier; second day, Christ our Sanctifier and Healer; third day, Christ our Coming Lord and the obligation to evangelize the nations in view of His coming. At a recent Alliance convention in New York Rev. Dr. Potts, of Toronto, was present and said;—

"I providentially heard this afternoon of this Convention. While walking through the street of New York wishing for six o'clock to come that I might get away, I heard that my dear old friend, Dr. Simpson, was in this meeting, and I felt I must come to shake him again by the hand. I am not a stranger to the testimonies I have heard here to-day. I believe in the Lord Jesus Christ as a complete Saviour and I know whom I have believed. I have just returned from Virginia from the funeral of a dear brother, and I am going back to Toronto, feeling there is nothing worth living for but Christ. For a long time I staggered at the command in the Old Testament, 'Thou shall love the Lord thy God with all thy mind, with all thy soul and with all thy strength,' but the Spirit taught me 'I will circumcise thine heart and will cause thee to do this.' So, long ago, I accepted this circumcision and I have found it the easiest way to serve the Lord. The best kind of love is a perfect heart. I rejoice in Christ as a complete Saviour. I do not know your denominational complexion, but I have found the atmosphere of Canaan in this place. The Lord grant you more of the fullness of His Spirit!"

TOWN AND DISTRICT.

Local Lines and District Data Presented With Point and Brevity.

—Mr. Wm. Tacey, of Minden, who was hurt recently by a log rolling upon him, is still in a helpless condition, his limbs and lower part of his body being completely paralyzed.

—Mr. John Smith, of Emily, treed a hedge-hog and followed it out on a limb. The limb broke and Mr. Smith fell to the ground breaking four ribs and badly cutting his forehead.

—On Saturday morning last the barn owned by Mrs. Hannah Tracey, of Downeyville, was burned. The flying embers fired the barns of Mr. Jos. Bradley, a neighbor. The latter were burned together with a team of horses, cattle, sheep, etc.

—The Lindsay Collegiate Institute base ball club succeeded in carrying off first prize in the tournament held at Cannington on the Queen's Birthday, and their treasury exhibits a $15 bugle in consequence.

—Mr. John McPhail of Stanhope, says the Minden Echo, while drawing a load of hay in the neighborhood of some bush fires, had the misfortune to lose both his hay and waggon. The fire caught in the hay and both it and the waggon were destroyed, nothing remaining but a little pile of burnt iron on the road.

—Hangman Radcliffe, of Toronto, who officiated at the execution of Kane, the wife murderer, at Belleville on Thursday morning last, stopped over in Lindsay the same evening waiting for a freight to convey him back to the city. In conversation he said he considered his last job a successful bid of work, and incidentally mentioned that he looked forward to making a silk noose for Larocque, the Sherbrooke child murderer, with keen satisfaction.

—Messrs. A. White, traffic superintendent, and J. G. Macklin, chief engineer, says the Lindsay Post, were in town Wednesday looking over the siding and other accommodations which, owing to the steadily increasing business at Lindsay, has only been insufficient, extensive though it is, and it will have to be greatly enlarged this season. This work will now be done at an early day.

—The Bobcaygeon Independent says:—"A Toronto contemporary states that Sir Robert Peel and Gladstone were once enthusiastic cricketers and some of the greatest living Englishmen are proficient at it. Certainly, and so are some of our greatest Canadians. There is the member for North Victoria who is a stunner at cricket, and a rattler at hockey on ice. Then our own Smiff, the gentleman, who it may be observed, writes our leading articles, is a rollicker at 'bowls' though he prefers bock or sauterne on ice."

Teachers in Council.

A meeting of the Teachers Association was held in the Institute building this morning. Mr. Fessenden, Principal of the Collegiate Institute and President of the Association, presided. The attendance was large, there being about thirty-one teachers present. The meeting was of most interesting character. The committee appointed to draft a constitution reported. The constitution was discussed clause by clause and finally adopted with a few slight amendments. Mr. Wm. Brick, Principal of the Murray-st. Separate School, read an able paper evidencing thoughtful preparation on "Language Lessons for Junior Classes." This paper gave rise to a discussion which was fruitful and instructive. Mr. Blanchard, of the Business College, continued his paper on Writing. This paper was a masterly presentment of the subject and called forth some discussion. This was the programme for the meeting, which was much appreciated by the teachers.

A Bit of Philosophy.

Live within your income. How to do this is the vital question. Two courses are open, increase income or curtail expenditure. It's about as hard to cut down expenses as to increase income. However, amidst the general perplexity which the situation calls up there is the re-assuring thought that no matter how things go, one way to save is to buy your teas at hawleys', where prices are at the bottom notch and qualities on top of the heap. PERPETUAL MOTION IMPOSSIBLE.

The Reason Why It Is Not Practicable Clearly Explained.

What is a perpetual motion? As yet it is but an idea—so much will be admitted by the most enthusiastic advocate of its practicability. The utmost claim is that, according to physical law, it might be; no one claims that it is or ever has been. But millions of attempts, all ending in failure, only create a strong presumption that the thing attempted is an impossibility. They do not put it absolutely beyond doubt. Do the laws of nature make it eternally impossible.

The evident answer is that nature is herself a perpetual motion. The clouds and the winds, the waves, the flowing streams and mighty currents of electrical and other forces are in ceaseless flux and reflux. It follows, therefore, that any machine constantly played upon by any one of these perpetual forces would maintain a perpetual motion—as for instance a paddle wheel moved by an unfailing stream of water—the motion continuing till the materials wore out, which fills the conditions of the problem. This much, then, is conceded: a machine which could receive continual accessions of power from sources outside of itself—that is, from the inexhaustible store of nature's dynamics—would be a perpetual motion.

But that is not what the projectors mean by their use of the phrase "perpetual motion." Their argument (if such it may be called) assumes the possibility of a machine which itself generates the power that runs it. In other words, a machine which creates power—that is, a machine, which generates more power than it expends; namely, power enough to re-supply the original power and overcome friction besides. And such a machine is, by the eternal laws of physics, an eternal impossibility. No matter how simple or how complex, no matter how delicately adjusted or how slight the friction, this inexorable law remains—the force which originally moves the machine must generate another force equal to itself (for any force less than that would not keep the machine in motion) and some additional force to overcome the friction.

And the law is the same, no matter what device be adopted. Suppose it be (as in many attempts it has been) a series of falling weights on one side of a wheel, those weights must rise exactly as high on the other side of the wheel, and, let the combination be what it may, they must pass through as many rising curves as falling curves—that is, as many units of movement against as with gravitation—and the friction of the wheel be overcome besides. Suppose it were possible to reduce friction to a minimum of one unit in a machine whose power was 10,000,000 units, then the power of 10,000,000 would have to generate 10,000,001 to prevent a stoppage.

For further illustration, take the device of a horizontal wheel, the original power applied at a point A on its circumference: A moves around to its original place, there an equal power must be applied to send it around again (for, of course, whatever power sent it around once will be needed for each successive round), and whatever extra power is needed to overcome the friction. Put the original power at 100, then that 100 power must generate a power equal to 100 plus friction. Algebraically stated, your problem is to make 100—100+f. Of course, f might be reduced to a very small amount, and it is barely conceivable that a place might be found where there is no f—but not on this earth.

In a perfect vacuum, assuming the production of it to be possible, a top would run a surprisingly long time, there being no friction on the air; but it must rest on something, and that means friction. If a top could be suspended in midair, with some attractive force above it which exactly balanced gravitation, and then set in motion in a perfect vacuum, the thing might be accomplished; but such a condition is obviously impossible. On this earth there is no motion without friction, and where is friction a perpetual motion is an eternal impossibility.—Mechanical News.

Sick Headache

Is a complaint from which many suffer and few are entirely free. Its cause is indigestion and a sluggish liver, the cure for which is readily found in the use of Ayer's Pills.

"I have found that for sick headache, caused by a disordered condition of the stomach, Ayer's Pills are the most reliable remedy."—Samuel C. Bradburn, Worthington, Mass.

"After the use of Ayer's Pills for many years, in my practice and family, I am justified in saying that they are an excellent cathartic and liver medicine—sustaining all the claims made for them."—W. A. Westfall, M. D., V. P. Austin & N. W. Railway Co., Burnet, Texas.

"Ayer's Pills are the best medicine known to me for regulating the bowels, and for all diseases caused by a disordered stomach and liver. I suffered for over three years from headache, indigestion, and constipation. I had no appetite and was weak and nervous most of the time. By using three boxes of Ayer's Pills, and at the same time dieting myself, I was completely cured."—Philip Lockwood, Topeka, Kansas.

"I was troubled for years with indigestion, constipation, and headache. A few boxes of Ayer's Pills, used in small daily doses, restored me to health. They are prompt and effective."—W. H. Strout, Meadville, Pa.

Cosmopolite largeness of spirit.

Inflexible will and undeviating purpose.

These may be enlarged by remarking that he showed no haste in plucking the fruit his ambition craved until it was ripe. He could have been premier before he was but gave way to other men. As to concentration of aim he made politics his trade and had no other occupation or distraction. The third attribute has been sufficiently attested in numberless instances his

He is the greatest figure in Canadian history not excepting the heroes that brought the wilds of North America under the flag of France, and in his career the grave and flowing eloquence of Sir John Thompson who will probably record his virtues to the Canadian parliament will find a noble and fitting theme.

Notes

Sir John was one of the best tempered men in the world. He is not known to have lost his temper in all his eventful history half a dozen times.

He was a man of the utmost simplicity. He never contracted "big head." He never sought to impress you that he was Prime Minister of Canada, and that you were an ordinary voter. He talked to the Queen in the same way that he talked to the humblest citizen—with respectful deference, and forgetfulness of his own personality.

Distinguished Canadians Receive Favors From Her Majesty.

LONDON, May 31.—Honors bestowed in connection with the Queen's Birthday have been announced. Robert Gillespie of Montreal, a director of the Grand Trunk Railway, has been knighted and Lieut.-General Sir John Ross, Commander of the Forces in Canada, has been made a Knight-Grand Cross of the Bath.

Artist and Man.

Make thy life better than thy work. Too oft
Our artists spend their skill in rounding soft
Fair curves upon their statues, while the rough
And ragged edges of the unhewn stuff
In their own natures startle and offend
The eye of critic and the heart of friend.

If in thy too brief day thou must neglect
Thy labor or thy life, let men detect
Flaws in thy work! while their most searching gaze
Can fall on nothing which they may not praise
In thy well-chiselled character. The Man
Should not be shadowed by the Artisan!

—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

THE MIKADO.

He Wears the Uniform of a Japanese General When He Walks Abroad.

"The Emperor is coming."

His Imperial Majesty comes first and all alone. I have often seen him, and always find the same difficulty in analyzing my own impressions, or conveying them as to that impassive, reserved, changeless, dark, far-removed countenance. I have seen it all day long in the smoke of the mimic battles at Nagoya, and all night long in the festal halls at the Shiro, and at receptions and court ceremonies; but I never witnessed the slightest alteration of its fixed, immobile features. Only a flatterer could call the proud, cold face handsome, and only an enemy or a snob would, I think, style it austere constraint and lofty discontent ill-looking. One would say this is a Mikado of the past, who is obliged to belong to and bow to before the too-prevailing present, but who nevertheless keeps his secret soul apart in the stern and great society of his ancestors and "with that far-off company of antique Shinto gods."

He walks between us alone, his arm too sacred, to separate, to be taken into public even by the Empress, who comes behind, a small, exquisitely graceful lady dressed in a mauve satin toilet of Parisian style and mauve bonnet, with parasol to match, all borne with the utmost charm and becomingness. Behind her Imperial Majesty, also passing singly, a bevy of ladies of the court, all but one in European dress; and following the ladies the gentlemen of the palace, in black frock coats and tall hats. His Majesty wears the undress uniform of a General—cherry-colored trousers and black-frogged coat braided with gold lace, and on the small, close-cut brows a kepi of scarlet with gold band.

His bow in recognition of all our bare and bended heads is the slightest possible inclination which rigid muscles can make, yet withal accompanied by a glance, kindly, benign and full of evident goodwill, for his lips almost smile, his eyes are alert and lighted, his air is, one might almost dare to say, genial, and these nods of the Japanese Jove must be measured by loyalty, with a micrometer. Moreover when we pass into the refreshment tent, and the Emperor and Empress take their seats, the etiquette observed around is by no means stiff. We may approach the royal table and speak with friends there sitting close to the Majesty of Japan; nay, when champagne has been quaffed and mayonnaise of lobster or chicken tasted, the Emperor condescends very humanly to have personage after personage presented to him, and addresses to some of these—to the writer of these notes among many that were more worthy—some gracious and friendly words in the soft Japanese, which he always speaks. The ladies of the court and the gentlemen mingle meanwhile with the throng and chat, sans ceremonie, with friends therein. We enjoy the honor of acquaintance with one of the ladies in waiting, who tells us pleasing stories of the goodness and grace of her Imperial Majesty, and when we regret that Japanese dress seems discarded, invites us to come and inspect the splendid hitoe, obi, and kanzashi which the attendants of the throne wear inside the palace.

The royal pair depart as they came—the Empress following the Emperor, the plaintive strains of the national hymn again being heard, and we saunter out of the garden.—Edwin Arnold's Correspondence.

Why Girls Can't Throw Stones.

The difference between a girl's throwing and a boy's is substantially this: The boy crooks his elbow and reaches back with the upper part of his arm about at right angles with his body and the forearm at an angle of forty-five degrees. The direct act of throwing is accomplished by bringing the arm back with a sort of snap, working every joint from shoulder to wrist.

The girl throws with her whole arm rigid, the boy with his whole arm relaxed. Why this marked and unmistakeable difference exists may be explained by the fact that the clavicle or collarbone in the feminine anatomy is some inches longer, and set some degrees lower down than in the masculine frame.

The long, crooked, awkward bone interferes with the full and free use of the arm. This is the reason why a girl cannot throw a stone.

Why People Marry.

The reasons that some men give for marrying some women are only to be surpassed by the reasons some women give for marrying some men. There was the man who married his wife because she was left-handed, and it amused him to see her sew with the off hand, as he said. There was the young woman who married her husband because he was fat, and was "so handy to sit on her books of autumn leaves in the fall and press them." Then there was another woman, presumably not so young, who finally married the man who had courted her faithfully for eleven years, because, as she afterward accounted for it, "he had wore his chair in their settin' room plumb out a settin' in it so many years, an' since the' hed to be a new one bought, she thought 't might as well be fur themselves, 'n' on their own account."—New York Sun.

7,965,000 Persons On a Square Mile.

Few are aware of the vast number of people that can be placed on a small tract of ground. When we speak of millions of men we are apt to picture to ourselves an almost boundless mass of humanity; yet a million of people, standing closely together, each not occupying more than four square feet, could be placed on a patch but little more than a third of a mile square. A square mile will accommodate 7,965,000. At that rate the whole population of the United States would hardly cover three miles square, and the whole population of the world could stand on two townships!—St. Louis Republic.

Lay a piece of thick Canton flannel under your tablecloth. Even coarse napery will look a much better quality with a subcover than if spread directly over the table top.

By applying a little of the best carriage oil varnish carefully with a camel's hair brush to the edges of the broken china, the parts being neatly joined together, the fracture will when thoroughly dry, be hardly perceptible, and the china will stand fire and water.

ON FIRE WITH ECZEMA.

Terrible Sufferings of Little Baby. Seven Doctors and Two Hospitals Fail. Cured by Cuticura.

My baby boy, 5 months old, broke out with eczema. The itching and burning was intense; the eczema spread to his limbs, breast, face and head, until he was nearly covered; his torturing agonies were pitiable to behold; he had no peace and but little rest night or day. He was under treatment at different times at two hospitals and by seven doctors in this city without the least benefit; every prescription of the doctors was faithfully tried, but he grew worse all the time. For months I expended about $5 per week for medicines, and was entirely discouraged. I purchased CUTICURA, CUTICURA SOAP and CUTICURA RESOLVENT and followed the directions to the letter. Relief was immediate, his sufferings were eased, and rest and sleep permitted. He steadily improved and in nine weeks time was entirely cured, and has now as clear a skin and is as fair a boy as any mother could wish to see. I recommend every mother to use it for every Baby Humor.

3 PRACTICAL POINTS

One of the most successful German physicians gave as the secret of his wonderful success these three important points:—

1. Keep the Head Cool.
2. Keep the Bowels Open.
3. Keep the Feet Warm.

These conditions are not so easily obtained as one would think. Why? Because without pure and healthy blood a vigorous circulation cannot be kept up, and because the food and occupation of most people tends to clog up the bowels and produce constipation. The success of B. B. B., like that of the German physician, lies in so purifying the blood and regulating the bowels, liver and stomach, that these three conditions are fulfilled easily, and disease can find no lodgment in the body.

THE BEST SPRING MEDICINE.

B B B

This medicine does purify the blood and cure all diseases arising from impure or unhealthy blood. It does regulate the entire system and cure constipation, dyspepsia, biliousness, sick headache, scrofula, skin diseases, rheumatism, and all disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. During the past ten years over one million bottles have been sold in Canada, and, although we guarantee every bottle to do all we claim, we have not received a single complaint.

WHAT $1,000,000,000 IS

SOME IDEA OF THE IMMENSE SUM EXPENDED BY CONGRESS.

A Few Things That Could Be Done with the Money—How Long It Would Take a Man to Throw It Away Piece by Piece.

The sum of $1,000,000,000, which the Fifty-first Congress has expended, in consequence of which that body will hereafter be known only as the Billion Congress, does not appear at first sight to be as large as it really is. Men who are accustomed to handling only such small sums as thousands and millions are not sufficiently conversant with the properties of the gigantic amount of $1,000,000,000 to readily appreciate its full meaning. When, however, it is compared with smaller sums, the enormous size of the amount is more easily to be comprehended.

The sum of $1,000,000,000, exclusive of interest, would support 5,486 families of four persons each in easy comfort for fifty years, at the rate of $10 per day, for each family. It would give 100,000 young men enough capital to start in a profitable business for themselves, or, if loaned out on bond and mortgage at the usual market rate, would earn $60,000,000 of interest a year.

The man who should be so unfortunate as to become the possessor of $1,000,000,000 in silver would have to spend a large amount of money for a strong box capable of holding 58,936,561 3-7 pounds. The box would have to contain 89,508 cubic feet of space.

If the dollars were placed on the ground edge to edge, they would extend to a distance of 23,674 miles, nearly all the way around the equator. Broken into three parts the line would form both a solar and an equatorial axis for the globe, with a spare one left over in case of accident. Divided into seven parts, the line would stretch from Washington to Algiers, Berlin, Edinburgh, Lima, Venice, Paris and Liverpool.

Arranged in triple column, the dollars would form a silver pathway four and one half inches wide from Washington to Yeddo, and in double column, a band three inches wide to Singapore.

Stacked up in single column, the billion dollars would make a monument of Mammon 1,404 miles high, that would stretch away above the clouds until it touched the celestial mint of the Milky Way.

If the dollars were taken up to a considerable distance and thrown to earth in a shower, they would cover an area of more than half a square mile.

The weight of $1,000,000,000 is equal to that of 41,645 American men, and, although the statisticians are not clear upon that particular point, would doubtless outweigh all the sartoriomaniacs in the world.

$1,000,000,000 in $1 Treasury notes would cover more ground. Placed edge to edge the bills would carpet an area of 3.7 square miles, with a liberal fraction left over for repairs. Laid in line lengthwise they would form a belt 3.0625 inches wide and 114,390 miles long, that would go around the earth nearly five times and reach half-way to the moon. The belt could be arranged so that it would divide the earth into eight equal parts and leave enough over to make neckties for all the men in the world.

To carry the comparison still nearer home, $1,000,000,000 in paper money would make, if spun together in one large sheet and then cut up into pieces of the proper size, gowns for 127,867 women, or dresses for 383,601 children.

Regarded merely as so much money, it would buy gowns for all the women in the civilized world, and shoes for 500,000,000 homeless children. It would pay for a trip around the world for 500,000 persons, and buy enough clothing to last 10,000,000 men one year. It would pay for the education of 250,000 children from the kindergarten to and through college, and buy a city lot apiece for 50,000,000 persons—nearly the entire population of the United States.

It would pay the salaries of 20,000 Presidents of the United States, and support the royal family of Great Britain for several years.

One hundred men, earning $10,000 a year each, would have to work 1,000 years to accumulate such a sum between them, and if Adam had started out to earn that amount by himself at gardening or horticulture, he would today have had only a small proportion of it on hand.

A man who might happen to own $1,000,000, would be at a loss to know what to do with it. Even if he wished to throw it away, such would be the work of six or seven lifetimes. If he were to pick up $1 every second and throw it away, he would require 438 years in which to finish his task; and if he were to attempt to burn $1,000,000,000 in paper money, one bill at a time, he would be obliged to work 13,840 years night and day. One billion dollars would pay for all the damage that has ever been done by fire in any part of the world. It would build several palaces such as that described in the tale of Aladdin, and, in fact, be as powerful an agent even as the wonderful lamp.

Four men, working night and day with the sharpest of tools to carve side whiskers on the face of the Goddess of Liberty on the face of each dollar, would require 11,580 years in which to finish the job. If, after having done that, they should wish to give her a full beard, they would need 34,740 years more, and if they should attempt to make her cross-eyed it would take them still another period of 3,210 years.

One child, eating a penny bun every second, would require 42,800 years to eat $1,000,000,000 worth of buns. The same amount expended in oranges would, at the rate at which children eat oranges last one small boy 3,560,000 years, and would then pay for 250,000,000 doctors' visits for him.—New York Sun.

BUY NOW IF AT ALL

EVERY day makes more apparent the fact that the town is going ahead rapidly. Numerous changes have taken place in the way of the ownership of property. Many workingmen are buying houses and lots or lots on which to build. One of the most suitable locations is that known as the Irvin property, at the west end, owned largely by Mr. Wm. Fitzgerald. This week he has closed the sale of a very desirable new house and lot, and has several eligible lots on this property to dispose of. Property in this neighbourhood is rapidly being built up, and it will be well to have a look at the situation if one is at all disposed to buy. The terms are very favorable, and especially low for cash, though payment on time may be arranged.

THE DYING PREMIER

His Condition Unchanged the Past 24 Hours.

FIGHTING THE UNEQUAL BATTLE.

The End May Come Any Hour Now.

The Situation of Affairs at the Capital—Meeting of the Cabinet to Be Held To-day—Who Will Be Called to Form a Ministry?—The Queen Personally Cables Her Regrets—Lord Dufferin Sends a Message of Condolence to Lady Macdonald.

OTTAWA, June 1.—There is practically, no change in the Premier's condition at this hour (2.30), from what it was 48 hours since. During the day these official bulletins were issued:

EARNSCLIFFE, May 31, 5p.m.

I find nothing new to report in the Premier's condition at this hour. He has just partaken of some nourishment, which he swallowed more easily than usual. He has composed himself since in a comfortable position and is now dozing.

R. W. POWELL, M.D.

EARNSCLIFFE, May 31, 11.30 p.m.

The Premier passed a quiet day and we find no marked alteration in his general symptoms. He retains consciousness much as in the past few days and is free from suffering.

R. W. POWELL.
J. A. GRANT.
HENRY P. WRIGHT.

The Situation at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, SUNDAY NOON—The Premier's condition remains practically unchanged since last evening, except that his vital powers seem weakening.

Touching reference to the Premier's condition were made in all the churches, both Catholic and Protestant, this morning. At St. Patrick's Rev. Father Whelan said: "'At this moment Sir John Macdonald, a great figure in Canadian history, is lying at the point of death; a statesman who for nearly 50 years has been intimately connected with public life in Canada, and for nearly all that period has guided her destinies. Universal sympathy would be extended. Even his bitterest political enemy would not deny him sympathy or fail to offer prayers for his recovery."

The Free Press says editorially regarding the situation: "Was it with the view of preventing a stampede from the party ranks that the ministerial organs announced that Sir Charles Tupper would not be sent for to act as premier during Sir John Macdonald's illness, or did Sir Hector Langevin kick against the proposal to ignore his claims to the party leadership?"

Hon. David Mills, M. P., gave it as his opinion this morning, that in the event of Sir John's death, the ministers would not have to resign and appeal to the people before accepting office under a new chief. He said that the law was still in force that allows a minister to resume office within thirty days after his resignation, without re-election. The only change made in the law after the "Double Shuffle," was that this could not be done if any other minister intervened.

"Take a suppositious case," he was asked. "Suppose Sir Charles Tupper were called upon to form a Ministry, and could not reach here for two weeks, could Parliament sit in the meantime?"

"It could," replied Mr. Mills, "but it would not be likely to. Sir Charles might do as Sir Robert Peel did when Lord Melbourne was beaten in 1834. Sir Charles was traveling on the continent and the Duke of Wellington lead the Ministry until he could reach London; thus Sir Charles might delegate his duties to Sir John Thompson, until he could arrive."

A View of Earnscliffe.

Sir John's life now hangs on a slender thread. He is fighting with his characteristic tenacity against the dread visitor, but with a vitality slowly ebbing away. The unequal struggle cannot be much longer maintained. Since Friday afternoon, though deprived of the power of speech, he has maintained the cheerfulness, for which he was famed in health. Not the appearance of a regret or disappointment has been manifested. Though still conscious, he realizes his doom is approaching, and seems prepared for the final call. With his left arm, which is still serviceable, he makes known his desires. He passed the night quietly and engaged in periods of brief rest. Whenever Lady Macdonald entered the sick room his face, which has assumed an ashen hue, lights up. Nothing can describe the attachment he entertains for the talented woman who for so many years has been both wife and nurse to him. On a large-sized brass bedstead he lies, his head slightly propped up. The windows of the sick room, which look out from the second story on the well kept lawn, are flung wide open. The heat is oppressive and only a slight coverlet is over the dying man.

In an ante-room is a large table where hundreds of cablegrams and despatches from Canada, England and the United States are being momentarily deposited. Two secretaries are busily engaged dictating replies to assistants. Her Majesty the Queen, Lord Salisbury, Lord Lorne, the Viceroy of India, Lord Lansdowne, and scores of other distinguished people have sent cablegrams of enquiry, coupled with regret at the Premier's condition.

Relatives Arriving.

Mrs. Hugh John Macdonald, Sir John's daughter-in-law, has arrived from Winnipeg, and Miss Fitzgibbon, a relative of Lady Macdonald, reaches the capital this morning from the west. Mr. Fred White, who spent the night in the sick room, says Sir John is making a brave but hopeless fight.

Political Crisis.

A crisis in political circles is imminent. The Cabinet sat six hours yesterday, but as if by arrangement the lips of all the Cabinet Ministers are sealed.

Sir Hector Langevin, as senior Privy Councillor, will in the event of Sir John's demise be summoned by the Governor-General. With the McGreevy scandal hanging over him as a drawn sword, he will naturally decline leaving the question of leadership between Sir Jno. Thompson and Sir Chas. Tupper. The Government has already held an informal conference with the Minister of Justice, but indications are that a large wing of the Conservative party will insist upon the selection of Sir Chas. Tupper as the next premier.

A caucus of the party will be held at an early date, and Parliament to-morrow will be asked to adjourn probably for a week. The general feeling is to the effect that Sir Chas. Tupper's antagonism to the Grand Trunk will prove a serious obstacle to his successful administration of affairs.

Archbishop Walsh's Tribute.

At St. Michael's Cathedral His Grace Archbishop Walsh spoke feelingly in reference to the Premier this morning. He said:

"Sir John Macdonald, our Premier, still lives, but no hopes are entertained of his recovery. All honest Canadians, of whatever political party, must admit that he has done much good for his country. The prayers of the faithful are earnestly requested that the blessing of God will rest upon him."

OTTAWA, May 30—At 5 o'clock Sir John is still alive. That is about all that can be said. He has taken nourishment several times in the shape of whisky and milk and he retains thorough consciousness, but the paralysis shows no sign of improvement and he is still speechless. None of the doctors who have seen him hold out the slightest hope, and so far as human knowledge goes, it is only a question of a few hours when the dissolution will come.

Rumors of Change.

The air is positively heavy with political rumors and the wildest stories are afloat of all sorts of possible and impossible combinations. Coalition seems to have taken possession of some people's brains, and a good deal of the talk is about that. But I do not think there is the slightest possibility of either Mr. Blake, Mr. Mowat, Sir Charles Tupper, Sir Alexander Galt, all of whose names are used, being asked to form a ministry. What will probably occur will be the formation of a temporary Government with the Hon. J. J. C. Abbott as Premier and Sir John Thompson as leader in the house, with the distinct understanding and a positive promise from both leaders that the Cabinet is to be entirely reconstructed immediately after prorogation and nearly all the Ontario and Quebec portfolios changed. From talks with leading members of the Conservative party I find that there are strong objections amongst the Ontario members to Sir Charles Tupper and that any talk of Sir John Thompson as Premier is always qualified with the name of D'Alton McCarthy or some other prominent Protestant Equal Righter from Ontario as an offset to the fact of Thompson being a Roman Catholic. Sir Hector Langevin is completely counted out and nobody has for a moment considered the possibility of Mr. Laurier being sent for. Indeed I happened by chance to overhear the leader of the Opposition himself say to a prominent official of the House that he expected Sir Charles Tupper would be sent for. By a curious coincidence this took place while the motion of want of confidence in the Government on account of Sir Charles Tupper's participation in the late election was under discussion last night. I know that the general impression amongst the Opposition is that Sir Charles will be sent for, but that is not the impression amongst Conservatives.

Of course in the matter of "sending for" anyone to form a Ministry, it must always be remembered that the Governor-General acts on his own responsibility. As Dr. Bourinot, clerk of the House of Commons said to to-day, that is the one act in which the Opposition cannot say the Governor-General is a mere figurehead as he has the undoubted right to exercise the prerogative of the Crown in this matter, and being deprived of his chief adviser, send for whom he pleases to advise him. Of course it becomes incumbent on that adviser to obtain the support of Parliament, but His Excellency is not bound by either law or precedent to send for any particular person.

Sir Hector Out of It.

As the senior privy councillor, it would appear under ordinary circumstances as if Sir Hector Langevin would be the most likely person for His Excellency to send for. But it is not at all probable that he will send for a man over whom such grave charges of malfeasance in office are hanging as are at present pending over Sir Hector Langevin. Therefore I am of the opinion that Abbott, as leader of the Government in the Senate, will be sent for. What will be done then? Will there be prorogation? Will there be an adjournment? Will there be an immediate reconstruction of the Cabinet? Does the death of the Premier involve the resignation of the whole Cabinet. These and a dozen other questions have been asked a hundred times to-day.

I cannot pretend to uncover them all but commencing with the last question first I may say that Dr. Bourinot informs me that the death of the First Minister does not mean as is generally supposed the death of the entire Cabinet, the only precedent in Canada is the case of Sir E. P. Tache who died on the 30th July, 1865, while premier of the Coalition Government formed to carry confederation. On that occasion Lord Monck, who was Governor-General, sent for Sir John Macdonald (then Hon. Mr. Macdonald and Attorney-General for Upper Canada) to form a ministry. Hon. George Brown, who was then in the ministry and Hon. W. P. Howland objected to serve under "John A." and a compromise was effected by the selection of Sir Narcisse Belleau who took the presidency of the Council and the seat in the Legislative Council of which he became leader, held by Sir E. P. Tache. There was no dissolution, no reconstruction of the Cabinet, no resignation of any of the ministers although George Brown left the Ministry shortly after on another question as to prorogation or adjournment of the House. The last information I can get is that there will be no adjournment except for the funeral.

There has been a lot of talk to-day that the House will be asked to vote a lump sum for the purpose of carrying on the business of the country, but it is not likely this will be asked and almost certain that the opposition will refuse if asked. It is true that what are called votes on account are common in England, but there the circumstances are different, and I know of no precedent in connection. As to the reconstruction that

THE CAMPAIGN TOO MUCH.

Senator Sullivan Says Sir John's Health Was Greatly Impaired.

KINGSTON, May 31.—Senator Sullivan returned from Ottawa. He said that just before he left the Capital Sir John sent a messenger after him asking him to come and see him. When the doctor went into Sir John's room he held out his hand and seemed unusually bright. He told about some of his symptoms and the doctor explained the character of them.

In the course of conversation Sir John said the Montreal doctors wanted him to take a rest. He ridiculed this idea, saying: "Do they want me to shut my eyes and do nothing? You know, doctor, I could never do that."

The doctor said he did not examine Sir John and was not in a position to state exactly what the nature of his sickness was.

Dr. Sullivan supposed that Sir John's sickness originated here during the election campaign. The labor of attending meetings at night and visiting public works and canvassing was too great for him in his old age. He was not rugged enough, and the work which used to be enjoyment was disagreeable to him. He attended public meetings in the city and Napanee, and became very much prostrated. But what did him most harm, causing him to be confined to his room until after the election, was a visit to the Canadian engine and locomotive works the day after attending a public meeting. The labor of climbing stairs and the dusty air tended to weaken his constitution and made him feel as if he should be in bed. After this work he became ill, and medical aid had to be called to his relief. Dr. Sullivan was the physician chosen to wait upon him. The doctor, in diagnosing his condition, found that he was suffering from congestion of one lung, and that his heart was weak. After skilled treatment and careful nursing he rallied sufficiently to keep two secretaries busy. But he at last made a grave mistake by going to Ottawa the night before the election.

It would have been better for him had he remained until he had entirely recovered. He should have retired for several months. He was not physically in a fit state to engage in the arduous work of directing the affairs of the state. "Why" said Dr. Sullivan, "the day before the Montreal physicians came to see him he kept his two secretaries busily employed."

When Sir John arrived here from Ottawa on the eve of the last elections he gave evidence of great vigor of both mind and body, greeted his old friends of both political parties with a warm grasp and entered into the business of preparing for the approaching contest with his usual spirit and determination. His activity put renewed life into the whole party. The Tuesday before nomination he addressed a large meeting of his supporters in the opera house and still gave no sign of yielding to the great mental and physical exhaustion which must have resulted from his tireless labors for the party. It was not till Wednesday, after the meeting at Napanee, that he put himself into the hands of the medical men after an attack of faintness, which on Thursday became so serious that Dr. Sullivan, who attended him, gave orders that he must not on any account be present at the nomination. His final election success, combined with the enforced rest, probably tended to put him on his feet again and at the opening of the House was in his place as usual. John McIntyre, Q.C., was in receipt of numerous telegrams from Earnscliffe this morning announcing the condition of Canada's statesman.

VICTORIA SENDS REGRETS.

The Queen Personally Sends a Message to Sir John.

OTTAWA, May 31.—Her Majesty the Queen cabled Sir John last night expressing regret at his illness and expressing her desire to be constantly informed of his condition. The cablegram was signed "Victoria." Lord Dufferin also cabled from Rome this evening as follows:

Pope, Private Secretary, Ottawa:

Regret to learn of Sir John Macdonald's illness. Convey my sympathy to Lady Macdonald. (Sgd.) DUFFERIN.

THE MESSENGER KILLED.

A Deaf and Dumb Man Killed on the Grand Trunk.

PARIS, May 31.—James Havill, 30 years of age, deaf and dumb, was instantly killed by a westbound train on the G.T.R. this afternoon, about a mile west of here. He was walking on the track intending to deliver a message to a neighbor when the train overtook him.

BRITISH AND FOREIGN.

SIR GEORGE STEPHEN CREATED A PEER.

The First Occasion on Which the Peerage has Been Bestowed on a Colonial—The Atlantic Steamship Service—General European News of a Night.

LONDON, May 30.—The Queen's Birthday honors list is chiefly notable for omissions. Only three names of Canadian interest are included. Sir George Stephen is made a peer. Robert Gillespie, chairman of the Canada Company, is made a knight; General Sir John Ross, commanding the troops at Halifax, is made G.C.B.

The Times says: Sir George Stephen's honor is the first instance of colonial services being recognized by a peerage." The Times claims it is an indication that the present Government exceeds previous Governments in the desire to draw closer the bonds of union with the colonies.

The Pall Mall Gazette says it is an Imperial incident the beginning of a Colonial House of Lords—the first swallow of the summer of Colonial recognition. It urges that the honor be followed by the apoption of the principle of Colonial life peerage.

THE CZAR FRIGHTENED.

By Dynamite Found in the Customs Department of the French Exhibition.

MOSCOW, May 31.—The discovery of four large boxes of dynamite in the customs department of the French exhibition last Sunday was in part the reason for the delay of the royal visit to Moscow. The boxes would have been seized on the frontier but for the concessions made by the customs department which allowed exhibits to pass unopened. The whole ground under the dais erected for the Czar was then excavated, owing to fears that it had been undermined, but nothing was found. Rumors that mines were discovered on the railway and under the route taken by the Czar are unconfirmed, but the most extreme precautions were taken. The police even removed the roof of a triumphal arch in their zeal to insure the safety of the Czar, and every window facing on the streets was ordered closed.

Awarded to Holland by the Czar.

LONDON, May 31.—The Czar, as the arbitrator in the dispute between Holland and France, regarding the Guiana boundary, has decided in favor of Holland, taking from France the territory lying at the fork of the rivers Tapanahoni and Awara, and giving it to Holland. This decision increases the suspicion as to France's sincerity in seeking an understanding with Russia.

SENSATION IN AMHERSTBURG.

Rev. William Wye Charged with Disorderly, Criminal and Scandalous Conduct.

WINDSOR, May 30.—For the past year there has been trouble among the parishioners of Christ Church, Amherstburg, and a number of charges have been made against the presiding clergyman, Rev. William Wye. A commission appointed by Bishop Baldwin met in Amherstburg on Thursday and went into the matter. The prosecution and the defence were both represented by lawyers. The charges brought against Mr. Wye are of "disorderly, criminal and scandalous conduct." He is also charged with making false returns to the synod. The evidence for the prosecution was principally a copious report of a hearing before F. E. Marcon last June, when Mr. Wye was up on a judgment summons, and the prosecution contended that he swore falsely. The commission will report to the Bishop, who will then give his decision.

Another British Victory.

CAPE TOWN, May 30.—Details received here about the recent fight between the British and Portuguese show that the Portuguese attacked the force commanded by Capt. Hayman of the chartered company, who was camped on Cema Hill, six miles west of Massikesse, on the road to Mitema. The conflict was waged for two hours, and finally the Portuguese were repulsed. No British were killed.

Seized the Pictures.

PARIS, May 30.—The third art sale was opened here to-day. While the galleries were crowded with visitors a sensation was caused by the police seizing two pictures hanging on the walls. One picture represented Emperor William on horseback trampling on the prostrate figure of France and carrying off women, representing Alsace-Lorraine. The other picture depicted a desert stream with skulls, one of which bore a likeness to the features of Jules Ferry.

By the Speaker's Casting Vote.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., May 30.—The Assembly divided yesterday on a motion of want of confidence in the Government and against the resolutions in favor of Australian federation. The result of the division was a tie, [illegible] members voting on each side. The Speaker threw his casting vote in favor of the Government.

Atlantic Steamship Service.

LONDON, May 31.—Mr. Chaplin, President of the Board of Agriculture, will introduce in the House of Commons to-morrow a bill to regulate cattle traffic on the Atlantic. The bill is a short and simple one, and mainly proposes to enable the Board of Agriculture to impose regulations on the cattle traffic giving effect to the recommendations of the committee which recently investigated the matter. The steamship companies are organizing to oppose the bill, as the measure will involve an extensive alteration of the internal fittings of vessels in the cattle carrying trade. The Government does not expect to pass the bill this session.

Close of the Conference.

EDINBURGH, May 31.—The International Templars' Conference to-day discussed the status of Catholic members and resolved that it is not a violation of Templar obligations for a member to communicate work of the order to a clergyman under the seal of confession. Declarations were also passed reaffirming the prohibition principles. The session afterward closed.

The Game Ended Fatally.

HALIFAX, May 30.—Yesterday evening F. C. Borradaile of Halifax, shipping clerk in the Londonderry Iron Company's Rolling mill at Londonderry, while standing on the railway track in front of the mill talking to a friend was struck by a car that had been started down an incline by some school boys. The car passed over Borradaile, injuring him so severely that he died this morning. He was a son of E. Borradaile, Inspector of Inland Revenue at this port.

No Trace Yet.

CORNWALL, May 31.—No trace has yet been discovered of the body of the late P. Purcell and the detectives have given up the search. The executors of the estate have raised the amount of the reward offered for the recovery of the body to $5000.

King of Medicines

A Cure "Almost Miraculous."

"When I was 14 years of age I had a severe attack of rheumatism, and after I recovered had to go on crutches. A year later, scrofula, in the form of white swellings, appeared on various parts of my body, and for 11 years I was an invalid, being confined to my bed 6 years. In that time ten or eleven sores appeared and broke, causing me great pain and suffering. I feared I never should get well.

"Early in 1886 I went to Chicago to visit a sister, but was confined to my bed most of the time I was there. In July I read a book, 'A Day with a Circus,' in which were statements of cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was so impressed with the success of this medicine that I decided to try it. To my great gratification the sores soon decreased, and I began to feel better and in a short time I was up and out of doors. I continued to take Hood's Sarsaparilla for about a year, when, having used six bottles, I had become so fully released from the disease that I went to work for the Flint & Walling Mfg. Co., and since then on account of sickness. I believe the disease is expelled from my system, I always feel well, am in good spirits and have a good appetite. I am now 27 years of age and can walk as well as any one, except that one limb is a little shorter than the other, owing to the loss of bone, and the sores formerly on my right leg. To my friends my recovery seems almost miraculous, and I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the king of medicines." WILLIAM A. LEHR, 9 N. Railroad St., Kendallville, Ind.

GROWTH OF INDUSTRIES.

THE census will give Canadians, says the Empire, an idea of the immense growth of the industrial enterprises of the country which have served the double purpose of providing an enlarged home market for the farmer and giving varied and profitable employment to our young population. The increase in the imports of raw material give some notion of the growth of home industries. The value of the import of wool has grown in ten years, comparing 1880 with 1890, from $1,664,761 to $3,539,249; raw cotton has increased from $1,496,624 to $3,761,776, and other materials for use in the manufacture of like proportions. In 1880 the value of the hemp imported was $383,368, last year it was $774,587; raw silk has increased from $59,690 to $192,524; soap grease from $62,592 to $154,665; canvas for vehicles from $11,033 to $27,374; gutta percha for rubber goods, etc., from $156,272 to $636,306, and rags for paper from $141,781 to $237,499. The import of partly manufactured materials for use in various Canadian manufactures also shows great expansion, and such items as wooden materials, imported for manufacturing purposes, $33,381, against nine ten years ago, and $54,425 worth of fishery products now, compared with none then, are indications of the growth of domestic commerce. In 1880 the unmanufactured tobacco imported was worth $816,810, while last year the import was valued at $1,424,281, and the industry gives employment to a great number of persons. These figures give but an imperfect idea of the total increase, but they supply at least an inkling of what may be expected when the whole official returns are gathered.

Nature proves a remedy for all ills, and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is natures remedy for the ills peculiar to the female system. Suppressions, weakness, nervousness and all diseases resulting from impoverished blood, speedily yield to their treatment. Sold by dealers, or sent on receipt of price—50c. per box, or 5 boxes for $2—address The Dr. Williams Med. Co., Brockville, Ont.

REVIEWS.

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE.—Scribner's for June continues the notable series on The Great Streets of the world, and Ocean Steamships; Francisque Sarcey being the author of the article on The Boulevards of Paris and William H. Rideing contributing the paper on Safety on the Atlantic. The illustrations in both groups continue to be very rich, and appropriately supplement the text, adding to its significance and picturesqueness. Another group of articles, that on Practical Charity, is represented in this issue by a sympathetic and often amusing account of Boys' Clubs. The author, Evert Jansen Wendell, has for a number of years taken very active part in the work of these most charitable associations, and writes from the fullest knowledge and great personal interest in the clubs. Amateur photographers will find much to interest them in the article on Some Photographs of Luminous Objects, with many illustrations reproduced directly from the negatives by mechanical processes. The fiction includes stories and sketches by F. J. Stimson, Bliss Perry and Maria Blunt. There is also an essay on Moliere by Andrew Lang with a striking portrait as the frontispiece of the number; and a calm, critical review on large lines, of some of the most significant features of the Civil war, viewed as illustrations of military science and strategy. The author, John C. Ropes, is one of the closest students of military history in this country, and one most fitted to treat the subject free from personal prejudices. The paper on The Boulevards of Paris is by Sarcey, one of the most brilliant of contemporary French journalists, and a man thoroughly possessed of the spirit and color of all that is characteristic in Paris. He gives the life of the Boulevards from the opening of the cafes in the morning to the suppers after midnight, when the theatres close. The restaurants, the shops, and the theatres, which are most characteristic of the boulevards, are brilliantly described. The illustrations are by G. Jeanniot, the distinguished French artist.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE.—The June number of Harper's contains the opening chapters of Peter Ibbetson, a novel written and illustrated by the celebrated artist George du Maurier. Louis Frechette, the famous Canadian poet, contributes to the same number a picturesque description of The Royal Chateaux of the Loire, accompanied by numerous illustrations drawn by C. S. Reinhart and others. A. T. Quiller Couch's second paper on The Warwickshire Avon, relating to the scenery and associations of Shakespeare's country, is accompanied by nearly thirty illustrations from drawings by Alfred Parsons, and forms a very attractive feature of this number. Henry Loomis Nelson writes a timely article on Town and Village Government. Anna C Brackett, in a practical article entitled The Technique of Rest, discusses some subjects of special interest to busy people whose supply of nervous force is in danger of being overtaxed. Theodore Child, in his ninth article on the Spanish republics of South America, describes an inland voyage of 1200 miles, Up the River Parana, from Buenos Ayres to the Paraguayan town of Villa Concepcion. Walter Besant contributes the first of an important series of papers on London—the life of its people and the features which characterized its existence during the various periods of its history. The fiction of this number includes, besides the opening of Mr. Du Maurier's Novel, a short story, The Failure of David Berry, by Sarah Orne Jewett, and the conclusion of the two serials by Charles Egbert Craddock and Thomas Hardy. The sonnet entitled The Closed Gate, by Louise Chandler Moulton, is an affecting tribute to the memory of Winifred Howells. Other poems are contributed by Elizabeth Stoddard, George, Horton and Will Carleton. The editorial departments, conducted by George William Curtis, William Dean Howells and Charles Dudley Warner, embrace discussions on a variety of timely and entertaining topics.

A Handsome Girl

Is "a thing of beauty and a joy for ever;" but where the charms of youthful health, the rosy lips, and pearly teeth, are accompanied by the breath of catarrh! Why it is time that the maiden bought Clark's Catarrh Cure, price 50 cents. This would cure the catarrh at once, and save her chances if not her life. No other remedy so easy and pleasant to take, and nothing else so sure. There is no excuse for an offensive breath when it can be avoided and prevented so easily and pleasantly. Bashful ladies may send the price direct to Clark Chemical Co., Toronto.

KEENE CHRONICLES.

Correspondence of the Review.

OTONABEE COUNCIL.—The Council met in Keene on May 27th, all the members present. The following accounts were passed: Kingan & Co., nails, 90c.; Robert Borland, repairing Duck Pond drain, $6 00; Joseph Redmond, gravel, $4.35; Protestand Home, Peterborough, for W. Walton, $2.50. Thos. Blezard, M.P.P., was appointed arbitrator to alter the bounds of Union School No. 12 and 18, Asphodel and Otonabee, as petitioned for by Chas. Leitch. On motion it was decided not to levy a dog tax. Mr. Redmond was heard, urging the Council not to allow the proposed telephone line to interfere with or destroy the shade trees on the public highway. He (Mr. Redmond) spoke at considerable length as to the beautifying of the country by planting shade trees along our highways and as to the shelter they will afford in the future to the traveller and strongly denounced the destruction of them by telegraph companies. The Council decided to do all in their power to have them protected. Mr. Redmond also pointed out to the Council the very poor fences the G.T.R. Company has built along its line through Otonabee, the posts being from 30 to 40 feet apart; consequently the wires sag so as to be very little benefit in turning animals. The Council are going to look into the matter. Robert Borland was appointed caretaker of the Duck Pond drain. Adam Thompson was appointed to expend the sum of $40 to improve the quarter line between lots 21 and 22, con. 12 On motion Samuel Sargent was allowed to commute his statute his statute labor for two years. A resolution was passed that the Council has no objection to the incorporation of the Peterborough city railway company. Council and Court of Revision adjourned to 13th June.

A Pleasant Herb Drink—A Spring Medicine.

The druggists tell us that the people call daily for the new cure for constipation and sick-headache discovered by Dr. Silas Lane. It is said to be Oregon grape root (a great remedy in the far west for those complaints) combined with simple herbs, and is made for use by pouring on boiling water to draw out the strength. It sells at 50c and $1 a package and is called Lane's Family Medicine.

SONG OF THE HEROES.

Heroism gains in the darkness and the storms,
Noble work is done, silent heroes in their homes,
Song of the heroes, song of youth!
Song of liberty, hope and truth!
The heroes of the British isles, great nation;
Her colonies governed, able good men at their station;
Our Gracious Soverign Queen does study to promote
The well being of her people with earnest Christian thought.

This Canada of ours, land of beauty and might,
Happy people, loving freedom, peace and right.
Along our river banks the redman graves are seen;
Cabot, Columbus, Livingston, distant lands to dream.
Sir Macdonald, Premier, farseeing, steady hand,
Our country, in its youth, best interest, he's planned;
Our other statesmen, too, have done full well,
Their works of wisdom direction in the near future tell.

And other leading nations have studied to inspire
Their subjects with true courage, heroic fire,
Till all the nations of the world, learning, be wise,
To understand their mission, true heroism, sacrifice.
Irresistible, Grace Darling, Joan of Arc;
The heroes of the cradle will gladly do their part.
McDougall for the work of missions time and life bestow;
Christian mother, in the noblest sense a hero.

Making merchandise of men, how sad the story!
But Wilberforce with stronger mind did glory
To labor and to toil, heroic deeds to obtain.
That liberty for all the slaves set free again.
Humanity akin to slavery found,
But in the Book of Truth there is no ground
For such a traffic. Be valiant for the truth, be strong.
Emancipation, that great work, earnest hero Lincoln!

Heroes of the battle field, heroes of the sea!
Light brigade, Bruce, Wallace, rewards of victory.
Boy heroes ask for a place in the efforts of men
And go by steps up the ladder of fame.
The sea's great war ships, navy strong.
Lord Nelson with his hero courage wisdom won.
We trust the sword has had its mission all for good.
Cromwell and other daring hero warriors understood.

The hero leader, Patience, work sublime;
Painters, artists, agriculture every time;
School system, Ryerson, wise plan,
Education within the reach of every man.
Why left, Knox and Luther? Latimer, Ridley died at stake
And other kind heroes mission to the lepers take;
Milton, though blind, by inspiration saw adored
A world, bought back, redeemed and Paradise restored.

Who shall not his mission, fully tried.
Give praise, proclaim Him King who died?
The world with truer heroism spread,
Christian dispensation of love and mercy led
Great source of life, giver of all good,
Thou dost inspire thy people that would
Be earnest. Worker, toil on; labor is rest.
The Christian hero after all is blest.

THE MAYS OF A DECADE.

The Weather of the Mays of the Last Ten Years Given for Comparison.

Mr. Thos. Telford contributes the following which will be interesting at this time:—For some time back a number of people have been inquiring if we ever had a dryer May and when we were going to get rain. Some, I believe, are almost of the opinion that I can bring rain when I like. I will now, for what information it can furnish to those anxious enquirers, give them the Mays of the last decade, so they can read and judge for themselves. During the month of May, 1881, rain fell on 11 days to the enormous depth of 9 inches and 41-100, with three thunder storms, on the 10th, the first one, rain falling to the depth of two inches and 25-100; on the 15th again falling 2 inches and 14-100, and the day after this storm rain again falling to the depth of 1 inch and 50-100. The 3rd and 4th were the only low registering, being each day at 34 degrees at sunrise, but on the 12th it went as high as 71 degrees, the frost injuring vegetables, but no snow. In May of 1882 we find rain fell on 12 days to the depth of 3 inches and 47-100, with white frost on 5 days, but doing little harm, the lowest being 28 with slight snow on the 1st and 2nd, but no thunder storms. In May of 1883 rain fell on 21 days to the depth of 4 inches and 67-100. We had only two small thunder storms and no frost of any account, the lowest being 34 degrees on the 4th. This was a fine month. In May of 1884 we find rain fell on 12 days to the depth of 2 inches and 73-100. We had twice distant thunder, but no rain, but on the 14th, 15th and 16th it was one continuous gale from the northwest with some snow and hail on the 14th. On the 28th, 29th, 30th and 31st it was one continued frost, the last day going 4 degrees below the freezing point and killing all vegetables and crops that frost could destroy. The May of 1885 was a peculiar month, rain falling on 9 days to the depth of 1 inch and 91-100. Snow fell on 6 days to the depth of 3½ inches. There was neither frost nor thunder of any consequence, the lowest thermometer being on the 3rd, at 34 degrees, but twice in the shade it went up to 85 degrees and once to 88. In May of 1886 rain fell on 11 days to the depth of 2 inches and 88 100. We had no thunder, but on the 28th, 29th and 30th we had sharp frost, with ice on each morning, the thermometer being down to 30 degrees. The May of 1887 is undoubtedly our pet month; rain fell on 7 days to the depth of 1 inch and 17-100, with scarcely ever the appearance of frost, the coldest being on the 14th, only down to 38 degrees, but on the 8th we had 84 degrees in the shade at 2 p.m., on the 9th 82 degrees, on the 10th 86 degrees, on the 12th at 83 degrees, on the 16th at 80 degrees, on the 20th at 88 degrees, the 21st at 92 degrees the 22nd at 94 degree and the 23rd at 90 degrees. How is that for May with corresponding degrees for night and morning? The May of 1888 was both warm and cold. Rain fell on 11 days to the depth of 1 inch and 50-100, twice thunder but no rain and twice some snow, 5 times frost and on the 17 the ice being a ¼ of an inch thick, the lowest reached during the month being 6 degrees below the freezing point, but on the 11th in the shade at 2 p.m. it stood at 81 degrees, on the 22nd and 23rd at 84 degrees each day. Rain fell on 12 days in May of 1889, to the depth of 4 inches and 50-100; there were three slight thunder storms, twice slight snow, sharp frost on 7 mornings, the coldest being on the 22, the thermometer going to 6 degrees below the freezing point, but on the 6th at 2 p.m. it went up to 85 degrees in the shade, on the 7th to 90 degrees, on the 8th to 90 degrees, on the 9th to 80 degrees, on the 10th to 80 degrees, on the 11th to 84 degrees, on the 12th to 80 degrees, and on the 18th to 90 degrees, being the steadiest hot month during the 10 years. In May of 1890, rain fell on 18 days to the depth of 2 inches and 76-100, snow on 2 days, thunder on 4 but little rain, 4 mornings we had frost, the coldest being on the 8th, going down to 6 degrees below the freezing point and on the 31st rising to 86 degrees in the shade. But this year April was dry, only falling 1 inch and 50-100, and in May, now gone, we have had both hot and cold and also very dry, only falling 26 100 of an inch of rain and not more than 5 mornings have we had dew. From the above every one can see for themselves our hottest, our coldest, our wettest and our dryest month of May.

Sudden Changes.

A cold, or exposure, may cause the poisonous acids in the blood to clog its circulation. This is Rheumatism. Clark's Lightning Liniment will stop the pain at once. It should be taken both internally and externally if the attack is severe, and it affords instant relief. If the pain appears again, it should be met with the same treatment, until a cure is effected. This wonderful preparation has worked some remarkable cures among Rheumatic sufferers. Where once tried, it is always used after. Sold by all druggists; price fifty cents. Clark Chemical Co., Toronto.

OBITUARY.

The Late Wm. Dennon.

Mr. Wm. Dennon, a gentleman widely known throughout this district, died at his residence in Ashburnham on Saturday evening. The deceased was a victim of that dread disease, consumption, and had been in feeble health for some time past. He was a comparatively young man, being thirty-eight years of age at the time of his death. He was a member of the Masonic Order and the funeral took place under the auspices of that Order this afternoon. The deceased leaves a wife and eight children, who will be extended the most sincere sympathy in their bereavement.

Death of Mrs. (Dr.) Yelland

One of the saddest deaths which has been recorded for some time was that of Luella McCall, wife of Dr. A. E. Yelland, which took place at her late residence corner of George and Murray-sts. this morning. It was a sudden bereavement for her friends and a terrible blow to her relatives. A young woman full of life, vivacious and bright, it was a severe shock to her friends when she was so suddenly taken away. The deceased lady's death was caused by brain fever. The disease never showed its symptoms until Saturday morning and, notwithstanding that everything medical skill could do was done, it was all in vain and she succumbed to the terrible disease. She was a daughter of the late Robt. McCall, of Springville. Her death will be regretted by a wide circle of friends, and her sorrowing relatives will receive the most sincere and heartfelt sympathy in their sudden and sad bereavement. The funeral will take place from her late residence at three o'clock to-morrow afternoon to the Little Lake Cemetery.

THE AGED PREMIER.

The Latest News from the Capital.

HIS CONDITION UNCHANGED.

References to His Illness in the Town Churches.

All day yesterday that same general sadness and subdued excitement which was so marked on Saturday when the news of the hopeless condition of Canada's Premier became known, was manifested by the citizens. The telegraph offices were eagerly questioned as to the latest news and at the morning service in nearly all the town churches telegrams announcing the unchanged condition of Sir John were read. It was an anxious day for the people of Peterborough and of the Dominion.

On Saturday evening a special service for prayer and supplication in behalf of the prostrated statesman was held at St. John's church. Rev. J. C. Davidson, the rector, made an impressive address, referring in terms of honor and respect to the life and labors of the man who had accomplished so much for his country and was now hovering at death's door. Special prayers were then offered for Sir John and an appropriate hymn sung. The service was of that subdued, solemn, impressive character becoming the occasion.

Yesterday special reference was made to the severe loss which threatened the nation by her first minister's illness and supplications were offered in his behalf in nearly all the churches in town and Ashburnham.

To-day that same intense anxiety is manifested by everyone and the messages from the sick chamber at Earnscliff have been eagerly scanned as they have been posted in front of the REVIEW office. The following are the bulletins received.

By Telegraph to the Review.

SLEPT MORE THAN USUAL.

"8 45 a.m.—Sir John slept more than usual during the night. His symptoms this morning as I write show no change from yesterday. At intervals his heart's action becoming very weak, but rallies after nourishment and a change in posture. Another bulletin will be issued at 11 o'clock.

"Signed, R. W. POWELL, M.D."

A HOPEFUL REPORT.

OTTAWA, June 1, 8.45 a.m.—Sir John's condition apparently shows a decided improvement and there is now an increasing belief that he will recover. Sir James Grant speaks very hopefully of the case.

GROWING WEAKER.

OTTAWA, June 1, noon.—Sir John has gradually grown weaker since 10.30 a.m. and it is not thought that he can last much longer.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by millions of mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

A Pointer for the Police.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—Will you kindly allow me to make a suggestion through your columns, viz., that the police keep an eye and also an ear on the little park on George-st? Every evening boys congregate there to play ball, which is quite proper, but the language they indulge in is decidedly otherwise. Residents in this neighborhood are positively shocked at the terrible blasphemy which fills the air nightly.

Trusting that the police will prohibit this nuisance and thanking you for inserting this,

Believe me

Everybody Knows

That at this season the blood is filled with impurities, the accumulation of months of close confinement in poorly ventilated stores, workshops and tenements. All these impurities and every trace of scrofula, salt rheum, or other diseases may be expelled by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, the best blood purifier ever produced. It is the only medicine of which "100 doses one dollar" is true.

Boils, carbuncles, and eruptions of all kinds are nature's efforts to throw off poison from the blood. This result may be accomplished much more effectually, as well as agreeably, through the proper excretory channels, by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

AMONG THE CHURCHES.

Confirmation at St. Peter's—Induction of St. Andrew's new Pastor

A very pleasing and impressive ceremony took place at St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday after the last mass, when His Lordship Bishop O'Connor gave confirmation to over one hundred children, boys and girls, and a few adults. Before proceeding with the service His Lordship briefly addressed those to be confirmed, stating the duties and obligations regarding the sacrament which they were about to receive and its importance. His Lordship then, assisted by Rev. Fathers Rudkins and Dube, proceeded to perform the sacred rite with the usual solemnity, during which the choir rendered some sweet music appropriate to the occasion. After the ceremony the usual promises of temperance and performance of religious duties were made by those confirmed.

To-morrow St. Andrew's congregation which has been without a pastor for a few months past will again have a minister at their head. Rev. Andrew MacWilliams, who comes from South Mountain, will be inducted into his new charge to-morrow. The Presbytery well meet at two o'clock and hear any objections that may be made as to why the rev. gentleman should not become the pastor of St. Andrew's. The induction will follow and when the new pastor has been proclaimed inducted, a social re-union will be held, at which Rev. Mr. MacWilliams may meet the members of his new congregation.

A special prayer service for Sir John Macdonald was held at St. John's church on Saturday evening.

Telegrams giving the Premier's condition were read in several of the churches at the services yesterday.

Rev. Wm. Cleland, of Toronto, occupied the pulpit at St. Andrew's church yesterday. The rev. gentleman is well up in years, but he is possessed of a youthful vigor and activity of mind and body and preached two forcible discourses.

A Cure for Constipation and Headache.

Dr. Silas Lane, while in the Rocky Mountains, discovered a root that when combined with other herbs, makes an easy and certain cure for constipation. It is in the form of dry roots and leaves, and is known as Lane's Family Medicine. It will cure sick-headache and is the best Spring Medicine. For the blood, liver and kidneys, and for clearing up the complexion it does wonders. Druggists sell it at 50c. and $1 a package.

Gigantic Sale of Clothing and Gents Furnishings.

As our business has out-grown the accommodation in our present premises we move during July to the large store lately occupied by Mr. Geo. Stethem. The new store will be fitted up in latest metropolitan style affording double the room we now occupy. As this necessitates the removal of our entire stock we propose to clear off everything instead of moving the goods by offering the same at a gigantic sale to clear at prices never before known in Peterborough. This sweep will cover our ready-made clothing, gents furnishings, and special reductions will also be made all along the line of our ordered clothing trade. The sale will commence on Wednesday, June 3rd, and will continue until the entire stock is cleared. People that want these goods should come and see the value we are giving. The sale is bona fide, for we must move. And we will make it a benefit to every buyer to give us a call. H. LeBrun & Co., sign of The Big Horse Shoe, George st. 2i126

Friendship Canes.

Friendship canes are to be the fashion with the young women who take long Spring tramps "over moss and fell." The best friend of all gives the cane which is long and like unto an alpenstock. Around the top is tied a ribbon with the name of the cane donor thereon and the date of the first trip upon which the cane did duty. Each successive walk is marked by another ribbon which, in turn, bears the date of the trip and the name of the one who pleasantly beguiled the journey. In time Little Bo Peep's crook comes to wear as many colors as were in Joseph's coat. When the coat becomes "sufficiently sanctified" with ribbons, it is laid away among the scalps of the season and a new one is obtained to take its place. The girl of proper discretion becomes no more attractive to one walking stick than she does to any of the beaux who are represented by bow knots upon the alpenstock.

The Servant Question.

It is a curious fact that there is nothing which is so wholly unanimous as the desire that other people's daughters should be cooks and chambermaids. We never think of it as a thing desirable, or perhaps supposable, for our own, and this fact seems to damage most of our arguments for others. Artemus Ward was willing to send his wife's relations to the war, but we are not inclined to contribute even these to the kitchen, for we should hold, rightfully, that it was "menial service." Now, if we draw the line at menial service for ourselves and our relatives, why should we speak severely of those who draw the line at just that point for themselves and their own relatives? The whole difficulty of this much-vexed question seems to lie precisely there.—Harper's Bazar.

A CANADIAN SWINDLER.

Death of a Former Montrealer in New York—His Erratic Career.

NEW YORK, May 31.—Edward H. Goff, president and general manager of the American Export and Trading Company, died Thursday night from Bright's disease at his home, No. 185 West One-hundred-and-thirty-fifth-street. Almost simultaneously the company was dispossessed from its offices, No. 5 Bowling Green, for the non-payment of rent, despite the fact that the advertised capital is $500,000 and the surplus, according to the treasurer's annual report, is $543,791.04. Goff first came into prominence about thirty years ago, appearing in Montreal as the agent of the Agricultural Insurance Company of Watertown, N.Y. Two or three years afterward he organized the Canadian Agricultural Insurance Company, with a capital of $1,000,000. In 1877, however, the company went to pieces with great loss to the stockholders.

During the same time he had various other schemes in hand, among them the Wingate Chemical Company, International Express Company and the National Insurance Company. They all failed. Railroad-building next claimed his attention, and in connection with some business men of St. Albans, Vt., he constructed the Montreal, Portland and Boston Railroad. Through the affair of this road he became mixed up in Dominion politics. The interests thus aroused were followed by charges against him of forgery and embezzlement made by the officers of one of the numerous companies that had failed while under his management. Goff fled to New York and the Canadian authorities were unable to secure his extradition. Since that time he had organized about 25 companies in Boston, New York and elsewhere, swindling people by wholesale, the American Export and Trading Company being the latest.

BURNED ALIVE.

Horrible Death of a Salvation Army Officer at Clinton.

CLINTON, May 31.—Yesterday afternoon a young man named Hitch, an officer in the Salvation Army, whose mother resides near here, was trying to kill worms and insects on trees with a lighted torch when the can exploded, the burning oil running down his face and on his clothes. The unfortunate young man, crazed with his sufferings, ran around the field until exhausted, his friends being unable to get near him until too late, and death ended his agony a few hours after. He was buried with Army honors to-day (Sunday). Deceased was 23 years old.

SUICIDE AT CLINTON.

Pat Corbett, Aged 22, Sends a Bullet Into His Brain.

CLINTON, May 31.—Pat Corbett, aged 22, son of Thomas Corbett, a wealthy and prosperous farmer in the Township of Hullett, rose from bed and procuring a revolver returned to bed and shot himself. He died a few hours afterward. No cause is assigned for the act, but rumor has it that a young lady had something to do with it.

Imagines He is Prof Koch.

CORNWALL, May 31.—During the last two or three days a man has been noticed in town, whose strange actions and appearance attracted much attention. His coat was buttoned up close to his throat and a heavy cap pulled down over his ears helped to hide his face, which was further concealed by a heavy scarf. An old barrel hoop hung about his neck and in either hand he carried a bunch of straw or horse hair, while under each arm was an old tin box or can. When arrested by Policeman Smith he resisted with such vigor that the officer had to call three men to his assistance, who had all they could do to force the crazy giant into the cells. About 20 white cards bearing the numbers three and four were found in his pocket along with a telegram. His name is unknown and he fancies that he is Prof. Koch. He keeps his back towards the door of the cell and amuses himself by dancing.

The Smith's Falls Victims Sank While Swimming for the Shore.

SMITH'S FALLS, Ont., May 30.—The bodies of the three men who were drowned on Monday last were recovered this afternoon about fifty yards from the shore. They had evidently been making desperate efforts to reach land and were about twenty-eight yards from each other.

A Glorious Rainfall.

WINNIPEG, May 31.—Magnificent downpours of rain are reported to have been pretty general throughout Manitoba and the Northwest yesterday and to-day to the great benefit of growing crops. Rain was needed badly in some places and was gladly welcomed in all.

Drowned.

ST. CATHARINES, May 31.—A 3-year-old son of Mr. Charles Stewart of Stamford was drowned in a pond near the old brewery in the ravine. While the parents of the child were at dinner the little fellow wandered away from the house. The body was found in the shallow water some time afterwards.

A Honeymoon in Bed.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 30.—Robert L. Delaney and wife, of near Washington, D. C., to-day began proceedings to recover $50,000 damages from the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. They were on their bridal tour on November 14 last, when they were both injured in a wreck at New Florence, Pa.

They spent a honeymoon of over three months in a Pittsburg hospital, lying at the point of death the first few days. As soon as they were able to travel the railroad company placed a special car at their disposal and sent them home.

Last Day at Woodbine.

Ticks from the Telegraph.

Chief Justice Dorion died in Montreal last night.

Riotous strikers in Bilboa, Spain, were dispersed by cavalry.

The daily average number of expelled Russian Jews passing through Charlottenburg is 600.

An unsuccessful attempt was made yesterday to steal the body of P. T. Barnum at Bridgeport.

The murderers of William M. Barbour of St. Mary's, Ont., have been arrested at Butte Montana.

Four men were killed by an explosion of dynamite in the Atlantic & Pacific tunnel, on the Kelso Mountains, 8 miles from Silver Plume, Col., yesterday.

The doctors who conducted the autopsy on the body of McClanaghan, the Montreal hotel-keeper, state that in their opinion the remains had been placed in the canal after death, as the usual signs of drowning were absent. They expressed the opinion that death might have been caused by strangulation. The investigation has been adjourned until Monday.

How Herbert Spencer Looks.

Herbert Spencer is a man somewhat above the middle height and not looking his 70 years by a good decade. His head is well shaped, but not noticeably large, and is pinky bald, with a fringe of not very gray hair. Round his cheeks and jaw grows a scant whisker to match with a narrow canal cut through at the chin; the nose very delicate and aquiline the teeth strong and well preserved, the skin ruddy, and the whole expression fine, simple, and intellectual. Of course, he wore soft, square-toed boots, and a baggy broadcloth coat. They are badges of men of genius—the elderly ones, at least—and even Rudyard Kipling affects them. Never in all my experience have I seen a very great man with such absolute simplicity of manner.—Illustrated American.

No Soap in India.

It is stated that soap in India is regarded almost in the light of a natural curiosity, for it is rarely if ever to be obtained of a shopkeeper there. Of course it is sold in the larger towns, but the amount used by the natives must be very small, seeing that the total consumption of soap in India last year was only 5,000 tons. This means that the amount used by each person for the year was considerably less than one ounce.—

How to Sell More Goods.

Has it ever occurred to you that you might profitably increase your present volume of business by doing a little general newspaper advertising with the idea of reaching the Consumer? Take some special brand or make of goods which you honestly believe possesses merit, and push it with a moderate amount of advertising the in widely circulating news papers and magazines, or in the leading dailies and weeklies of some selected State or section. If done judiciously, you will soon begin to realize results in the form of increased orders through the trade.

These assertions are proved by the experience of business houses whose names are familiar from one end of the country to the other. Look at the record made by the manufacturers of "Royal Baking Powder," "Sapolio," Pearline," "Pears' Soap," "Allcock's Porous Plasters," etc. It is not necessary to advertise your entire line of goods, but, by selecting some good article as a "leader," and persistently pushing that, it is possible to build up a large and independent trade.

BUY NOW IF AT ALL

EVERY day makes more apparent the fact that the town is going ahead rapidly. Numerous changes have taken place in the way of the ownership of property. Many workingmen are buying houses and lots or lots on which to build. One of the most suitable locations is that known as the Erin property, at the west end, owned largely by Mr. Wm. Fitzgerald. This week he has closed the sale of a very desirable new house and lot, and has several eligible lots on this property to dispose of. Property in this neighbourhood is rapidly being built up, and it will be well to have a look at the situation if one is at all disposed to buy. The terms are very favorable and especially low for cash, though payment on time may be arranged.

BRIGANDS SEIZE A TRAIN

AND CARRY OFF A NUMBER OF PASSENGERS FOR RANSOM.

Imperial Parliament—Recent Interference with the Rights of British Subjects on the Newfoundland Coast—The Behring Sea Bill.

LONDON, June 1.—The political secretary of the Foreign Office, Sir James Ferguson, in the House of Commons to-day, said a message had been received from the Government of Newfoundland stating that a French officer had warned the inhabitants near St. Pierre Bay, Newfoundland, not to sell bait to United States fishermen under penalty of seizure of their nets and boats. This, said Sir James, does not appear to be a specific infraction of the treaty of 1818 with the United States, which only secured United States citizens the right to fish in certain parts of the coast, but it constitutes interference with the rights of British subjects and is an assumption of jurisdiction inconsistent with the sovereign right of the British crown. The Government has brought the matter to the attention of the French Government.

Brigands Successfully Demand Ransom.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 1.—A party of brigands near Tcherkeskoi yesterday placed obstructions across the railroad track and derailed the express. The brigands made captives of several German and English tourists who were among the passengers. One of them was a banker of Berlin. The brigands have demanded $40,000 as ransom for the captives and Chancellor von Caprivi has telegraphed to the German ambassador here authorizing him to advance this amount. The remaining passengers were despoiled of their belongings.

The place where the act of brigandage occurred lies between this city and Adrianople. The band which made the attack numbered 30 and was led by the noted robber Anastasius. The brigands seized the watchman on duty at the railway station and then tore up the rails for some distance and allowed the cars to dash on to possible destruction. When the eastern express reached the spot the engine tumbled over, dragging over with it the tender, a baggage car and all the third-class passengers. The first-class passenger cars remained on the track. When the train was thus disabled the brigands rushed forward uttering loud yells and brandishing their guns threateningly, boarded the cars. Several passengers resisted the attack of the brigands who replied with a volley from their guns and dangerously wounded one man. The outlaws finally overcame the occupants of the cars and then stripped the travelers of all their valuables and looted their baggage. When the brigands ended their work they seized four passengers in the first-class cars and also the engineer of the train and started with their captives for their rendezvous in the mountains. The men carried away were Oscar Gregor, Herr Israel, a baker of Berlin, Herr Maquet, a land owner. Upon reaching the retreat the bandits sent Herr Israel to get the ransom of $40,000 which they demanded for the release of the prisoners. Herr Von Radowitz, the German consul, claims that the Porte will refund this money.

Tupper Not Coming.

LONDON, June 1.—Sir Charles Tupper is attending the Postal Convention in Vienna. He has no intention of leaving for Canada, but gets constant news from London about Sir John's condition.

SIR JOHN'S LAST HOURS

Slowly Sinking Since Yesterday Noon.

HIS LIFE QUIETLY EBBING AWAY

While He Occasionally Showed Gleams of Intelligence.

Hopes That He Might Partially Recover Dispelled by Less Hopeful Bulletins From the Sick Room at Earnscliffe—Meeting of the House of Commons and the Cabinet.

OTTAWA, June 2.—At 4 o'clock this morning the Premier was resting without perceptible change in his condition. He has taken some nourishment and has been dozing since midnight.

It is now learned that Sir John Macdonald had an attack of what was dangerously like paralysis two weeks ago. He was in his own room in the House of Commons when seized, and became partially unconscious and almost speechless. Sir John Thompson was with him at the time, and when the Premier revived in a few minutes requested the Minister of Justice to go to the Governor-General and keep an appointment which the Premier had made with His Excellency for that hour. Sir John Thompson was reluctant to leave him but the Premier insisted that he was all right again, in fact he afterwards walked part of the way to the cab in which he drove to Earnscliffe. As the Premier's illness increased, and he still went to his office in the Department of Railways and Canals, Sir John Thompson remonstrated with him and asked him to give up the portfolio and also that of President of the Council, which was vacant. He renewed the suggestion as late as Thursday last—the day before the fatal stroke, and the Premier said to him, 'I'll let you know to-morrow what I will do." Too late, for that to-morrow never came.

There was little change in the Premier's condition until noon yesterday. Hon. E. Dewdney, leaving about 2 o'clock, said he had been in Sir John's room. The Premier was very low and very weak. Profound stillness reigned at Earnscliffe as the afternoon hours slowly advanced. No sounds were permitted to penetrate the sick room where the distinguished patient lay hovering on the brink of death. Few visitors were allowed within the gates, but occasionally the Premier's private secretary, Mr. Pope, or his former secretary Mr. Fred. White, would walk out on the lawn and tell the latest symptoms of the case, but the intelligence they had to impart was for the most part but a reiteration of what had been said before. Few persons were in the sick room to witness the last hours of the departing statesman. His devoted wife could not be prevailed upon to leave his bedside. His son, Mr. Hugh J. Macdonald, and daughter-in-law were in constant and watchful attendance, and Dr. Powell was at hand to minister to the wants of his patient, which were few and simple. The greater part of the afternoon he dozed away in slumber and, it seemed as if each successive relapse into unconsciousness would be the last deep sleep, but at intervals reviving intelligence appeared and by the feeblest pressure with his left hand upon the hand of the anxious questioner he conveyed to those around his wishes. A little nourishment, a change of posture were all he asked, all he needed. It seemed as though the end was but a few moments distant and that he realized the fact, but the moments passed into hours. The quietude of those dying hours remained unbroken, the street cars had been stripped of their bells early in the day, lest their jingle should disturb the repose of the sleeper. Of vehicles there were scarcely any and none were allowed near the residence. Rev. Mr. Bogert of St. Alban's Church has also been a frequent visitor during Sir John's illness. Letters and telegrams are pouring in from all quarters. The afternoon bulletin, issued a little before 3 o'clock, was sent by Dr. Powell to Sir Hector Langevin for communication to the Commons and the Hon. J. C. C. Abbott to be read in the Senate. The messages were brief; they conveyed the fact that in a few hours the Premier would be no more.

At 5 o'clock Mr. Pope came out and said that to his mind Sir John was no worse than he was yesterday. If he was weaker it was only apparent to the physicians. He was lying pretty nearly the same as he had been for three days. He was in more of a comatose condition, which was described as sleep. Prof. Williamson of Kingston, brother-in-law to the Premier, arrived and was admitted to the sick chamber. The visitor, who is about 80 years of age, was deeply affected by the sight of his old friend and relative.

At 6 o'clock the following bulletin was issued:

"Since my statement of 3 o'clock to the Senate and House of Commons my patient shows no change whatever. He partook of some milk at 5.45, which he swallowed without much difficulty.

R. W. POWELL, M.D.

The scene at Earnscliffe after nightfall was impressive in its solemnity. From 8 o'clock until midnight anxious groups gathered upon the lawns, for the rule forbidding ingress was relaxed, but nobody ventured to tread save on tip toe on the gravelled walk in front of the residence. The condition of the dying patient was discussed in whispers. Several Cabinet Ministers with their friends were in earnest conversation under the maple trees. Mr. Tupper and Mr. Mackenzie Bowell arrived about 9.30. They did not go within the mansion, but had a short conversation with the Premier's secretary on the grounds. Everybody marvelled at the wonderful vitality of the aged leader. It was felt that not one in a thousand could have so long survived such an attack. Dr. Powell was with Sir John all the evening watching every change that manifested itself. The evening hours were passed for the most part in deep sleep, so deep that breathing at times was almost imperceptible. The attending physicians, Dr. Sir Jas. Grant and Dr. H. P. Wright, saw the patient at a quarter past ten and remained in consultation about three-quarters of an hour.

The Governor-General and his aide-de-camp, Capt. Walsh, walked over from Rideau Hall while the doctors were consulting and waited on the lawn until they left the sick room. Then His Excellency entered the room and had a short conversation with Dr. Powell and read the following bulletin which had just been drafted:

EARNSCLIFFE, 10.45 p.m.

The Premier passed the day marked by periods of more than usual depression. He has taken a small amount of nourishment. Consciousness remained much the same as during the past two days. He suffers no pain. Every prospect of passing through the night.

R. W. POWELL,
J. A. GRANT,
HY. P. WRIGHT.

Sir James Grant says he is astonished beyond measure at the way the Premier keeps up the struggle for life. His life has been a wonder, and so has the manner of his dying. The vital powers are gradually weakening. There is no indication of recuperation, and the period within which it would have been possible has now passed. The exhausting process is going on. The nourishment taken is not sufficient to sustain life, and the chances are that he will die of exhaustion. To-day has been by far the most trying for the patient. Since he was stricken on Friday he has slept more, but it seemed at times as if it were the the sleep of death. Breathing was all but gone, and once or twice it was thought the action of the heart had ceased. A little champaigne, however, sufficed to revive it and to restore the waning forces of vitality. Dr. H. P. Wright says these heart depressions were three in number, and it is not unlikely that they may recur at any moment. It is highly probable that in one of these the patient will pass away. The temperature is in its normal state, and there is absolutely no pain. Now and again the Premier opens his eyes and apparently realizes what is going on around him, and a moment afterwards he becomes perfectly oblivious to everything. At midnight he was sleeping peacefully.

After Sir James Grant and Dr. Wright had returned from Earnscliffe to-night at 12 o'clock they were seen at their offices. Sir James Grant was rather more hopeful than Dr. Wright. The latter says that the Premier's condition has been like waves of weakness. "We found his condition practically unaltered," he said, "at the time of our visit. He is displaying wonderful powers. At the time of our visit to-night his condition was the same as in the morning, which was hardly as well as last evening. His consciousness remains as clear as it has been since the attack. Not much importance can be attached to this, as indeed we can attach but small importance to any of the symptoms of so extraordinary a case. The symptoms indicate great vital power, and from these symptoms we might continue hoping for possibilities. We cannot hold out any hope, although so far as we can see there is no indication of any serious occurrence taking place to-night."

Notes.

All the despatch boxes and state papers in the Premier's possession at Earnscliffe were returned to the department to-day. The Cabinet met this morning at 11 o'clock, remaining in session upwards of an hour, and met again this afternoon. All the members were present.

General regret is felt that Sir John has not been able, since his death has appeared to be a certainty, to speak or write his last wishes, as a final expression of opinion from him would have been of the greatest value. An impression prevails, however, that some weeks ago he indicated indirectly his wishes as to the policy to be pursued in the event of his sudden death.

The Railway Committee met this morning. Sir Hector Langevin, the chairman, said that he did not think the committee could go on with business affecting the Department of Railways and Canals so closely in the absence of Sir John Macdonald, the head of the department. The committee accordingly adjourned.

The question of the leadership is being actively discussed. The opinion is that Sir John Thompson will be the next premier, although a majority of the western members favor Sir Charles Tupper. The French Conservatives are almost a unit for Thompson, and may insist upon his appointment. The matter, to a very considerable degree rests with the Governor-General, who, it is stated earned the Premier's wishes during the election campaign. Sir Charles Tupper at that time was his choice. Hon. J. J. C. Abbott is strongly spoken of.

Lord Knutsford and Sir George Baden-Powell cabled to-day enquiring about the Premier's condition.

Something has been said of Sir John's favorite piece of literature. He was not a man to dwell much over any particular production. He craved fresh excitement and recreation from books, and consequently skimmed through all the new books, which Mr. Martin J. Griffin, the librarian of Parliament, selected and sent down to Earnscliffe in batches. Nevertheless it is known that he had a high opinion of a poem of Cardinal Newman, not at all well known, entitled, "The Dream of Gerontius." It relates the dream experiences of a man who dies and whose soul is carried to paradise in the keeping of an angel. The angel explains the mysteries to the enquiring spirit. It is a little volume, but is brimful of sold Miltonic conceptions of the mysteries of eternity.

The physicians who are attending the Premier are among the most eminent men in their profession in the Dominion. Dr. H. P. Wright was President of the Dominion Medical Association last year. He is undoubtedly one of busiest physicians in the Dominion, his practice taking up his whole waking hours. He is a cautious, well-informed practitioner.

Sir James Grant is a practitioner of large experience and a free contributor to current medical literature. He attended the Princess Louise at the time of the accident when her horses bolted and threw Her Highness out of the carriage. His attention to the Queen's daughter won him knighthood.

Dr. Powell has been physician of the Earnscliffe household for some time, and is a good sound advisor.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

After Advancing a Few Bills a Stage the House Adjourns.

OTTAWA, June 1.—The House of Commons met this afternoon at 3 o'clock and after advancing several bills a stage, debated the subject of granting second, homesteads to those settlers in the Northwest who had entered the country between 1883 and 1888. It was led by Mr. Davis, and was taken part in by a number of hon. gentlemen.

Hon. Mr. Dewdney suggested that the proper time to discuss a matter of this kind was when amendments to the Northwest Lands' Act were introduced at a later stage in the session.

From this proposition there was dissent and the discussion became very personal. The condition of the Premier seems to have unfitted the members for work and the debate was only noteworthy on account of the exchange of extravagant personalities between Nicholas Flood Davin and Hon. Mr. Dewdney, Minister of the Interior.

Sir Hector Langevin at 3.45 o'clock moved the adjournment of the debate.

Mr. Laurier insisted that the debate should be carried on a division.

The result was that a straight party vote was called on to decide the question of adjourning the debate, and by a majority of 14 Sir Hector's proposition carried.

A Gladstonian Elected.

LONDON, June 1.—At the Parliamentary election at Paisley to-day Dunn (Gladstonian) received 4145 votes against 2097 for McKerrel (Conservative). At the last election Barbour (Home Rule Liberal) received 3997 votes against 2491 for Smith (Liberal Unionist).

Strike on the Clyde.

GLASGOW, June 1.—One thousand men employed as drillers by shipbuilding firms on the Clyde struck to-day. The strike is steadily spreading and threatens to paralyze operations in all the shipyards along the river. One thousand weavers in Perth also went on strike to-day.

CHEATING AT CARDS.

THE LATEST SENSATION IN OLD LONDON.

Opening of the Notorious Baccarat Scandal Case—A Strong Array of Eminent Legal Talent—The Prince of Wales Appears as a Witness.

LONDON, June 1.—The famous baccarat scandal trial, otherwise the action of Sir William Gordon Cumming against Mr. and Mrs. Lycett Green, Mr. Arthur Wilson, Arthur Wilson and Berkeley Levett for slander, commenced before Lord Chief Justice to-day in the Queen's Bench Division of Her Majesty's High Court of Justice.

Long before the hour (11 a.m.) fixed for the hearing of the case the court room was filled with crowds of fashionable people.

It was intended that Sir Richard Webster and Sir Charles Russell should be the leading counsel for the defendants, but owing to the fact that Sir Richard Webster is obliged to appear in the Berkeley peerage case now before the Committee of Privileges of the House of Lords the Attorney-General was compelled to resign his brief at the last moment, which fact was not generally known until the proceedings had commenced in court.

Sir Charles Russell will act as leading counsel for all the defendants.

The plaintiff was cool and calm, but apparently not in the best of humor. He stared coldly, almost defiantly, at his enemies, and then glanced haughtily and anxiously around the court-room and through the old-fashioned window, into which the sun streamed gaily, lighting up the generally dull interior and showing up pleasantly the toilets of the assembled ladies.

The Prince of Wales entered the court shortly after 11 o'clock, accompanied by Sir Francis Knollys, K. C. M. G., his private secretary. Both the Prince and his secretary passed through the court-room, the hum of half-whispered conversation ceasing as the Prince was recognized and were escorted to seats especially reserved for them on the bench and on the left hand of the Lord Chief Justice. The entrance of the Prince was the signal for the court proceedings to commence. No sooner was the Prince seated than the jury was sworn.

Sir Edward Clarke, amid almost breathless silence, then opened the case for the plaintiff. He said that the charge was a most serious one, involving the honor and affecting the whole future career of a gallant gentleman of hitherto unspotted reputation who had served his country with distinction for a period of 25 years, and who had risen to the rank of Lieut.-Colonel of the guards, and who during this honorable career had won medals for valor in the trenches before Tel-el-Kebir. Sir William Gordon Cumming said the Solicitor-General, was a wealthy gentleman moving in the best circles of society and who owned estates in England and Scotland. Sir William Gordon Cumming, he added, had been honored for 20 years with the intimate friendship of the Prince of Wales, who in 1881 invited him to be his guest at Sandringham. Since that period, continued the Solicitor-General, the Prince of Wales had several times repeated that invitation and yet he, Gordon Cumming, was now charged with cheating at cards with the object of defrauding some of his most intimate friends. Continuing in a slow, clear, deliberative voice, the Solicitor-General detailed the circumstances of the now famous card party at Tranby Croft, Arthur Wilson's residence during the Doncaster meeting in 1890. Baccarat, said the Solicitor-General, had never before been played at Tranby Croft.

Sir Edward Clarke, continuing, said there was no proper baccarat table at Tranby Croft on the evenings of Sept. 8 and 9, when the eventful games of baccarat were played there. Owing to the fact that there was no baccarat table three whist tables were used. The Solicitor-General then explained the mysteries of the game and in conclusion said that upon the occasion referred to the "bank" was limited to £100 and that when that was lost the game was ended. It would be his duty, said the Solicitor-General, to put the Prince of Wales and General Owen Williams in the witness-box, and their testimony would satisfy the jury that they saw nothing wrong on the part of Sir William Gordon Cumming, whose system of play was to double his stakes if he lost until he recovered his losses, and then he reverted to original stakes. Sir Edward Clarke then commented on the fact that it was not until Sept. 10, 1890, the third day of the baccarat playing, that the slightest suspicion was breathed in regard to the plaintiff, when the latter gave Lord Coventry an absolute denial of the charges made against him and later redenied these charges before the Prince of Wales and before General Owen Williams.

What Cumming Signed.

The Solicitor-General then read the much talked of document which Sir William Gordon Cumming signed after the discovery of his alleged cheating at cards and in which he undertook as the price of his fellow-players' silence on the subject never again to play cards. Sir Edward Clarke here said Sir William Gordon Cumming had made a great mistake in signing this document, but he explained that the plaintiff had allowed himself to be persuaded by his old friends, Gen. Owen Williams and Lord Coventry, hoping that in so doing he would avoid the scandal which his friends seemed to dread. Sir William Gordon Cumming, Gen. Owen Williams and Lord Coventry were all members of the Turf Club, and they (Gen. Williams and Lord Coventry) would not have allowed the plaintiff to have remained a member of that club if they believed the charges against him. Mr. Clarke concluded by making a brilliant and passionate appeal to the jury on behalf of his client, who, he claimed, was plainly the victim of circumstances and of a false desire to avoid a scandal which would implicate his hosts at Tranby Club and his old friends who played baccarat with him there. Sir William Gordon Cumming was called to the witness box and questioned by his counsel. The baronet detailed his career and proceeded to give his version of the Tranby Club affair. The affair said the Prince of Wales acted as banker upon the occasion referred to and that Gen. Williams was croupier. His (plaintiff's) attention was not called on the first night, Sept. 8, to the complaint made against him. On the following evening when dressing for dinner, Lord Coventry and Gen. Williams came to him in his bedroom at Tranby Croft and the former said: "Cumming, something very disagreeable has occurred. Some people playing here have objected to your manner of playing baccarat." To this Cumming replied, "My God, what do you mean?"

Lord Coventry, the plaintiff said, then repeated his former remark, adding that people said he (Cumming) had while playing baccarat the previous evening resorted to foul play.

Dyspepsia

Intense Suffering for 8 years—Restored to Perfect Health.

Few people have suffered more severely from dyspepsia than Mr. E. A. McMahon, a well known grocer of Staunton, Va. He says: "Before 1883 I was in excellent health, weighing over 200 pounds. In that year an ailment developed into acute dyspepsia, and soon I was reduced to 162 pounds, suffering burning sensations in the stomach, palpitation of the heart, nausea, and indigestion. I could not sleep, lost all heart in my work, had fits of melancholia, and for days at a time I would have welcomed death. I became morose, sullen and irritable, and for eight years life was a burden. I tried many physicians and many remedies. One day a workman employed by me suggested that I take Hood's Sarsaparilla, as it had cured his wife of dyspepsia. I did so, and before taking the whole of a bottle I began to feel like a new man. The terrible pains to which I had been subjected, ceased, the palpitation of the heart subsided, my stomach became easier, nausea disappeared, and my entire system began to tone up. With returning strength came activity of mind and body. Before the fifth bottle was taken I had regained my former weight and natural condition. I am today well and I ascribe it to taking Hood's Sarsaparilla."

THE LATE SIR A. A. DORION.

WHILE Sir John Macdonald lay ill at Ottawa, another whose name is associated with the history of Canada passed away in Montreal, when Sir A. A. Dorion died on Saturday evening. Sir Antoine A. Dorion was born at St. Anne de la Perade, Quebec, in 1818, and was a member of a distinguished family. He was called to the bar of Lower Canada in 1842. He entered the Canadian Assembly as member for Montreal in 1854, and was a member of Parliament from that time, with the exception of one short period, until 1874, when he was appointed Chief Justice of Quebec. He was a member of the Government from Aug. 2nd to 4th, 1858, in the short-lived Government formed by Hon. George Brown; from May, 1862, to Jan. 27th, 1863, and from May, 1863, to March, 1864. In Nov., 1873, he took the office of Minister of Justice in Hon. Alex. Mackenzie's administration, which he held until his appointment to the bench. Sir A. A. Dorion was a man of high attainments and honorable qualities, and although he and Sir John Macdonald were political opponents for many years there was much friendship between them, one of the deceased Chief Justice's last acts being, after he was unable to speak, to write enquiring about Sir John's condition.

BERLIN, June 1.—Auerback & Glabschen's oil works at Breslau were destroyed by fire yesterday. A large number of casks of the precious fluid were brought out and their contents poured upon the flames, with the result of putting a stop to the spread of the conflagration.

How to Sell More Goods.

Has it ever occurred to you that you might profitably increase your present volume of business by doing a little general newspaper advertising with the idea of reaching the Consumer? Take some special brand or make of goods which you honestly believe possesses merit, and push it with a moderate amount of advertising the in widely circulating news papers and magazines, or in the leading dailies and weeklies of some selected State or section. If done judiciously, you will soon begin to realise results in the form of increased orders through the trade.

These assertions are proved by the experience of business houses whose names are familiar from one end of the country to the other. Look at the record made by the manufacturers of "Royal Baking Powder," "Sapolio," Pearline," "Pears' Soap," "Allcock's Porous Plasters," etc. It is not necessary to advertise your entire line of goods, but, by selecting some good article as a "leader," and persistently pushing that, it is possible to build up a large and independent trade.

Dennis Was Dry.

Dennis Slattery, one of the regular boarders at the gaol, was at the Police Court this morning to procure another commitment as a vagrant. Dennis' request was, of course, complied with and he was told to start for the hill and the constable would overtake him with the warrant of commitment. Raising both hands towards the bench Dennis rose to depart and said, "Begorra, Mr. Dumble, ye always was a good gentleman, and could you give me the price of a drink before I go up, it'll be all I'll get until I come out again." There was a general laugh at the old man's earnest appeal and the Magistrate replied, "No, Dennis, I can't give you money to buy liquor, but here's five cents to buy some tobacco on your way up." Dennis' face was joyful as he picked up the silver piece and remarked, "That'll do just as well," and left the court for his six months sojourn on the hill.

THE PREMIER'S ILLNESS

AND APPROACHING DEATH AFFECTS THE TOWN COUNCIL.

The Regular Business Routine Departed From and Business Rushed Through—The Communications and Accounts—The Committee Reports—Is the Town a Stockholder in the Midland Railway?—Another Industry in Prospect—Other Business.

The civic parliament held a regular session last evening, His Worship Mayor Stevenson presiding. The Mayor was present by a double move he had made: He started for Ottawa in the morning and was met at Sharbot Lake by a telegram informing him of a pair with another member, which he had wanted until this evening. This allowed him to return and he reached Peterborough at six o'clock. The ward representatives present were Councillors Cahill, Davidson, Kelly, Hall, Bradburn, Dawson, Moore, Meldrum, Langford, Kendry and Dennistoun.

DEATH'S THREATENINGS AFFECT THE COUNCIL.

While seated down stairs the Councillors discussed in subdued tones the sad bereavement to Canada which seemed imminent by the death of Sir John. The last message conveying the sorrowful intelligence that he was sinking was received with expressions of regret by every councillor.

Before business was proceeded with the Mayor, who was especially affected by the Premier's prostration, said although it was a regular meeting they would adjourn early. He felt so depressed, as he knew they all did, by the loss of their Prime Minister which was threatening, that he did not feel like doing business and he would suggest that the Council in justice to themselves and their country should not do any other business but that absolutely necessary.

Councillor KENDRY—I move we adjourn.

The MAYOR—There are some things which we had better do, things that it is necessary to dispose of.

Councillor MOORE moved that the reading of the minutes be dispensed with in order to hasten the adjournment. This was carried and business was pushed through.

THE PEOPLE SPEAK.

Town Clerk Macdonald then read the following communications:—

From Geo. Matthews and others asking for a crossing on Wolfe-st.—Street and Bridge Committee.

From the Council of North Monaghan sending a resolution of that body offering, if the town build a drain on the gravel road as far as the boundary that the township would carry it as far as necessary to properly drain the street.—Street and Bridge Committee.

From John Corkery and others asking that George-st. be watered north of Lake-st.—Fire, Water and Light Committee.

From A. Clegg and others asking for street improvements on Benson-st.—Street and Bridge Committee.

Communication from Barnardo Home your committee cannot recommend any grant.

Your committee cannot recommend any increase in salary to Constables Adams and McGinty.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

R. S. DAVIDSON,
Chairman.

The report was adopted.

IT WAS ONLY RECEIVED.

Councillor LANGFORD, Chairman of the Street and Bridge Committee, read the following report of his committee:—

To the Mayor and Corporation of the Town of Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN,—Your Street and Bridge Committee beg leave to report and recommend that in case the signers of the petition for a drain on Park-st. present a properly signed petition under the drainage Act that the work asked for be proceeded with.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

WM. LANGFORD,
Chairman.

After a short discussion the report was only received.

IS THE TOWN A STOCKHOLDER?

Councillor DAVIDSON moved, seconded by Councillor HALL,—That the Mayor be authorized to attend all the meetings of the Midland Railway Company on behalf of the stock held by the town and vote.

Councillor MOORE was of the opinion that the town was not a stockholder in the Company.

The MAYOR said the town had been sued as stockholders and in Chancery the Court decided that the town was not a stockholder.

Councillor HALL said be thought His Worship was mistaken, for he thought the result of the case had been that the Court held that the town was paid up stockholders for the amount of £50,000.

The MAYOR said the Court decided that the town could not be a stockholder and mortgagee at the same time.

Councillor CAHILL, after some further discussion, moved that the matter be referred to the Finance Committee.

Further discussion followed. Councillor Moore and the Mayor, the latter of whom remembered all the circumstances of the former Chancery case and wished to impress these circumstances upon the Council, holding that the town was not a stockholder.

Councillor HALL said that he moved that Mr. R. E. Wood, who was present, be heard, as he understood that he was there to express his willingness to purchase the stock.

However, the matter was side-tracked by referring the motion to the Finance Committee.

SUMMER CLOTHES FOR THE POLICE.

Councillor KENDRY moved, seconded by Councillor DENNISTOUN,—That the Police Supervision Committee be authorized to receive tenders for the purchase of summer clothing for the police force.

The motion carried.

RAILWAY DAMAGES.

Councillor BRADBURN moved a resolution of which he had given notice, seconded by Councillor KELLY,—That the Town Solicitor be instructed to collect from the Grand Trunk railway the damages due the property owners on Bethune-st. under the old agreement.

Considerable discussion followed. Several of the Councillors thought that the town had nothing to do with these claims for damages, while others thought the town had allowed the railway to be built and should see the damages collected.

The MAYOR said that under the arbitration when the Grand Trunk built the line to Chemong the payments were to cease. The Town Solicitor held that the terms of building the line to Chemong had not been carried out, the line being built by other parties, and thought the railway was still liable.

Finally the matter was referred to the Finance Committee.

ANOTHER INDUSTRY COMING.

Councillor HALL said a gentleman was here and had been here for the past few days with a view to establishing another factory here. He had seen a number of the moneyed men of the town who had signified their willingness to take stock conditionally. He desired that a resolution be passed promising to submit a by-law to the ratepayers. The factory expected to employ 125 hands at the start. Councillor Hall, therefore, moved, seconded by Councillor DAVIDSON,—That the Council hereby agrees that if he succeeds in securing the necessary amount of stock to start an organ factory to employ about 125 hands to be established in the town of Peterborough that they will submit a by-law to the people to grant to the company a bonus sufficient to purchase necessary land therefore not exceeding two acres, and to build the necessary buildings therefore not exceeding $10,000, the land and buildings not to be conveyed to the company until the company have been in operation at least ten years and employed for that time the number of hands above mentioned during each year of the said term and also grant exemption of taxes for the term of ten years on the same conditions.

The resolution carried.

Councillor CAHILL moved, seconded by Councillor Davidson,—That in future where it is found necessary to put down the sidewalks that they be put down outside the boulevards or the usual allowance for same.

A little discussion followed this resolution and it also carried.

The Council then adjourned.

THE VILLAGE COUNCIL.

Ashburnham's Councillors Meet—Watering the Streets—General Business.

The Village Council of Ashburnham held a regular meeting last evening. Mr. John Burnham, Reeve, presided, and present were Councillors Calcutt, Throop, Wand and Craig.

The minutes were duly read and approved.

A petition from C. H. Moore and many others asked that Elizabeth-st. be watered from the bridge to Stewart-st.

Moved by Councillor CRAIG seconded by Councillor THROOP,—That Elizabeth-st. from the Bridge to Stewart-st. be watered until the first of October next.—Carried.

SIDEWALKS AND CROSSINGS.

An application was received for a sidewalk and crossing on Crescent-avenue and an entrance into the residence of Mr. Thos. Styles. This was referred to the Street and Bridge Committee.

Another petition for a sidewalk on the west side of Driscoll-st. was also referred to the Street and Bridge Committee.

It was ordered that a block pavement crossing be placed on Elizabeth-st. from the east side of Driscoll-st.

WATER SUPPLY.

A number of the tenants in the new village buildings asked the Council to put a pump in the well at the corner of Elizabeth and Mark-sts., as they lacked proper water supply.

On motion of Councillor THROOP, seconded by Councillor WAND, a pump was ordered to be placed in the tank at the corner of Elizabeth and Mark-sts., and a trough erected for the watering of horses.

ACCOUNTS TO BE PAID.

Moved by Councillor CALCUTT, seconded by Councillor CRAIG,—That the following accounts be paid:—

This was carried.

TENDERS TO BE ASKED FOR.

It was moved by Councillor CRAIG, seconded by Councillor THROOP and carried,—That tenders be called for watering Elizabeth-st. from the bridge to Stewart-st., until the 1st of October next, in such manner as will keep the dust laid at all times to the satisfaction of Councillors Craig and Throop, tenders to be received up to Friday, the 12th, at 7 p.m., tenders to name two sureties for the performance of the contract.

The Council then adjourned.

FINANCE COMMITTEE.

Your Committee cannot recommend the payment of $25 to the different papers for printing the annual statement, as in former years, as the amount has been equally divided between the reporters as authorized by resolution of the Board.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

GEORGE BURNHAM,
Chairman.

The report was adopted.

SCHOOL ACCOMMODATION.

Mr. DENNE read the following report of the School Supervision Committee:—

GENTLEMEN,—Your Committee on School Supervision beg to report that they have considered the duties of getting further school accommodation and advise the Board to accept the offer given by Mr. Birdsall on the corner of Water and Brock-sts., now occupied by Messrs. Fitzgerald & Stanger. The offer is attached to this report.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

HENRY DENNE,
Chairman.

The attached offer from Mr. Birdsall defined the portion of the building which it was proposed to rent, at a rental of $150 and taxes.

Mr. DUMBLE said the committee had spent some time looking for accommodation and this building was the best available. At the same time it was not a desirable place. There was no hall, lobby, or cloak room, and the entrance was directly from the street.

Mr. HAMILTON said it would take $300 or $400 to fit it up.

Dr. BOUCHER said that showed the necessity of getting further accommodation at once, as the building mentioned could only be considered a temporary school room.

After further discussion the report was, on motion of Mr. Dumble, referred back for further consideration.

AN EXAMINER APPOINTED.

Mr. DUMBLE moved, seconded by Mr. DENNE,—That Mr. Wm. Smith be appointed examiner for the entrance examinations.

Mr. FERGUSON moved in amendment, seconded by Mr. HAMILTON,—That Mr. Stirling be the examiner.

The amendment was lost and the motion carried.

A SUPPLY.

On motion of Mr. Dumble, Miss Ames was employed to supply Miss Martin's place during the remainder of the term on account of the illness of Miss Martin.

PRINTING ACCOUNTS.

Dr. BURNHAM moved, seconded by Mr. DUMBLE,—That no printing bills be paid except when the work has been ordered by the Secretary under instructions from the Board.—Carried.

A REPORT WANTED.

Mr. McKEE moved, seconded by Mr. McBAIN,—That the Property Committee be requested to report at the next meeting as to the work that will be necessary on the buildings during the vacation and the probable cost of the same.—Carried.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES.

Mr. DUMBLE brought up the question of holding exercises at the close of the school term. The kindergarten class, class in athletics, the music teacher, and the Collegiate Institute pupils could combine in giving a good exhibition, for which a nominal fee would be charged.

Mr. DUMBLE moved, seconded by Dr. BURNHAM,—That the officers of the school be requested to assist in preparing for a proposed exhibition.—Carried.

The Board adjourned.

Do You Cough?

Don't delay. Take Kemp's Balsam, the best cough cure. It will cure coughs and colds. It will cure sore throat or a tickling in the throat. It will cure pains in the chest. It will cure influenza and bronchitis and all diseases pertaining to the lungs, because it is a pure balsam. Hold it to the light and see how clear and thick it is. You see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Large bottles 50c and $1.

Two Alarms of Fire.

About one o'clock this morning the fire brigade were called out to extinguish a blaze in the old roughcast butcher shop at the corner of Simcoe and Aylmer-st. The firemen responded promptly and checked the flames before they had gained much headway. The building is owned by Mayor Stevenson and was not insured.

At nine o'clock this morning another alarm was sounded and the brigade turned out and had a long run up Water-st. A burning chimney in the vicinity of Hilliard's mill had caused the false alarm. Again persons are warned against sending in alarms without knowing that there is a fire. A puff of smoke sends more persons to the telephone to send an alarm which takes all the firemen from their work and causes them to lose an hour or so in a busy day.

Brevities.

—A citizen was charged at the Police Court this morning with failing to clean his closet in accordance with a notice served on him. He was given a week in which to do the work.

—The first game of lacrosse in the series of this district will be played at Madoc on Thursday next, between Madoc and Kingston. Peterborough plays its first game on July 1st.

—The band will be in the park next Friday evening, when "The Bohemian Girl" will be one of the selections on the programme.

NO CHANGE!

SIR JOHN STILL CLINGS TO LIFE.

The Latest News of the Dying Statesman.

To-day the same eagerness for news from the chamber in his residence at Ottawa, where Sir John Macdonald is fighting the grim monster, has been manifested. Each bulletin is approached with anxiety, lest it should tell that the end had come. The reports have been of a similar character all day, indicating that there is no change in the Premier's condition, that the fight with death continues, and that while not gaining strength there is no apparent change. The following bulletins were received at the REVIEW office:—

A COMFORTABLE NIGHT.

OTTAWA, June 2.—Dr. Powell issued the following bulletin this morning:—

"EARNSCLIFFE, 6 p. m.—Sir John passed the night composedly and comfortably without any drawback. The several periods of serious depression that occurred throughout yesterday have not been repeated since 9 o'clock last night. As I write this bulletin, he is sleeping."

"Sgd, R. W. POWELL, M. D."

STILL NO CHANGE.

OTTAWA, June 2nd, 2 30 p.m.—Dr. Powell has sent out this bulletin:—"No change in Sir John's condition since our last bulletin this morning."

Sick Headache

Is a complaint from which many suffer and few are entirely free. Its cause is indigestion and a sluggish liver, the cure for which is readily found in the use of Ayer's Pills.

"I have found that for sick headache, caused by a disordered condition of the stomach, Ayer's Pills are the most reliable remedy."—Samuel C. Bradburn, Worthington, Mass.

"After the use of Ayer's Pills for many years, in my practice and family, I am justified in saying that they are an excellent cathartic and liver medicine—containing all the claims made for them."—W. A. Westfall, M. D., V. P. Austin & N. W. Railway Co., Burnet, Texas.

"Ayer's Pills are the best medicine known to me for regulating the bowels, and for all diseases caused by a disordered stomach and liver. I suffered for over three years from headache, indigestion, and constipation. I had no appetite and was weak and nervous most of the time. By using three boxes of Ayer's Pills, and at the same time dieting myself, I was completely cured."—Philip Lockwood, Topeka, Kansas.

"I was troubled for years with indigestion, constipation, and headache. A few boxes of Ayer's Pills, used in small daily doses, restored me to health. They are prompt and effective."—W. H. Strout, Meadville, Pa.

CHEATING AT CARDS.

Plaintiff said he then replied that this was a foul, abominable charge, and a deliberate falsehood, adding, addressing Lord Coventry and General Williams, "What am I to do? You two are my old friends. For goodness sake, what is it to be done." Plaintiff then remarked that he added to this request that he placed the whole matter entirely in their hands, and that after dinner at the suggestion of Lord Coventry and General Williams, he, the plaintiff, had an interview with the Prince of Wales to whom he repudiated the charge and said, "Your Royal Highness will see what a terrible thing this is for me—I who have been attempting for 25 years to lead the life of an officer and gentleman." To this, according to the plaintiff, the Prince of Wales replied: "What can you? there are five accusers." Cumming said: "My first impulse is to publicly insult my accusers upon the race course tomorrow." To this the Prince replied: "What is the use of that? There are four people against you." Lord Coventry and General Williams told the plaintiff the only way to avoid "a horrible scandal" was to sign the document which had already been produced and read in court by Sir Edward Clarke. The plaintiff added: "I said, 'Why, this is tantamount to an admission of guilt,' but I was eventually persuaded to sign the document by Williams and Lord Coventry, whom I regarded as being true and intimate friends." Sir William further testified that on the second night of the baccarat games at Tranby Croft (Sept. 9) the Prince of Wales was banker and that Arthur Stanley Wilson won five "coups" running, which Cumming thought was very good "for a novice." At the end of the game, the plaintiff continued, the Prince of Wales laughingly said, "Cumming, how came you to win so much?" referring to the fact that I had won £225 in two night's play. To this I replied, "Well, sir, I could not help winning with such luck," showing the Prince a card on which I had kept marked under the headings of "Banker" and "Player," the exact number of times which the banker or player had won during the evening's play.

The plaintiff answered Sir Edward Clarke's question in a clear voice, which could be heard all over the court-room, and kept his back turned toward the Prince of Wales, a fact which was considerably commented upon unfavorably.

While giving his testimony Sir William leaned on the edge of the witness box calmly surveying the court and its occupants and occasionally nodding slightly to an acquaintance recognized among the people present. The Baronet concluded his testimony with a solemn and impressive denial that he ever cheated at cards at Tranby Croft or anywhere else.

The Cross Examination.

The cross-examination of the plaintiff was commenced by Sir Charles Russell. The plaintiff said he had no reason to suspect malice upon the part of any of the defendants. Sir Charles then carelessly glanced at a paper and turning toward the plaintiff, who had evidently nerved himself to face Sir Charles' fire, continued:

"And does this express your opinion?" (reading): 'The worst of it is, that I feel that they are acting perfectly conscientiously in the matter and believe that they did not resort to foul play.'"

"Pardon me," cried Sir William, quickly drawing himself up, his eyes sparkling and his whole manner denoting considerable excitement, "are you reading from any letter of mine?"

Sir Charles Russell replied: "Yes. Does it express your feelings?"

"Yes," replied the plaintiff, sharply.

Then Sir William, under cross-examination, explained at length several points in regard to baccarat playing. He also said he saw nothing before him on the table while playing baccarat on the evenings of Sept. 8 or 9 at Tranby Croft except a small piece of paper and a pencil and possibly a tumbler. The stakes, he continued, were placed a few inches in front of him. The witness himself suggested putting the stakes on a piece of paper. This was owing to the peculiar construction of the whist tables which were used for the baccarat playing. This, the baronet added, facilitated handing up and afforded the banker an opportunity of readily seeing the stakes. The suggestion was carried out on several occasions.

The court adjourned after hearing further testimony for the plaintiff. The Prince of Wales remained throughout the session.

Grip Communicated After Death.

LONDON, June 1.—Sir Morell Mackenzie has made some startling statements with regard to influenza. Sir Morell believes the disease can be communicated by dead bodies. In support of this opinion he quotes a case from the American newspapers in which a gentleman of that nationality, having died with influenza in Paris, his body was embalmed and sent to Philadelphia, where it was exposed to the view of the family, all of whom were immediately attacked by the disease. Sir Morell does not doubt that the influenza was introduced into the House of Commons by the witnesses from Sheffield, where the disease was at its worst, who gave their evidence in one of the committee rooms.

Pastor Banished to Siberia.

BERLIN, June 1.—The Kreuz Zeitung publishes an account of a Protestant pastor in Lithuania named E. J. Schmidt, who has been condemned to banishment to Siberia on the charge of proselytizing a member of the orthodox Greek Church. Pastor Lorchdanum of Bethania was sentenced to 14 months' imprisonment for a similar offence.

AN ORILLIA FIRE.

Ramsay's Extensive Carriage Works Badly Gutted—Incendiaries at Sarnia.

ORILLIA, June 1.—The fire brigade was called out at 6 this morning to Ramsay's carriage works in Smith and Nottawasaga streets. The fire caught under the eaves of the paint shop, and as the buildings are all frame, covering three acres, the conflagration threatened to be extensive. The buildings burnt are paint shop, three-story wood workers' shop, machine shop, tire house and engine house, with all machinery and much of the stock stored therein. Loss about $9000 on buildings, $18,000 on machinery and stock. Insurance, $6500 in Royal Lancashire, Hartford, Phoenix and Caledonian.

Firebugs at Sarnia.

SARNIA, June 1.—Three attempts were made during last night to set fire to the grocery store of Randall Kenny in Front-street. Within the last few weeks there have been several attempts at incendiary fires and those last night were the most daring.

A Floater in Sarnia Bay.

SARNIA, June 1.—This morning the body of a man was found in the bay here, but not identified. He was apparently from 45 to 50 years of age, had short side whiskers slightly gray and was fairly well dressed. On his body were found an open-faced gold watch, eye-glasses, a small amount of United States silver and a pocketbook.

Murdered by Moonlighters.

DUBLIN, June 1.—A farmer named Crawley, living at Letterkenny, County Donegal was shot and fatally wounded last night by moonlighters. Crawley recently hired a farm from which the former tenant had been evicted for non-payment of rent and refused to give it up when requested to do so by the upholders of the Plan of Campaign.

Off for England.

OTTAWA, June 1.—Mr. Courtney, Deputy Minister of Finance, accompanied by Mrs. Courtney, left Ottawa yesterday afternoon for Montreal en route to England. Mr. Courtney goes to London in connection with financial matters, his principal business being to arrange for the redemption of about $1,000,000 of the public debt, which falls due shortly.

Do Not Say, Impossible.

Mirabeau's hasty temper is well known. "Monsieur le Compte," said his secretary to him one day, "the thing you require is impossible." "Impossible!" exclaimed Mirabeau, starting from his chair: "Never again use that foolish word in my presence." It may be that some unfortunate sufferer is exclaiming, "New life and health for me is an impossibility; my case is an aggravated one, hopeless in every way." Not so sufferer. You have not yet reason to despair and give up hope. That terrible nervous state of body, those twitching muscles, your failing memory, those dreadful headaches and mental depression, that sleeplessness, has not rendered your condition altogether hopeless.

There is life awaiting you; a new lease of strength, vitality, robustness, pleasure and joy, if Paine's Celery Compound is used with regularity and fidelity. It will do more than any physician for you; it will strengthen the whole nervous and muscular system, build you up in flesh, strengthen the stomach and whet the appetite and give the hue of health to your countenance, which is now pale and hollow. Paine's Celery Compound has achieved these wonders for thousands in the past and has now the same power to work out the blessings for you.

BUY NOW IF AT ALL

EVERY day makes more apparent the fact that the town is going ahead rapidly. Numerous changes have taken place in the way of the ownership of property. Many workingmen are buying houses and lots or lots on which to build. One of the most suitable locations is that known as the Erin property, at the west end, owned largely by Mr. Wm. Fitzgerald. This week he has closed the sale of a very desirable new house and lot, and has several eligible lots on this property to dispose of. Property in this neighbourhood is rapidly being built up, and it will be well to have a look at the situation if one is at all disposed to buy. The terms are very favorable and especially low for cash, though payment on time may be arranged.

BEFORE THE END

The Silver Cord Gradually Loosened.

SLOWLY THE DYING MAN YIELDED

To the All Conquering King of Terrors.

The Lamp of Life Flickering in the Sick Room at Earnscliffe All Day Yesterday, but When the Shades of Night Began to Fall the Premier Showed Signs of Great Prostration, His Pulse Became Weak and Irregular and the Hopeful Feeling of the Early Morning Was Dispelled—A Graceful Tribute to Sir John in the British House of Commons.

OTTAWA, June 2.—This has been the quietest day at Earnscliffe since the crisis began. Miss MacPherson of Kingston, a distant relative, arrived this evening. Sir Leonard and Lady Tilley also came up from New Brunswick. Mr. and Mrs. Dewdney spend a great deal of their time at Earnscliffe. Mr. G. Johnson, Dominion Statistician, sat up with Sir John all night. He says the Premier passed a good night and partook of more nourishment than he had done since the attack last Friday. In a note written at 9 o'clock this morning to Senator Boyd, Mr. Pope said: "Sir John's condition is slightly improved. He passed a quiet night and had no more bad turns. He took quite a lot of nourishment for him and is now sleeping quietly. I do not want to cheer you unduly, but these are facts." At 6 a.m. the following bulletin was issued:

Sir John passed the night composedly and comfortably without any drawback. The several periods of serious depression that occurred throughout the day yesterday have not been repeated since 9 o'clock last night. As I write this bulletin he is sleeping.
R. W. POWELL, M.D.

About noon the following bulletin was issued:

EARNSCLIFFE, 11.45.—We find Sir John Macdonald resting quietly at the time of our visit, having recently partaken of light refreshment. The past night has been satisfactory, as expressed in the 6 a.m. bulletin. While we are gratified to find such an exhibition of vital strength as we see exemplified in him, yet we cannot alter our opinion as to the final result of his illness.

(Signed) R. W. POWELL, M.D.
J. A. GRANT, M.D.
H. P. WRIGHT, M.D.

Message from the Queen.

His Excellency and Major Colville walked over to Earnscliffe at 11 o'clock and conversed with Mr. Pope on the Premier's condition for some time. His Excellency informed the correspondent as he came up to the gate that he this morning received a cablegram from Her Majesty in these words "How is Sir John Macdonald to-day." Signed V. R. I. "As a matter of fact," His Excellency added, "I send a message to Her Majesty every day."

The following bulletin was issued at 5.45 p.m.: "The Premier has dozed comfortably to-day, except during the intervals of changing his posture and administering nourishment. His change of temperature since yesterday has appeared agreeable to him and he has not been exhausted by such free action of the skin which undoubtedly tends to weaken him. Signed, R. W. POWELL, M.D.

A Bad Turn

A 7 o'clock the medical attendant noticed a change in his patient, and the 10 o'clock consultation resulted in the issue of the following alarming bulletin:

EARNSCLIFFE, 11.20 p.m.—The Premier passed a quiet day without notable change till 7 o'clock, since that time he has shown signs of great prostration, evidenced by perspiration and a labored respiration numbering 30 per minute; pulse 130; weak and irregular; he took the usual nourishment at 9 p.m. (Signed) R. W. POWELL, M.D.
J. A. GRANT.
H. P. WRIGHT.

Immediately on receipt of this the House of Commons, which was still in session, adjourned. The low respiration and the excessively high pulse were most alarming symptoms and it was generally agreed that they indicated an early end.

Dr. Wright's Summary.

Dr. Wright when seen at midnight after the final consultation for the day and the issue of the last bulletin, stated that the marvelous vital forces which have enabled the Premier to so long maintain his struggle for life are undergoing a process of slow but sure decay. He passed a far better day than yesterday, but there was no real indication of permanent improvement. His condition has from first to last confirmed the diagnosis taken on the day he was stricken with paralysis. The end may come at any time, but, unless he is subject to another of the heart depressions which were so characteristic of his condition yesterday, there is no reason to suppose that he will not last out the night. The condition of the patient at midnight was simply this: no hope.

There has been none from the beginning, and this evening the evidences of decreasing vitality are more pronounced than they have yet been.

Some of His Last Words.

On Friday last Senator Sullivan went down to Earnscliffe and was admitted to see the Premier, who was then apparently recovering from the slight attack of paralysis of Wednesday and was feeling much better than on the preceding day. Sir John greeted his old friend cordially, and in the course of conversation referred to his illness, ridiculing the idea of paralysis, which the physicians had informed him was the nature of the attack. To show the Senator that there was at all events no paralysis now Sir John drew up his limbs and shot them out again, asking his visitor to note how he had full power over them. He complained of being asked to keep perfectly still and keep his [illegible] will drive me insane." This will explain to some extent the difficulty, even the impossibility, of anyone prevailing on the aged leader to remain quiet during the critical days between the election and last week. Dr. Sullivan congratulated him on feeling so much better and left him, shaking hands with him for what proved to be the last time.

Notes.

Sir Leonard Tilley and Lady Tilley arrived from St. John, N.B., to-day to see Sir John Macdonald, if possible.

The Liberals held a caucus yesterday afternoon and decided to continue what the party managers regard as an aggressive policy.

The rumor circulated in Ottawa to the effect that Sir John is insured in the Manufacturers' Life for $50,000 is entirely without foundation.

An interesting member of the sorrowing household is the Premier's little grandson "Jack," as he calls himself, who bears the most striking likeness to his grandfather, with whom he was an especial favorite. The little fellow, although but six years of age, fully realizes the gloom that hangs over the household, and tells callers who question him that "grandpa is very ill."

The hacks which are stationed in front of Earnscliffe day and night ready to respond to a moment's call are in charge of the faithful Buckley, who has been Sir John's cabman for many years. Buckley is quite a personage in Ottawa, and became generally known throughout the country at the time of the murder of Hon. Thomas D'Arcy McGee, when baseless rumors were started. Buckley is a general favorite of the master of Earnscliffe, and having known him intimately for over a quarter of a century has all along placed great confidence in his ultimate recovery.

What the Physicians Say.

Sir James Grant was seen this afternoon and asked: "Is the rumor true that Dr. Powell is not entirely at one with his colleagues in consultation and entertains a more hopeful view of Sir John's condition than do yourself and Dr. Wright?"

"There is no difference of opinion whatever between us in the Premier's case."

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

LONDON, June 2.—Sir John Macdonald's illness called forth a graceful tribute in the House of Commons last night from Mr. W. H. Smith. "Sir John Macdonald," said the First Lord of the Treasury, "is a man who, however his party conduct may be viewed, has earned the respect and admiration of all who know the services he has rendered to the Dominion and the empire. There can be but one feeling of deep sorrow that a life so valuable seems about to end."

Sir William Vernon Harcourt, Stavely Hill and Joseph Chamberlain joined the tribute to Sir John Macdonald, whose death they all said would be an international loss. The House generally showed keen sympathy with Canada.

The Daily Chronicle devotes the first leader to Sir John Macdonald and speaks highly of his services to the Empire. It thinks that his program will suffice to keep the present Parliament at Ottawa active for some years and says that the choice of a leader lies between Sir Charles Tupper and Sir John Thompson.

May Have Been Murdered.

OTTAWA, June 2.—The Ottawa police will to-morrow exhume the body of the unknown man found floating in the river here last week. Foul play is now suspected. A shantyman named Girouard answers to the description.

A Toronto Bigamist.

BUFFALO, June 2.—Philip Ranch, a married man of Toronto, came to East Buffalo from Canada two years ago and a few months later married another woman. The Toronto wife was formerly Sarah Bonner and Ranch married her 10 years ago. Wife No. 2 is now prosecuting him for bigamy.

THE BRITISH CARD CASE.

ANOTHER LEAF FROM THE LONDON SCANDAL.

Continuation of the Baccarat Trial—Sir William Gordon Cumming Concludes His Story—The Prince of Wales in the Witness Box—How the Game Was Played.

LONDON, June 2.—The second day of the baccarat trial commenced this morning at 11 o'clock. The rush for admittance to the court room was greater than on Monday. The Prince of Wales arrived soon after the opening of the proceedings. After Sir W. G. Cumming had finished his testimony the Prince of Wales was called and entered the witness box. He testified to his acquaintanceship with plaintiff. He himself saw nothing suspicious at Tranby Croft. Lord Coventry informed him of the cheating reports. The Prince told how he had left Tranby Croft after the developments. Before leaving witness gave his private secretary, Sir Francis Knollys, a statement in connection with the case signed by three of the men and two ladies, who had been playing in the game. Sir Francis did not know what the paper contained. Witness was not informed that two ladies whom he had not seen at the time alleged that they also had witnessed dishonest play by the plaintiff. The Prince declared that he had, out of regard to Sir William, desired to act as leniently as was possible under the circumstances.

Sir Charles Russell cross-examined the Prince with some show of airiness, addressing him as "You," instead of as "Your Royal Highness" and "Sir" as Sir Edward Clarke took care to do. But Sir Charles was manifestly tender in handling the royal witness. The general opinion was that there was a tacit agreement between the leading counsel that they were to fish for nothing from the Prince which any other witness could supply. Only once did the Prince display open impatience.

This was when Sir Charles asked, "What did Mrs. Wilson say to you about Sir William Gordon Cumming cheating?"

The Prince replied somewhat angrily: "She said very little."

There the subject was dropped, although the Prince had admitted Mrs. Wilson told him something about Sir William's cheating and Sir Charles wanted to find out what she had told.

Gen. Owen Williams was the next witness. His testimony regarding the games at Tranby Croft in the main concurred with that given by previous witnesses. On cross-examination by Sir Chas. Russell, Gen. Williams said the accusation against his friend Cumming came with a horrible shock on the second night of the baccarat playing at Tranby Croft. Witness heard the Prince of Wales tell plaintiff that he (Sir William) should keep his hands farther back because the Prince could not see the stakes. Witness said he and the others present at Tranby Croft on Sept. 8, 9, and 10 last told plaintiff that signing the document agreeing never to play cards again was the only way out of the difficulty, and if he did not do so he would have to leave the house and would also be warned off every racecourse in England and elsewhere.

This last piece of testimony caused a sensation.

Sir Charles asked Gen. Williams why he continued to address plaintiff as "Dear Bill" after the baccarat disclosures. Witness explained that plaintiff was suffering from agony of mind and witness admitted that plaintiff had reproached Lord Coventry and himself for giving him what he termed "bad advice." Cumming had before asked whether witness believed the charge. Witness told him the evidence was so overwhelming that he could not doubt. Mr. Green and four others came to witness and Mr. Green told witness how Cumming was watched and was seen to increase and decrease takes after play had been declared. Witness could see no interest in the accusers making false charges. At the interview with the Prince of Wales Cumming replied: "I think I shall refer the matter to my commanding officer and the Duke of Cambridge." Nettled at the remark witness replied: "You are perfectly at liberty to refer to the Duke, but neither he nor your commanding officer will deal so leniently with you as Lord Coventry and myself."

The Game of Baccarat.

No lottery of chance was ever talked about so much as baccarat. It is fascinating to a degree beyond ordinary comprehension. Probably no game of cards so absolutely simple in its details and free from complications was ever so popular. In brief, one member of a party elects to be banker. He deals the cards to only two players from a box similar to a cigar box after they have been shuffled. The point is to get nine or eighteen spots in order to win. Two cards must be dealt to each player before the dealer serves himself. To get more than eighteen spots is fatal, and he who first counts nine or eighteen takes the money wagered. If, however, a player fails to get the desired number the banker draws a card alternately with the two players, and if nine or eighteen is not made before stopping and the banker ties the player the latter loses. The players stake their money separately. In fact, at one deal there are two games in progress and the spectators may wager their money on either, all of which must be accepted by the banker.

The great difficulty to an ordinarily prudent baccarat player is to know when to leave off; even the strongest-minded can scarcely trust their judgment in this respect, so it may be readily imagined what sort of chance any vacillating player has of being successful at the game.

There are certain matters in connection with the Tranby Croft baccarat affair that are worth considering, for although heaps of articles have been printed most of them may be put down as rubbish. Sir William is alleged to have resorted to a form of cheating known as the "poussette"—that is, adding to the stake when the banker has lost and decreasing it when he has won. Now, had the table been better conducted it would have been impossible for this to have occurred.

As every player at baccarat knows, prior to the banker making a start, he states the amount in the bank—let us put it, for example, at £50. Anyone sitting down at the table has the right to call the whole of the bank, selecting the left or the right on which to pick up the cards. If the bank is not called then the banker proceeds to deal to £25 a side, or as much of it as may be "marked" or called—the former meaning that the money is placed on the table; the latter, that the bank has accepted the bet without the money being staked, but this is quite the exception, the ready coin being invariably planked. Now, previous to the banker dealing the cards, it is the duty of two croupiers, one on the right and the other on the left, to count up the stakes deposited on either side and then make up the bank. Then the banker knows to the smallest coin the exact amount of the liabilities. Had the game been properly played at Tranby Croft no one attempting the "poussette" would have stood an earthly chance of either increasing or decreasing his take.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

A Further Debate on Sir Charles Tupper's Speech.

OTTAWA, June 2.—The House was occupied all day with the debate resumed by Cameron (Huron) on the resolution condemning Sir Charles Tupper for his action in the recent elections.

At midnight Mr. Charlton moved the adjournment of the debate.

Sir Hector Langevin having read the last bulletin from Earnscliffe said he was afraid that if the debate was continued it would be in progress when the event they feared would happen, and therefore consented to an adjournment.

Mr. Tarte said that he had been informed, and he believed correctly, that the same fraudulent transactions which were carried on at Quebec and elsewhere were also carried on in connection with the Kingston graving dock.

A DAKOTA CYCLONE.

Several People Killed and Much Damage Occasioned.

WATERTOWN, Dak., June 2.—This afternoon a small dark funnel-shaped cloud suddenly appeared in the south and soon developed into a cyclone. It moved close to the ground with a whirling motion and a noise like a huge fire snapping and cracking. Fortunately it struck the city on the extreme eastern limit where the buildings were scattered. Six barns were demolished. The path of the storm was 100 feet wide, but not a single house within the limits was in its way. Horses were hurled into the air and sent sprawling to the earth. Wagons were taken up bodily and dashed to pieces. Five miles northeast of here two houses and three barns were carried away. The debris from the storm as it left this city spread along for nearly a mile. O. H. Chandler and his son were in one of the barns when the storm struck it and were pinned under the boards. Three people were killed at Hazel, 16 miles southwest of here, and the storm is said to have been very severe in that vicinity. A heavy rain and hail followed the storm but did no damage. This was [illegible]wa's first cyclone.

A FRIGHTFUL DEATH.

A Fever-Crazed Man Leaps From a Liverpool Hotel Window.

LIVERPOOL, June 2.—A horrible accident occurred at the Northwestern Hotel in this city yesterday morning, by which William H. Gilchrist, 45, who is believed to be an American, met a terrible death. The deceased arrived from the west coast of Africa on Thursday last, and was given a room on the third floor of the hotel. He was suffering from malarial fever, which he had contracted in Africa, and at an early hour yesterday morning he was seized with delirium. His condition became known and a doctor was sent for. Gilchrist all of a sudden jumped up and made a clean spring through the window, which is of plate glass. Gilchrist fell to the pavement below, which was a great distance from the window. He was impaled on the iron railings which surround the hotel, the spikes of which entered his body just below the stomach and the force of the fall caused him to be ripped partially open, so that he died very shortly afterward.

Canadians to be Protected.

OTTAWA, June 2.—In the Senate Senator Macdonald of British Columbia asked whether the Dominion Government was in consultation with the Imperial authorities regarding Canada's interest in the present Behring Sea negotiations. Mr. Abbott, leader of the Government replied: "It is a fact that all along and up to the present moment the Imperial Government is in active consultation with the Government of the Dominion as regards the settlement of the Behring Sea question.

"The Canadian Government have taken the greatest possible pains to lay before the Imperial Government fully their views on the subject, including their views with regard to the stoppage of the traffic of those sealers who have already left the Pacific coast and some of them from the Atlantic coast, for the fishing grounds. It would not be proper for me at this stage, without the papers, to discuss the details of the arrangements which are not absolutely completed, although approximately near completion, but I may say there is no point on which any precaution to preserve the interests of Canadian fishermen has been neglected in our communications with the Imperial Government."

Their Love Forbidden They Die Together.

GALENA, Ill., June 2.—For some time a strong attachment had existed between Miss Ada P. Townsend, a handsome young girl of wealthy parents, and Elmer Foster, a farm hand, both of whom reside in Rush township. Like the course of all true love, this one did not run smooth, but had in it many rocks and bowlders, the largest of which was the objection of the girl's parents to their marriage. Clandestine meetings were the only consolation left the young lovers.

At the usual hour this morning the girl's mother went to her room door to call her to breakfast, and not receiving an answer the door was broken in.

A horrible spectacle met her gaze. Lying stretched upon the bed was the corpse of young Foster, while on the floor, where she had fallen in her agony, was that of her young daughter. Their death had been caused by strychnine, which they had procured for that purpose.

Blew Out His Brains.

WINNIPEG, June 2.—Walter Armstrong of Gilbert Plains, disappointed in a love affair, blew out his brains with a pistol last night. He came to the Plains from Carberry.

London Startled by a Shocking Tragedy

LONDON, June 2.—The neighbors of a family occupying apartments in a house in Kentish Town, a suburb of London, noticed that none of the family had been seen for some time and upon opening the rooms the head of the family, his wife and child were found dead in the room. It was evident the man had killed his wife and child and then killed himself by cutting his throat.

Beer As a Fire Extinguisher.

BERLIN, June 1.—Auerbach & Gleisohen's oil works at Breslau were destroyed by fire yesterday. The brewery of Hepf & Goerch, situated near the refinery, was in danger of destruction and was saved in a novel manner. The water supply proving insufficient the firemen were invited to make use of the beer stored in the place. A large number of casks of the precious fluid were brought out and their contents poured upon the flames, with the result of putting a stop to the spread of the conflagration.

ST. ANDREW'S PASTOR.

REV. A. MACWILLIAMS INDUCTED TO THE CHARGE.

The Ceremony—A Sermon and an Address on Presbyterian Principles of Church Government—Addresses to Pastor and People—A Social Reception.

Yesterday afternoon Rev. Andrew MacWilliams was duly inducted as pastor of St. Andrew's church, and on Sabbath next will preach to his new congregation for the first time as their pastor.

The rev. gentleman was placed over his charge with the usual rites and impressive service of the Presbyterian church, and he steps into the pastorate under the most hopeful and happy circumstances. A comparatively young man, full of vigor and possessed of talents as a preacher, he can surely look forward to the future with hopefulness, for he comes into a handsome church, a good congregation, which is in a most enviable position financially. May it be all that he anticipates and his congregation look forward to.

In accordance with requirements a meeting of the Presbytery was held prior to the induction services for the purpose of hearing any objections which might be presented to the rev. gentleman accepting the pastorate of St. Andrew's. This was only a formal meeting at which Rev. Mr. McEwen, of Lakefield, Moderator, presided, and those present were Rev. Messrs. Bennet, Springville; Torrance, of St. Paul's; Carmichael, of Norwood; Hay, of Cobourg; White, of Peterborough; Anderson, of Bobcaygeon; Hyde, of Warsaw; Scott, of Campbellford, and Anderson, of Keene, and Mr. W. M. Graham, of Lakefield.

Shortly after two o'clock quite a large congregation had gathered in the church to participate in the induction services. They were principally members of St. Andrew's congregation. The Presbytery entered the church and were seated in the front pews.

THE INDUCTION SERMON.

The opening exercises were conducted by Rev. Mr. Anderson, of Bobcaygeon, who had been appointed to preach the sermon. He chose for his text the 8th chapter of Romans, commencing at the 31st verse:—

> "What shall we then say to these things, if God be for us who can be against us? etc. —Romans viii, 31-39.

The discourse was an able and logical one, which had been carefully thought out and setting forth the Presbyterian doctrine of grace. In opening, the rev. gentleman spoke of the chapter from which the text was taken as bearing the same position to the other chapters in the Bible as the Bible did towards other books. After dwelling upon its beauties, he proceeded to point out the things which were referred to by Paul when he said, "What shall we say then to these things?" He dwelt upon "these things" which were set forth in the preceding part of the chapter, and consisted of the blessed relationship which the believer held towards God, and the blessings and privileges coming out of that relationship. It was to the believer, he said, that these comforts belonged, and if they only appreciated them they ought to be the happiest of all men. Against the believer there was no condemnation, he was under the special protection and in his calling or election he could look away back into the depths of God's eternal love, which had chosen him for Christ before the foundation of the world. Then the preacher proceeded to point out some of the inferences contained in the passage—the safety of Christ's people, the assurance of their temporal welfare and the assurance that there would be no separation.

THE PRESBYTERIAN SYSTEM.

Rev. Mr. McEwen, the Moderator, then took charge of the service and introduced Rev. Mr. Andrews, of Keene, who was to give a statement of the principles of government of the church of which they were a part.

Rev. Mr. Andrews gave a very clear address, in which he upheld the Presbyterian system of church government as the Scriptural form. First he referred to the Popish system, then to the Episcopalian system and thirdly to the Congregational system, each of which claimed to be the Scriptural system but which the rev. gentleman sought to show was not the case. The fourth system was Presbyterianism, which had for its foundation three things—first, the parity of its ministers, second its government by elders or Presbyters, and, third, the taking for granted the unity of the Church of Christ. Presbyterianism asserted that there were but two classes of office bearers—deacons and elders or presbyters or bishops, for, he said, he held that an elder was just as much a bishop as the Bishop of London. This he contended was the Scriptural system of government. He went more minutely into the system and cited New Testament authority for his claim that it was Scriptural. They admired Presbyterianism, he said, for what it claimed to lay down and for what it did not claim to lay down. It did not claim to establish rites or sacraments or to make moral laws for its members. They admired it because of its doctrines, because of the liberty it gave to minister and people, because it conserved to order, because of its graduation of courts, because it was the patron and friend of education, because it had stood up as the bulwark of liberty. There was no church in Christendom to which every man owed so much. It was Presbyterianism that had handed down their civil liberty. The rev. gentleman grew eloquent when speaking of the stands made by Presbyterianism in Scotland and in Londonderry and in concluding said one of these Presbyterians was to be placed over them. He succeeded a man who was a true Presbyterian, who was a man of God and one of their best preachers, but upon whom God's rod had fallen and he had been laid by for a little, but he hoped would be spared to occupy some other place in the Presbyterian field and labor to glorify God. At their invitation this rev. man came amongst them and they should see that they honored him for his works, that they were subject to him in the Lord, and that they wronged him not.

THE FORMAL INDUCTION.

Rev. Mr. McEwen then proceeded with the induction ceremony. He first narrated the circumstances which had led up to the calling and induction of the new pastor and then called upon Rev. Mr. MacWilliams to come forward.

That gentleman stepped to the front and answered the several questions, after which the members of Presbytery gathered around him while the Moderator offered a solemn and impressive prayer.

The prayer finished the Moderator took the new pastor by the hand and inducted him with these words:—

"In the name and by authority of the Lord Jesus Christ and by authority of the Presbytery of Peterborough I now extend to you the right hand of fellowship and induct you into the charge of this congregation, praying that the Lord may keep, guide and cheer you in your work."

The newly inducted pastor was then warmly shaken by the hand by his fellow members of Presbytery.

DUTIES OF PASTOR AND PEOPLE.

Rev. Mr. Scott then read the address to the pastor, setting forth the duties and character of a true man of God, administering to the spiritual wants of a congregation.

Rev. Mr. Hay then addressed the people as to their duties towards the pastor. He impressed upon them that they should give him their support. They should support him by little things, punctuality in attending service, taking an earnest part in the service, coming to the House of God in a spiritual frame of mind and unity of spirit, praying for their pastor, not making adverse criticism of the sermons in the presence of the children, maintaining a high standard of Christian life, being sincere, never flattering but always encouraging, never telling the pastor the faults of others but letting him find them out for himself, approaching the pastor directly if they saw any apparent defect and remembering that his mission was not to fill the pews but to save souls. In closing he hoped God would abundantly bless them and the work amongst them.

A hymn and prayer closed the service, which had been interspersed with hymns led by the choir. When the service was over Rev. Mr. MacWilliams took his station at the door and was introduced to each member as they passed out.

The congregation did not disperse for in the Sunday School room the ladies of the church had prepared a grand feast and all were invited to a reception for the new pastor. A happy time was spent, pleasant sociability marking the first intercourse between the newly inducted pastor and his people.

MIRACLE OF MODERN DAYS.

HAMILTON PRODUCES ONE OF THE MOST REMARKABLE CURES ON RECORD.

"Totally Disabled," Yet Cured.

Hamilton Times, May 27th, 1891.

One of the most remarkable cures in the history of medicine has just been effected in this city, and the fame of it is fast spreading throughout the land. Over four years ago, Mr. John Marshall, then employed as manager of Mr. J. C. Williams' coal oil refinery works here, sustained a fall, which at the time was not thought to be serious. He doctored but his trouble grew worse and contracting cold after cold upon his other trouble he was compelled to give up work entirely. His troubles developed into ataxy, a nervous disorder, held by medical authorities to be incurable. For four years Mr. Marshall has been an intense sufferer. He lost the use of his legs entirely and could not raise himself from a chair except by the use of a crutch and a stick. Though there was power in his legs there was no feeling. He could take his heavy stick and hammer the flesh until the sound of blows filled the house. During the course of these years no less than fourteen leading physicians treated him. Sometimes two or three of them were in attendance at once. All agreed that his disease was incurable. Mr. Marshall went to Toronto for electrical treatment, at a heavy expense, but received not the slightest benefit. He tried every patent medicine that was recommended to him, yet without getting any aid. The "suspension" treatment was resorted to, and he was suspended by means of appliances around his neck and under his arms from the ceiling of the barn, but got no relief. Electric belts and appliances of an endless variety were tried, and thoroughly tried, too, but all resulted the same way—they left Mr. Marshall just as they had found him. At one time twenty pins were run into the flesh of his leg. He barely felt two of them; the others he did not feel at all. His flesh was cut into with a knife and he felt not the slightest pain; and so he went on until the 13th day of April last, every remedy suggested by any one being tried, and hundreds of dollars spent upon patent medicines, to say nothing of doctors' bills.

Mr. Marshall was a member of the Royal Templars of Temperance. He was passed by the physicians of the order as totally disabled for life. The chief medical examiner passed him, and he was paid the $1,000 paid by the Order in cases of total disability.

A day or two ago a Times representative called upon Mr. Marshall at his residence No. 25 Little William-st. The door was open, and upon knocking, a strong steady step was heard. Mr. Marshall opened the door and received the reporter cordially. He walked without either crutch or stick and looked the picture of a sturdy fine man. He conversed freely of his case, as did Mrs. Marshall who came in later. "Five weeks ago," he said, "I could not raise my foot or bend my leg. As for walking without a stick or crutch it was impossible. I had seen an advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and as they were especially recommended for nervous disorders, I concluded to try them. I had what the doctors called Locomotor Ataxy. I had not walked for almost four years. My wife said 'Oh, what's the use of trying another patent medicine?' but I tried the Pink Pills. I had not used one box before I began to feel the effects. The feeling came back to my right leg first. After using them two weeks I was able to walk up to Mr. G. J. Williams' place on MacNab-st., over a mile and a half from here, and back. I had got nearly home when my left leg gave out, and I nearly went down. I had to stand and rub the leg for several minutes. Then it felt as if a thousand pins were running in it. That was the blood beginning to circulate in the leg that had been dead almost four years. From that time it has steadily improved. Now you see how I am. (Here Mr. Marshall arose and walked briskly around the room without artificial assistance.) I have used absolutely nothing but the Pink Pills and taken cold baths as directed on the boxes. To-day I walked to the market and back—a three-mile walk. I have lived in Hamilton for 30 years and am well known. Hundreds of people stopped me on the streets. Some of them stopped me to see if it was really John Marshall. Hundreds of people have been here to see me. Among them came several physicians who attended me. One of them, and the one who did the most for me, said, 'Well, you are the first cure in 10,000 cases.' I can tell you of a bank messenger in this city who has not walked as straight in 25 years as he has this last week. He took Pink Pills on my recommendation. Scores more in this city are trying them and quite a number in this vicinity have been benefitted."

Mr. Marshall is gaining strength rapidly and expects to be back before long. He grows more enthusiastic in talking of Pink Pills and he has good reason to, for his is a remarkable salvation. Since beginning to use the remedy he has regained lost flesh and now weighs more than he has for nine years. He has not an ache or pain, but is conscious of a delicious feeling of healthy life in his legs.

The remarkable case noted in the above article from the Hamilton Times, conclusively proves that the proprietors of Dr. Williams's Pink Pills have in no way overstated the merits of their remedy. Pink Pills are a never-failing blood builder and nerve tonic, and are equally valuable for men or women, young or old. They cure all forms of debility, female weaknesses, suppressions, chronic constipation, headache, St. Vitus dance, loss of memory, premature decay, etc., and, by their marvellous action on the blood, build up the system anew and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow complexions. These pills are sold by all dealers or will be sent post paid on receipt of price (50 cents a box) by addressing the Dr. Williams Medical Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE LATEST NEWS!

SIR JOHN'S CONDITION IS LOWER TO-DAY.

The Veteran's Career Drawing to a Close.

The first despatch received from Ottawa this morning reported little change in Sir John Macdonald's condition and another received before eleven o'clock reported the Premier sleeping quietly. A bulletin issued at 11.15 was less favorable and shows that the end which all desired might yet be averted is approaching. It is as follows:—

OTTAWA, June 3, 11.15 a.m.—The following bulletin has just been issued by the physicians:—

"Sir John's condition is lower to-day than yesterday. At this hour the alterations in his strength are at shorter intervals than before. He takes nourishment less willingly than heretofore. Respiration 36, pulse 128, very regular and compressible."

A Printer Dead.

This morning Charles Ridley, a well-known printer recently employed in the Examiner job department, died after a lingering illness of several months. The deceased served his apprenticeship in the REVIEW and worked in this office for years. He was a faithful employee, a good workman and an unassuming, industrious citizen. He leaves a family.

Boils, carbuncles, and eruptions of all kinds are nature's efforts to throw off poison from the blood. This result may be accomplished much more effectually, as well as agreeably, through the proper excretory channels, by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

The Veteran Premier.

At a largely attended meeting of the West Peterborough County Orange Lodge held at Lakefield on Tuesday evening the following resolution was passed:—

Moved by R. W. Bro. Robert Weir, G.M. R.B.K. of Ireland, and seconded by Bro. J. A. McWilliams, W.M. No. 33,—That this meeting of West Peterborough County Orange Lodge, held in the Orange Hall, Lakefield, June 2nd, 1891, desire to give public expression of its deep sorrow and sympathy for Sir John A. Macdonald in this the hour of his great affliction. Although personally unknown to many of our members, yet their feelings bear witness to the high esteem and affection he holds in their hearts. Should the great I Am in His Heavenly wisdom decree that he part from us, we pray that he may join the Grand Lodge above.

Cheap Wall Paper.

Mr. J. R. Stratton, of the Peterborough Bookstore, has leased the adjoining premises now being vacated by Mr. Jas. [illegible] which will be occupied by the fancy goods and wall paper department of his business. In order to facilitate removal the stock of over 20,000 rolls of wall paper must be reduced, and for the next thirty days a great sacrifice sale of wall paper will be held at the Peterborough Bookstore. The stock comprises over 20,000 rolls of wall paper, of all qualities and of the very latest designs, which should be cleared out before the change takes place. A fine lot of gold papers and a variety of job ends are in the stock, and will be sold at astonishingly low prices. This great sale of wall paper will continue for thirty days and those requiring wall paper within the next thirty days will find it to their advantage to call at the Peterborough Bookstore. 5d120-1w20

DEATH CAME SUDDENLY

AND A CORONER'S JURY ARE INQUIRING INTO THE CAUSE.

Mr. Edmund J. R. Hopkins, an English Gentleman, Dies Suddenly—Something About the Deceased—Dies Apparently Without a Struggle—The Evidence of the Medical Attendants—His Wife's Cousin's Evidence—A Post Mortem to be Held.

Some little sensation was caused last evening when it became generally known that Mr. Edmund J. R. Hopkins, an English gentleman residing in the south end of the town, had died very suddenly and that the circumstances were such that it had been decided to hold a coroner's inquest to inquire into the cause of death.

The deceased had not long been a resident of Peterborough, yet he was known to everyone who has much business on the streets. His was a striking figure and for this reason he was a man who would be noticed in a crowd. He dressed always in a decidedly English costume, wearing high leggings, short shooting jacket and a small peaked cap. This costume tended to make him appear very slight in form, while his pale, thin face, with a heavy moustache, gave him a rather delicate appearance. His wife was frequently with him on the streets, a rather attractive looking lady, always attired with taste and style. It was known that Mr. Hopkins had a very considerable income, for, although they occupied a modest dwelling in a rather rural part of the town, yet they spent money freely. They lived a very quiet life, apparently enjoying themselves in their own way, and it was generally supposed that Mr. Hopkins was an English gentleman sojourning in Canada for his health or pleasure. He made few intimate friends, but gentlemen who knew him all speak of him as a courteous, genial and social gentleman. Many persons wondered at the rather secluded life Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins led socially in their humble dwelling on Chamberlain-st., but they were apparently entirely oblivious of any such idle wonderings. Naturally enough when any air of mystery was thrown around the household by a sudden death and an inquest the public INTEREST WAS EXCITED.

The deceased gentleman came to Peterborough a little over eighteen months ago with his wife. He was an Englishman from Berkshire. From the information the REVIEW gathered his father, Robert Hopkins, is a very wealthy gentleman resident in Berkshire. The deceased was his eldest son and had he lived would have inherited an immense fortune. At the time of his death he had command of means which had enabled him to travel to many parts of the world, sightseeing. He was married to his present wife just before coming out to Canada nearly two years ago. According to the evidence of his wife's cousin he came out to Canada simply on a pleasure trip and was attracted to Peterborough where he was sojourning. In March last Mr. Herbert Percival Mullens, cousin of Mrs. Hopkins, came out to visit his cousin and her husband and has remained here ever since. He is an athletic looking young man, with a pleasing manner and gave his evidence at the inquest in a gentlemanly, straight-forward manner. A cablegram was sent to the deceased's relatives in England and a reply will govern the interment of the remains.

It was an awfully sudden death coming, as the evidence below shows, shortly after Dr. Halliday's visit, and the cause of it is at present a mystery. The doctors can come to no conclusion and until the post mortem is held and reported the death will be a mysterious one. The deceased was an active man, for though apparently delicate in appearance he was never heard to complain of sickness or indisposition.

Mr. Rye, who had known the deceased in New Zealand, was one of his most intimate friends here. The deceased was at that gentleman's house Monday night and it was after retiring from there that he was first taken ill. The evidence tells the story of his death.

THE INQUEST.

The inquest was held by Dr. Bell, coroner, on the report of the physician called in that the circumstances surrounding the death were peculiar. At seven o'clock the coroner and his jury had gathered in the police court room, where the following jury was empanelled:—

J. P. Motheral, foreman.

IN THE DEATH CHAMBER.

The first duty of the jury was to view the remains. With Chief Roszel the jurors, accompanied by the REVIEW representative, marched to residence of the deceased, 87 Chamberlain-st. It was a small brick dwelling standing a short distance from the C. P. R. railway track on Chamberlain-st., west of the gravel road. The body was lying upstairs on the bed in the small room where the grim monster had entered and snatched its victim in such an awfully sudden and mysterious manner. As stated the room was a small one, moderately furnished and was in the back part of the house. Its size only permitted half of the jurors to enter at one time. It was reached from the front door by a narrow stair case, opening in to the left from the landing. It was dark when the jury arrived and the doctor lighted a lamp and held it down over the bed as he uncovered the body. The white linen cloth with which the head was bandaged made the inordinately white countenance of the dead man look like the driven snow. The expression of the fixed features was calm and peaceful, and but for the unusual whiteness of the face, one might think he had fallen asleep. The body was dressed in a suit of fine India silk underwear, of the most expensive style and texture, seldom seen in this country. The body was examined, but nothing was seen to indicate violence or the cause of death. Mrs. Hopkins was prostrated with grief by the sudden shock of her sad bereavement and was not seen by the jury, she being across the road at a neighbors. She will have universal sympathy at such a time. When the jury had viewed the remains they retired to the court room where evidence was proceeded with.

HIS PHYSICIAN'S EVIDENCE.

Dr. HALLIDAY was the first witness. He being sworn, deposed as follows:—I saw Mr. Hopkins last night about 8.30 for the first time during this illness, he was at his own house on Chamberlain-st. I found him in bed suffering from an apparently severe cold. His skin was hot and dry, and I should judge that his temperature was about 102½, pulse quick, regular and a little over 100. He told me he felt very well in the morning and had walked about town a good deal. He went up to Mr. Rye's after lunch and sat on the verandah where he thought he got a chill. Before he got home he felt very wretched and could hardly drag himself along. He complained of aching all over as if he had been pounded. He was slightly hoarse, and nose stuffed as if he had a severe cold in the head and chest. In addition to the aching he also complained of a stitch in the side or back, but did not seem to be able to locate it. I examined his chest and did not find anything decided, though over the base of the left lung I detected very slight crepitation. From the history he had given me and from the symptoms I found him laboring under, I anticipated an attack of pneumonia and prescribed for him. The prescription was:—Extract jaborandi fluid, 2 dr.; spirits ether nitrosi, 2 dr.; liquor amonia acet. 2 oz.; simple elixir to 4 oz. Directions were tablespoonful in little water every two hours until fever subsided. Also gave directions that it could be given in smaller quantities or at longer intervals to keep up the effect after the fever had subsided. He was to have beef tea, soup, tea, etc., and I was to see him in the morning. I also ordered a linseed meal and mustard poultice to the side. I went down this morning shortly after eight and found him with a temperature of 102, pulse about 90 and seemingly fuller, yet softer than last night and quite regular. The skin was moist and warm. He had not perspired freely. He had taken I think he said one or two doses of the mixture, but could not retain it so he did not take any more. He said as he was tired and sleepy last night he did not have the poultice put on. He expressed himself as feeling better, although he said he had had a pretty bad night. I prescribed for him at that time three powders containing each about 5 grains of quinine, one to be taken in a little whiskey every four hours. I went over the side again this morning and did not discover the slight crepitation which I did last night. I directed diet to be continued the same. He asked if he would apply the poultice this morning, but as I did not discover the crepitation and he did not have the pain I did not think it necessary. That is really all I know of the case personally and when I returned from the country this morning I heard he was dead. His death was quite unexpected on my part.

TO A JURYMAN.—I only know from hearsay what time he died. I am told it was about a quarter past nine. It was just half past eight when I left him. I saw no outward signs that would produce death. The purple discoloration on the side of the body was due to the position the body was in when he did. Judging from the symptoms I had from Mrs. Hopkins after I left I should think he died of syncope or faintness.

THE DOCTOR FOUND HIM DEAD.

Dr. PIGEON was next called. He testified as follows:—About ten o'clock this morning Mr. Hopkin's colored boy came to my house and asked me if I would go down and see Mr. Hopkins at once as he was very sick. I went at once and arrived there shortly after ten o'clock. Mr. Mullen met me at the gate, made some remarks about Mr. Hopkins being very serious or something to that effect and ushered me upstairs at once. I found the deceased lying on a bed ghastly pale, eyes partially opened, right hand thrown out looking very blue and pale. I felt for his pulse. His hand and arm were deathly cold and I could perceive no pulsation. I then listened at his heart which had ceased to beat. I called for a looking glass which was brought by Mr. Mullen. I held it in front of his mouth for a few seconds. There was no moisture on it and I decided he was dead. Mrs. Hopkins was kneeling at the side of him and expressed it as impossible that he could be dead, but at last she was convinced that he was. She gave me the history of his sickness similar to what Dr. Halliday has given you. She said he had taken one of the powders which Dr. Halliday had left, and that after he had fallen into a doze and when she saw him again he was in a similar condition to that in which I saw him. I asked for the medicine and powders which Dr. Halliday had left. I took them and when I got home I put them in that envelope and there they are. (Witness here produced an envelope containing the powders and the bottle which were taken by the Coroner.) Mr. Mullen stated that Mr. Hopkins had vomited several times during the night. I asked to see the vomit, but it was so mixed with water in the chamber that I could make nothing out of it. It appeared to be all fluid and no food. I casually examined the body and did not see any marks or bruises. Mrs. Hopkins said Dr. Halliday had thought Mr. Hopkins was suffering from congested lungs. I went over the lungs but found no dullness either anterior or posterior. They were resonant all over. I formed no conclusion as to cause of death.

To the Jurymen.—He looked as though he had died a natural death. Mrs. Hopkins was in the room. His body was quite warm. The medicine Dr. Halliday gave would not cause vomiting on an ordinary stomach.

In reply to the coroner's question as to whether there were any circumstances or cause which would lead him to believe that death resulted from other than natural causes the witness after a pause said "Well no, only the gentleman was in town, was comparatively a young man and his death was so sudden that the whole neighborhood was startled." Continuing he said "I know nothing about Mr. Hopkin's habits but I think he lived pretty freely, that he was a man who took a good deal of stimulants during the day. There was nothing in his habits to bring on sudden death at his age. I used to see him every day. He was a very genial, nice man.

HIS WIFE'S COUSIN'S EVIDENCE.

Mr. MULLENS, the young Englishman who boarded with the deceased, was called and being sworn, said:—I have been living with Mr. Hopkins since March last. I was in the house this morning when Mr. Hopkins died. It was between a quarter and half past nine o'clock. I was speaking to him last about 10.30 last night. He was then in bed, very feverish and I myself gave him his medicine, that which Dr. Halliday prescribed. That was the first dose. I then went to my room. About ten minutes after Mrs. Hopkins came to my room and told me that he had vomited the medicine and asked if she would give him another dose. I said I should not until the two hours were up. I heard nothing of him again until morning. I heard the doctor come and went down stairs and waited there until he came down. I asked Mrs. Hopkins what the doctor said and she said he said that he was slightly better. I saw Mrs. Hopkins mix the powder in two teaspoonfuls of whiskey. I then went upstairs with her, she going into Mr. Hopkins' room and I going into my own. Shortly after this Mrs. Hopkins came and asked me to come and see Mr. Hopkins as he went fast asleep and had a peculiar appearance. I did not like the look of him and sent the black boy for Dr. Pigeon. When Dr. Pigeon arrived I was waiting for him and we went upstairs together. He then examined him in the way he has stated. I then went down stairs with the doctor and he left. Dr. Pigeon said he could form no opinion to the cause of death. No one, neither Mrs. Hopkins or myself, was alarmed or anticipated his death. I was acquainted with Mr. Hopkins before he came to Canada. When I knew him he was residing in London. I know no reason for him coming to Canada except for a pleasure trip. He has travelled a good deal. He has been in Canada nearly two years. He suffered slightly from rheumatism in England. I never heard him complain since I have been here or feel ill at all until last night.

To a Juryman.—I should say it was from a quarter of an hour to twenty minutes between the time the powder was administered until Mrs. Hopkins called me into the room. I could not notice any breathing when I went to his bedside. I never saw Mr. Hopkins the worse of liquor. He took stimulants freely, but if anything a little less lately than hitherto. I arrived here on the 17th of March. Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins lived comfortably together. I am a cousin of Mrs. Hopkins. I thought Mr. Hopkins was dead when I first saw him, but I did not say so to Mrs. Hopkins. Nothing was said to any person as to the effect of the medicine, except that Mrs. Hopkins said she thought the powder had been too much for him and was sorry she had given it to him.

This was all the evidence that was taken, the jury deciding that they would order a post mortem to be made, recommending Dr. Clarke and Dr. Boucher to do the work.

An adjournment was therefore made until Monday night next when the result of the post mortem will be put in and the evidence of Mrs. Hopkins will be taken.

RESULT OF THE POST MORTEM.

The Doctors make their Examination and find Sufficient to Cause Natural Death.

This morning Dr. Clarke and Dr. Boucher made the post mortem examination ordered. The medical men refused, of course, to give out any information in regard to their examination, but will make a detailed report at the adjourned inquest. However the REVIEW is in a position to state that the doctors found sufficient in the deceased's internal organs to bring death from natural causes. Exactly what the derangements were cannot be said until the doctors make their report. The stomach of the dead man will be preserved and if the jury consider it necessary will be forwarded for analysis.

FIFTY YEARS TOGETHER.

Mr. and Mrs. James Mann Celebrate Their Golden Wedding.

Fifty years ago yesterday Mr. James Mann, then a young man in a young country, led Miss Margaret Robinson to the altar and they were united in the bonds of holy wedlock. Fifty years have elapsed and the happy couple are still alive, surrounded by seven children and over forty grand children.

They were married near the place, Bridgenorth, where they celebrated their golden wedding, so that while they have seen their family grow up and the grand branch spring up they have also seen the county settled and Peterborough grow from a straggling village to the prosperous town.

Mr. Mann is now seventy-three years of age, while his better half who has journeyed through half a century with him is a few months his junior. The golden wedding was a happy re-union. All the children were present, death having made no breach in the family circle. The children are three sons and four daughters—James H., Thos. R. and William George, Mrs. Jas Elliott, of Oregon, Mrs. W. Kelly, of Bridgenorth, Mrs. Wm. Garbutt, of Douro, and Mrs Thos. Milburn, of Smith. They were all present, Mrs. Elliott having arrived on Saturday from Oregon to be present at the event. As stated the grand children number forty-six. It was indeed a happy gathering and will be a brightening event in the decline years of the aged couple.

Mr. Sproule, of Peterborough, took a photograph of the family group of fifty-four persons.

TRINITY UNIVERSITY.

An Address by Provost Body—The Principles and Progress of that Seat of Learning.

Last night an informal meeting was held at the Rectory where a few gentlemen met the Provost of Trinity College and Rev. A. C. Cayley, who had come down to give information concerning the principles, work and progress of the University. Among those present were Judge Weller, A. P. Poussette, G. Fessenden, Col. H. C. Rogers, W. D. Parker and a number of the St. Andrew's Brotherhood.

After some general conservation the Provost said that the University had been founded with the object of educating side by side the mental, physical and spiritual powers of man, without any being excluded. A distinctive feature of the University also, was its home life, the students being generally required to live in residence under proper supervision. These principles had been applied for centuries in Oxford and Cambridge and had produced some of the greatest living men. Trinity aimed to make her graduates thorough in every particular, sound in their religious faith and efficient and practical men. Great advances had lately been made in the teaching staff and the number of students had been doubled and fellowships had been inaugurated. The new wing lately opened with every modern convenience was one of the best equipped collegiate buildings in Canada. To meet all this outlay $100,000 had been raised in 1882 and another $100,000 was appealed for now. Of this last $25,000 had been received. The Provost said he did not come to Peterborough expecting to receive money, for he had learned with great pleasure of the exertions made by Churchmen to reduce the debt of St. John's church. The striking effort made at Easter had excited comment throughout the Diocese, and was arousing others to a knowledge of what could be done by united self-denial. There was no greater need in this country than for churches to wipe off old liabilities and be able to face new emergencies as they arose. Peterborough was bestirring herself in this respect and he warmly sympathized with them. He accordingly looked to his friends here to help the University how and when they could. He (the Provost) was content in giving information about it. Trinity had been supported well in the past by volunteers and would be in the future, and he believed that one volunteer was worth one hundred pressmen even though the pressure should come from the government of the country, and if their number at Trinity was not so large as at other Universities there was a stronger college life and they were able to give more attention to individual students.

Short addresses were then delivered by Rev. A. C. Cayley, Col. Rogers, Mr. Fessenden and Mr. A. P. Poussette, all of whom dwelt with enthusiasm on the striking progress made of late years under Provost Body's enterprising regime and the bright prospects for the University.

WHAT IS HOME WITHOUT WALL PAPER.

Some Facts that Should Interest All Who Require Wall Paper—A Time to Buy.

Occasionally the opportunity turns up whereby one can get in the neighborhood of one dollars worth for about fifty cents. It is not of so much consequence if the article on sale is something not in general use, but if it should be such as there is timely use for, then the chance is worth taking advantage of. A reporter noticing that H. Thompson & Co. were sending out large parcels of wall paper looked into the shop to inquire who were the buyers, and if the house renting boom now on had increased the demand for paper.

"I should say it has," said Mr. Thompson. "The new tenant always insists that things shall be freshened up for him. We don't complain—it's trade for us."

"Figure patterns seem to be out of date," said the reporter.

"If you mean geometrical patterns, they are," was the reply. "The styles seem to run into scrolls and floral designs, and the pattern is larger than a few years ago. We have hundreds in gold, silver and tints, all on suitable grounds Of course we have to keep borders to match, and the trade of customers in the way of paper is so varied, and is the main so good, that we have to be extremely careful in selections. Of course the stock is so big that the variety is practically unlimited.

"Where are they made? Well, no one make has the preference. Each has his specialty. Our papers come to us from New York, Boston, Buffalo and the dealers in England. We have to order ahead to get them here in time."

Going up the staircase to the paper room on the second flat our reporter found the walls lined with convenient racks filled with papers of hundreds of styles. The show room proper, neatly carpeted and well lighted, afforded an excellent opportunity to inspect the beautiful papers laid out on stands of convenient height. One wall of the paper room was hung with samples of papers and borders very handsome and attractive.

After attending to a number of customers who came up to the show room, Mr. Thompson said: "The stock as you see is large, and we are anxious to run it down. To do this we are making a special cut in prices. Every line or roll will be sold out of stock. We have no remnants or odd lots. Regular lines pay better than a few rolls of this and that. These papers you see here are capital light colors for bedrooms, and with this border they make a pleasing thing to look at. These other borders are all suitable. The same thing can be said of every pattern you see. Some are beautifully adapted for parlors, others for halls and dining rooms, and so on. Combinations can be made for shops. These are specially for ceilings and are complete. The reduction we are making covers every line, as I have said.

"What's the difference? Well, largely in favor of the customer. The customer sees the inducement to buy and buys. Prices are reduced so as to make it a matter of gain to the buyer, and enables us to reduce stock which is the object we have in view. How long will the low prices last? Only for next 30 days. The buyer that needs paper will come in at once. They are doing so now though we haven't advertised the sale only one day. I tell you there is no better value, and if I was to talk for an hour I could not describe only a trifle of the stock, so varied and good is it. If your friends need paper tell them to come to Thompson & Co's. and get a share of the bargains going."

THE QUEEN AND THE GRIP

INFLUENZA MAKES TROUBLE AT BALMORAL CASTLE.

Horrible Double Murder and Suicide in Kentish Town—A Bloody Riot at Savona—The Rioters Attempt to Rescue Two Prisoners Held by the Gendarmes.

LONDON, June 2.—Influenza of a severe form has broken out at Balmoral, the Queen's summer residence. A large number of the domestics attached to the Queen's household have been attacked by the disease, and many are confined to their beds. Her Majesty is afraid she may contract the disease, and is consequently taking the greatest precautions to avoid it.

ROME, June 2.—A riot broke out in Savona yesterday, and for a time it seemed as though it would be necessary for the authorities to call upon the military to put down the rioters. The trouble arose from an attempt of a mob to rescue two men who had fallen into the hands of the police. The rioters made a desperate attack upon the gendarmes. The gendarmes, however, detailed two of their number to guard the prisoners, and then, though greatly outnumbered by the infuriated rioters, who were pressing them on all sides, drew their swords and gallantly defended themselves. The rioters were armed with sticks, bludgeons and stones, and in the melee many of the gendarmes were seriously injured. Two rioters were killed.

LONDON, June 2.—The new title to be assumed by the Canadian peer is Lord Mount Stephen. The title is given to commemorate the great work with which he has been so honorably associated. Mount Stephen is the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies, and was called after the first president of the Canadian Pacific Railway by Major Rogers, the intrepid explorer and discoverer of the pass through the mountains.

Slaughtering Canadian Cattle.

LONDON, June 2.—General Canadian opinion here supports Mr. Chaplin's decision announced in the House of Commons last night to adhere to the plan of sending the lungs of suspected cattle to London instead of giving the local inspector full power to order the slaughter of a whole cargo forthwith. Canada's best safeguard against hasty judgment upon these often difficult matters is in the submission of the lungs to the highest experts in London.

KILLED HIS BROTHER.

A Wronged Husband Takes Summary Vengeance.

HALIFAX, June 2.—James Follett, aged 35, shot and killed his brother Edward on the public street at midday. The cause of the shooting was Edward's undue familiarity with his brother's wife. Before starting out to murder his brother, James locked his wife in a room, telling her he was going to settle the affair. He then left the house, taking with him a loaded gun. Meeting his brother he took deliberate aim and fired. His victim dropped dead. James then returned to the house and discovered that his wife had escaped through a window. His evident intention was to murder her, for after shooting his brother he reloaded the gun. He made no attempt to conceal himself and was arrested and placed in jail. He expressed no regret at having committed the deed. Both men have families. Judge Prowse has gone to investigate the case.

THE DEAD NOT FORGOTTEN.

The Memory of the Ridgeway Heroes Perpetuated.

TORONTO, June 3.—Twenty-five years since on the field of Ridgeway the sons of Canada met and repelled the Fenian invaders. The victory cost forty lives or more, forty heroes who, though dead these many years, still live in the memory of a people ready at all times to do them honor.

This was markedly seen by the demonstration of yesterday.

The veterans mustered in the Upper Canada College grounds to the number of 400, the Governor-General's Body Guards, the "C" School of Infantry to the number of about 160, the Queen's Own to the number of about 250, the Grenadiers to the number of about 200 and the senior corps of the public school children formed a procession and marched up University-street to the Park. There they found a large concourse of people awaiting their arrival. There they found speakers waiting to address them. There they saw the monument reared to the memory of their fallen comrades, adorned with flowers in profusion, contributed by friends and placed there by the careful hands of Mr. Chambers, the superintendent of parks and gardens.

The friends of each company applauded it as it passed, and particularly the old veterans, whose presence gave a touch of historical reality to the occasion, since they perhaps had seen some fall to whom honor was yesterday being done.

The monument in its floral robe looked beautiful indeed. The many wreaths blended into a pleasing harmony; among them Col. Gillmor's wreath, bearing the inscription: "In memory of my comrades;" a wreath from the Q. O. R., inscribed with "McEachern, No. 5;" a wreath from E Co., Q. O. R., with "Ridgeway" on it; one from the Council of Oxford bearing the name "Malcolm McKenzie," and wreath from the Body Guard, from Capt. G. Mercer Adam, from Mayor Clarke, from the City Council, from the 12th York Rangers, a heart from Wellesley school and cut flowers from Government House, Mr. Vandersmissen, Ald. Score and Mr. W. Goldie.

The speakers were: Ald. McDougall, Col. Gibson, Col. Denison, Col. Gillmor, Capt. Smith and Col. Millar.

Ald. McDougall spoke in place of Mayor Clarke, unavoidably absent, and thanked the people present for their kind interest which clearly showed that patriotism is not yet dead. Col. Gibson spoke of the patriotism that then existed and that now exists, referring to the veterans as the old buffers of '66.

Col. Denison made a short but stirring speech and condemned the wandering professors that in the last year have gone through our country depreciating the spirit of love for one's country, and concluded by saying that Canadians will be true to their country, to the past and to those who died to make her what she is.

THE BANK OF MONTREAL.

Annual Meeting of the Board Yesterday—Criticising the Management.

MONTREAL, June 1.—At the annual meeting of the Bank of Montreal this afternoon the shareholders' ballots resulted in the election of the old Board of Directors with the exception that R. B. Angus was elected in place of C. S. Watson, who has resigned. There was no change made in the presidency, Sir Donald Smith retaining the position of president, with Senator Drummond as vice-president. During the meeting Hon. D. A. Macdonald, ex-Lieut.-Governor of Ontario, criticised the management of the bank and the large withdrawal from the contingent fund. The annual statement, he said, showed a good deal of weakness. He regretted the large advances made to some institutions in this country and felt aggrieved at the bank's action with the Park Cotton Company of St. John, N.B., which the bank had forced into insolvency. He spoke of the recent manager of the bank as leaving large debts for his successor to deal with and warned the new manager to carefully scrutinize every account.

Where is Martin Connolly?

OTTAWA, June 2.—The hearing of the Tarte-McGreevy scandal was resumed before the Privileges and Elections Committee. Nicholas and Michael Connolly were examined, chiefly about the non-appearance of Martin Connolly, the bookkeeper of the firm. They said he had left their employ and they did not know his whereabouts. Mr. Fitzpatrick, counsel for McGreevy, declared if the witness was not produced he would have to consider how much longer he would be connected with the case. The committee authorized the engagement of detectives to hunt up the missing man.

ON FIRE WITH ECZEMA.

Terrible Sufferings of Little Baby. Seven Doctors and Two Hospitals Fail. Cured by Cuticura.

My baby boy, 5 months old, broke out with eczema. The itching and burning was intense; the eczema spread to his limbs, breast, face and head, until he was nearly covered; his torturing agonies were pitiable to behold; he had no peace and but little rest night or day.

He was under treatment at different times at two hospitals and by seven doctors in this city without the least benefit; every prescription of the doctors was faithfully tried, but he grew worse all the time. For months I expended about $8 per week for medicines, and was entirely discouraged. I purchased CUTICURA, CUTICURA SOAP and CUTICURA RESOLVENT and followed the directions to the letter. Relief was immediate, his sufferings were eased, and rest and sleep permitted. He steadily improved and in nine weeks time was entirely cured, and has now as clear a skin and is as fair a boy as any mother could wish to see. I recommend every mother to use it for every Baby Humor.

3 PRACTICAL POINTS

One of the most successful German physicians gave as the secret of his wonderful success these three important points:—

1. Keep the Head Cool.
2. Keep the Bowels Open.
3. Keep the Feet Warm.

These conditions are not so easily obtained as one would think. Why? Because without pure and healthy blood a vigorous circulation cannot be kept up, and because the food and occupation of most people tends to clog up the bowels and produce constipation. The success of B. B. B., like that of the German physician, lies in so purifying the blood and regulating the bowels, liver and stomach, that these three conditions are fulfilled easily, and disease can find no lodgment in the body.

THE BEST SPRING MEDICINE.

B
B B

This medicine does purify the blood and cure all diseases arising from impure or unhealthy blood. It does regulate the entire system and cure constipation, dyspepsia, biliousness, sick headache, scrofula, skin diseases, rheumatism, and all disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. During the past ten years over one million bottles have been sold in Canada, and, although we guarantee every bottle to do all we claim, we have not received a single complaint.

BUY NOW IF AT ALL

EVERY day makes more apparent the fact that the town is going ahead rapidly. Numerous changes have taken place in the way of the ownership of property. Many workingmen are buying houses and lots or lots on which to build. One of the most suitable locations is that known as the Fitz property, at the west end, owned largely by Mr. Wm. Fitzgerald. This week he has closed the sale of a very desirable new house and lot, and has several eligible lots on this property to dispose of. Property in this neighbourhood is rapidly being built up, and it will be well to have a look at the situation if one is at all disposed to buy. The terms are very favorable and especially low for cash, though payment on time may be arranged.

Notes of the Steamers—Sunday School Conventions to be Held.

Correspondence of the Review.

Charged with a Horrible Crime.

TORONTO, June 4.—One of the most fiendish acts ever recorded is alleged to have been perpetrated by a French Canadian named Joseph Woodgreen, alias Bouvers, on a little girl of four years. He is a laborer at the new municipal buildings, and is said to have enticed Alice and Emma Major, 4 and 5 years old respectively, into his rooms. Then he sent the eldest out for a penny's worth of candy and committed a most villainous outrage on the other. When the child went home she reported the occurrence to her mother and the man was arrested. Yesterday in court he refused to plead, professing ignorance of English. After a consultation with Dr. Pickering, the case was adjourned for a week.

James Bailey, aged 19, of 80 Blair-avenue and William Thompson, aged 15, of 11 Blair-avenue were arrested last night by Detective Watson, charged with having ravished two little 7-year-old girls named Maud and Minnie Tyrill. The crime is more than usually heinous. The children, who are twins, live at 71 Regent-street, and like their parents are deaf and dumb. Yesterday afternoon Bailey and Thompson enticed the two girls into the former's home, his mother being absent in Niagara. Bailey, it is said, took the girl Maud into one of the bedrooms and Thompson the other into a closet, where they accomplished their devilish designs.

OTTAWA, June 3.—"He is sinking, sinking!" said Sir James Grant, as I met him leaving Earnscliffe to-night after the evening consultation. Sir John still lives, but his physicians are unanimous in believing him to be getting weaker every hour. The first bulletin issued to-day read:

EARNSCLIFFE, June 3, 3.45 a.m.—The night has been uneventful. About midnight the perspiration lessened and Sir John rested fairly well since that time. Nourishment has been administered as usual, but he has shown a disinclination for it. Breathing is hardly as labored as at 11 o'clock last night; respiration, 20; pulse irritable, 120. The patient continues low.

(Signed) R. W. POWELL, M.D.

This bulletin was issued at 11.15 this morning:

EARNSCLIFFE, 11.15 a.m.—Sir John Macdonald's condition is lower to-day than yesterday at this hour. The alterations in his strength are at shorter intervals than before. He takes nourishment less willingly than heretofore. Respiration, 20; pulse, 128; very irregular and compressible.

J. A. GRANT, M.D.
H. P. WRIGHT, M.D.

After the House adjourned this bulletin was issued:

EARNSCLIFFE, 6.40 p.m.—Sir John has had a quiet and uneventful afternoon, and as I write has been sleeping one hour and a half. Pulse, 120; respiration, 20.

(Signed) R. W. POWELL, M.D.

This evening Lord Stanley called as usual at Earnscliffe for the last bulletin. The physicians say that the Premier's pulse is more irregular than ever before, and that he is perceptibly weaker. Their bulletin issued at 11.25 p.m. says:

EARNSCLIFFE, 10.20 p.m.—Sir John Macdonald's [illegible] the morning, but on the whole he exhibits less strength. Respiration 20, pulse 100, flabby, compressible and very irregular. He has taken the usual nourishment during the day.

Silencing Carping Critics.

A number of medical men have written Dr. Powell within the past few days, complaining of the meagre character of the information furnished by the bulletins. This is stated by one of the consulting physicians to have inspired this document:

EARNSCLIFFE, 9 p.m.—I desire to state in the strongest possible terms that the public are demanding of me more than I can give them. While I have no desire to delude I must respectfully decline to manufacture information. The serious responsibility is not with those who are clamoring for news, but it rests with me, who fully realizes it and whose judgment is in no way affected by undue pressure.

Notes.

Lord Stanley summoned Sir John Thompson this afternoon and they were closeted for an hour.

Since Sunday Her Majesty the Queen has cabled to the Governor-General for particulars of Sir John's health twice a day.

Dr. Powell has not been away from Earnscliffe for an instant since Friday last. He sleeps in the room next to Sir John.

An old man who declined to give his name but who stated he was an army veteran and herbalist called at Earnscliffe yesterday and announced that the doctors having given Sir John up he was prepared to cure him.

Lady Stanley and the Viceregal household have postponed their proposed departure this week for the New Brunswick fishing grounds owing to the illness of the Premier.

Rev. Father McWilliams arrived here today bearing with him a message of sympathy from Archbishop Cleary and the clergy of Kingston archdiocese to Lady Macdonald.

Sympathy with Lady Macdonald.

KINGSTON, June 3.—The synod of the diocese of Ontario to-day sent this telegram to Lady Macdonald:

To Lady Macdonald, Earnscliffe, Ottawa:

On behalf of the synod of the diocese of Ontario now in session, I desire to offer our united expression of deep sympathy with Lady Macdonald in this time of painful anxiety, while praying the God of all consolation may support her in this visitation of Providence. The synod would place on record its sense of the great loss, beyond words to express, to the country at large in the illness which deprives Canada of the services of her most eminent statesman.

The Budget Speech.

OTTAWA, June 3.—The Budget Speech will be delivered Friday if Sir John's condition is not worse.

At the request of Sir John Thompson the debate on the prohibition question was suspended until the issue of the Premier's illness was seen.

Mr. Edgar moved for copies of all correspondence between the Imperial Government and the Government of Canada on the subject of copyright laws of Canada not already brought down.

Sir John Thompson said the Imperial Government had not yet consented to the Canadian Copyright Act of 1889. It was unfortunate that the interests of British authors were paramount in legislation there as well as in judicial decisions. The Canadian Government would insist that the time had arrived when the interests of our own people must be considered and that this country should no longer be kept as a close preserve for authors of other countries. If the Imperial Government did not soon take some action in the matter Sir John said he would move an address of both Houses of Parliament to be presented to the Imperial Government to permit the issue of the proclamation bringing into force the act of 1889.

THE TUPPER CORRESPONDENCE PRESENTED TO THE HOUSE.

The Visit of the High Commissioner and the Other Ministers to Washington—Full Text and What Resulted of the Correspondence Respecting Trade Negotiations.

OTTAWA, June 3.—Sir John Thompson presented to the House to-day part of the papers relating to Sir Charles Tupper's trade negotiations at Washington. The balance are held over waiting a letter of instructions from the Imperial Government.

On Oct. 21 Sir Charles wrote to Sir Robert Herbert, Under Colonial Secretary strongly protesting against any recognition of the arrangement by which Newfoundland was allowed to negotiate through Sir Julian Pauncefote with the United States for reciprocity. On Oct. 27 he wrote Lord Knutsford to the same purport. A copy of the draft treaty between Newfoundland and the United States was sent to Lord Stanley by Sir Julian Pauncefote Jan. 13, and in an order-in-council of Jan. 28 this Government again protested against the proposed discrimination against Canada modified in the treaty. On March 25 Sir Julian Pauncefote wrote, stating that in accordance with Lord Stanley's despatch of March 16 he had written to Mr. Blaine asking when the Canadian delegates could hold unofficial conferences on the subjects mentioned in the despatch. It was as a result of this that Sir Charles went to Washington. These letters contain Sir Charles' official account of his visit there:

The Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, April 21.

DEAR SIR JOHN: I arrived in Washington at 2.30 p.m. on Wednesday, April 1, and after taking rooms at the Arlington at once drove to the British Legation, where I was received in the kindest manner by Sir Julian and Lady Pauncefote, who insisted upon my staying with them during my visit to Washington, which invitation I accepted. Sir Julian told me he had pressed Mr. Blaine for an answer to his note of enquiry as to when he would receive delegates from Canada to discuss the proposed question of reciprocity and that he had been informed by Mr. Blaine that morning that he (Sir Julian) would receive a letter that day. Sir Julian informed Mr. Blaine that he had been advised by Lord Stanley of my departure for Washington. To this Mr. Blaine replied that upon my arrival he would be very happy to see me, but that in the meantime he would send a written answer to Sir Julian's note.

Mr. Blaine's letter reached Sir Julian shortly after my arrival. It contained a formal acknowledgment of Sir Julian's note and intimated that he said that exception had been taken by the President and himself to the proposed basis of negotiations at the time the memo on this subject was submitted to him by Sir Julian. In this view Sir Julian told me he could not concur, as according to his recollection no reference had been made at the time to the President or that such were his views. Mr. Blaine also said that he did not agree with the references which had been made by Sir John Macdonald and Sir Charles Tupper during the elections as to what had taken place concerning the initiation of the proposed informal discussion between the Dominion and the United States representatives. The invitation, Mr. Blaine contended, had come from Sir Julian. He added, however, that he would be pleased to receive the delegates from Canada and to confer with them informally upon the subject of reciprocal trade [illegible] morning, April 2. Sir Julian wrote Mr. Blaine, saying that I had arrived and asking when it would be convenient for Mr. Blaine to receive us. Mr. Blaine replied immediately that he would be most happy to meet us at the State Department at 11 the same morning, that he would have preferred to see us at his residence, but it was diplomatic reception day at the State Department and that we would be admitted to his office immediately after those who were before us. Sir Julian and I reached the State Department precisely at 11 o'clock, where we found the German minister waiting and learned the Mexican and Danish ministers were already with Mr. Blaine. We were soon joined by the French and Spanish ministers. As soon as the German minister had had his interview, we were sent for by Mr. Blaine. He received me very cordially and proceeded to remind me of our having met on the occasion of the opening of the I.C.R. connecting Maine and New Brunswick. I told him I had always had a vivid and agreeable recollection of the incident, and that I was very glad to have an opportunity of renewing the pleasant acquaintance I had at that time formed. I told Mr. Blaine that I wished at the outset to recognize the accuracy of the statement contained in his letter to Sir Julian Pauncefote which I had seen in reference to the initiation of negotiations regarding reciprocal trade arrangements between the two countries, that I believed it arose from negotiations which had recently taken place between the United States and Canada and the desire expressed by Canada to be included in any arrangements such as had been understood to have been contemplated by United States and Newfoundland, and that upon that being communicated to him by Sir Julian Pauncefote he had expressed his willingness to open negotiations for reciprocal trade arrangements between Canada and the United States, assisted by delegates from the Dominion, the negotiations to be informal and to a certain extent of a confidential nature until they could assume a more formal character if any results were arrived at. Mr. Blaine said he had understood that Canada had taken some exception to the proposed arrangement with the United States by Newfoundland. I admitted that such was the case and that I had explained to Her Majesty's Government that in connection with the question of the Atlantic fisheries the interests of Canada and Newfoundland had always been regarded as inseparable; that the treaties of '54 and '71 provided for the participation of Newfoundland by the action of its legislature; that the ratification of the treaty of '88 depended upon the approval of Newfoundland, and that there appeared to be great objections on many accounts to the interests involved being dealt with separately. Mr. Blaine asked me what was the reason that Newfoundland had not become part of the Canadian Confederation. I replied that in addition to its being somewhat more remote the difficulty was that what had been experienced, notably in the United States and the British North American provinces, of the reluctance of a small autonomous government of giving up its affairs to a larger body where it might possibly be overruled, I instanced the strong feeling which was exhibited by the Province of Nova Scotia in opposition to becoming part of our Confederation but which happily had been removed by experience. I added that but for the abrogation of the treaty of '54 I did not believe that it would have been possible to have carried the Confederation in Nova Scotia.

I then told Mr. Blaine that I wished to remove the idea, if he entertained it, which had been promulgated in Canada and the United States, that the present Government of the Dominion was not warmly in favor of the most friendly relations with the United States. In an article which I had recently sent over my own signature to The North American Review I had undertaken to give conclusive evidence upon that point, and that I need only refer him to the fact that when Sir John Macdonald, who was one of Her Majesty's joint high commissioners, submitted to Parliament for approval the Alabama treaty, which settled also all the pending questions between Canada and the United States, he was fiercely denounced by the leaders and press of the liberal party for having basely [illegible] the interests of Canada in his endeavors to promote the friendly relations between Canada and the United States. I added that I had experienced the same treatment from the same party when I submitted for the approval of Parliament the treaty of Washington of 1888. I was then charged by the leaders and press of that party with having conceded everything to the United States and obtained nothing in return, so great was my anxiety to remove all causes of dissension between the two countries. Continuing, I said that of course that in 1866 and subsequently in 1885, when treaties which gave to United States fishermen common rights with our own fishermen were abrogated, in consequence of the action of the United States we were thrown back upon the treaty of 1818, but I said that the statement that Canada had then resorted to a harsh construction of the treaty of 1818 with the object of promoting freer trade relations with the United States was erroneous, that we were compelled in justice to the rights of our own fishermen who were met with high duties in the United States markets, to protect our fishermen as effectually as we could and were attacked by the press of the opposition for not maintaining our rights more thoroughly.

No Interest in the Elections.

Mr. Blaine desired to assure me that outside of individual expressions of opinion there was no interest taken by the administration or Congress of the United States in the recent Canadian elections and that they had taken no action of any kind calculated to influence the result of the elections. I then went on to say that, in the article which I had written for The North American Review, he would find that I had said that greatly to the honor of Congress it refused to pass a resolution which was urged upon it by Mr. Wiman for the avowed purpose of influencing our elections, and although I myself had formed the opinion that both the great parties in the United States would be glad to have Canada in the Union I regarded the feeling if it existed as more of a compliment to Canada than otherwise. Continuing, I said Canada was most anxious to have the freest and most friendly intercourse with the United States consistent with the interests of both countries, and that I should regret very much if Canada and the large number of Canadians in the United States were driven to the conclusion that they could only look to one party in the United States for freer commercial intercourse between the two countries. I said it was difficult to say why the treaty of 1854 should have been abrogated, as the statistics of both countries proved that, although there was great expansion of trade between the United States and Canada, more advantage had accrued to the United States than to Canada under the treaty, the balance of trade being over $80,000,000 in favor of the United States. Mr. Blaine said that he was free to admit that that treaty was not abrogated on commercial grounds but in consequence of the feeling which had grown up that Canada had sympathized with the Southern States in their conflict.

I replied that it was difficult to see upon what basis that opinion could be entertained as it was admitted that no less than 40,000 Canadians had fought in the Northern army to maintain the union of the Northern States, while I did not suppose 40 had been found on the other side.

Mr. Blaine admitted that he supposed that the very large bounty had had a good deal of influence in the matter.

I then said that the unhappy conflict had taken place previous to the confederation of Canada, but I could speak with some accuracy of the province of Nova Scotia, with which I was then connected, that the Legislature of Nova Scotia had passed a resolution deploring the war and that one of the sharpest of intercolonial questions arose, as he would remember, in connection with the Chesapeake incident in the harbor of Halifax, and that it was my duty as Premier of the province to advise the Lieutenant-Governor, who was also the commander-in-chief, as to what course the Government of Nova Scotia should pursue and that the President of the United States had sent an autograph letter thanking him for the action of the Government of Nova Scotia on that occasion. I had only to repeat, I went on to say, that the Government of Sir John Macdonald and the party which sustained him had the strongest desire to promote reciprocal trade between the two countries, and they adhere to that [illegible] the decided [illegible] which Mr. Blaine had taken to promote reciprocal trade with other countries and that I could not see why he could not with great advantage to the United States as well as to Canada extend to the north the same policy he had pursued with other countries to the south whose trade was much smaller than that between the Dominion and the United States. I said that the fact that he had expressed his readiness to receive the representations that Canada wished to make would show that he was quite open to consider that question. I was further strengthened in these views, I added, by the disposition that he had shown to make reciprocal arrangements with the colony of Newfoundland. Under the modus vivendi an arrangement was made by which the licenses given in Canada or Newfoundland covered the waters of both. The fact that a large number of licenses were taken out in Canada led to the conclusion that Canada was the best base of supplies for the fishermen of the United States, who in going to the Grand Banks of Newfoundland from Gloucester naturally passed near the coasts of Nova Scotia, where they were entitled to obtain not only all the bait and other commercial privileges they required, but in addition were entitled to ship crews and to tranship by rail their fish in bond through Canada to the markets of the United States.

Some question then arose between Sir Julian Pauncefote and Mr. Blaine as to Mr. Bond's negotiations. Sir Julian explained that Mr. Bond had not authority to negotiate in any other way than through him and that Mr. Bond's last negotiation was entirely irregular and without authority.

Mr. Blaine said that it did not appear necessary to negotiate any treaty with Newfoundland, as that colony had expressed its readiness to give the United States the privileges they enjoyed by their own action, and that they proposed not only to give bait to United States fishermen but to refuse to give the same privilege to Canada. I told Mr. Blaine that the Bait Act in Newfoundland had received the assent of Her Majesty upon the distinct pledge of Sir Ambrose Shea and the then premier of Newfoundland that Canadian vessels would not be affected by it, that I understood the courts of Newfoundland had declared that the action taken under that act was not legal. I added that Her Majesty had the power to disallow any bill that might be passed upon the subject by the colony.

The Reason of the Delay.

I told Mr. Blaine that Sir John Macdonald had understood that Mr. Blaine had not been well and that Sir John had suggested that it might be more convenient to Mr. Blaine to take up the consideration of these questions at a later period. The Dominion Parliament would be asked to continue the modus vivendi to avoid friction in the meantime. Mr. Blaine replied that as he was better he was quite prepared to go on now, or if he preferred to take up the subject later.

I then said I would ask the Minister of Justice and the Minister of Finance, who had been deputed by Sir John Macdonald to join me as soon as Mr. Blaine could receive us. He named Monday next, 6th inst., and he promised to give the fullest and fairest consideration to the whole subject. He referred incidentally to the Behring Sea question. I merely said in reply that I understood that it was in a fair way of an early, and I hoped a satisfactory, adjustment.

He mentioned also casually that he had proposed to my son, the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, during his conference at Washington last year, that no increase of duties should take place either in the United States or Canada on fish and he regretted that that proposal had not been accepted, as Congress had since increased them. I told him I was much surprised to hear this as I could not understand such a proposition not finding favor. I added that I would look into the matter.

I have, since my interview with Mr. Blaine, learned that the proposal of Mr. Blaine was in effect that the United States suggested that they would not increase the duties on fish if Canada would do away with the tonnage duties under the modus vivendi.

Upon the conclusion of our interview I thanked Mr. Blaine very much for his courtesy and told him that I should endeavor to meet him with Sir J. Pauncefote and my colleagues for the purpose of having the negotiations opened on Monday next.

I am, etc.,
(Sgd) CHARLES TUPPER.

SAW LOG DRIVE.—Mr. Alf. McDonald, of Peterborough, had a large drive of logs pass through here on Monday last. This is the first drive of the season. The Lakefield Lumber Co. will be next, the Dickson Co. will follow, and then the Messrs. Gilmour. This will be the sum total of drives this season.

TELEPHONE.—A gang of men under foreman Bourdignon, of the Bell Telephone Co., arrived here on Friday evening last and started to work on Saturday morning to place the wire on the poles, and completed as far as Burleigh bridge, a distance of 5 miles, at 5 p.m. They are hustlers for doing their work.

REVIEWS.

THE CENTURY MAGAZINE.—The June Century has an interesting frontispiece portrait George Mifflin Dallas, formerly Vice-president of the United States. This portrait accompanies the second and last instalment of the papers extracted from Mr. Dallas' journal, written while he was American Minister to the Court of the Czar Nicholas I. In the fourth instalment of the Talleyrand Memoirs, Talleyrand replies directly to his accusers. General Sherman's last speech, delivered at the Press Club dinner to Henry M. Stanley, January 21, is for the first time printed in this number of the Century from manuscript dictated by General Sherman before the speech was made. The new paper in the California series is by Dr. Charles B. Gillespie, of Freeport, Pennsylvania, and is substantially a transcript from his California journal of 1849 and '50. Additional anecdotes reflecting the manners of the times are contributed by Hubert Burgess. In the department of Californians Mr. Julius H. Pratt frankly withdraws his previous contention of the claim made by Dr. L. H. Bunnell that he was the original discoverer of the Yosemite Valley. There is an illustrated article entitled Women at an English University, in which Newnham College is described, with pictures of the College and portraits of Miss Clough and Miss Gladstone. The paper is by Eleanor Field, and one by Catharine Baldwin follows on the Health of Women Students. In the Open Letters Female Education in Germany is discussed by Countess von Krockow. The first paper in the number is one of Mrs. Burton Harrison's sketches of Old Virginia life. This is very handsomely illustrated. Mr. and Mrs. Pennell have papers on Play and Work in the Alps. In the series of American Pictures a full page engraving by Closson is given of Springtime, from a painting by Ernest L. Major. Edward Eggleston's Faith Doctor is continued in this number, and the second instalment of Stockton's Squirrel Inn is numerously illustrated. In addition, a new writer, Florence Watters Snedeker, is brought out, with a pathetic story entitled The House with the Cross. The story is illustrated by J. W. Alexander. Hamlin Garland has his first Century story in this number. It is entitled A Spring Romance. Another short story is A Girl Without Sentiment, by Eugene Bradford Ripley. Another new writer makes his appearance here with six brief sketches entitled Haroun the Calif and Others. This writer's name is given as Ferid el din Attar. The essay of most importance is another of the Present-Day Papers contributed by the Sociological Group. It is written by Professor Sloane, of Princeton, and is on the subject of Pensions and Socialism.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

Sir Charles to the Premier relates to the visit of the High Commissioner and the Cabinet Ministers to Washington and is the last of the papers brought down:

OFFICE H. C., LONDON, April 23, 1891.

My Dear Sir John Macdonald: As you are aware, after my interview with Mr. Blaine on April 21 made a hurried visit to Ottawa and had the pleasure of a short conference with you and your colleagues on the 4th, when you handed the following telegram from Sir Julian Pauncefote, dated April 2:

Will you kindly communicate the following message to the High Commissioner: Secretary of State wrote to you after your departure yesterday to invite you to dine on Sunday and also to say that after conferring with the President of the United States he may have to modify the date fixed for opening the discussion on the commercial relations between the two countries. He will advise me definitely to-day and will endeavor to suit the convenience of the representatives. He requested me to inform you of the contents of above letter, which I forwarded by post to-day.

As no further communication was received we assumed that the arrangement for our meeting on the following Monday stood, and Sir John Thompson, Mr. Foster and myself left for Washington and reached the Arlington at 11 o'clock on Sunday evening. Early on Monday morning I received the following note from Sir Julian Pauncefote:

BRITISH LEGATION, Washington, April 6, 1891.
(Private.)

DEAR SIR CHARLES,—Your movements have been so rapid that you must have left Ottawa before the receipt of the telegram I sent you on Friday morning informing you of the contents of a letter addressed to you by Mr. Blaine after your departure from Washington on Thursday, in which he expressed the desire of the President to postpone the meeting fixed for to-day. I am anxious to see you as soon as possible to explain the situation to you. I forwarded your letters to Ottawa, thinking that you would delay you departure in consequence of Mr. Blaine's letter.

(Signed) JULIAN PAUNCEFOTE.

Why the Plans Were Changed.

We all called upon Sir Julian at 10 o'clock, when he handed me the following letter from Mr. Blaine and expressed his regret that his telegram of April 3 had not been received in time to prevent our leaving Ottawa:

17 MADISON-PLACE, April 3, 1891.

MY DEAR SIR CHARLES,—After conference with the President I find I may have to modify the date which we agreed upon for opening the discussion on the commercial relations of the two countries. I shall be able to advise you definitely to-morrow. In any event I shall endeavor to adjust the time to the convenience of gentlemen who will represent the Dominion in the conference. Mean while I hope you will do me the honor to dine with me Saturday evening at 8 o'clock to meet a few ladies and gentlemen of Washington society.

I am, etc.,
(Signed) JAMES G. BLAINE.

Sir J. Pauncefote's telegram of the 3th April read as follows: "Private—Mr. Blaine is surprised that the Canadian representatives left for Washington after his letter to Sir Charles Tupper, of which I telegraphed the contents to you early on Friday morning. He says that the President, owing to pressure of other questions, desires to postpone the conference until October. Sir Charles Tupper has telegraphed that he and his colleagues will arrive here to-night."

Sir Julian Pauncefote called upon Mr. Blaine at his house and informed him of our arrival when he expressed a wish to see us as soon as convenient and we waited upon him immediately. He expressed great regret at our not having received his message of April 3 in time to avoid the necessity of our journey. He said the President, who was practically the Prime Minister under their system, was extremely anxious to be in Washington during the negotiations and had requested that they might be deferred to a later date, as he had made arrangements which could not be changed for an immediate visit to the west. Mr. Blaine also mentioned that the President said that as there would be no meeting of the Senate before December no serious inconvenience, he trusted, would arise from the postponement. He was conferring further with the President as to the time which they would like to open negotiations. You have, of course, since learned that the time of the proposed meeting at Washington has been fixed for Oct. 12 next. This date [illegible] might appear to involve a long delay, but as the session of the Parliament would preclude any meeting before July 1, and as the hot weather at Washington obliges those who can do so to go to the seaside during the summer months, October is really as early a period as it was practicable to arrange.

Sir John Thompson Mr. Foster and myself left immediately for New York and they returned to Ottawa and I sailed for England on Wednesday, the 8th instant. I may add that after carefully thinking over all that has occurred I consider there is good reason to hope that a fair arrangement may be made with the Government of the United States in relation to the important questions contained in Lord Stanley's despatch to Lord Knutsford of Dec. 13, 1890.

Remain, yours faithfully,
(Signed) CHARLES TUPPER.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS.

Baptist Association.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Association of Baptist [illegible] will be held in Campbellford on Wednesday and Thursday, June 17th and 18th, when it is expected that twenty ministers and about forty delegates will be present.

The Court of Revision.

The Court of Revision for the consideration of appeals against the assessment held its second meeting last evening. The appeals that were left over from the last meeting were all disposed of, with the exception of a few. They were all minor matters and changes. The court adjourned to meet on Monday evening next at eight o'clock when the business will probably be wound up.

Boils, carbuncles, and eruptions of all kinds are nature's efforts to throw off poison from the blood. This result may be accomplished much more effectually, as well as agreeably, through the proper excretory channels, by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

The Battalion's Trip to Ottawa.

The officers of the 57th Battalion held a meeting on Tuesday evening and discussed the approaching trip to Ottawa on the 1st. The battalion will go to the capital and participate in the field day which is being arranged by the Foot Guards. Whether the 57th will spend four or two days in the capital the men will decide. A march out will be held on Tuesday night next when, after parade, the matter of the trip will be further considered.

In advanced age the declining powers are wonderfully refreshed by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It really does "make the weak strong."

Protestant Home.

The Committee of Management of the Peterborough Protestant Home acknowledge with thanks the following donations for May:—Mrs. Ferguson, parcel of skirts; Mrs. Dr. Burnham, roast of beef; estate of late W. Church per Mrs. Dumble; Mrs. J. B. McWilliams, clothing; Miss Gilmour, basket of vegetables and apples; Miss Roger, rhubarb; Mrs. James Best, rhubarb and parsnips; Mrs. Ferguson, catsup; a friend, basket of clothing; Mr. J. J. English (Philadelphia), 60 yards towelling; Miss Woodgate, vegetables.

The Chime of Wedding Bells.

A happy matrimonial event was pleasantly solemnized yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mr. G. A. Mitchell, when his daughter, Miss Clara, was united in wedlock to Mr. Wm. Allison, of town. The ceremony was performed in the presence of quite a gathering of the relatives and friends of the happy couple by the Rev. J. E. Locke. Miss E. I. Mitchell, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, while Mr. R. T. Hounsell assisted the groom. The ceremony over, the wedding party sat down to an elaborate supper amidst the hearty congratulations and well wishes which were extended the happy couple. A large array of wedding gifts attested the best wishes of a host of friends, while the congratulations and felicitous expressions of hopes for a happy future will be extended by many other acquaintances.

Everybody Knows

That at this season the blood is filled with impurities, the accumulation of months of close confinement in poorly ventilated stores, workshops and tenements. All these impurities and every trace of scrofula, salt rheum, or other diseases may be expelled by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, the best blood purifier ever produced. It is the only medicine of which "100 doses one dollar" is true.

Office of Brigade-Major.

In the House of Commons yesterday Mr. Burnham obtained an order for correspondence relative to the vacancy caused in the office of brigade-major for military districts Nos. 3 and 4, through the death of the late Lieut.-Col. Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The Board of Directors met Tuesday evening. Mr. Early, President, occupied the chair. Reports were received from the committees and General Secretary showing the work was still encouraging, spiritually and financially, but we were much retarded in our work for lack of accommodation, which must be remedied before the fall work begins. Mr. Geo. Roger, chairman of the Building Committee, read a lengthy report on the canvass, and after discussion it was referred back for further consideration to be taken up at a special meeting of the Board to be held next week.

The social reception to be tendered to the Edison Electric Co. will take place on Friday evening, June 12th. An informal programme of instrumental music will be given, and Ladies' Auxiliary will provide refreshments. A pleasant and profitable evening is expected.

Open air services will be commenced next Sabbath afternoon, weather permitting, on the Central Park. Short Gospel addresses. Singing will be led by the Y.M.C.A. band. All are invited to join heartily in this service, from which much blessing flowed last year.

The Ladies' Auxiliary met yesterday afternoon. Mrs. H. S. Griffin presided. After discussing matters the meeting adjourned to meet on Monday afternoon next, at 3.30, for special business. We have much to thank the ladies for their generous aid in our work. We cannot do without them and we are looking for still more aggressive work in the future. All ladies interested in our work and every member urged to attend this meeting.

The vocal organs are strengthened by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Clergymen, lawyers, singers, actors, and public speakers find this preparation the most effective remedy for irritation and weakness of the throat and lungs, and for all affections of the vocal organs.

IN THE LITTLE LAKE CEMETERY.

The Remains of the Late Ed. J. B. Hopkins Laid at Rest.

Quietly and unostentatiously the remains of the late Ed. J. B. Hopkins, the English gentleman whose terribly sudden and sad death shocked his relatives and friends on Tuesday morning and was called to a place in the public interest by the inquest, were interred in the Little Lake Cemetery yesterday evening. The funeral took place at five o'clock and was attended by a number of sympathetic friends. The bearers were Messrs. T. Rush, H. R. Merrick, Louis Rye, W. H. Beckham, Michael O'Brien and James Fairweather. Rev. J. C. Davidson, rector of St. John's, performed the last sacred rites of the English church at the grave.

The bereaved wife of the gentleman who was so suddenly called across the river will receive the sympathy of the community in her sorrowful bereavement.

The inquest which will convene again on Monday evening will probably have a short session. The testimony of the medical men who performed the post mortem will in all likelihood be the only evidence taken, after which the jury will return their verdict according to the result of the examination.

FELL FROM HIS WAGGON.

Robert Maxwell, a Farmer, Meets with a Serious Accident on Simcoe Street.

Robert Maxwell, a farmer from Cavan, met with an accident this afternoon about 3.30, which may prove fatal in its results. Exactly how the unfortunate accident occurred is not known.

The man was driving along Simcoe-St. with a team, and was seated in the front of a lumber waggon, in which were several bundles of shingles. Near the corner of Simcoe and Aylmer sts. he fell from his seat, and it is supposed one of the wheels of the heavy waggon passed over his head. The team went only a short distance when they were stopped. When the man was picked up he was unconscious, but after the doctors, who were summoned at once, arrived he was able to talk. He was immediately taken to the Nicholls Hospital.

The side of the head was crushed in, either from the wheel passing over his head or the force of the fall. It is feared that the skull has been crushed and serious results will follow.

The unfortunate victim of the sad mishap is a man probably about fifty years of age.

Gone to Toronto.

The Sons of England excursion which left for Toronto this morning, carried quite a crowd to the Queen City. Others were to be picked up along the line.

The Street and Bridge Committee of the Town Council will meet at nine o'clock to-morrow morning to make their annual tour of inspection over the streets of the town.

Hello, Burleigh.

The Bell Telephone Co.'s line to Burleigh Falls was completed on Tuesday, and cottagers and campers on Stony lake or [illegible] at the Burleigh Falls hotel will find it a convenience.

The Scavengers in Trouble.

The town scavenger, Mr. Williams, and with him the small army of other unofficial scavengers, is now facing a difficulty in connection with the work. It appears that Mr. May who was supplying the town with a dumping ground has refused to allow any more night soil to be dumped in his lot. Last night Mr. Williams was refused admission and to-day he is seeking advice as to what he will do. Matters will have to be arranged by the town.

Personal.

Miss Edna Baily, of Campbellford, formerly assistant teacher in the shorthand department of the Peterborough Business College, has accepted a situation in the law office of Messrs. McIntyre and Stuart, of Lindsay.

Mr. W. A. Sanderson, jeweller and optician, has returned from Chicago where he has taken a course in the Olympthalic College. Mr. Sanderson has completed his course of study with much satisfaction and the public will reap the benefit of the practical information he acquired at the college where opticians are given a finished training.

He is Wandering Again.

Wm. Bethany will be remembered as the young emigrant who brought himself before the public by leaving a note at the farmer's house where he was working at Springville, stating that he had committed suicide and then disappearing. He turned up, however, in the flesh at the police station and, after spending a month in gaol, received an outfit in the shape of a suit of clothes, etc., from a sympathetic gentleman and was given a situation on his farm by Mr. Robert Hogg, of Douro. But William again proved restless and now it is reported that he has disappeared from Mr. Hogg's taking a new suit of clothes and $2.50 in money with him. He also got another young man who was employed on the farm to go away with him.

French in Peterborough.

Everybody knows that in our country the people are taught to read, to write and to translate the modern languages, but they are not taught to talk them. The way and the method adopted by the Ingres-Coutellier schools make the pupils able to converse and to talk quite fluently, and such result is obtained after a relatively short time. During the lessons the pupils are forbidden to pronounce an English word; they are compelled to use all the time the studied language. The Ingres-Coutellier schools have now over two thousand pupils all over the Dominion, and in Toronto the school, which is occupying a splendid office in the Canada Life building, is teaching more than three hundred pupils. Some people of our town asked the administration of these schools to send a teacher during the summer months, and just at present Prof. Geo. Coutellier, one of the proprietors of the schools, is here to organize the classes. All the teachers are native Parisians, therefore the pupils are taught to talk a good and pure French. The lessons, always given in shape of conversation, are more a pleasure than a work. Prof. Coutellier will be pleased to give trial lessons to the people interested in French in order to show the way of teaching, which is absolutely new. This gentleman can be seen at the Oriental and the classes begin at once.

Brevities.

—Andrew Foster, a drunk, was fined $2 or ten days at the Police Court this morning. He paid the money.

—A tramp rested in the police cells last evening.

—The assessor's returns show the population of Campbellford to be 2,480. The assessment has been increased about [illegible].

—At the Campbellford cheese board on Wednesday 621 boxes were offered and were sold to Mr. Warrington at 9 cents.

—It is probable that the Orangemen of Campbellford district will come to Peterborough on July 13th.

SABBATH SCHOOL ANNIVERSARY.—On Sunday, May 31st, Rev. S. J. Shorey delivered a most interesting and practical address to the many friends of the Cold Springs Union Sabbath School who were present, on the occasion of the third anniversary of the school. Mr. Shorey has our hearty thanks for his helpful and encouraging remarks, and for the interest he has shown in our school.

SOCIAL AND ENTERTAINMENT.—The school grounds were the scene of a large gathering of people on Monday evening, June 1st, when the anniversary was further commemorated by a social, concluded by an entertainment. 4. Address ...... Mr. M. S. Griffin
5. Vocal Quartette ...... Miss Heuback, Miss Wrighton, Mr. Ketcham, Mr. Rose.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered all who had participated for the part they had taken in the evening's proceedings. Everyone went home well pleased regretting only that such occasions did not come oftener.

True to their Nature.

Messrs. Lech & Sons, hatters and furriers, have at their store on George-st. a number of bear and wolf heads which have been mounted with a life-like effect. The heads are to be used in making up floor rugs or for ornament as the customer desires. The heads were taken to Germany by Mr. Lech, sr., upon his recent business trip and were mounted there. The work has been done with a trueness to life that is remarkable. When placed on a rug the effect is of a peculiar effectiveness.

After Poachers.

The Port Hope Times says:—Mr. Chas. Gilchrist, Fishery Inspector, is doing a rushing business out at Rice Lake these days, and the poachers on the fishing reserves are getting into hot water. During the past two weeks, Mr. Gilchrist has fined seven men $20 each, for illegally fishing, and seized four canoes, one skiff, seven trolling lines and baits, five maskinonge and five bass. It looks as if the Inspector was a terror to evil doers, and those who desire to fish before the 15th June will in all probability pay dearly for their sport.

Stenson which will be occupied by the fancy goods and wall paper department of his business. In order to facilitate removal the stock of over 50,000 rolls of wall paper must be reduced, and for the next thirty days a great sacrifice sale of wall paper will be held at the Peterborough Bookstore. The stock comprises over 50,000 rolls of wall paper, of all qualities and of the very latest designs, which should be cleared out before the change takes place. Catarrh

IS a blood disease. Until the poison is expelled from the system, there can be no cure for this loathsome and dangerous malady. Therefore, the only effective treatment is a thorough course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla—the best of all blood purifiers. The sooner you begin the better; delay is dangerous.

"I was troubled with catarrh for over two years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit until I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me of this troublesome complaint and completely restored my health."—Jesse M. Boggs, Holman's Mills, N. C.

"When Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me for catarrh, I was inclined to doubt its efficacy. Having tried so many remedies, with little benefit, I had no faith that anything would cure me. I became emaciated from loss of appetite and impaired digestion. I had nearly lost the sense of smell, and my system was badly deranged. I was about discouraged, when a friend urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and referred me to persons whom it had cured of catarrh. After taking half a dozen bottles of this medicine, I am convinced that the only sure way of treating this obstinate disease is through the blood."—Charles H. Maloney, 113 River st., Lowell, Mass.

THE BACARRET SCANDAL.

OPENING OF THE CASE FOR THE DEFENCE.

A Witness Swears Positively That He Observed the Plaintiff Repeatedly Cheating—Has the Guardsman Staked His Honor On a Losing Case?

LONDON, June 3.—The baccarat trial was continued to-day before the Queen's Bench Division of Her Majesty's High Court of Justice. There was the usual large attendance of fashionable people.

General opinion seemed to be that the heir apparent, disgusted with his experience of yesterday, would find some excuse which would enable him to escape any further attendance in court, but the Prince of Wales, accompanied by his private secretary, Sir Francis Knollys, entered the court in better condition, it would seem, than upon the occasions of his two previous visits, bowing and smiling to the audience assembled, who respectfully rose to their feet as the jovial heir apparent appeared. As he drew near the bench the Prince bowed to the Lord Chief Justice and to the ladies on the latter's right, and then after a quick glance around the court, in which he seemed to take in everything, he settled himself down comfortably in the red velvet arm chair on the Chief Justice's left, wiped his bald spot tenderly with a white handkerchief, settled the creases of his clothes with a gentle hand, adjusted his necktie carefully and was prepared for the business of the day.

The Defence.

Arthur Stanley Wilson, son of the millionaire owner of Tranby Croft and the leading stockholder in the Wilson line of steamers, entered the witness box as the first witness for the defence. Mr. Wilson testified to the fact that on the first night of the baccarat playing at Tranby Croft, Sept. 8, he saw a red counter representing £5 croupier of paper in front of Cumming.

When the latter's tableau won Sir William had his hand in front of him and he also had another £5 counter in the palm of his right hand. The baronet, according to witness, then looked at Sir Edward Somerset's hand, and seeing that he held a natural and a court card he (Sir William) at once dropped the £5 counter from his right hand, and was paid on both of the counters he had thus placed on the table.

This evidence caused a great sensation. Wilson said he saw the same thing repeated by Cumming the same evening, and he then told Levett that the baronet was cheating. When Wilson informed Levett of what he had observed Levett said it was "impossible," that the witness must be mistaken. Wilson told Levett to watch Sir William. Levett followed his advice, and he also saw the baronet cheat in the manner described. Levett upon being convinced by personal observation that what Wilson said was true, exclaimed, "This is too hot."

An Indignant Novice.

Witness was indignant when asked if he was not a novice in the game of baccarat. Wilson replied that he had played the game often before the notorious games at Tranby Croft, and claimed to thoroughly understand the game in all its details.

Continuing, Wilson said he saw Cumming cheat again. The baronet had a £5 counter on the table and directly he discovered that the card turned up was favorable to him he pushed a £2 counter forward with a pencil, which he held in his hand, and was paid £7. The witness then detailed the subsequent conversation he had with Levett in the latter's bedroom, saying that when he told the latter of what he had seen Levett exclaimed: "My God! to think of Lieutenant-Colonel Sir William Gordon Cumming being caught cheating at cards!" Witness said, "I asked what on earth are we to do?" To this Levett replied, "For goodness sake, don't ask me. He is in my own regiment and was my own captain. What am I to do?" Wilson said: "I then told my mother of what I had seen and mother said, 'For goodness sake don't have a scandal here.' I then told her I would have a proper table prepared for baccarat playing so that a repetition of the conduct we had observed would be impossible. Referring to a question on the subject young Wilson said there was absolutely no agreement to watch Cumming play on the second night. The table used for baccarat on that occasion was a long pantry table covered with green baize. As upon the previous night the Prince of Wales occupied the position of banker and Gen. Williams acted as croupier. The witness believed the plaintiff again had a paper and some of his counters on the table. He had other counters in the breast pocket of his dress coat.

The plaintiff added the witness had a long thick carpenter's pencil in his hand. On this pencil the words "Tranby Croft" were stamped. Cumming staked a £5 counter and the Prince of Wales gave cards to Lady Coventry, who took a seven, which was considered a good card from the pack. The plaintiff looked over Lady Coventry's hand and the witness then saw Sir William's hand go out and gradually advance the white line marked on the baccarat table. It then came round to the Prince of Wales' turn to take a card and he took one and said, "I am baccarat," the card being bad. Immediately upon hearing this Cumming pushed over the line a £10 counter. The plaintiff's tableau won and the Prince of Wales paid him a fiver (£5 note), overlooking the other counter, which the plaintiff had pushed over the line. Thereupon Cumming exclaimed, "Beg pardon, sir, there is another tenner here which you have forgotten." The Prince of Wales saying, "I wish you would put your stakes forward more conspicuously," paid the additional £10. "Later in the game," said the witness, "Cumming flicked another counter over the line with his pencil. When the disclosure was made, the Prince of Wales questioned Cumming, Levett and Lycett Green in regard to what they had seen of a wrong nature during the baccarat playing, and Green asked to be confronted with the plaintiff."

During his cross-examination Wilson said baccarat was played at Tranby Croft in 1889, "but father objected to it and it was not played there again until upon the occasion of the Prince of Wales' visit in September, 1890."

Correspondence of the Review.

MUSICAL AT HOME.—Mrs. W. F. Boswell, Trent Bridge, gave a musical at home at her residence on the evening of the 28th of May. The scholars of Mrs. O'Neil, music teacher, Norwood, were chiefly represented on the programme and acquitted themselves with great credit both to themselves and their teacher. Misses Insley and Brown deserve special mention for their part of the entertainment. The evening was pleasantly spent, readings and games being interspersed through the programme. It was concluded in a right loyal manner with the National Anthem.

A Word to Canadian Women.

With advancing civilization, women in some respects become more susceptible to [illegible]ly. Diseases of the nervous system have increased to an alarming extent, as all physicians know well. Thousands of women are extremely sensitive, and have very delicate nervous organism, and consequently are more predisposed to disease than those of robust and rugged constitutions.

We meet too often the pale, weak, languid and morose woman, suffering from headache, tired brain, nervousness and dyspepsia. For this class, it is now generally admitted that Paine's Celery Compound is the great agent for imparting fresh strength to the nerves, and great vigor to the body, a glow of health to the cheeks, and brightness to the eyes.

Paine's Celery Compound in Canada is a favorite remedy with thousands of women, and physicians speak kindly of its great results.

EVERY day makes more apparent the fact that the town is going ahead rapidly. Numerous changes have taken place in the way of the ownership of property. Many workingmen are buying houses and lots or lots on which to build. One of the most suitable locations to that known as the Site property, at the west end, owned largely by Mr. Wm. Fitzgerald. This week he has closed the sale of a very desirable new house and lot, and has several eligible lots on this property to dispose of. Property in this neighbourhood is rapidly being built up, and it will be well to have a look at the situation if one is at all disposed to buy. The terms are very favourable and especially low for cash, though payment on time may be arranged.

A FIERCE SEA FIGHT.

One of the Bloodiest Naval Battles Ever Recorded Takes Place in the Harbor of Valparaiso.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 4.—News of the fiercest sea fight that has taken place during the whole of the Chilian war has just been received here. It took place in the harbor of Valparaiso on April 26 between the insurgent cruiser Magillanes and the Government torpedo boats Aldea, Condell and Lynch, four days after the encounter between the same vessels at Chanaral Bay. After the latter battle the Magillanes decided to attack the Government ships and if possible destroy them before they could again be fitted for sea. Favored by darkness the Magillanes crept into the harbor of Valparaiso and began the attack by ranging close alongside the already crippled Aldea and firing a broadside into her that did terrible execution. Nearly half of the torpedo boat's crew were either killed or wounded and the vessel was completely riddled. Getting clear of the Aldea the Magillanes at once attacked the Lynch but her fire was returned with interest. The smokestack of the Lynch was blown away and a boat containing ten men, who has been sent to try to attack the rebel vessel with a torpedo boat, was blown out of the water. The Condell had steamed to the outside of the Magillanes and was shot through and through. Over forty of her crew were lying dead or dying on her decks but her guns were untouched. Suddenly the rebel vessel began to move astern and ceased firing. The night being dark the Government steamers were unknowingly firing into each other and the Condell began to fill rapidly. The trick was not discovered until the Magillanes had turned and steaming across the stern of the Cordelia poured in a broadside that nearly demolished the latter, dismounting her guns and killing fourteen and wounding six more of the crew. The rebel steamer then steamed out of the harbor at full speed and was only hit once. Over 160 men were killed in the encounter.

THE McGREEVY SCANDAL.

He Will Not Willingly Allow the Privileges and Elections Committee to Examine His Books.

OTTAWA, June 4.—The Privileges and Elections Committee resumed its inquiry into the alleged McGreevy-Langevin scandal this morning. Another desultory debate took place on the exact position in which the books of Michael Connolly (produced yesterday) were now in, whether in the possession of the committee or in the custody of Michael Connolly. Yesterday Connolly refused to give them up, but the committee decided that he had a right to do so, and agreed to represent the matter to the House. Finally it was agreed yesterday that the books be marked for identification. This was done, but afterwards Mr. Connolly took them in his possession, locking them in a trunk in a room off the committee room and putting the key in his pocket.

Mr. Ferguson, counsel for Connolly, was asked if the books were now to be given to the committee, and in reply said that they were not, but Michael Connolly was willing to be examined on any items that was in them.

Mr. Tarte pointed out that Michael Connolly was already partially examined in regard to these books, and distinctly said that he never examined them—never kept them, as his time was wholly employed on the works and he knew nothing at all about them.

FOURTH DAY OF TRIAL.

INTENSE INTEREST IN THE BACCARAT TRIAL.

Positive Testimony That the Baronet Who Traces His Ancestry Back to the Line of the Conquerors Cheated at Cards—No Diminution in the Interest.

LONDON, June 4.—The interest taken in the Tranby Croft baccarat scandal trial is as great as ever. The Prince of Wales, who had stayed until late in the morning at a state ball, was among the early arrivals to-day. He was greeted by the audience rising, and he bowed pleasantly right and left as he moved to the red velvet arm chair on the left of the Chief Justice. Shortly afterwards Sir William Gordon Cumming, dignified and apparently confident in spite of the general belief that the case was going against him, entered the court with his head erect and his grey eyes flashing scorn in the direction of his enemies.

Replying to the questions of Sir Edward Clarke, the leading counsel for the plaintiff, Mr. Wilson said: "When I gave the orders to change the tables after the disclosures of the first night's play I was ready to stake my life that Sir William Gordon Cumming cheated. I and my mother sat down to play on the second night, Sept. 9, believing that the chalk line which we had marked on the table would prevent any attempt to cheat."

"And not a word was said to the plaintiff about it?" asked Sir Edward Clarke in apparent surprise.

"Certainly not," replied Wilson sharply; "what was my word against that of Sir William Gordon Cumming?"

"Plaintiff did not put his hands over the line until he knew his own side won, and then he put over a £10 counter, making his stake £15 instead of £5." "Then," asked Sir Edward Clarke, "why did you not say to Sir William Gordon Cumming, 'You only staked £5'?"

Wilson replied: "Because there were ladies present and it would have been an ungentlemanly thing to have had a row before them."

"And," continued the Solicitor-General, "you went on staking your money after seeing the plaintiff cheat?"

"Yes," replied Wilson coolly.

Did Not Share in the Winnings.

The young gentleman had hardly reached his seat when he was recalled to the witness box at the instance of the Lord Chief Justice, who asked him if he (Lord Coleridge) had rightly understood him to say that he had shared in the winnings of the plaintiff.

"Certainly not, my Lord," replied Mr. Wilson sharply and almost indignantly, as a red flush crossed his face.

Berkeley J. T. Levett, a lieutenant in the Scots Guards, the regiment of which Cumming was Major and Lieut.-Colonel, was the next witness. He evidently dreaded the ordeal. He in substance confirmed Mr. Wilson's testimony in regard to what took place at Tranby Croft.

The witness declared there had been no agreement to watch Sir William playing on the second night, witness on the contrary had purposely avoided watching on that occasion. Witness then testified that he was present at the interview in which Mr. Lycett Green made the statement to the Prince of Wales of what had been discovered. On that occasion the Prince, turning to witness, said: "I believe you, too, saw it." To this remark witness had replied: "Well, I am in an awkward position; we are in the same regiment and he (Sir William) is my captain." Witness had faithfully kept the compact of secrecy. When the plaintiff had asked witness "Could you not say you were mistaken?" the latter replied, "I would for your sake and for the sake of the regiment, but Lycett Green won't. I saw you adding counters."

As the witness made this most damaging statement he appeared to be profoundly agitated, while the now oppressive silence was broken by no other sounds than that of Lieut Levett's voice, as in subdued and faltering tones he thus damned the reputation of his fellow-soldier and late companion and friend.

At no time during the progress of the trial has the attention of the bench, bar and auditors been so plainly and impressively concentrated on a witness as when he slowly pronounced the words:

"I Saw You Adding Counters."

Recovering himself the witness said that at the request of the plaintiff he had consented to see their hostess, Mrs. Wilson, and ascertain what if anything could be done to save Sir William from a shameful exposure. Plaintiff again urged witness in the most pleading manner to do all that was possible to avoid the catastrophe which was impending. Not content with this, the plaintiff had subsequently written witness reminding him of his promise to do all he could in his behalf. After receiving a letter from the plaintiff's lawyer threatening to bring the present action, witness met Sir William, who said that the affair was a desperate conspiracy against him.

The cross-examination of Lieut. Levett developed nothing new of material importance, and entirely failed to shake his direct testimony. The story of the proceedings at Tranby Croft as related by Levett were in startling contrast to the version given by Sir William Gordon Cumming.

Mr. Lycett Green, son-in-law of Mrs. Wilson, was sworn. Witness confirmed the testimony given by Mr. Wilson, so far as it referred to his part in the matter at issue.

While this witness was giving his testimony the foreman of the special jury handed up to Lord Chief Justice Coleridge a letter which had been sent to a juryman and which was couched in threatening and abusive language.

Mr. Lycett Green then turned toward the Chief Justice and said: "Your Lordship, I have also received a letter of the same description as that which has just been handed up to you by the jury."

Resuming his testimony the witness graphically described the events of the second night's play at Tranby Croft, when he had distinctly seen the plaintiff push counters over the line, when he (plaintiff) saw that the card had been favorably declared.

It had been the first impulse of the witness to there and then expose the foul play of Sir William. He had only desisted from so doing because of the presence of the Prince of Wales and the ladies.

He however rose from the table and left the room. After withdrawing from the party witness had sent a note into Mrs. Arthur Wilson reading:

I have seen Sir William Gordon Cumming cheating, and cannot remain in the room longer. Something ought to be done to stop the game.

Later witness had asked to be confronted with plaintiff if the latter denied his guilt.
